CENTRAL PARK is opened at last, and wheelmen are free to ride badgeless upon any of the carriage paths. Time was when the wheel was excluded from the square in front of the Park entrance, but the world has moved.

S. CONANT FOSTER should have lived to see this day. He was one of the three who rode into Central Park years ago, in defiance of the law in order to make a test case in the courts. The three men were arrested, the case went to court, the Pope Manufacturing Company paid all the bills, and the wheelmen lost. The moral of all this is, if we have bad laws, let us have them repealed.

WHEELMEN are a power in politics and they should know it and use their influence in the shaping of laws.

"BASSETT expresses the official opinion that the League will continue to ignore road racing, and let the amateur and the "pro." race with each other as much as they please on the highway. An Englishman and a strong advocate of strict amateurism, writes us as follows: 'There is only one expression that fits Mr. Bassett's ruling re road races, and that is "d —— d nonsense."' So we say, and so every one says who believes at all in consistency."

Bassett decidedly objects to being held wholly responsible for the action of the Racing Board, which has been confirmed by the Cabinet. It is not "Bassett's ruling," though he is on that side of the question.

IF J. G. Carpenter makes as good a secretary-treasurer for Pennsylvania as his predecessor, T. Houard Wright proved himself, the State will be lucky. A good man in this position is eminently to be desired. Wright made a good record, and the State can ill afford to lose his services. But Carpenter has won his spurs on other fields.

ROWE has been hissed on his own stamping ground. This is unfortunate, for the racing interest in Lynn thrives on the reputation of Rowe, who has always been in high favor. But the public is fickle, and is easily turned from an idol. A little yielding on both sides would have been a happy way out of the difficulty. Rowe has been beaten twice by McCurdy from the three hundred yard mark, and it is no more than right that McCurdy be placed nearer scratch, but it would be unfair to McCurdy to reduce his handicap to one hundred and seventy-five yards, as Rowe insisted. Handicaps are made in order to place men upon a level, and they should be changed whenever results show that the men are not so placed. Rowe's capital is the favor of the public, and when he loses this he may as well leave the track.

ROWE hissed in Lynn, and Hendee condemned in Springfield. This is a most deplorable condition of things, viewed from the standpoint of those who are interested in racing. The Springfield Union used gallons of ink and reams of paper in old tournament days to sound the praises of "Our George," and its fulsome flattery of the local favorite was often laughable in the extreme. But now we find it accusing Hendee of a "despicable trick," and it avers that "the Springfield Bicycle Club wants nothing more to do with him." This because he did not go to Springfield and run for a record on July 4, after agreeing to do so, and because he failed to answer urgent telegrams asking if he would be present. Springfield has parted with Ducker, and she has lost faith in Hendee. These two men gave the city a world-wide reputation. Will others arise to take their places? Time, alone, will tell.

BURLEY AYERS is still bringing the railroads into line. He promises important concessions by through roads to California, and is negotiating for free transportation throughout that State. Wheels are carried free in California only about San Francisco, and to extend this privilege the League must use its influence on those who control the roads and have important Eastern interests. California could do little alone. A national organization is needed in cases of this kind.

THE FIFTH ANNUAL MEET OF THE PENNSYLVANIA DIVISION, AND THIRD ANNUAL MEET OF THE WILKES BARRE BICYCLE CLUB.

THE past week has been hot, dry, and dusty, and to-day has been no exception, though clouds have occasionally tempered the sun's rays, while a strong southeast breeze has been with us all the day. Notwithstanding the heat, the fifth annual meet of the Division and the third annual meet of the Wilkes Barre Bicycle Club has passed into history as a grand success. From the time the first visiting wheelman arrived in town, until the dropping of the curtain at the minstrel show a few minutes since, has been one round of pleasure.

The Wilkes Barre Bicycle Club, and especially their manager, J. G. Carpenter, should be congratulated upon the success attained, evidently, the result of hard work.

Wheelmen began to arrive in town on Saturday, the 2d inst., the largest delegation being the Williamsport Club, under charge of Representative Richards (F. J.), numbering nearly fifty. Reading came in strong with Representative H. F. Crecelius and their pet racer, Wilhelm, who was accompanied by his wife and child, his mascot. Harrisburg showed up under charge of Representative George A. Gorgas; while Philadelphia poured in her delegates from her various clubs, Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, and Century, all in a body, among whom were Representatives Kirk, Brown, and Jno. A. Wells, H. B. Hart, C. D. Williams, and their racer, Louis J. Kolb. H. C. Hersey, of Elmira, was at hand with some of the Elmira boys. While the Capital Club, of Washington, had their strong team of W. E. Crist, Phil Brown, and M. B. Crenshaw.

The number of light racing wheels told of the contests of speed to take place, while the crowd of wheelmen in uniform helped materially to give the city a holiday appearance At the going down of the sun on Saturday, the celebration of Independence day commenced, and was celebrated with more force and vim by our visitors than usual. On Sunday morning the crowd was augmented still more by the arrival of a portion of the Binghamton and Scranton wheelmen, and at about ten o'clock nearly one hundred wheelmen started on a run to Wyoming, seven miles away — over the famous cinder path — a delightful ride which all seemed to enjoy, notwithstanding the thermometer registered nearly a hundred in the shade. The afternoon was spent quietly at the hotels, but in the evening the boys started a celebration, which was kept up the greater part of the night.

The early trains this morning brought in the wheelmen from surrounding places — Scranton, Pittston, Bloomsbury, Kingston, etc., and by ten o'clock four hundred wheelmen were on the river common, in front of the headquarters. The time of starting the parade was necessarily delayed an hour by the citizens' parade — which had the first start. But at eleven o'clock the line had been formed, reviewed by Commander Chief Consul Jessup and staff, and started upon the line of parade. There were nearly four hundred wheelmen in line, it being by far the largest wheelmen's parade ever seen in these parts. The size of wheels ranged from a 64 inch Victor, ridden by a member of the Wilkes Barre Club, down to a 24-inch wheel, ridden by the Mascot, of the Williamsport Club. The Williamsport Club appeared in L. A. W. uniform, with white Swiss hats trimmed with red ribbon, making a very neat appearance. They had over forty men in line, and took both the prize for appearance and largest number of men in line. After the procession all repaired to Music Hall, where liquid refreshments were served, and Gen. McCartney made an address of welcome, complimenting the wheelmen on their appearance and manly bearing. Chief Consul Jessup briefly replied, before calling the members to order for business. It then being past the hour of noon, very few could sacrifice their appetites for a business meeting. Mr. J. G. Carpenter was unanimously elected secretary-treasurer, and after passing a number of suggestions to the committee on the revision of the L. A. W Constitution, the meeting adjourned.

RACES.

At two o'clock an audience of nearly four thousand people had assembled at Lee Park to witness the bicycle races. It was nearly three o'clock before the races began, but once begun, the following officers of the day did their work well, and the fourteen events were promptly run off. Geo. A. Jessup, Scranton, Referee. Judges, Jno. A. Wells, Philadelphia, C. R. Overman, Boston, and Ira Dayton, Williamsport; Timers, Geo. A. Gorgas, Harrisburg, S. B. Vaughn, Kingston, and Fred C. Hand, Scranton; Scorers, H. C. Spaulding, Elmira, H. F. Crecelius, Reading, and W. W. Berry, Pittston; Handicapper, Jno. A. Wells, Philadelphia; Starter, John A. Kutzner, Reading; Umpires, Chas. Funston, Bloomsbury, N. G. Lincoln, Wilkes Barre; Clerk of Course, Geo. L. Weiss.

Each event on the programme was well filled with entries, but the half-mile track was in such poor condition, that when Hersey, of Elmira, arrived in town and rode around it, he took the first train home, and others, who remained, did not go on the course.

The first event, the one-mile novice, McAniff, of Wilkes Barre; Noble, of Alden; Snyder, of Reading; Heeley, of Scranton; Johnson, of Wilkes Barre, started. By the time one lap was run, it was seen that the race was between Snyder and Heeley; but Snyder won on his Star in 3.06.

Three-mile lap. — Crist, of Washington; Wilhelm, of Reading; and Brown, of Washington, starters, Wilhelm made the first lap, but the pace was so sharp that he dropped out before a second, and it was at once seen that Crist had it his own way. Still Brown rode pluckily, and the spurting on the finish of each lap made it interesting for the audience. On the last lap, Brown took a severe header, which did not seriously injure him. Crist finished in 11.36.

Two-mile 6.45 class. — McAniff, Snyder, Crenshaw, of Washington; Nallin, of Scranton; Synnestoedt, Philadelphia; and Davis, of Elmira, started. McAniff and Davis soon found themselves into too warm company, and dropped out. Nallin took a header on the back stretch, but before anyone could get to him was on his machine again. Snyder won in 6.36; Crenshaw second, in 6.38 1-5.

Three Mile Penna. State Championship. — It was evident as Wilhelm and Kolb, of Philadelphia, came out as the only starters in the championship event that they would be the only ones to start in the one mile, so the contest to see which was the best man was over this race, and it was watched with interest. Kolb allowed Wilhelm to make the pace throughout until a quarter of the finish, when he passed him on a spurt. Though he worked hard the Star man, Wilhelm spurted past him on the finish, winning easily in 10 23 1-2.

Half Mile Boys. — Kilmer, of Reading; Hollister, of Wilkes Barre, and Merryweather (colored), were starters. Merryweather was soon distanced, and Kilmer won easily in 1.40.

One Mile Dash. — Crist, Snyder, and Siebecker, of Scranton, started. The contest was between Snyder and Siebecker for second place, and Siebecker won in 3.16 1-5, Crist having won first place in 3.13 3-4.

One Mile Wilkes Barre Club Race. — Englebert, Johnson, and Bowman, started. Bowman was soon distanced. Englebert took a fall, and Johnson won in 3.23.

The one-mile tricycle. — Crist and Brown were the only entries and starters. They made a fine exhibition race, and made close finish, Crist leading in just 4m.

Two-mile L. A. W. championship. — Crist and Wilhelm starters. This race was made very interesting by the good judgment of Crist, who, relying on his powers at the finish, allowed it to be a close race throughout. He won in 6.52 2-5.

One mile tandem tricycle — Crist and Brown being the only team to show up, they rode over the course in 4.20 4-5.

Two-mile handicap — Crist, McAniff, Kilmer, Brown, Heeley, Synnestvedt, and Snyder. Crist was scratch man, and Synnestvedt limit man with fifty seconds' start. Crist took his start very cool, seeming to have confidence that he could pass them all, as he looked across at the limit man, nearly a quarter of a mile away. He got down to work and passed one after another, and was fast overhauling the minute man, when the two miles was up. Synnestvedt covering it in 6.51 2-5; while Crist finished second in 6.10 3-4.

One-mile team. — None but the Washington team showed up, and Brown took his second fall, which bruised him up badly, but he was fortunate in escaping serious injury.

One-mile Penn. State Championship. — Wilhelm and Kolb were the only starters, and, as was seen in the 3-mile, Wilhelm had his own way and won in 3.32 1-5.

One-mile Consolation.—Davis and McAniff started, Davis winning easily in 4.01½.

The races were much enjoyed throughout, the poor track and strong wind was the cause of the slow time made.

EVENING SHOW.

The bicycle tournament was brought to a close by the Scranton Bicycle Club's minstrels, under the management of Fred. C. Hand, at Music Hall. A large audience of the elite was in attendance. The performance was first-class, and could not have been better if the best professional minstrel companies would have occupied the boards. The end men were funny, and cracked old and new jokes in good order. The singing was very good all through. The banjo club gave some excellent selections. Every performer was encored once or twice, and the audience was more than delighted.

During the performance Roland Reed, the celebrated comedian, sang several of his laughable selections, and was encored four times.

BUSINESS MEETING.

IMMEDIATELY after the parade, the regular business meeting convened at Music Hall, with Chief Consul Jessup in the chair.

General W. H. McCartney, on being introduced, welcomed the visiting wheelmen to the hospitalities of Wilkes Barre, and spoke in the highest terms of their appearance and behavior, praising cycling as the most popular and beneficial of all forms of manly exercises.

Chief Consul Jessup responded on behalf of the wheelmen, stating that one of the chief objects of the Pennsylvania Division was the securing of better roads in every part of the State, and that all the influence which the organization is able to exert would be used in the furtherance of that end.

Secretary-Treasurer Wright not being present, on motion of Mr. Vaughn, Mr. John A. Wells was elected Secretary pro tem.

The minutes of the meeting of March 9 were then read and approved.

Chief Consul Jessup read the report of the Secretary-Treasurer as follows: —

Audited and found correct.

ISAAC ELWELL, FRANK READ, } Committee.

There is still due from Secretary-Editor Bassett $160 on the settlement to April 1, 1887, and there is due to him $7.50 for L. A. W. hand-books purchased from him. The understanding is that this bill shall stand until he has settled in full with the Division.

It will be noticed that I have drawn but $75 on account of the salary voted to me at the last meeting. The reason is that it is not clear whether it was the intention to make the salary $100 for the term from one annual meeting to the next, or at the rate of $100 per calendar year. It, therefore, rests with this meeting to determine what balance is still due.

The following is a statement of the road-book account since it has been in my charge: (The work of this Committee was turned over to me by Mr. Wood, about June 1, 1886.)

Balance received from Mr. H. S. Wood, ex-chairman of the committee	$19 56
Cash sales outside of Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland	27 75
Sales of postage stamps	70 50
Pennsylvania Division, L. A. W.	117 00
New Jersey " " final settlement	26 52
Maryland Division, L. A. W., final settlement	66
E. Stanley Hart & Co., 8 books short delivered	3 16
Total receipts	$265 15
Maryland Division, stamps received on its account for books bought prior to June 1, 1887	2 52
E. Stanley Hart & Co., sundry bills	242 00
Postage stamps	12 75
Total disbursements	$257 27
Balance turned over to Pennsylvania Division	7 88

The disposition of the final edition of 592 books (the only one that passed through my hands), is as follows: —

Maryland	11 books.
New Jersey	84 "
Pennsylvania	455 "
Cash sales	29 "
Complimentary	6 books.
Unaccounted for	2 "
	487
Still on hand	5
	592

The five books remaining on hand have been kept for the use of the compilers of the next road-book issued by the Pennsylvania Division. The two books unaccounted for are supposed to be complimentary copies of which no account was taken.

The electrotypes are in the hands of Messrs. E. Stanley Hart & Co. In a letter written immediately after removing from the city, Mr. Wood informed me that the Maryland electrotypes belong to that Division, and that the New Jersey electros belong to New Jersey. No separation of this property has ever been asked for or made.

The membership of the Division at this time last year was 1,267, which was increased by the end of the year to 1,488. Of this number 1,191 renewed and the 306 applications to date (including list of June 24), and 12 life memberships, bring our numbers up to 1,509.

Respectfully submitted,

T. HOWARD WRIGHT,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Referring to the minutes of the last annual meeting it was found that the salary of the Secretary-Treasurer was at the rate of $100 per calendar year. On motion, the report of the Secretary-Treasurer was accepted and approved.

The Chief Consul then presented the following report: —

In presenting to you my annual report, I beg to say that I have very little to report in the line of business done.

I have appointed Consuls and have nominated three new Representatives. The number of League members has increased greatly, and the prospects for a year of prosperity are very encouraging.

There are several reforms necessary in the rules and regulations necessary for the governing of this division.

1. I would suggest that the members of this division act as a unit in endeavoring to get better roads and better streets in our cities and towns. There is a grand opportunity for work in this direction, and I am firmly of the opinion that we can wield our influence in this direction, which will be felt throughout the whole State. This matter of roads is the important one.

2. Our by-laws need a general overhauling, as in many instances they conflict with the L. A. W. rules.

3. A division of the State with districts making representatives for each, and making provision for representatives at large, for any increase in membership which would intitle us to more representation.

4. The necessity for a new road book is apparent to all, and some provision should be made to publish one at the first opportunity.

The duty of all L. A. W. members to work for the best interests of the League is apparent to all fair-minded men; working in a harmonious spirit we can accomplish much for the advancement of cycling. Let us band ourselves together in the bonds of fraternal fellowship and push on to larger usefulness.

I ask from you all help in this work; in union there is strength.

Let us lay aside all bickerings and jealousy, and work for the common cause, the advancement of cycling, good roads, and the same rights which are granted to other wheeled vehicles.

The next business in order was the election of a Secretary-Treasurer for the ensuing year. Mr. J. G. Carpenter of Wilkes Barre was nominated by Dr. Richards, and Mr. J. J. Van Nort of Scranton was nominated by Mr. Vaughn. Mr. Van Nort asked to be allowed to withdraw his name, and on motion the nominations were closed. The Secretary was instructed to cast the vote for the meeting, and he announced that Mr. J. G. Carpenter was unanimously elected.

On motion the subject of a new State Constitution was referred to the Committee on Rules and Regulations, with instructions to report as soon as possible after the report of the present committee on the revision of the League constitution.

It was moved and carried that it be the sentiment of the meeting that the State be districted, each member to vote for the representatives in his own district. Referred to the Committee on Rules and Regulations.

Mr. H. B. Hart moved the adoption of the following resolution,

Resolved, That the action of the Board of Officers in taking away the right of appeal, is against the best interests of the organization, inasmuch as by this action the wishes of the body at large could be defeated.

After some discussion, in which it was explained that the object of this resolution was not to stir up any ill-feeling, but to express to the committee now engaged in revising the League Constitution, the sentiments of the Pennsylvania Division. The resolution was adopted.

The following resolution was then unanimously carried,

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the State Divisions should have the power to appoint or elect officers — in such manner as they shall provide — to fill any vacancies which may occur from any cause whatever.

The advisability of getting out a new road book was then brought up, and after some discussion was referred to the Road Book Committee, with power to act.

On motion of Mr. Van Nort the following resolution was adopted,

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Division that a larger portion of the annual dues should be paid to the division, and that the payment should be made to the Secretary-Treasurer of the Division instead of to the Secretary-Editor of the League.

On motion adjourned. JOHN A. WELLS,
Secretary pro tem.

WILKES BARRE, July 4, 1887.

THE OWL.

I NOTICED the other day a note in a wheel paper to the effect that Jack Prince could not "coast," and that Dick Howell could not mount a wheel unaided. I have always heard that English racing men were poor road riders, and this confirms my belief. This reminds me of a story Harry Corey told me when he came back from England last year, of a ride he had with his same Dick Howell. It seems that he had agreed to ride with him from Coventry to Stratford-on-Avon, a distance of eighteen miles, and as the roads were good, Corey mounted a 53-inch Rudge Light Roadster, while Howell came along on a 57-inch Rudge Racer. On the former's inquiry as to what he was going to do with the Racer, Howell replied, he intended to ride it, giving at the same time the information that he was no "horse," and that in consequence he always used a Racer. Howell had not ridden for six weeks, and weighed nearly 210 pounds, so it was but natural that Corey wanted to know if he intended a 22-pound racing wheel to carry his weight, especially at the gait Harry usually sets on excursions of this kind. The pair rode through Warwick, each bent on "scorching" the other. On the flats Howell would walk away from Corey, only to be passed by him when a hill was met. Finally, Stratford was reached, and Howell being pretty well done up, it took some time for him to make up his mind whether he would ride home on his machine or not. At last, desiring to avoid admitting himself beaten, they started to ride the return trip. Hardly three miles had been ridden, when Howell dismounted from his machine and swore he would not ride another yard, as he remarked that the "blooming" racing saddle on the backbone, was as hard as a "blawsted" rock. A compromise was finally arrived at by Corey letting Howell have his 53, and he getting Howell's 57. With many a grunt and groan, the champion was helped on to the 53, while Corey got into the saddle of the 57, and off they started once more. When about half the journey had been covered, Howell once more began to lament because the reach on the 53 was so short that his knees nearly struck his chin, and he kept shouting to Harry, who was kicking the 57 along for all he was worth, to "wait a bit, me boy." As Corey is well known as a practical joker, and Howell is anything but an angel when in a temper, it may well be imagined that the cry for mercy was only met by more energetic digging on the Boston man's part. The sight of Howell on the 53 and Corey on the 57, as they piled into Coventry was something laughable; when Howell was helped off the machine in front of the hotel, he swore he never would get on a machine on the road again, and it was many a day before it was healthy to ask him if the road was hilly between Coventry and Stratford.

I SEE my friend Kennedy-Child has lapsed into poetry, and has in verse narrated his "thoughts on opening a bottle of beer." The effusion is just too cunning for anything. Can't you induce Kennedy to run this in a sort of a serial form? Let his next be his "thoughts on opening a bottle of soda" to brace up on, on the follo ving morning, or his "thoughts on opening a jack-pot." This last is a theme I am sure he could dilate on extensively, and if he wants a little data concerning same, I have plenty I will place at his disposal.

I UNDERSTAND a Boston Professor intends lecturing on the "Uselessness of Profanity." Before he plunges into the affair, I would like to ask him if he has ever ridden a wheel with a melodious creak, which refused to be discovered, or drowned by even the most liberal and general application of oil? If he has, and still wants to make the above assertion, he is either an angel or fool, and in either case out of place on the lecture platform. My own impression is, he will find that in such cases, profanity is usually used, whether useless or not.

I AM afraid that the opening of Central Park to wheelmen, and the consequent large increase of tandem riders, is going to be followed by a corresponding decrease in the number of bachelor wheelmen. A case in point, came to my personal notice the other evening. We were returning from a moonlight tandem ride, she and I, and when we reached the Park entrance at 110th Street, I asked "Shall we take the East Drive home" and she replied "No; I would prefer the bridal-path, I think." Pretty desperate play that, eh? She didn't take any bridal-path that time, though.

IN the last issue of Fiction, appears a tricycle love story, which is an appreciated change from the old header-nurse-tandem idea. The hero is a tricyclist, and teaches the heroine how to ride. Many robberies have occurred in the neighborhood, and the thieves leave no trace, but escape mysteriously. Heroine is left alone in house, servants to dance, sees five trike riders steal into the grounds masked, she locks plate closet, sneaks out as they enter, removes steering bars from four of the wheels, mounts fifth, and speeds away for help, this secured, robbers convicted, and the usual God-bless-you-my-children act is indulged in, and the miseries of their future lives are doubled by marriage.

THE order giving the wheelmen the unrestricted use of Central Park, was issued to the Park-police at midnight on Friday. The delay was caused by the commissioners waiting for the corporation counsel's opinion as to the legality of same. It took this gentleman over a week to deliver the learned opinion that it was all right, a fact any wheelman could have answered in ten seconds, but of course the latter does not get a salary for his opinion, while the legal gentleman has to go through the form of earning his salary.

THE racing cut on your second page, is one of the very few pictures, that to a cyclist correctly convey the spirit and action of a race. It is strange that among the many artists who are wheelmen, none seem competent to correctly picture a wheelman riding. George Moore seems to be the only one, and the Rudge people recognizing it, get him to do their illustrating for them.

I THINK the Park Commissioners intend to drive all the tandem riders off of the Riverside Drive, since I see they propose to light it up with electric lights. Well! thank goodness we have got the Park now, and they don't dare light that up in any way, or there would be a riot in New York.

THE editor of the Scientific American became so enthusiastic over his Rudge Bicyclette, that he inserted, under date of June 25, a full description of this machine in the columns of that paper.

MESSRS. STODDARD, LOVERING & CO. offer some very desirable bargains in racing machines, and take second-hand machines of reliable make in part payment for the same. Aspirants for racing honors cannot do better than to write to them for terms.

AT the great hill-climbing contest in Cheshire, Eng., promoted by the London Athletic News, the first prize was won by a Rudge Bicyclette, which was an easy winner from a field of seventeen starters.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

WE are all going to Oak Bluffs, as it used to be called, to Cottage City, as it is now known. The fiat has gone forth, and we must needs pack our trunks, clean our wheels and hie away. The ladies will go in goodly numbers, I am told, though I fear that they will find more attraction in the hops than they have found as yet in the wheel.

THE dancing element will be largely in the ascendant in the feminine contingent, though many lady riders will go. Perhaps we shall be able to lure the non-riders to a trial of wheeling on the asphalt, and it may be that the outing will result in more lady riders. Let us hope so.

I AM asked by the Massachusetts officials to extend a most cordial invitation to the ladies of the League and to those who are not League members, as well, to go to Cottage City and enjoy the wheeling on the asphalt, as well as to engage in the sports incident to the occasion. I do this most cheerfully. Come, all of you that can. If you that have no escorts will write to Mr. Hayes he will see that you have good quarters, and are well taken care of. A number of us will be housed in a group of cottages and there is accommodation for more ladies if they apply at once.

I SUGGESTED, a few weeks since, that it would be a good idea if the ladies could have the use of some of the abandoned skating rinks, for private riding and practice. A Philadelphia friend writes me on this subject as follows: "This is what H. B. Hart, the Philadelphia agent for the Columbia, has been doing for years past. He rents the West Philadelphia Rink, with machines and instructor, to parties for three dollars an evening."

THE ladies of Philadelphia are to be congratulated on the opportunity they have to enjoy a pleasant evening at moderate cost. Let us hope that some other rink proprietor will follow the example of Mr. Hart.

THE same friend writes: "One lady pupil of Hart's, in company with her husband, on July 4, made a trip from Morristown, Pa. to Broad Axe and return, a distance altogether of thirteen miles in just one hour. The machine ridden was the new Columbia tandem, and the road such as would have made a Bostonese quite ill."

I HAVE always been surprised to notice the apathy of Providence men and women towards the wheel. They have fine roads and the opportunity for delightful runs to Pawtuxet and Pawtucket, to say nothing of the fine park roads. But now I am told that the city has gone wild over the wheel, and that there are thirteen tandems in the city. A Providence paper has been sent to me, which gives me this cheering news. The paper enumerates the riders and tells a story as follows: The Rhode Island Wheelmen own a Columbia tandem, Dr. Bogman and wife ride a Columbia, Mr. Breckenridge has one also; so have Whitten & Company, and they also have a Rudge Humber; Mr. and Mrs. Thurber enjoy outings on a Quadrant; Mr. George R. McAuslin takes comfort and his acquaintances out on a Royal Salvo; Mr. Talbot rides a Rudge Crescent; Mr. H. L. Spencer, of Pawtucket, a Singer Humber; Mr. Knight, and Mr. and Mrs. Davol, of Warren, ride each a Rudge Humber; Mr. and Mrs. Ely are devoted to a Coventry Rotary, and the Misses Rhodes find the Marlboro' Club exactly suited to their wants. They say that more tandems are coming; perhaps so, but one benedict at least has learned that one woman at least, prefers a tricycle. She has been riding a Marlboro' trike and now has no use for the front seat of a tandem. On the tricycle she is supreme, and she coasts, climbs hills, and races with an exhilaration and enjoyment that is born of freedom, and the realization that she is "running her own machine."

"Speaking of tandems there is a good little story going around. Mr. A. is an enthusiastic and muscular tandemon. Mrs. B. had never ridden until the other day, but she has aspirations in that direction. Mr. A. is visiting Mr. and Mrs. B., and he offers to take Mrs. B. out in his tandem. They go six or seven miles and return. The roads were typical Rhode Island roads, in their typical condition — rough, stony, and dusty. But Mrs. B. is delighted. 'Why, John," she cries to her husband, as she springs across the threshold, 'It was just too delightful for anything. Why, it was no effort at all; I'm not tired or anything; the machine just ran itself.' At this juncture Mr. A. enters, dusty, and dripping with perspiration; he drops into a chair and calls faintly for a glass of water. Mr. B. discovers at a glance how the machine 'just ran itself,' and now Mrs. B. wonders why her husband is so dead set against tandems."

WE shall certainly expect a large delegation from Providence at the annual North Shore Ladies' Run, and it may be that our ladies will ride to Providence later in the season. DAISIE.

CHICAGO.

THE annual meeting of the Illinois Division, L. A. W., held at Peoria, July 4, was, by far, the most successful of any meet held since the organization of the division. The runs to Chillicothe and Mooseville on Sunday were abandoned on account of rain, so the visiting wheelmen had the pleasure of sitting about the hotel and swapping jokes with the club liar, and indulging in other harmless amusements.

ABOUT fifty wheelmen attended the special wheelmen's service at the First Congregational Church, and listened to an eloquent sermon, in which the bicycle race was compared to the Race of Life. The sermon was confined mostly to racing, but I am sorry to say the able divine did not give us any new information on the all-absorbing amateur question.

THE business meeting was held Monday morning. The office of Secretary-Treasurer resulted in the unanimous election of A. J. Street, of the Illinois Club, Chicago. The new racing board is as follows: N. H. Van Sicklen, chairman. L. D. Munger, of Chicago; F. F. Patee, of Peoria; H. G. Ridgely, of Springfield; and E. P. Blake, of Blomington. The most important step of the meeting was, dividing the State into districts, and having only one representative to each district. This, we believe, will be beneficial to the division, as it distributes the representatives more evenly throughout the State. Of course, this leaves Chicago with only one representative for over two hundred wheelmen, but as we now have three active clubs, among which can be found some hard League workers, we are confident that we can pull through all right.

THE picnic dinner at Prospect Hill will always be a pleasant remembrance to those who have the never-tiring appetites. The moonlight excursion on the lake was the only feature of the meet in which the "fair sex" were allowed to participate. They were out in large numbers, and did honor to the occasion, as well as to the ice-cream and cake.

THE party of ten wheelmen that undertook to ride to the meet had bad luck from beginning to end. They were overtaken by the rain when only a few miles out of Aurora, and were compelled to complete their journey in a hay cart until a railroad station could be reached, where they took the train for Peoria, arriving there in time for the parade on Monday morning. "Birdie" Munger was with them, and won a name for himself as a volunteer fireman in one of the towns where they stopped over night.

THE Illinois Club will start five members on a club run to Milwaukee on Sunday next. They are all scorchers, and will attempt to lower the record between Chicago and Milwaukee, which is, at present, sixteen hours, including stops. The fact that this club turned out twenty-seven members on a run a few evenings since, goes to show that the interest manifested in wheeling is increasing daily.

THREE cheers for Bidwell and the Liberty Bill! We wish we could borrow his services long enough to have Lincoln Park open to wheelmen after 8 P. M. SPECTATOR.

MESSRS. STODDARD, LOVERING & Co. have found the demand for the Bicyclette to be so great that Harry Corey sold his own private machine to accommodate a customer.

ST. LOUIS.

THE Fourth was a gala day with us. C. C Brewster and Alex. Lewis went to Indiana on Friday, touring to Springfield, O., via Dayton and Xenia. At Springfield, President Kirkpatrick, who is a regular road man himself, took them in hand and showed them the elephant. Lewis sent St. Louis to the front by winning a climbing contest on College Hill. The St. Louis Cycle Club went to Quincy, and on their return reported a very hilarious time. At Greenville, Harry Gordon captured a five-mile race, Hollister, second, natives, nowhere.

I WENT to a barbecue, at Forest Park, and found there quite a scattering of other stay-at-homes. Incidentally, I beg to be excused from barbecues hereafter. It's to be hoped clam-bakes are not half as bad.

ERE my cycling days began, I often saw Ralph Friedburg (Temple) in my native town, Havana, Ill. In those days he rode a 50-inch Standard. He hailed from Galesburg, and in the summer time "turned" an honest penny by travelling through the neighboring towns with a screen painter. Friedburg did the advertising by doing fancy work on the unicycle in the main streets, while his partner decorated the screen of every store in town with Italian castles and the like.

THE only difference between the work of New York and Missouri in road matters was, that New York "got there," and poor old Missouri didn't. The scheme proposed by ex-C. C. Rogers last year and this, pertained to the repairing of public highways by convict labor or by a money tax. Georgia is now enjoying some sensational revelations relative to the pernicious contract, or lease, system of convict labor, and a proposition is afoot to place state prisoners at work on highways exclusively. A query — if New York L. A. W. members can accomplish so much, why cannot the Missouri Division add another feather to the plumes by agitating either convict labor on the public roads, or money taxation for road repairs. Either cause would meet with popular sympathy, if properly presented.

ST. LOUIS can give bigger centres pointers on the dispensing of cycling news. Likewise, the Kansas City Journal and Times can give the P-D a number of tips by the entertaining manner in which they dish up wheel notes for Kansas City readers. The Journal averages over a column of closely printed matter weekly, and has a corps of correspondents at St. Joe, Leavenworth, and other points, beside a regular contributor, signing himself "Rambler."

THAT was a cheesy joke, Mr. Editor. We all remember how, when we were under seven, we used to make faces and stick out our tongues because our bit of sweetmeat (meet) wasn't quite as big as the other fellow's, though just as good. But come, Mr. B., you're getting a big boy now.

PHOENIX.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

FOURTH of July has come and gone, and a glorious Fourth it was. The three days holiday was thoroughly appreciated by the wheelmen of this city, every one who could manage a "bike" taking advantage of the opportunity of getting so long a breathing spell away from the sweltering town. All day Saturday, and also on Sunday morning, merry parties of cyclers were passing down the Pike in frequent succession, the astonished toll-gate keepers wondering where the vast army came from, and where it was going. Patchogue was the objective point of the majority, about two hundred going there, while about fifty tarried at Babylon, and many others found enjoyment at Far Rockaway, Roslyn, and the numerous other resorts on either shore.

At Patchogue the crowd was unprecedented, cyclers, militia, and civilians, helping to swell the throng, and the fun was immense. The town had made great preparations to celebrate the day, and the militia were its guests, invited to participate in the celebration and parade. The wheelmen were not left out in the cold by any means; they never are, and they managed to have a good old time both at their own and other people's expense. Sunday night the guns of the Gatling battery were mysteriously removed and secreted in a convenient hay-loft. At sunrise Monday morning there were no guns with which to fire the customary salute. Of course, nobody knew anything about them, and there was some lively hustling around before the guns were recovered and the salute fired about ten minutes late. The wheelmen were accused of stealing the guns, though the 13th Regiment boys were undoubtedly the guilty parties. The whole affair was regarded as a good joke, and much merriment ensued, the pass-word of the day being "who stole the guns."

The tour of the Brooklyn Club was a grand success, they being on this occasion, contrary to custom, favored with fair weather. They were met at Jamaica by a delegation from the Mercury Wheel Club, and escorted to Flushing over the Black Stump road, the less said about which the better. At Flushing a visit was made to the athletic grounds, which deserve a passing word. Beautifully located and nicely kept, they contain tennis courts, a ball field, a well-made cycling and running track, and a well-appointed and model gymnasium, besides which is a very pretty ladies' summer house and parlor, in which the party were invited to partake of refreshments that had been prepared for them by the young ladies of the village who were present. Refreshed and reinforced by an additional number of Flushing boys, saddles were resumed, and a run taken over the macadam to Bayside, thence to the fort at Willett's Point, returning to Crocheron's Hotel at the beach at Bayside, where a dinner was served at eight o'clock, such as it is seldom the luck of a hungry cycler to obtain on Long Island. This charming spot is but five miles from the Jericho Pike, from whence there are good roads via Queens. Pretty views, plenty of shade, boating and bathing, and an excellent dinner are here to be obtained, and I wonder that we Brooklynites have not discovered this delightful retreat before. Dinner over, the return ride to Flushing was delightful, the moon full and unclouded, rendering the use of lamps unnecessary, the pleasant evening breeze a most refreshing change from the glare and heat of the afternoon sun.

Sunday morning, accompanied by League Accountant Veysey, of the Harlem Wheelmen, the party wheeled to Babylon for dinner. Captain Peck, of the Massachusetts Club, and his party of Washington tourists, were here met journeying towards Brooklyn. Every inducement was offered them to remain over at Babylon and proceed the following day, but having resisted the strong temptation to remain with the many good fellows at Patchogue, they likewise conquered the stronger temptations of the Babylonians, and started for a hot and dusty ride to Jamaica, where they were well entertained at mine host Pettit's, and proceeded the following day to New York.

Reports of the overflowing crowd and cramped accommodations at Patchogue decided the party to spend the afternoon sailing on the Great South Bay, and the night at Babylon. The following morning the party divided, part going to Patchogue and the Jubilee, the others returning to Jamaica for dinner, and attending the bicycle races at Queens in the afternoon, at which the only open event, a two-mile handicap, was won by Todd of the Brooklyns, in 7.07, with Meeteer second. The track at Queens is of hard clay, six laps to the mile, well proportioned and in very good shape. The management is most courteous, and Brooklyn wheelmen will be repaid if they patronize the frequent events which are given there.

The Patchogue party arrived in time for the fun. Immediately upon arrival they were accused of having "stolen the guns," were invited to join sailing parties, and received other courtesies and attentions innumerable.

The majority of the wheelmen at Patchogue left there Monday forenoon and wheeled back to the city, missing the biggest part of the racket, but nevertheless, displaying their good sense, as those who remained all day paid dearly for their fun by the many discomforts and annoyances incidental to the return by rail. The railroad was taxed far beyond its capacity, the crowd filling the aisles of the cars and overflowing out on the platforms. Things went well enough however, until Jamaica was reached, where it is necessary to change for Brooklyn. Here the platforms were so crowded that people were literally falling off the edges, and a tedious, and apparently unnecessary delay of over one hour changed a good-natured crowd into a maddened, howling, cursing mob. Baggage cars were all full, and no accommodation was to be found for wheels, nor did the employees seem disposed to make any. At last, after both the wheelmen and the gentlemanly employees of this grand monopoly had exhausted all their energy and bad French, a box car was obtained, and into this the wheels were put, the wheelmen laboring under the delusion that they were being accommodated. They appreciated the accommodation when the train pulled out from the depot, leaving the box car behind. Arrived at Brooklyn, another long and tiresome wait at the station was necessary, for the offending box car, which came in on a later train, containing not only the wheels, but a good cargo of milk cans, which latter being the more robust, had suffered least from the journey. Only one wheel, however, was seriously damaged; but this did not improve the joviality of those unfortunates who had been from 7 P. M. until 1.30 A. M. indulging in the luxuries supplied by the Long Island Railroad to its patrons every Fourth of July, and as much oftener as opportunity offers.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE Times has this last week been digging pretty sharply into Captain Chasteau, of the Park Guards, for inefficiency in the management of his small force during the July 4 celebration exercises. This of course is real "nuts" to the wheelmen of the city, to whom Chasteau has long been a bugbear. To him Philadelphia riders are indebted for the remark that wheelmen are a "set of harlequins in variegated clothing, fit only to amuse nursemaids and children," and to him was due much of the bitter opposition to the admission of cycles to the drives of Fairmount Park. It is much to be desired that now that his uselessness has been practically demonstrated, he will be supplanted by a more capable man, and one with no prejudices against the wheel.

THE boys returning from Wilkes Barre, looked pretty well broken up and tired out, but reported a "glorious Fourth "indeed. The races were voted fair, the parade good, and the business meeting nil. It is remarkable what little interest is taken in the Division business meetings, and has been from the first. A big hurrah is made each year over an election of officers, and then the whole division simmers down and goes to sleep again until the next election, while at every business meeting there is a slim attendance, and nothing of importance done. One reason may be, that there is very little to do, but there is certainly room for work, if there is nothing more pressing, in following New York's example with the State legislature. Or, we might give New Jersey a helping hand in suppressing the West Jersey road-hog.

MR. F. S. HARRIS and his wife have returned from their trip across the water looking happy and hearty.

CAPTAIN LON PECK and his companions have arrived in Philadelphia — and gone again. They found very little to interest them I fear, and were obliged, on account of poor roads, to take the train at Trenton, N. J. Acting on advice from those who had been over the road, they have doubtless also trained to Wilmington, Del. "Lonnie" is so well known by reputation, that we rather expected to see a slight, small-boned active chap instead of the big strapping six-footer he really is. He has a very taking manner, and will leave lots of friends on his trip. The tourists managed to get to Philadelphia, however, on a bad day to get acquainted, as pretty much all the riders were off on their Saturday holiday.

"CHRIS" in a late issue of a Philadelphia paper says: "The South End Wheelmen, one of the latest formed of Philadelphia wheel organizations, was represented at the Wilkes Barre Meet, while, strange to say, "Germantown" had not a single representative present. Germantown is perhaps laying low for that Tryon Cup. There are a few pretty trim riders in "Old Germantown." If the race ever comes off the highflyers of Pennsylvania, and the Century and University Clubs may find that it is not toothless old age which keeps this old club so quiet.

"Louis Kolb of the South End Wheelmen, did well at Wilkes Barre, but the track did not suit his light wheel, and its poorness threw all the chances in favor of Wilhelm and his now well-known "Star." Wilhelm, without a doubt, is a good all-round man.

"Very little is heard from Richwine, but the idea still exists that he is watching and waiting, after the fashion of the Little Tycoon young lady, for a chance at the Pennsylvania Club's cup."

"CHRIS" may say what best suits him of the merit of the Philadelphia riders, but there is no question in the minds of the majority of the experienced wheelmen who saw the State championship, that the best man in the State is now the champion.

PHACTO.

ORANGE NOTES.

ON July 4, J. E. Baker is said to have climbed Eagle Rock Hill in the presence of witnesses. He rode his new 48 inch Victor. The only other crank machine that has been up is Meade's old 48 inch Harvard, which Meade has ridden up three times.

The Wanderers had a coasting match last Saturday on the Park Avenue Hill, from Prospect Street. The hill is about seven hundred feet long. The following distances were coasted by the different machines: —

58-inch	Humber Light Roadster	. .	1,010 feet
52 "	Rudge " "	. .	1,035 "
54 "	Victor (1885) . .	. .	1,172 "
54 "	" Light Roadster	. .	1,292 "
56 "	" " "	. .	1,316 "

A 54-inch Sanspariel, not in the contest, coasted about 950 feet, and a Rover about 1,050 feet.

RIGHTS OF BICYCLISTS IN THE PARKS.

CORPORATION COUNSEL O'BRIEN, of New York, has given an opinion to the Department of Parks, relative to the use of bicycles and tricycles in the parks. He says that the intent and effect of the act in question, is such that the Board of Commissioners of Public Parks may not prohibit the use of bicycles and tricycles upon any road where other pleasure carriages are permitted, or at any time when the use of other pleasure carriages is permitted. Ordinances may be passed limiting the speed at which bicycles and tricycles may be propelled, and requiring the use of lamps, bells, or other proper appurtenances intended to secure the safety of the public. Subject, however, to such prudential restrictions, persons using bicycles and tricycles are entitled to go upon any road or place where other pleasure carriages are permitted.

President Borden of the Park Department, made an order accordingly, imposing the same restrictions on bicycles as on other vehicles.

CYCLETS.

W. H. GILLETTE, the author of "The Professor," is an enthusiastic rider.

CLEVELAND will have the one-mile championship this year. We put down Crist for winner.

IT is understood that the project of holding a tournament at Worcester this fall has been abandoned.

LEAGUE clubs should not fail to file a certificate at this office and get copy of BULLETIN they are entitled to.

PARTIES who write for articles advertised in the BULLETIN, will do us a good turn if they will mention the paper.

BOSTON subscribers to Karl Kron's "XM Miles" can obtain their books from the Pope Manufacturing Company.

DR. N. M. BECKWITH will spend his vacation, during August, touring around the neighborhood of his home in Ohio.

MORGAN and Ace have signed articles to ride a match for the championship of Wales. Morgan will find it hard to beat the ace.

IT is reported that Rhode Island wheelmen will go to Cottage City to enjoy the meet of the Massachusetts Division, and that the Capital Club of Washington will be there.

WHITTAKER has been beating John S. Prince and W. F. Knapp, at Omaha. And now Prince wants to race him for a big stake.

CHARLES SCHWALBACH has succeeded Schwalbach and Willdigg down in Brooklyn, and will conduct the business under his own name.

WHEELMEN may not be troubled with "Charley horse," like the baseball players, but a great many of them have "calf" fever. — Herald.

WHEN a young man takes his best girl and walks on the bluffs at Cottage City, they call it "bluffing." What a very comprehensive title.

RACE committees, who desire to give notice of race meetings in our columns, are reminded that we make important reductions in this class of advertising.

PROVIDENCE never does anything by halves. The ladies have got the cycle fever just now, and there are thirteen wheels already, with more to come, in the city.

IT has remained for Ralph Temple to do what no other American has done. He has beaten all of the best professionals in England, including Howell, Lee, Battensby, and English.

WHITTAKER has been beating the record. We saw him at Clarksville and said "How-d'ye-do," and he has built the little expression into an impossible discussion of the amateur question.

WE of Boston are all going to Cottage City, many of us with our ladies. Let him who has no lady be not discouraged, however, for there are many young ladies on the island.

NEW YORK Clubs are enticing members to meetings by providing refreshments after adjournment. The plan works well. The cracker-and-cheese element in clubs is always very large.

AT the meeting of the New Jersey Division, a vote of thanks was passed to the Missouri Club for the very generous entertainment of the New Jersey representatives during the League Meet.

THE pen with which Governor Hill signed the Liberty Bill has been presented to I. B. Potter, Esq., and he in turn has presented it to the Brooklyn Bi Club. It will be framed and hung up in the clubhouse.

D. ROGERS & Co., of Newark, are reported closed up. They have been doing a large amount of advertising, and the cycling press will suffer. Word comes to us that they mortgaged their stock for its full value and disappeared.

IN using Temple's victories to advertise their machines, an English firm calls him a "little American boy." The advertisement goes on to say that he rides a 53-inch wheel. Little American boys do not-ride 53-inch wheels.

THE Massachusetts Club will have no road officers. It would seem that a bicycle club could better spare its executive officers. Wheel clubs should ride and they should have those whose duty it is to plan runs and tours. If a club is to do nothing more than desultory riding, the question arises, why have a clubhouse?

W. B. EVERETT & Co. have just put in a plant for applying the genuine Harrington's enamel. They claim to be the only house in America that imports and uses this enamel. Skillful workmen have been employed to attend to the enamelling, and the very best results have been secured in the work that has been turned out.

GEORGE M. HENDEE and his trainer, Harry Cornish, are to take up their residence at Agricultural Park, Worcester, where the ex-champion will try and get himself in trim for coming events. It is stated that his friends expect him to be in sufficiently good form before the season is over to warrant him challenging Rowe to a championship contest.

THEODORE W. ROBERTS, of Poughkeepsie, thinks our reporter did him an injustice in his account of the races at Roseville, July 4. He claims that he was not responsible for the fall which occurred in the two-mile handicap, and writes a detailed statement of the occurrence. Mr. Roberts does not seem to have been at fault, though it may have appeared so to one who saw the collision.

NEW YORK is to have an asphalt street. The Commissioner of Public Works is authorized by the Mayor and Aldermen to pave the roadway of Madison avenue with asphalt, from Twenty-third to Thirty-third Street. The movement looks like a job, and New York wheelmen think that if it proves a good steal they will have many miles of asphalt. "It is an ill wind, etc."

AMONG the many curious propositions submitted to the Pope Manufacturing Company, was one the other day, which, for startling originality, carried off the palm. It was an offer to exchange for one of their bicycles a grave lot, "conveniently handy." This was filed for reference next to that of an offer expressing a great desire to become the happy possessor of a bicycle through the results of moonlight labor, in the shape of barrel of whiskey. — Globe.

A PARTY of wheelmen sailed from New York on Saturday, July 2, on the steamer Furnessia, for Glasgow. They were Mr. J. W. Dickerson, Mr. Irving Washington, Mr. George H. Walker, Mr. Robert G. Walker, all now living in Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Dickerson is connected with the Post-Express, while Mr. Washington and Mr. George Walker, are principals of public schools. The last-named is a student yet. The last two are sons of Rev. E. S. Walker, of Springfield, Ill.; the other is a son of Rev. S. Washington, of Essex, N. J. They will wheel through England and Scotland, and possibly on the continent.

THE American team was in Edinburgh, Scotland, June 18, and speaking of the future intentions of Woodside, Morgan, and Temple, the Evening Despatch of that city on that date says: "The trio will be kept busy with engagements which they have made from now till September. Thereafter they intend visiting France, Germany, and Austria, their principal match being that against Duncan's team, a noted English cyclist now resident on the continent, whose team consists of Medinga, Dubois, and Duncan. They will meet them in a series of matches for the championship of the continent. About Christmas time Morgan, who rides a 54-in., intends going in for six-day races, and will appear in London, and, possibly, the Waverly Market, Edinburgh, and in Paris.

THE latest from New York, per Wheel, is very important if true, and decidedly interesting. Here it is: "It is doubtful if Sete Rich will be seen on the path this year. The boy has grown stout and lazy, and can be induced to do nothing but play tennis at the Staten Island Club grounds. We don't blame him. The Staten Island girls, as observed at the club games last Saturday, are a rare looking lot.

"Chewing-gum Powers will retire from the path for a little while, that is, he will only race occasionally. He has sensibly concluded that too much racing will interfere with his growth, and, as he smilingly observed to the writer, between two vicious digs at a 'hunk' of gum, 'I want to be a six-footer.'"

J. C. SIMPSON, editor of the Breeder and Sportsman, states that there is little trouble in overcoming the dread which some horses have at the sight of a bicycle if the right course is pursued, especially if seen some distance before it is met. As soon as the horse is aware of its approach, drive slowly — a walk is preferable — and if there is an inclination to stop, do so. Speak soothingly to the animal. Keep a tight hold of the reins to prevent a sudden wheel. We have yet to meet a rider who did not slow, and, as a general thing, offer to dismount. In a majority of cases this will not be necessary, and when the animal recognizes that it is merely a man on a wheel, the fear is overcome. There must be no severe punishment. At the furthest, a touch of the whip to straighten it up, and words of encouragement will effect the purpose. One of the most nervous colts we ever drove, after two trials, cared no more for a bicycle than a buggy.

SAYS a Lewiston exchange: "A Lewiston bicyclist was leisurely wheeling along the Sabatus turnpike, talking horse and bicycle with a friend of his driving along in a one-horse chaise. When the wheelman told his friend that a Yankee bicyclist had recently beaten 2.30 in a mile dash on the bicycle, and that a three wheelman not many months ago in a Western State travelled a one hundred miles over a good turnpike road in less than seven hours, he did n't believe it. 'Why,' said the man in the chaise, 'I'll wager a tall hat that you can't go to Sabatus and back inside of two hours.' 'And I'll wager you a tall hat that I can make the round trip to Sabatus quicker than you can whip that horse of yours along,' was the wheelman's quiet rejoinder. They struck a bargain, and started at the watering trough on Main Street. It was an exciting race. The horse was faster than the ordinary steed, and the wheelman was the best in the city. When they reached Sabatus the one-horse chaise was a quarter of a mile ahead. On the home stretch the wheelman passed the horse about a mile out of the city, climbing a hill, and came up to the watering trough a minute ahead. The horse was about exhausted, and so was the bicycle man, for that matter. The bicycle made the run, twelve miles it is called, in sixty-eight minutes, without a dismount. This morning he appeared on Lisbon Street with a new silk hat."

ENGLISH cycling papers are condemning the use of safety machines on the track in competition with ordinaries. In the first place they are hard to steer, and the erratic course taken by a safety has brought many a field of riders to grief. It is said, however, that erratic steering is not the only trouble. The rider of the safety is placed on a different level to his fellow-competitors, and forms to them a sort of ever-present obstacle, over which they instinctively feel they might fall. The presence of a safety unnerves and undsteadies many riders of the high machine. This in itself is, of course, an element of danger, and this has been the cause of several notable tumbles. Another source of danger lies in the fact that — whereas with the taller machine the handle-bars of the riders are about on a level with each other, and thus they have some sort of a guide to go by when passing, and, although they may ride perilously close, there is rarely any danger of a collision — in the safety bicycle the handle-bar is just about on a level with the pedals and feet of the racer on the taller mount. This introduces a great amount of uncertainty in the steering of the ordinary machine, and as the position of the pedal is not a constant one like that of the handle-bars, it is a comparatively easy matter for the rider of the safety to miscalculate his distance by a fraction of an inch, or by the swerving of himself or his opponent bring about, by a mere touch, a serious accident.

A "ROAD HOG," of imposing proportions, was met by a mild-mannered wheelman yesterday afternoon, on the Warren road — nothing less, in fact, than a big man, a low-gear loaded with big stones, and drawn by two big horses. They all kept persistently to their left of the road, and so did the mild-mannered wheelman in keeping to his right, until the latter was forced to dismount or else tumble off among the big man, the horses, and the rocks. He dismounted, but stood in his place on the road as if he had no thought of proceeding farther for a month or so. The big man said "Whoa" to the horses, and the low-gear came to a standstill, the horses' feet almost touching the rim of the wheel. "Are n't you going to get out of the way, young feller?" said the big man. The mild-mannered wheelman assured the big man that such an idea as getting out of his way never entered his head. He allowed to the big man to the effect that he had the right of way, and that he should proceed that way, and no other; and the low-gear must either get on its own side of the road or drive over the mild-mannered wheelman's corpse, and its owner pay consequence damages. The big man reflected a few moments, swore a little, said he did n't care if the bicycle was a "vehicle," he would n't get out of its way, and wound up by backing and driving very carefully about the wheelman and his wheel, with as much solicitation as is displayed by the elephant when he promenades about his recumbent keeper in the circus. — Providence Journal.

He made fish out of that fellow, for after the encounter the R. H. was a taut 'og.

A ST. LOUIS policeman would like to see the guardians of the public peace mounted on wheels. He says: "If the city authorities would increase a man's usefulness five times they would make him equal to five men. A man's usefulness as a policeman is measured by his ability to cover a beat in good time. The oftener he covers his beat the more he will be in favor with the residents, and the more value he will be to the community. Now, I have had the means of increasing my usefulness five times at least, but have been prevented from employing it by my superiors. The way I came to think of quintupling my efficiency was by studying my conditions. I saw that my beat lay over asphalt and other excellently paved streets. I said to myself, here I am as long getting over my beat as if it had the poorest streets. So I came to the conclusion that I ought to take advantage of the good streets by riding a tricycle. On it I knew I could cover my beat five times as fast, and I also knew that where formerly I was helpless in the matter of catching fast drivers on the asphalt, I could now get a better chance to arrest them. But it was at night I expected the wheel to be especially valuable, for then, instead of making any noise, as we do in our heavy shoes, I could glide along quietly, and not be heard till I was upon the evil-doer. I could jump from it more quickly than I could from a horse, and it would n't need tying, but would stand anywhere. So, with all these intentions in mind, I made a play at the Chief through a friend, but the answer I got convinced me my beat would be vacant if I tried my plan, and consequently I gave it up."

JOSEPH L. BLEY, the "champion infantile bicycle rider of America," took a trial trip, on Sunday last, of twenty miles to San Mateo. Leaving Ellis Street and Van Ness Avenue at 10.27 A. M., he arrived at Twenty-Sixth Street and San Bruno road (old Mission) at 10.36. The wind blew a gale, making record breaking almost an impossibility. By cyclometer measurement, seven miles were walked, during which a vast number of teams passed him. Two miles on the other side of San Bruno the wind calmed, and the lost time was picked up to some extent. One team after another was passed, and he rode up to the station of San Mateo, twenty miles, cyclometer measurement, from Ellis and Van Ness, in exactly two hours and three minutes. Considering the weather and the heavy machine he was handicapped with, the time was remarkably good for so young a boy. Yesterday he took a trip to Belmont, riding the same wheel. On Sunday next he will take the final trip to San Jose, upon which occasion a prominent importer of cycles has offered him a light wheel to ride. He expects to lower the record for boys of thirteen years and under for America, which he now holds. Master Bley weighs scarcely seventy-five pounds, and his figure is small, but well developed. Three months after he commenced to ride he entered the Bay City Wheelmen's race for boys sixteen years old and under at the Mechanics' Pavilion. He gained second place and a silver medal, being beaten by George Dixon by a foot. In company with A. Ganbitz, he has ridden to Salinas City, one hundred and twenty miles, in eighteen hours' riding time. He headed a number of the "boys" during the Stevens run to Haywards, arriving among the first, and riding back on his wheel, while many older riders took the train. — San Francisco Chronicle.

PERCENTAGE.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — The cyclers of Warren, R. I., numbering sixty-four riders, think that they have constituted Warren the banner town in America for cycling. The population of Warren is 4,200, so that there is one cycler for each 65.6 of the population. This proportion would give Boston over 6,000 and New York more than 25,000 riders. If any town can beat us, we would like to hear from it.

POOR TRACKS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I wish to raise my usually quiet voice against such racers as Crist, Brown, Wilhelm, Snyder, and Kolp being allowed by their clubs or trainers, and consenting themselves, to race on such a track as was offered at Wilkes Barre, July Fourth. Three men took "headers," Brown of Washington, getting two very bad falls, the second quite serious, and will affect him for some time to come. The track was full of bad holes, and no one knew where they were until too late. The Wilkes Barre boys have a fine club, a fine city, the finest eight-mile cinder path. They do everything "up to the handle," and have their community with them. Under these circumstances they can afford to build a track where annual races can be run, without endangering life and limb of such men as mentioned above. I think all who attended the races at "Lee Driving Park," July 4, will coincide with me.

$73 SAVED.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I want to give you an idea of what the League is worth to me. My business takes me upon the road a great deal, and I have to live in hotels a good portion of the year. I try to select a League hotel every time, and I find by looking at my cash book that my League ticket has saved me $73 the past year. This includes a discount obtained at the hotel where I spent my vacation. Can any one beat that for a record?

Cubbison for their untiring efforts, and great ingenuity to make the electric apparatus a success, and they may justly feel proud of it. It is the first instance we know of where both the time and laps have been registered correctly by electricity.

The attendance was large and every one had a good time. T.

TRANSPORTATION IN THE SOUTHWEST.

THE interstate commerce law has been translated in the extreme west and southwest as prohibiting carriage of bicycles in baggage cars for wheelmen free. The Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fé and the Union Pacific railways, representing the roads west of Missouri River, had so translated the law, and wheelmen in that country found themselves excluded from old privileges. The latter company issued a circular specifically stating that the law prohibited continuance of the privilege. As no other railway lines in the United States made such a translation, but have continued to carry out their agreements with wheelmen same as before, it was brought to the attention of the above roads. After considerable negotiation, all the above lines have withdrawn from their position and agree to restore free transportation under old conditions. The Missouri Pacific, first and most liberal, announces its position as follows (covering 6,389 miles of railway):—

"Bicycles will be carried free in baggage cars, at owner's risk of damage, — it being understood that the owner carries no other baggage, and that the bicycles are not to be checked, and that the owner must hold a full first-class ticket. When not accompanied by the owner with transportation as above, bicycles are sent by express."

The following letter from General Passenger Agent Townsend, of the Missouri Pacific, states: —

"In order to show that it is the positive intention of our management to see that our rule requiring the free carriage of bicycles in baggage cars, when accompanied by owners, is enforced, I beg to refer to your letter of June 10, in which you enclosed correspondence, showing that one T. C. Kennedy, baggageman on our lines, between Junction City and Council Grove, Kas., made a charge for the transportation of a bicycle belonging to Mr. Chas. Davis, between Junction City and Council Grove, and in which correspondence claim was made that the baggageman was very rough and uncivil to Mr. Davis. The investigation of this case, which has been in progress ever since the receipt of your letter, has just been completed, and result shows that charge against the baggageman has been sustained, and on account of which he has been dismissed from the service of the company."

The general passenger agent of the Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fé Railroad has agreed to restore the old arrangement. The Union Pacific, last in the list, has signified its intention to do likewise.

B. B. AYERS, Chairman.

It will thus be apparent that while our Division is in a flourishing condition, as regards good work accomplished and numerical strength, our membership at this date being 2,032, we are otherwise financially embarrassed. Respectfully,

JERSEY-FITTING, SELF-SUPPORTING

BICYCLE STOCKING.

The attention of the Wheelmen and the trade is kindly called to our new Self Supporter Stocking, for which we have obtained Letters Patent June 14, 1887. The enclosed cut gives a correct description of this stocking and its design, and needs no argument to show that they are the best thing that has been made for holding the stocking in position. They are Ribbed, Jersey-Fitting, and very elastic, regular made, double heel and toes. The form and proportions of the foot, heel, toe, ankle, calf and leg are perfect, as represented in the cut, and there is no better made or better fitting stocking in the market. The part above the stocking for holding it in position is made of cotton or wool, thin or heavy, as may be desired, and comes up and fastens around the waist, same as tights, and holds the stockings where they belong. Price, $2.25; or stockings without supporter, $1.50.

Any infringement will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Send us your order for either of these, with color, size of foot, and length from bottom of foot to waist, and post office order for amount, and we will send same by mail or express to any part of the country; and if you do not find them satisfactory, return them, and we will return amount paid for them. BICYCLE, TENNIS, YACHTING and ROWING JERSEYS,

In Long or One-Quarter Sleeves, or Sleeveless, High or Low Neck, Lace Front, or Standing Collar, Plain or Fancy Colors.

Every Wheelman and Sportsman will give them his approval when he examines the Shoulders, Arm Holes and Neck, as they are made to fit. These goods are PATENTED, and all infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

JERSEY FITTING KNEE PANTS,

Buttoned in Front, same as Pantaloons, without Certain Objections.

We offer them to the trade and clubs as SOMETHING NEW, and invite all to examine them.

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING.

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheelmen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26.—The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 42 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Dawson, of Pawtucket, second; C. M. Morse, of Pawtucket, third. Turner rode a Columbia, Dawes a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country; it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators. . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize.—Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. L. Subscribers should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. Failure to receive THE BULLETIN may usually be traced to carelessness on the part of the subscriber.

All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith. As the Executive Committee has decided that it is best to discourage the use of assumed names by writers for THE BULLETIN, the EDITOR will publish the author's name unless particularly requested not to do so.

For List of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

JUDGE BROADY, of Nebraska, has rendered a decision which pronounces "unreasonable" an ordinance made to prohibit the riding of bicycles on the highway. We give his decision in full. It will repay reading.

ONE of the first steps to be taken for the improvement of roads is a movement to secure broader wheel tires on heavy wagons. Massachusetts tried to pass some such law several years ago, but it was defeated. Down in Rockland, Me., an ordinance has just been passed relating to wheel tires. After Oct. 1, 1887, all limestone and other carts conveying merchandise using tires less than four inches wide, drawn by two horses or one yoke of oxen, or tires less than five inches upon carts drawn by more than two horses and more than one pair of oxen, will have to pay into the county treasury $5 for the first offence and a crisp $10 note for the second. The heavy limestone teams leave the roads in such an unfortunate condition that the Rockland top buggy can only appear in the suburbs with any degree of safety to buggy and occupant, and the bicycle can hardly be ridden at all.

WE have received an autograph copy of "Ten Thousand Miles on a Bicycle." We do not propose to review it. One does not review an encyclopedia. The book is not one to be read through from beginning to end. It is a book of reference, and as such it is a valuable addition to literature. Karl Kron has given several years of his life and much of his money to the completion of this work, and it credits him to a great degree. The author is eccentricity personified, and his book is full of eccentric notions and ideas, but these raise it above dulness, and make it all the more interesting. We have read the biography of "Curl," the bull dog, with a great deal of interest, though we do not wonder that a dozen magazine editors refuse to print it. Much that is in the book has been published in the cycling press, and little of it sees the light for the first time, but the collection of these wandering essays between two covers makes a valuable book, and one well worth the price asked for it. The book is cheap at $2. We should want it in our library, and should have it there if we had to pay $5 for it. We hope that every League member will see his way clear to the purchase of the book, and we will guarantee that he will be satisfied with his outlay.

AT the annual meet of the Maryland Division, a resolution was passed in which it was affirmed that the Secretary-Editor had refused to print in the BULLETIN the official notices of that Division. The Secretary-Editor has made no public reply to the charge, but he placed the whole matter in the hands of the Executive Committee, emphatically denied the charge, and demanded an investigation. The Executive Committee has investigated the charge, and a report is published this week. We have letters from Chief Consul Bartlett and from Secretary-Treasurer Lockwood, in which they tell us that never has an official notice from them been refused place in the BULLETIN, and both these officials were opposed to the passage of the resolution. The gist of the whole thing turns upon the disappointment of certain persons who have sent us long reports of club runs, and had them rejected. These parties claim that the Secretary-Editor should publish everything that is sent to him. We would like to have them see our pile of MSS., and then ask them if they are of the same opinion. The editor without a blue pencil and deprived of a waste basket would make an extraordinary paper, — he could not edit without these indispensables.

IT has been our aim to get over this little affair without a quarrel, but our official honor demanded that the truth must be known. We have been pleased to receive very cordial and complimentary letters from the officers of the Maryland Division, with whom we have always been on the most friendly terms, and nothing that has occurred will be allowed to disturb these relations.

WE are having letters which place the transactions of D. Rogers Co. in a very queer light. Several cyclers have been duped out of their cycles and accessories, and remittances have been retained by the firm without a return of goods.

THANKS are due to Messrs. J. A. Spahr, Wm. Taylor, J. J. Grace, F. H. Norris, T. Hare, W. S. Harper, E. L. Ferguson, J. Kemp Bartlett, Jr., W. E. Yost, J. Tracy Hardy, A. B. Irvin, and many other faithful workers for the League, the result of whose labors the past week is shown in our application list: Total 170.

GREENWOOD'S medal for winning the De Soto race will have his initials in shaded gold depending from a chain. In the centre of the medal will be an engraving representing him climbing Corey Hill, which he considers his next greatest feat to the De Soto race. The feat will be shown in the engraving, but somewhat reduced. The date of the race and the time made will also be on the ornament.

THE Missouri Division had a surplus of $515 from the League Meet. Half of this they covered into their treasury, and half of it they turned over to the League treasury.

HURRAH FOR GREENWOOD!

BY a terrible struggle over a terrible road, in a tremendous heat, he assumed the position of master of the De Soto road. The race was started at 5.03 this morning. Stone took the lead at once, being mounted on a light 55-inch Victor, equipped with two well wrapped "Bulltown brake-levers." Greenwood's mount was a special 48-inch Star, and his start was rather slow and his stroke deliberate. Stone looked the freshest at the start, Greenwood having worn himself by hard work on the De Soto hills.

At Pt. Breeze Percy was about a mile ahead, having ridden the first nine miles in thirty-eight minutes over badly gravelled streets and a rutty, dusty, macadam road. He was riding at a furious gait, but his reason was understood. He wanted to distance Greenwood at the start, and did succeed in leaving him eleven minutes in his rear at Maxville, eighteen miles south. On Kimmswick Greenwood passed him, and the two remained in close proximity till Bulltown was reached. Both walked up Frisco, Greenwood climbing every other hill both ways. When Bulltown Hill was reached Greenwood led by one hundred and fifty yards, but Stone to the astonishment of the watchers at the bottom, put his feet to the pedals, chucked his head over the bar and spurted. The race down the hill was terrific, and they were neck and neck at the bottom. Greenwood dismounted and rested ten minutes at Bulltown, but Stone kept on, and was still leading at Hillsboro, where Greenwood again gained on him. Stone had taken desperate chances in the land of hills, and it was hardly expected that he would succumb in the remaining stretch of ten miles. He did, however, and was utterly exhausted when Victoria was reached. He walked every little hill in the remaining three miles, and at De Soto was put into bed, Greenwood beating him by two minutes, finishing the first half of the race, forty-six miles in four hours, twenty-three minutes.

After half an hour's rest, Greenwood started back, and after a hard, hot pull, and a vexatious delay at Bulltown by a disabled machine, rode to the club-house door at 5.53 P. M., making the round trip, ninety-two miles, in eleven hours, fifty minutes. STONE returned by train, and is all right this evening, admitting that his defeat was an honest one, and was not caused by sickness.

Seven hundred and fifty dollars is claimed to have changed hands. Stone himself is a loser by eighty-five dollars, though neither he nor Greenwood made direct bets.

"AQUEOUS Air," is what we now call the suffocating heat which is so peculiar to St. Louis, and the weather clerk tells us that one day this week the air contained over sixty parts of water. Oh, wirrah, but it has been hot, so hot that the tire cement melted off one's wheel when the machine stood long in the sunlight.

"IT's a hot day that does nobody good," remarked a rider last Sunday. "Whenever I feel sick or have a cold, I pick out my winter clothes, button up to the neck and mount my wheel. Then I tear up and down the asphalt, till there isn't a bit of spirit left. This process and a bath generally brings me back to tip-top shape."

THE St Louis Cycle Club, at last Tuesday's meeting, decided to waive initiation fees until August 11, and is now endeavoring, by means of a circular to the unattached, to swell its roll as much as possible ere that date. The club is getting on very smoothly, and has even cajoled one Missouri man into its ranks. Greenwood was called upon for a speech Tuesday night, and his club-mates will tender him a banquet to-night. A team road race with the missouri Club, was also broached, with a suggestion that the event occur this fall on the Manchester road. Missouri men are willing, though those of the Cycle Club who would run are habitual scorchers.

ST. LOUIS may well be proud of Greenwood as a hill-climber and coaster, for his feat of last Sunday was wonderful — a fact, probably, that no one will appreciate who has not himself seen the De Soto road. Greenwood lost six pounds in the effort, and last Monday looked decidedly tough. He felt tip-top, however, and even asserts that he can make the trip one way over the De Soto road in four hours. He undoubtedly owns that particular road.

BEER is a very nice beverage. The "brewers contingent" at the meet vouched for that; but isn't it about time, boys, to blow the foam and drop the liquid into obscurity, lest the other pleasures we had be lost in a beery blur? Even Bob Holm's ardent lovers will admit that there were other good things. Keep your eye on this — there are more a-coming.

WHAT has become of the Clarksville cup? A handsome "life-size" photo of it is all that remains in St. Louis. If Bob Neilson has concluded not to exhibit the trophy in Boston, it is a pity, for it is undoubtedly the gem of cycling prizes.

F. K. AUSTIN, of Kansas City, is with us to stay a while. The Kansas City boys did things up very brown for their friends on the Fourth, and it seems the good example set by St. Louis is having its effect in that section. The St. Louis wheelmen will soon get up a banquet on general principles, and Leavenworth and Kansas City wheelmen will be invited to "come and eat." The Kansas meet at Paola, July 18, 19, and 20, will wind up in a spread, too, which will taste all the better in the presence of the ruddy-cheeked maidens who will serve it.

AT their last meeting, the Ruralists, of St. Joseph, elected Thomas Stevens an honorary member, as he hails from that part of Missouri.

EX-REPRESENTATIVE "Jim" Neill writes interestingly about his experiences at El Paso, Tex., lying on the border of Old Mexico. He says: "I 've often thought of you fellows and the good time I would have had, if I only had stayed in old Missouri and taken in the Meet. I sold my old 60-pound Champion, and have not yet bought a new one, though I will have to in the near future. Can't stand it any longer, I believe. This is a curious place, — only one little piece of a street about five blocks long which is fit to ride. The rest is sand and loose gravel, and both. Across the river (in Mexico), there are miles of good, hard, level roads, occasionally broken by sandy patches and the inevitable acequia or irrigating ditch. To get across the river, one has half a mile of sand to wade or the street car to tackle. Despite all this, I will get a wheel, of course. There are several wheels here, and several riders who have wheels at their Eastern homes, so I think if I once get them started they will turn out hustlers. I wear my old League uniform continually, and though it excites some comment, as yet none of a disagreeable nature. Our smelting works are growing fast, and nearly ready for work. I have a big force of mechanics and about one hundred Mexicans. . . . Regards to the boys."

TO-DAY'S Spectator gives a rider's description of the DeSoto road, which is facts in a nutshell. "Road!" said he, "well, we hooped it over seven miles of dirt from Montesano, and then struck a streak where we climbed up stone walls and fell into quarries the rest of the way to Bulltown, if that 's what you call a road." PHŒNIX.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE very hot weather and absence from town of the majority of our cyclers has caused a perfect famine in news of an interesting nature. Club men are very scarce on the park drives and boulevards; but the unattached shines forth in all his glory and in numbers truly marvellous, and the club men can look for a rich harvest during the coming fall.

In conversing with these unattached men it is surprising how many there are who live in blissful ignorance of there being any such organization as the League of American Wheelmen. In almost every case a half hour's missionary work will suffice to impress upon them the necessity and importance of affiliating themselves with our grand organization, and participating in its many benefits. Nearly all report that they have been approached in the interests of some one of our many clubs, but in the enthusiasm to increase their membership, club men seem to forget the League and its influence as a stepping stone to future club life.

THE recent disaffection in the Kings County Wheelmen, though causing the resignation of a few of its oldest members, does not seem to have left any lasting effect, the club being, seemingly, as prosperous as ever. Their former captain, the well-known and genial Edward Pettus, has been elected a member of the Long Island Wheelmen, and rumor has it that he is organizing a drill team in that club, which report his friends deny.

SCHWALBACH informs me that the number of lady cyclers in this town is largely increasing, as judged from his increased patronage by those of the fair sex. Among his patrons are several ladies who are recommended by their physicians to use the wheel as a healthful means of exercise. Thus is prejudice and mock modesty gradually giving way to common sense, even in this old-fashioned and over-conservative village of propriety.

THE gates of Central Park have at last been thrown open to the cycling public. As soon as possible after the Governor signed the bill a certified copy was served upon the Park Commission by Mr. Potter, Chairman of the Rights and Privileges Committee of this State, together with a request that the parks be immediately open to wheelmen. The matter was referred to the Corporation Counsel, presumedly to see if there was any way of getting around the provisions of the bill, and keeping them "bicycle fellows" out of the parks they are taxed to support. But it was no use, and the doleful Crimmins was compelled to issue orders granting to us the rights we had so long fought to attain. Nothing has as yet been done regarding Prospect Park. In fact, we have at present about all we could desire, and as one good turn deserves another in consideration of the courteous treatment we have always received at the hands of the Brooklyn Park Commission, the wheelmen of this city will probably not request the use of the little piece of roadway from which they were formerly debarred by rule, and which they now refrain from using through courtesy.

What has become of the committees appointed at the meeting of the board of officers to arrange for a State meet? We think it is about time something was heard of their plans and arrangements. Greenman has been married, Eagan is soliloquizing at the seashore, and Josh Reynolds has returned to the mountain fastness of his rural home, all of which may account for their lethargy. The summer is half gone and the time rapidly approaching when all vacations will be at an end and a three days' holiday a thing of the past. Wake up, gentlemen, the eyes of the Division are upon you.

The Canadian tour of the Ilderans started in good shape, and they are doubtless at present congratulating themselves and sympathizing with us poor, sweltering, unfortunates who had to stay at home.

The ten-mile road race of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, being the second of the series, will be held over the Irvington-Milburn course on the afternoon of Saturday, July 30. This club is happy in the possession of the pen and holder with which Gov. Hill signed the now famous "Liberty Bill." The same was sent by the Governor to Mr. Potter with a certificate of its genuineness, and presented by Mr. Potter to the club, where it may be seen suitably framed, hanging in the hallway. It is, indeed, a trophy to be proud of. BON.

JULY 16, 1887.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

I HAVE just received a very charming epistle from a lady who is touring in the North Shore district of Massachusetts, riding a tandem with her husband, I give you the greater portion of it just as it came to me.

MY DEAR DAISIE: — I am at Gloucester, sitting at a window overlooking the broad ocean. It looks as though I could jump from the window into the water, so near does the hotel stand to the sea; but I do not propose to do such a foolish thing, for it would do me no good, it would make me very wet, and it would interfere with my pleasure. You are responsible for my being here, though you do not know it, and so I think it my solemn duty to write you. I read your accounts of the ladies' run to the North Shore, both last year and the year before, and I have been terribly anxious to visit the locality. I live in the interior of New York State, and have never seen the sea till I came to it this month. When Jack told me he was booked for a vacation the first two weeks in July, I said to him, "We must go to Eastern Massachusetts and have some good riding." He laughed at the idea at first, but when he found that he could express the tandem at little cost, and as a result of my urgent appeals, he yielded and we started. We trained to Boston, and the first day Jack made a visit to Secretary Bassett to get points. We got our points, purchased J. S. Webber's "Cape Ann," and the "Cyclist's Road Book," by A. L. Atkins, and then we started. Our first day was spent at Nahant. We wheeled through Cambridge, where we took a look at the outside of Harvard College, and a peep at the inside of the beautiful gymnasium, then to Malden, where we visited the Converse Library; then to Lynn, where we dined at a restaurant and got a very satisfying dinner at moderate cost; then over the isthmus to Nahant. I think no more lovely road exists than that isthmus road. Hard, smooth and level, with the sea on each side; cool, comfortable, and intensely satisfying, I have never seen a road that yields so much to wheelmen. We did Nahant thoroughly. It was an ideal day. It was my first look at the sea, and I saw it fancy free and unrestrained by docks, wharves, or other artificial restraints. I looked down upon it from rocky headlands and saw it dash itself into foam, and lash and beat the shores as though angered by their presence. We wheeled all around the peninsula, and then I had my triumph, for Jack said, "Grace, you did a good thing when you got me to come out here." We rode over to Salem in the early evening, and spent the first night in that quiet place. We strolled about the place during the evening, and saw several of the old landmarks, and heard tales of the witches from native lips.

NEXT we rode through Beverly, Manchester-by-the-sea and Magnolia. Jack had a business friend at Magnolia, and his cottage sheltered us. We saw Kettle Cove, Norman's Woe, and all the rest of the sights, and then wheeled to Gloucester, where we now are. We are going to ride around the Cape, to tour through the "Essex district," and then push on to Newburyport. We shall ride to Boston by easy stages, and then train home. If I can judge the future by the past, I shall have had one of the most delightful vacations of my life. We have been wholly unused to such long stretches of good roads. In my city we have only about ten miles of good roads, five miles out into the country in either of two directions. I am much afraid that I shall be unfitted for the restricted riding when I get back. I want to thank you very much for the good you have done me with your pen. I have profited very much by your writings, and now I have a memory of a delightful outing, much of which goes to your credit.

Lovingly yours,

GRACE M —.

I HAVE now to enter on my list of friends one name more that comes to me through the wheel. I have a large list of these acquaintances, and they are among the most delightful of all my friends. I have never met the writer of the above, and until I got her letter I did not know of her existence, and yet I feel well acquainted with her, and shall need no introduction when we meet.

I DEARLY like to get these letters giving personal experiences, for they are always interesting. I hope others will send me lines to let me know what befalls them on the road, or what interests them in their riding experiences.

I WANT to speak a good word for the jersey garments which Holmes & Co. are making for lady riders. The firm advertises in the BULLETIN, and so I feel sure that the editor will not expunge what I say for fear a puff should creep in. I have been wearing the garments, and I find them very comfortable. I can heartily recommend the ladies to use them, for having worn them many times I would not now be without them, did they cost double what is charged for them. DAISIE.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

OPINION appears to be divided on the rights of the recent Coningsby-Morton park fracas. Coningsby and one or two riders who were with him declare that Morton was in the wrong, and Morton is equally positive that Coningsby was not only on the wrong side of the road, but was impudent and profane also, and fully deserved all he got. It is certain, however, that Mr. Morton had no manner of right to use his whip on any one, and as the West Philadelphia riding contingent seemed very much disposed to prosecute for assault and battery, Mr. Morton has taken the sensible view of the matter, and compromised by paying the costs of the warrant issued for him, and by making an apology for the use of his whip. That the man was provoked, however, beyond all endurance, seems to be equally certain. Coningsby is only a boy, but is well known as a fast and daring rider, and is not at all inclined to an over-respect for horsemen whom he may meet in his peregrinations, and the general verdict is that although he may have this time received somewhat more than he deserved, yet the balance may well go on account of other freshnesses for which he has gone scot free heretofore.

THE Tryon Cup, to be raced for by Philadelphia local clubs, is to be a really very handsome affair, and it will cost the firm a right neat little sum before they are through with it. The sub-committee appointed by the joint committees of all the clubs consists of Mr. Burt, of the Philadelphia Club, and Dr. E. H. Van Deusen, of the Tioga. They have been making every effort for a considerable time to arrange for an interview with Mr. Dunne, the superintendent of the Lancaster Avenue Improvement Company, but have not yet been successful, and really the best that can be hoped for is that no interference with the wheelmen will be made if it is decided to hold the races on the Lancaster Pike. One member of the prospective Tioga Club team has just received a 55-inch Victor light roadster — very light, too — on which he should be able to ride fast, if he can on anything. Two other members of the team ride 56-inch Columbia light roadsters, and the fourth member expects to have one soon, but is riding a 54-inch now. An aggregate wheel diameter of 220 inches ought to carry the Tioga along at a pretty good gait, and if there is anything in the "luck in odd numbers" adage, they should get third or fourth place anyhow. Of course, every one counts on seeing a great race between the representatives of Pennsylvania and the Century, with the University and South End somewhere around, and a possibility that the Germantown may sufficiently convalesce ere then to have a team in the race.

CHIEF CONSUL JESSUP, in re his appointment of John A. Wells to the representativeship in this State, somewhat oversteps the mark when he says that Mr. Wells' appointment was made at the "almost unanimous request of the Philadelphia members." We all like John Wells, but many of us do not think he should accept any office in the division at present, and if Mr. Jessup's appointment was made at the request of the Philadelphia representation at the Wilkes Barre meet, he should remember that about half of the Philadelphians there present belonged to Mr. Wells' own club. The Philadelphia Club had but one man present, and the lack of interest taken by this powerful club is attributable entirely to a feeling of disgust with all League matters, — a feeling for which Mr. Wells himself is in no small degree responsible. VACATIONS

COME at this time.

AND absorb the interest of nearly all wheelmen.

WHEELS are rolling by the seashore and around the mountains.

AND the editor sits at his desk crowding out items that he fears will never be read.

FOR when it is warm the evening lamp is not lighted, and the doorstep attracts the heated householder.

NEVERTHELESS, the editor must work, the items must come out, and the paper must go on its errand.

BUT wait! The editor will soon hie himself away and then the readers must be at the mercy of the office boy.

IT is reported that orders for over fifty tandem tricycles have been taken since Governor Hill has opened Central Park to wheelmen, through the signing of the bill putting cycles upon an equal footing with other pleasure vehicles. This would indicate that the number of lady riders will shortly be largely increased.

IT is rumored that William M. Wright, of New York, will resume cycling. Wright was one of the pioneers; a rider, a racer, a dealer, a maker of wheelmen. In the early days no one was more prominent in the wheeling world than W. M. Wright. He will be welcomed back.

A CURIOUS bicycle accident recently occurred at Landport, Eng. A young letter carrier named James Folan, who was out riding after supper, ran into a pedestrian, was overturned, falling on his head. He picked himself up and rode home, when he became insensible, and in an hour died. The doctor pronounced it a case of fracture of the skull.

A BAD-TEMPERED dog was encountered by a goodly party of Hudson County and New Jersey wheelmen while on a club run to Caldwell "once upon a time." As the dog was thoroughly enjoying the nervousness he was causing, the rider of an Expert put his weight on his pedals, and took that heathen dog amidships, mounted him, slid over safely, gave a parting rap with the little wheel, and sat back in his saddle contented, while the dog made a tortuous and howling retreat houseward. No. 4616.

AUGUSTUS WEBER, of Burlington, New Jersey, a brother of the late George Weber, and a very fast rider, met with an accident last week which will put a check to his riding. While attempting to pass between the lathe bed and the wall, in McNeal's iron and pipe foundry, where he is employed, he was caught and terribly squeezed by the lathe bed. It is probable that he will lose the use of his legs.

THERE is a disposition among some people who were never boys, who never went in swimming against their parents' commands, and came home with the other boy's shirt on, to look on the enthusiasm that others manifest in athletic sports with disdain, if not contempt. — Wheeling Intelligencer.

REV. JOHN C. MITCHELL, formerly pastor of the Wenham (Mass.) Church, but who now lives in Danvers, had an engagement to preach on Sunday in North Andover. He missed the late train, Saturday night, and no train ran on Sunday morning. The parson was equal to the emergency. He mounted his bicycle, and rode to the appointed place, a distance of fifteen miles, preached his sermon, and returned by the same mode of conveyance.

ONE of the most unique and peculiar celebrations in connection with the jubilee took place this week, it being a jubilee parade of the General Post Office. The procession was from the City to Victoria Park, over one hundred vehicles of all shapes and sizes being included in its ranks. It was designed to show the improvements which have been made in the postal modes of conveyance during the fifty years of Her Majesty's reign. Not the least important feature of the procession was the inclusion in it of a large "Victoria" carrier driven by two riders, and five single carriers, these being the latest form of vehicles officially employed in parcel post service. — News.

PERCY STONE'S collapse at De Soto, was not due to the heat, or a general prostration. His head and stomach were all right, and the only thing that ailed him was that his legs gave out. The muscles couldn't stand the strain, he says, that's all. He is not built for such a race, while Greenwood seems to have been molded for hill-climbing. Stone is tall and quite slender, built for speedy work on the track; Greenwood is short and chunky, with a stout, thick pair of legs that enjoy the biggest hill in the country. Percy's desperate and nearly successful effort to stay with his sturdier opponent in the hills, and beat him at least to De Soto, explains why he was run off his legs. As the race down was made between 5 and 9.30 A. M. the heat cut no figure. — Post-Dispatch.

EVEN the winsome, header-giving bicycle can be a nuisance when it leaves its own place, and gets on to the sidewalk. The Hartford Wheel Club set a good example in declaring such riders irresponsible, and the custom a nuisance to pedestrians. Further, the club is to expel members who persist in using the sidewalk as a track. Country villages are especially afflicted with this mania for taking the easiest course, no matter who is hit. Given a country bicycle, without light or bell, and let it sweep the sidewalk on a dark night, and you will have all the material necessary for mischief. It would be a pity if the wild-eyed herdic driver, as seen by frightened people on foot, should be outdone by heedless and impudent boys on bicycles, which belong in the street, and should be kept there, by force, if necessary. — Record.

JAMES FOLAN, a postman of Landport, England, was racing at the rate of fifteen miles an hour on the public highway. He ran into a pedestrian, was thrown heavily from his bicycle and died a few hours afterwards. Such accidents tend greatly to influence the public mind against the sport, as cycling is not yet sufficiently strong in its hold on outsiders as even a safe amusement, to say nothing of its practical features. In the near future, perhaps, with the preponderance of safety machines that seems bound to come, accidents will become fewer and fewer, and the public will regard an occasional serious fall as one of the accidents which usually occur in every pleasure or in business. Such time is not yet, however, and until then it behooves the wheelmen to use every care, in his own behalf, of the pedestrian public.

WM. READ & SONS,

107 Washington Street - - - - BOSTON, MASS.

ELWELL's touring party left Boston on Sunday evening at seven o'clock for a two weeks' tour through Maine to Quebec. The party comprised J. E. Beal, Ann Arbor, Mich.; N. J. Foulks, Vincennes Ind; E. H. Kennedy, North Eaton, Mass.; E. P. J. Morton, B. F. Eddy, H. C. Robbins, E. G. Whitney, all of Boston; C. W. Flanders, Malden; G. E. Cain, Franklin, Mass.; G. G. Tyler, Baltimore; W. S. Mills, Naugatuck, Ct.; F. W. Davis, Hartford, Ct.; F. A. Elwell, H. S. Higgins, R. F. Sawyer, J. B. Moore, H. D. Cahill, C. C. Tukesbury, N. S. Studley, all of Portland, Me.; R. J. Patten, Skowhegan, Me.; H. F. Totman, Fairfield, Me. In addition to the above, a party of wheelmen from St. John will meet the tourists at MacAdam Junction.

THE De Soto road is famous among wheelmen the world over for its great hills. Twenty miles south of St. Louis the road seems suddenly to enter a mountain range. From the crest of one hill one can look across deep narrow valleys, and see the yellowish white path climbing tortuously up the opposite grade. A ride over it is a dipping down and a climbing up, like the path of a steamer in an ocean storm. Some of the hills are over two miles long, and so rough with loose stones and ledges of projecting rocks, worn out by rains, that it is hard work for a team to pull up an empty wagon even with numerous rests. Stone's performance, as far as he went, was the greatest feat ever performed on a crank bicycle. His pedaling down those hills without a fall on the entire trip is conceded by all to have been phenomenal.

AT the run of the Southsea T. C. last night, Mr. Izod, the captain, was riding a "Quadrant" lighted by electricity. It seems that the idea came into his head that an electric light of small power would be far more effectual than an ordinary light of greater power produced from oil, and after the usual preliminary experiments and failures, he has, by perseverance, produced a light which is strikingly pretty, and, as far as it has gone, quite a success. The ordinary lamp-box is used, but instead of the oil can inside a small incandescent lamp is fixed. This, in front of the bright reflector, throws up the pure white light with great effect. Mr. Izod has had this idea very thoroughly carried out through the patience and trouble devoted by Messrs. Rastrick, Son & Co., of King's Road, Southsea, who, in their electrical department, have had the complete apparatus fitted up. It remains to be proved whether this light will be found to answer all purposes in touring. Last night's experiments, at any rate, was in every respect a complete success. — Evening News, June 16.

FREDERICK CONINGSBY, son of Albert Coningsby, of the West Philadelphia Athletic Association, while riding on his bicycle on the concourse drive, near Elm Avenue, yesterday, raced past W. H. Morton, the manager of McCaull's Opera House, frightening that gentleman's horse, who nearly succeeded in upsetting Mr. Morton and his companion. Mr. Morton demanded in excited tones what the young man meant by such recklessness. He was answered with epigrammatic profanity. This addition of insult to injury was too much for Mr. Morton, who struck young Coningsby twice with his whip. F. Richwine, who is a member of the League of American Wheelmen, witnessed the occurrence and demanded Mr. Morton's name and address, which were given him. It is understood that the matter has been placed in the hands of Lawyer Isaac Elwell, counsel for the League of American Wheelmen, who will probably bring suit, young Coningsby claiming that he was struck in the face. Mr. Morton said last night in reference to the matter: "I was driving within three feet of the curb when this bicycler flew past me on the inside. He startled me as well as the horse, which reared and turned the buggy up on one side, so that it was as much as I could do to get him quiet again. I don't think the boy belongs to the League, or he would not have done so foolish a thing as to try to pass between me and the curb. I have always found the wheelmen very considerate, and when I have asked them to keep to one side, so as not to frighten my horse, they have always done so.—Press.

CYCLING IN CINCINNATI.

THE vernal showers, the summer heat, the new granite and asphalt pavements have caused the cycling booms in this vicinity to flourish, to blossom, and to hold out hopes of an abundant crop ere the season's close.

The different clubs of the city and suburbs have taken on new life, and are monthly adding to their list of members till they number now as follows:

Cincinnati Bicycle Club,	20
Central Wheelmen,	30
Brighton Bicycle Club,	13
Avondale Bicycle Club,	24
Northside Bicycle Club,	13
Kenton (Ky.,) Bicycle Club,	30
Newport (Ky.,) Bicycle Club,	12
Dayton (Ky.,) Bicycle Club,	10
Hartwell Bicycle Club,	14
Madisonville Bicycle Club,	14
College Hill Bicycle Club,	10

This by no means includes all the riders in this vicinity, for the number of unattached is even greater. Then, besides, the number of boy cyclists who in a few years will be old enough to join the L. A. W., is astonishing and on the increase.

The community is beginning to view the sport in a different light, and many of those who four years ago laughed at us for riding one of those things and making boys of ourselves, now come to us and begin to make serious inquiries as to the cost of a machine, the method of riding, difficulty of learning, etc., etc.; and we therefore hope in the near future to have large accessions to our ranks.

WILLIAM D. KEMPTON, 14353.

ENTHUSIASM EXTRAORDINARY. — THE REMARKABLE CLUB RUN OF THE L. I. W.

THE full significance of the New York Bicycle Bill is not yet realized. When David Crockett said he would rather be right than be President, he voiced the exact thrill of pride which now stimulates wheelmen in every park and on every highway in the State where equal rights have won the great victory over prejudiced and reluctant toleration. Planted in enthusiasm and watered by liberty, cycling will now boom.

Five thousand membership for the New York division of the L. A. W. is predicted before the close of the year. All over the State the wings of freedom spread their ample folds. On the once-forbidden drives of the great parks the sensation is delicious. It is a moral intoxicant. It uplifts the soul. It prevents headers.

The energetic Brooklyn club of Long Island Wheelmen have thirty tricycle riders united in a special division under the leadership of Lieutenant Chas. E. Jane. During the next full of the moon a great three days' run will occur, embracing the entire strength of the division. Destination, Coney Island. Route, Bedford Avenue, etc., via New York and Long Island official road book. Start will be made from clubhouse, corner Fulton Street, at 6.30 A. M., riding direct to Cobblestone Hill, where a halt will be made to close up stragglers, and proceed in good form to the Park plaza, where a 10 o'clock al fresco breakfast will be served on the picnic ground if the club arrives in time. Each man will bring his own breakfast. The route will then lie through Prospect Park, where pickets will be stationed at all signboards to prevent surreptitious siestas under pretence of looking for cautionary signals against fast riding. Park Policeman No. 62 has just issued new and alarming orders. He may require interviewing, for he is a determined man, and illy brooks a slight to his haughty nuncio. A committee will do well to take him one side, and see what the gentleman will have.

At this point the division will go home for lunch. Bader's, beyond the Park, will be reached by 4 P. M. Ice-cream here for all who arrive in time. A detachment of hard riders will then lead the way at a hot pace, putting up for the night at Tony Dugan's.

The next day's run will carry survivors as far as the beach at the foot of the Boulevard. An effort will be made to reach Dixon's by moonlight. The run up the asphalt should be made handily in an evening, as two days in the saddle will produce quite a degree of toughness. Return will be by train on the third day. All preparations will be made on the regular L. A. W. touring plans. Meals contracted for and rooms secured two weeks in advance. Baggage and an informal commissary will follow by ambulance. The bicycling members of the club will turn out to a man and line the road as the brilliant brigade dashes out of the Park. Many will also walk down the Boulevard and watch progress, observing different machines in action, and noting the finer variations between gradual inertia and ultimate introspective contemplation.

A wagon will be sent back for all who are out of sight at noon on the second day, so that the sturdy tricyclers may arrive in a body, and count up strong at the tableaux triumphant at night. Deeper and wider local interest in cycling affairs will result from this practical demonstration that resolute tricyclers can, and actually have, performed the journey from Brooklyn to Coney Island, and as it is proved now to be only a question of time, this route should certainly become one of the most popular long-distance tours in the State. Full information may be obtained at the clubhouse, 120 Fulton Avenue, by any visiting wheelmen who desire to participate. If it rains or is a hot day, the tour will disband till the month following.

(Signed) SMITH.

NEW ORLEANS.

WANTED.—One middle-aged white man; must be a fluent and silvery tongued speaker and capable of exerting considerable influence on the Weather Bureau. Address, stating compensation expected, New Orleans Wheelmen, this office.

I DO not think it will be a great while before the wheelmen of this little hamlet will have to combine and employ some such individual as described in the above ad. (?) for, judging from our experience in the past, the boys of the Weather Bureau must have a long-standing, long-drawn-out grudge against us, for verily it does seem that any undertaking of a cycling nature is bound to be marred or postponed by inclement weather. First our Mardi Gras Lantern Parade was postponed one day by rain; then the races which were to have occurred during February were twice postponed by the same element, and virtually ruined thereby, so far as the financial part was concerned; next, Jupiter Pluvius interfered with Fairchild and Abbot in their Baton-Rouge-to-New-Orleans run, after they were well on their way; and lastly, two or three large runs which had been planned for July 4, were necessarily declared off, by reason of the tremendous rainfall. Now, really, ain't we in luck?

THE anti-League element has again bobbed up serenely in the New Orleans Bicycle Club, and is hard at work endeavoring to heal the wounds sustained in their two recent defeats, and they will, so it is said, again enter the ring at the approaching meeting of that club but slightly disfigured, and once more will sounds of wrangling shake the rafters of the building, as the glib-tongued expound to the assembled multitude the advantages and disadvantages of being a League club.

ON Sunday, June 26, Messrs. Fairchild and Abbot, of the New Orleans Club, left by rail for Baton Rouge, and at three o'clock the next morning left that place a-wheel, with the intention of making the run to this city within twenty-four hours. Before they had covered five miles they discovered that they had missed their route, and in attempting to find it, Fairchild, in the semi-darkness, walked off an eight-foot embankment. He landed on his feet, but one of them turning under him gave his ankle a severe twist. After rubbing it with liniment he managed to mount and ride thirty-five miles further, when the pain extending throughout his whole leg forced him to stop and await the train. Abbot pressed on, but a heavy rain coming up made the roads unridable, and he was reluctantly compelled to abandon the trip and join Fairchild on the train, after having covered a total of forty-five miles in some seven or eight hours, which included a great number of stops, made necessary by Fairchild's injury. The correspondent of the Ev. World, having seen fit to intimate that Fairchild's injury was not genuine, as a disinterested party I wish to say that I called on Fairchild the day after his return, and although the swelling of his ankle had decreased considerably in that time, it was still such as to prevent the buttoning of his shoe, and to cause him to limp somewhat.

THE World's correspondent by just such unfounded and uncalled for dings, is working no good either for himself or for his paper. He is only causing ill feeling and a straining of friendly relations; to which I can hardly believe the editor of that paper desires to become a willing party.

CHIEF CONSUL HODGSON arrived Wednesday, after an absence of seven weeks, in which the St. Louis Meet, New York, Boston, and several other places were visited. He is looking exceedingly well; a heavy coating of sunburn and a decided Bostonese style of brushing his hair adding considerably to his looks. A Chief Consul's badge with its crossed arrows — a present from Captain Peck, of the Massachusetts Club, adorns his manly bosom.

and affords many of the boys their initial glance at that insignia of office, being the first seen in the city.

FOR the last two or three weeks, rumors have been floating around regarding a new club to be formed in this city, and last night (July 7,) saw these rumors assume tangible shape in the organization of a live little club of eleven members. W. H. Renand was elected president, and J. P. Phelan, secretary-treasurer, and a committee of three was appointed to draft the constitution and by-laws, and was also empowered to choose a name for the club. They will submit their report at the next meeting, which occurs on the 19th inst., when a captain and other necessary officers will be elected. The club contains some good material, and starts off in the proper manner, i. e., without undue haste in arranging the preliminaries, and as three or four members of the defunct Crescent Wheelmen are among its leading spirits, the new club will doubtless profit by their experience gained in the brief course of the Crescent's existence. Chief Consul Hodgson was present, and rendered valuable assistance in furthering the organization. In the course of his remarks, he stated that he wanted it understood that he was for no one club; that he was representing the League, and was as much for one club as for the other, and he proved his earnestness by enrolling his name as a member of the new club. It is most probable that the name selected will be Louisiana Cycling Club, Louisiana Wheelmen, or, possibly, Louisiana Cyclers.

A MEETING of the Division occurs to-night (July 8). It will be the first held in a long, long while, but unless I am greatly mistaken, it will prove the turning point, and will be the means of placing this State among the workers of the League, as Chief Consul Hodgson has given me a previous insight into his plans and good ones they are too. A secretary-treasurer will also be elected for the ensuing year.

GEORGE GUERDY, of the New Orleans Bicycle Club, expects to leave in two or three weeks for a tour through the Shenandoah Valley, starting from Staunton, Va., and winding up, I believe, at New York. BI.

LONG ISLAND NOTES.

THE League Consuls on the Island need waking up. The most important roads, even, are not "signed," and, paradise of wheelmen that the region is, it can never be better than a Chinese puzzle to the stranger when off the main routes, until some judicious signing is done.

The Flushing district is now nearly complete, and I find that, so far, the signs have been respected and of a good deal of use, especially as our roads are coming more and more into favor with the New Yorkers, both wheelmen and horsemen.

The visit of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club to Flushing on the 2d inst., and their entertainment by the Mercury's, will long be remembered by the participants as one of the pleasantest "times" on the records of each club. So much solid fun and enjoyment was crowded into Saturday afternoon, Sunday and Monday, that a volume of the BULLETIN would n't contain it all.

In the short time the Brooklyns were in town they took in a visit to the Athletic Club, where refreshments were served; a ride to and an inspection of the fort at Willett's Point; dinner at Crocheron's famed Bayside Hotel, the feed being served in the open pavilion, over the water; and after the return to town by moonlight, all took a swim from the boat house float.

Never was there brighter moonlight, clearer air, nor more delightful water. This account may seem a little incomplete without some reference to Flushing's "fairest daughters," etc., but suffice it to say that they did the fair thing by us all, and that there will be a big fight next year in the B. B. C. for position of bugler.

All retired to an early (?) and virtuous rest, tired but happy. Sunday, the next morning, broke clear and hot, and in company with Mr. Veysey of the Harlems, and a few Mercurys, the run to Babylon, by way of Jericho and Auntyville, was made in four and a half hours, thirty-six miles, thermometer one hundred and thirty-seven degrees on the ice, without losing a man.

After dinner at the Sherman House, all took a grand sail on Great South Bay, with a swim on the flats, in half a gale; the evening being spent in meditation, several different methods being employed. Billy and Charlie got their feet dry by morning, and Messrs. Jones, Corby, and Hawkins intend moving to Babylon for the summer.

The party separated on Monday morning, one division going to Patchogue, in hopes of getting their pictures in the World, and the remainder returned to Jamaica for dinner, going to Queens for the races in the afternoon, where Messrs. Todd and Meetur took first and second places respectively in the open two-mile handicap.

Among the wheelmen at the South Side on Monday, were members of the following clubs, viz.: K. C. W., Ilderan, Calumet, Long Island, Boston, Harlem, Mercury, Brooklyn, and Huntington, nearly two hundred in all.

The Mercurys would like very much to become acquainted with the Huntington Club, and intend making H. the objective point for a run before long. I have been told they ride nothing but Stars.

JUDGE BROADY'S DECISION.

THE bicycle case which has been attracting attention in the district court was decided yesterday, July 9.

The case is a novel one, and no court of final jurisdiction has ever passed on it. The case will be appealed, and the Supreme Court of the State of Nebraska will be the first supreme court to pass on the question. We give space for Judge Broady's able decision in full.

The defendant was sentenced to imprisonment for riding a bicycle on Fifth Street, and sued out a writ of habeas corpus for release from his imprisonment. The hearing was had before Judge Broady.

The judge discharged the prisoner on the ground that so much of the ordinance as prohibits the simple act of riding a bicycle on certain streets of the city is void because unreasonable. The judge in his oral opinion in substance said: —

"It is undoubtedly in the power of the city to regulate the modes of travel by carriage or otherwise over the streets of the city by ordinances, according to the demands for police regulations, which vary according to the variations of the different parts of the city as to density of population, or business, or other condition. But there must be a reasonable cause for each such regulation to make it reasonable. It may, under this power, for sufficient reasons prohibit certain modes of travel in certain parts of the city, such as prohibiting omnibus lines on certain streets when the capacity of the street is insufficient for all the travel thereon without great inconvenience, and something taking up much room can be confined to other streets with no unreasonable hardship. Also, giving omnibus stands at depots something in the nature of monopolies to avoid the confusion of crowding carriages, with the understanding as to where any one will drive, stop, or stand. These are but illustrations. The reason of these ordinances do not obtain in the ordinances in question. There is no pretence that a bicycle occupies too much room on the street, or that the crowd of business thereon will not reasonably admit such way of going. There is no pretence that the bicycle in motion makes a noise to the annoyance of others. The sole and single objection is that horses are apt to be frightened at them. This is true of most, if not all, novel inventions for locomotion until horses have become somewhat familiar with them. I see nothing in the riding of a bicycle unusually calculated to frighten horses except its novelty, which applies to all new methods of travel in a greater or less degree until they have become familiar. A new thing so far beyond the comprehension of persons is to be deemed supernatural sometimes strikes some people with terror, and of course horses are more often frightened by novelties because their comprehension is much more limited. But they are equally susceptible of being made familiar with new things, so that there is no fear from them. In the foundation of this ordinance we see traces only to the ignorance of horses, which is a hardly a good basis for this ordinance. In the towns and counties where ox teams were common, they would mingle on the highways with horse teams without fright to either. But now teaming with oxen is so nearly obsolete that I would feel constrained to keep a firm hold on the lines if on driving on Court Street I should meet a team of oxen. The invention of locomotion with the bicycle is comparatively new, especially in this country, and I am unable to say that the invention has yet reached its maximum merits, or that it may not be a thing of merit in this great age of invention, progress, and improvement. It is, to say the least, a new way of going, and many of those who adhere to older ways will feel aggravated that the new way is permitted; but restraints should not be put upon enterprise or invention simply because they are unlike what we are accustomed to. It is said that the bicycle is a very rapid means of locomotion, and for that reason dangerous in populous places. So is a race horse; and it is a proper ordinance to prohibit his being ridden at full speed in the street, but improper to prohibit his being rode through the street at a proper gait because there is speed in him. So bicycle riding, as to speed and other things, may be regulated by ordinance, but such is not the ordinance in question. Objection is made to the motives of the persons riding bicycles, that it is not to facilitate business, but only for pleasure. If the regulation of the motives of the persons riding bicycles is proper matter for regulation it will require another ordinance, because the one in question does not treat of that subject. Health and happiness are said to be great objects of human actions. Some of the evidence tends to show that bicycle riding is only for exercise and pleasure. I am not able to say that exercise and pleasure in that way may not contribute to both health and happiness. I do not, however, see that it is necessary to investigate that subject. I hold that the ordinance is void because unreasonable, and discharge the prisoner." — Beatrice (Neb.) Express.

Voted to accept report.

Chief Consul Bennett then made a report, in which he stated that twenty-six hotels throughout the State had been made League hotels, to which he had issued certificates, and that he had appointed sixteen local consuls.

On motion of Mr. Hazlett, George F. Hill was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Also by the same gentleman, a vote to make an appropriation for the chief consul, the amount to be fixed by the executive committee.

A vote was passed creating a nominating committee (composed of the president and secretary of each club in the State), whose duty it shall be to nominate candidates for the offices in the Division.

The meeting then adjourned to the dining-room, where the boys did justice to the excellent dinner prepared by Host Prescott.

During the parade in the forenoon, the boys were treated to a delicious drink of lemonade by Chief Consul and Mrs. Bennett. At Chandler's the party were photographed and again "watered," for which they said they would come again.

Nothing occurred to mar the pleasure of the day, and a unanimous vote of thanks was given the Manchester Club for their generous entertainment.

GEORGE F. HILL,
Secretary-Treasurer.

A 'CYCLIST PAYS A BILL.

A REMARKABLE case was decided yesterday at Elizabeth, N. J., in the District Court before Judge Gilhooley. It was the third trial of the suit of Fox against Sylvester for damages sustained by the former's boy in being struck, knocked down and injured by Sylvester, while riding his bicycle on the evening of Oct. 5, 1886. As the previous trials had resulted in disagreements, the jury this time was picked from Elizabethport's citizens.

Sylvester swore he was not the party that struck the boy and attempted to set up an alibi to prove that he was on his way to New York at the time. Two witnesses swore they saw him board a train at 6.45 P. M., while the accident, it was alleged, had occurred at 7 o'clock. The conductor of the train testified to seeing the defendant on it. To make Sylvester's case appear stronger, Jude Decker, another wheelman, swore that on the evening in question, at about the time mentioned, he, Decker, rode against, and knocked down a boy, while out riding on his bicycle. The boy, however, was positive that Sylvester was the party who injured him.

It was shown that the defendant sent Dr. Gner, after the accident, to Mrs. Fox, and offered to settle the case by paying her $25. The defendant tried to explain this away by saying that he would sooner lose that amount unjustly, than have his name dragged into court. The jury, however, took a different view, and regarded this evidence as proof positive, that Sylvester inflicted the injury. After an absence of half an hour, the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, assessing the plaintiff's damages at $300. — N. Y. World, July 15, '87.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

I SPEAK WHEN THE FOUNDATION IS SCRATCHED.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — A certain wheelman from New York, well known to readers of the BULLETIN, suggests some alterations in the government of the L. A. W. in the last issue, the subject of which, reorganization, is a matter that requires great thought. I agree with the gentleman in question only partially. A change is sometimes beneficial in the laws of an association, especially where its membership is scattered over vast area of territory. Firstly. The League is an organization of wheelmen and for wheelmen, and I fail to see Mr. ——'s object in giving more power to our officers and representatives, and furthermore in abolishing the annual general meeting of the League.

We are the wheelmen who pay our trivial annual dues to support an organization which we look to to protect our rights, being in the minority of citizens who traverse the highways and roads. Gentlemen, why should the members vest more power in the offices and abolish the very nucleus that holds the various divisions together, — the annual meet. But if Mr. ——'s ideas are to decrease the interest of members of the League by taking away the right of speech, and not allowing the average member to express his opinions except through a representative at a board meet, he probably must see the ultimatum if he thinks awhile, that to decrease general interest by these stepping stones, the renewals at the beginning of the fiscal year will undoubtedly be smaller, and thus shorten the longevity of the organization.

It is our ambition as members to induce wheelmen to join our ranks, that our treasury may swell and be adequate to protect our members on the highways, and facilitate touring.

Secondly. A point made strong in Mr. ——'s. article is, that the League should admit to it's ranks, without inquiry as to who the applicant is, any wheelman residing within the boundaries of the League. Gentlemen, this is not in accordance with reason, though admitting the fact, that the more dues means a larger organization and treasury.

Have we not been complimented at many annual banquets in our largest cities, as to the entirely different and enlightened class that composed our national organization than the cities, mayors, and other high officials supposed we were, — though we have 12,000, we have none who are not a credit to the organization, and to allow any and every rider of a wheel to join, regardless of who he is, would not be a just law to those members of years' standing, who have brought up the League from its infancy.

But as the request of the Chairman Special Committee on Revising L. A. W. Constitution is so willingly responded to by Mr. —— simply in manner of brief unexplanatory suggestions, I will not make further comment, but hope to read suggestions from the Western and Eastern divisions of the L. A. W. whose colors I ride under.

But words are things, and a small drop of ink,
Falling like dew upon a thought, produces
That which make thousands, perhaps millions, think.

SIRRAH.

REORGANIZATION.

C. H. LUSCOMB, Esq., Chairman Special Committee on Revising L. A. W. Constitution.

DEAR SIR: — The fourth article of the L. A. W. Constitution provides for an annual election on April 10, and an announcement of the result by May 1.

The result of these late dates is, that no meeting of the new board of officers in a State can be held before May 15; appointments of consuls cannot be made until a later date, and consuls cannot get to work till midsummer, or later. The hardest working weather of the year is reached before representatives and consuls learn their duties, and it is useless to expect that much will be accomplished during the balance of the season. Of course, if the same officers remain year after year, it makes less difference; but even then, the end of May is much too late for the yearly reorganization, and preparation for the year's work.

I therefore urge the necessity of having the new boards of officers assume office by March 1, thus enabling them to begin work with the riding season, and not, as at present, delaying everything until the very best of the season is over.

L. H. PORTER,
Representative.

HARTFORD, July 11, 1887.

TRANSPORTATION.

SOME doubt having arisen as to the position of the Pennsylvania Company's lines in the matter of free carriage of bicycles, the general passenger agent was addressed on the subject, who replies under date July 11, through Mr. R. R. Bentley, general baggage agent, as follows: —

"Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, comprising the Pennsylvania Company, Chicago, St. Louis, and Pittsburg Railroad Company, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, and St. Louis Railway Company, and the Vandalia line are still carrying bicycles free, when accompanied by owners, with full first-class tickets."

Wheelmen will please note, and should charges be exacted by train baggagemen, take receipts for same and forward to me.

B. B. AYERS, Chairman.

AMONG THE MANY BATTLES

Which grace the shield of the VICTOR, are the names of Clarksville, Crawfordsville, "Big 4" 100 miles, Boston 100 miles—all 100-mile events and all open to the World.

Many races, such as the "Eastern Club Race," the "Wanderers' Road Race," etc., have been won on VICTORS, but we mention only the fields which have been open to all comers. The VICTOR fears no competition and glories in no race where any rider is barred.

In several instances, such as the Clarksville Race, and the Chicago Road Race, where a choice of different Bicycles was given the winner as a prize, the VICTOR has been chosen.

STODDARD, LOVERING & CO., 152 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

While Harry Corey and a friend were riding a tandem through Waltham Friday afternoon they were assaulted by a young rowdy, who aimed a blow at them as they went past. Corey, who was on the rear seat of the tandem, received the benefit of the assault. Quickly dismounting, he chased the young ruffian, and administered to him a good thrashing, which will, doubtless, make him respect tricyclists a little more in the future.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling' nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26.—The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 42 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Dawson, of Pawtucket second; C. M. Morse, of Pawtucket, third. Turner rode a Columbia, Dawes a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country: it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators. . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize.—Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. L. Damery, 51-inch Columbia Light Roadster, fourth; Ludwig Forster, 54-inch Victor, fifth; S. J. Mills, 58-inch Expert Columbia, did not finish.

THE Young America Cycle Club, of Fiume, Austria, is the latest addition to the list of League Clubs, and it is the first League Club organized beyond the borders of the United States. Dr. N. A. Givovich, a young Hungarian resident in San Francisco, and a member of the San Francisco Bi Club, is visiting his home in Austria, and the new club is the result of his labors with the wheelmen of his native town. Dr. Givovich was elected president of the club. The names are published this week, and the club is duly entered on the list of League clubs. No member but the Doctor knows a word of English.

CARTHAGE, MO., has passed an ordinance forbidding the riding of bicycles in the street, but there is no penalty attached, and so the law doesn't amount to much.

IF wheelmen are to be assaulted on the road, and treated with indignity, it is well that it occur in a place where the attacking party can speedily be brought to justice. Philadelphia has had two cases of assault lately, and in each instance the assailant has been made to realize that wheelmen have rights on the road. The Quaker-City wheelmen have public sentiment and the press behind them, and they are well equipped to combat the road hog in whatsoever form he may appear.

A BOSTON daily is sorely displeased because, for sooth, the cycling papers are wont to insert an occasional joke. He would have them run on a dead level of fact and argument, and taboo jest, joke and pun. The advice is not good. If our contemporaries can once in a while brighten their columns with a good joke, by all means let us have it. It is not to be expected that a man shall be pleased with every line in a paper, and our advice to the Boston editor is that he pass over in silence the funny paragraphs, devote himself to the long and heavy articles, and leave the jokes to those who appreciate them. We will venture to say that he will not find as much space given to jokes in any cycling paper as he wasted in his sermon against them.

A CORRESPONDENT who wants to make racing interesting, suggests that all races be handicaps, and that a man is beaten when he is once passed. Put A on scratch and B on the twenty-yard mark. If now, A can catch and pass B at any time before the race is finished, he is the winner. This would certainly put a stop to loafing.

ARGUING on the percentage basis is not always satisfactory. The little fellows always have the best of it. It is easy enough for a State with four League members to increase its membership one hundred per cent., but it is not as easy for New York to put 2,000 more on its roll. We may find the "banner town" of cycling at Wayback, where there are two inhabitants and one rider, but it isn't much of a record to boast of.

WHEN the League encourages road-racing by recognizing it in any way, it will grow to such propor. tions that it will one day confound us.

HOW shall we stop "loafing" on the race track? This has been the problem which has stared cycling racing authorities in the face for many years. On the one hand they see very well that a man must be allowed to run a race as he pleases, that a race is as often won by the head as it is by the legs, and that if it comes within the lines of a racer's generalship to save himself for a final spurt he should be allowed to to do it. On the other hand, track tactics and loafing races are not attractive to look at, and the people will not go to see them. The A. C. U. tried to meet the problem by the imposition of a fine, but this was a poor rule and did not work well. A time limit seems to be a better solution of the difficulty, for it allows for track tactics within certain limits and does not hamper the rider as does the fear of a fine from a perhaps unwise referee. The time limit will stop loafing, but will it make an interesting race? Will it be any more exciting to see a field of riders circling a track in a group at the rate of 2.40 to the mile, than it is to see them going around at a 3.10 pace? The handicap is the best solution of the problem, after all. We have had some very few specimens of handicap racing in America, from the fact that clubs have very few such races, and the handicappers are not able to work to the best advantage for want of data. Let race promoters give us more handicaps and we shall see better racing, for the handicappers will become more expert, and the racing men cannot loaf. Scratch racing should be left to the championships.

THE index for Vol. IV. is now ready. It will be sent to any one who has use for it on receipt of a postal.

C. H. LUSCOMB, Esq., of New York, writes of road racing, in the Wheel, as follows:

"Our foundation argument and constant contention is that the bicycle and tricyle are vehicles, entitled to all the rights and privileges accorded to other carriages; but we must not, and cannot, claim exemption from the restrictions they are under. Otherwise, we are wholly inconsistent, and are forced to occupy the untenable position that we are carriages when we want to be, and something else when we seek favors carriages do not and cannot enjoy.

Road racing upon public highways, by drivers of carriages, is unlawful, and the bicycle and tricycle have no superior rights which permit them privileges prohibited to the carriage.

Under certain circumstance, this form of sport might be proper; where, for instance. a county, city, village or township, owning and having entire control over and management of a road, and legally qualified therefor, expressly permits a race thereon at a specified time.

When, either by statute or ordinance, the speed at which vehicles may be driven is regulated, the bicycle and tricycle must conform thereto, and in all such localities this is practically a bar to racing, and plainly declares its unlawful character.

In places where there appears to be no statute or ordinance, the common law principle that roads and highways were established and maintained for the purpose of affording means of passage by the people from place to place would govern.

The roads were not created to provide a track upon which men might test their speed, power and endurance, and they could not be lawfully so used without the general assent of all entitled to use them.

No man has the right to go upon the highway in an unusual manner, if such use shall in any wise prejudice the free and orderly use, and the comfort and safety of another.

So much for the principles applicable to and governing road racing.

The practical application of racing upon the highways by a number of contesting wheelmen, emphasizes the force of the argument against such use, and indicates without semblance of doubt, the position law abiding riders must take regarding it.

We are now, with much labor and gratifying success, establishing our legal status, and firmly demonstrating our equal rights upon the highways.

In the near future, the grand undertaking of improving the condition of the roads, is the great burden, the crusade, the "L. A. W." has to enter upon. In this important enterprise, no action, which the League cannot logically and legally defend, should be permitted to hamper the effectiveness of our progress.

Looking over the whole field, there appears but one course for League members, loyally interested in the advancement of the organization, and that, to withdraw from all participation in road-racing, and exert actively their strongest influence in its discouragement.

JERSEY.

EVERYTHING is very quiet about the club houses now, and the notices for club runs receive but scant attention. Whatever chat there is, is mainly confined to the experiences of those who have been off on tours, or envious remarks about those on them now. The custom of spending vacations a-wheel seems to be on the increase, and each club has furnished its share of the cyclers, who are scouring the Eastern States in all directions. Road books are in great demand, and grateful benedictions are heaped on the heads of the book-making benefactors; for, as touring is on the increase, these little volumes become more and more indispensible.

D. B. BONNETT, of the E. W. writes me that as usual he and his family are tricycling and bicycling along the Jersey coast and through Monmouth County, with headquarters at Ocean Beach. Ex-Lieut. Rose, of the P. C. W., has been up in Canada, as has been Lieut. Burnet, of the U. C. W., while President Yokes and Captain Pierson, of the Bloomfield Cyclers, have been up in the White Mountains.

BY the way, the Bloomfield Cyclers are a live and growing organization. They were organized in February, with eleven members, and have now some thirty. They are full of an enthusiasm that speaks well for their success, and early prominence as a club. They recently had a contest over rough roads, for a medal offered to the one making the fewest dismounts. At the end the score stood: D. Oakes, 1; Pierson, 2; Van Auken, 7; Palmer and Neves, 9. This is most excellent practice, and should be encouraged, as it makes good road riders, and fits men well for the difficulties of tours. They also recently had a paper chase. The hares ran through fields and over fences, but the plucky hounds followed and caught them near Passaic. Captain Pierson has very kindly promised to keep me informed of the doings of his club, and judging from their short history it will prove an interesting chronicle.

RAIN prevented the running of the five-miles road-race for the championship of Union County last Saturday, under the auspices of the U. C. W., for the prizes given by the citizens of Westfield. It has been postponed until later in the week. It ought to make a very pretty struggle, as thirteen of the best riders of the clubs of Westfield, Plainfield, and Elizabeth have entered, and the rivalry is very strong. Caldwell will fight for the honor of Elizabeth, Ackerman, for Plainfield, and Pierson and Burnet, for the U. C. W. On these the respective clubs pin their faith, though some of the others may upset the prophesies.

CAPTAIN PORTER, of the Orange Wanderers, writes me that his club will probably give a tournament at Roseville, on August 27th. With a judicious programme, so as to give riders of all classes a chance, as was done last year, the former financial and racing success should be repeated. There is plenty of idle racing material lying around waiting to limber up its joints. This will be a good opportunity, and I prophecy a success. The Orange Wanderers, by their enterprise, are rapidly taking the lead in cycling matters in the State, and some of the older and larger organizations will have to brace up or they will be badly left. The club is gaining in numbers, too, and now has sixty members on its roll.

THE weekly exhibition drills of the Passaic County Wheelmen are attracting large audiences, and are doing much to call the attention of the public to the sport. Wheeling cannot be advertised too much. Everything that makes people talk of it tends to increase its interest and importance in the eyes of the outside world.

AMONG the big scores made by the P. C. W. during June, are: Banker, 455; Shuit, 400; Romaine, 357. Hello, there, Passaic! What about that proposed joining of the team road-racing association? With all the practice you are having, judging by the big runs you are making, you certainly need have no fear of "carrying the target."

I HAVE just received a letter from Secretary Willever, of the New Jersey Cycling and Athletic Association, containing welcome news to the racing men. Five bicycle races will be run at the Roseville track on August 6 in connection with the regular Saturday base ball game. The races will be called promptly at three o'clock, and at their conclusion the ball game will be begun. The admission will probably be twenty-five cents, and will cover both the races and the ball game. No extra charge will be made for seats. The low price, while not leaving much room for profit, will stimulate the interest in racing. The programme has not fully been determined on, but the card will probably comprise a mile ridden and some one and two mile handicaps. Rich, Stenken, Hall, and other racers are daily practising on the track. The prizes will be handsome and moderately expensive. If sufficient encouragement be given by the racing men, their friends, and wheelmen in general, these races will be given on alternate Saturdays, and possibly every Saturday until the end of the season. Efforts are being made to have Rowe present and give an exhibition. The programme will finally be decided on Wednesday evening. Those wanting more particular information can obtain it by writing to Secretary J. C. Willever, 150 Arlington Street, Newark, N. J.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE remarks of No. 7556, in BULLETIN of last week, commenting upon the absence of League signs on the highways and by-ways of Long Island, are well-timed and, it is to be hoped may have the effect of rousing some of our lethargic consuls into something like activity. New Yorkers crossing the ferry to College Point will find the roads thence to Flushing, and the Jericho Pike at Queens legibly stencilled, thanks to the industry of ex Consul Cobb, and Consul Clark of Flushing. Arriving at the Pike, tourists must rely entirely upon the road book and their own resources, as stencils are an unknown quantity. Any one can readily follow the Pike from Jamaica to Jericho without the aid of either road book or signboard; but the many twisting and turnings between Jericho and Amityville, and between Hempstead and Bellmore are most bewildering to the stranger, and oftentimes confusing to one comparatively familiar with the road. These two routes are the best to the South Shore, and are much travelled by cyclers from all parts, and as the slightest deviation from the correct course will lead to untold sand and trouble, the necessity of their being properly labelled is apparent. Unfortunately, there are no consuls in this immediate district, and it is most too far away to expect those of Flushing or Brooklyn giving it proper attention, yet in the interests of cyclers generally, it would seem that were the consuls efficient workers some arrangement could be made to accomplish this desired object.

The recent action of Mr. Luscomb in resigning from the Executive Board of the New York and New Jersey Team Road Racing Association, for reasons as explained in his letter which appeared in the Wheel of last week, is worthy of much praise. The League, while it "regulates the government of all amateur sports connected with the use of the wheel," was organized primarily to "ascertain, defend and protect the rights of wheelmen." It is unnecessary to inform any one that road racing is illegal, all know it, and all cyclers hereabouts know also, that sooner or later such scenes as are enacted twice each year at Orange will result disastrously to the good of the cycling cause. The highway monopolized to the exclusion of traffic, horses rudely seized by the bridle and their drivers forced off the public road, profanity and vulgarity heaped upon the heads of any who remonstrate or attempt to proceed uninterruptedly upon their way, are incidents little calculated to amplify our boasted virtues, or grant us favor before a court of justice. We made a great hue and cry about our rights; should we not then respect the rights of others? Can we expect justice when we are unjust ourselves?

The editor of the Wheel recently remarked in the columns of that paper, that he would like to see a road race between amateurs and professionals for a money prize, for the purpose of showing the folly of the recent decision of the Cabinet. I was surprised at the article, as I had given friend Prial credit for having better sense, and I am still of the opinion that it was penned at the dictation of some hot-headed racing enthusiast, without proper consideration on the part of the said editor, who on most occasions has shown himself most consistent and loyal to the League and its success. Should a case of this kind occur, I think the duty of the League is very clearly defined by its by-laws and racing rules. Article V., Section 4, says: "An amateur is one etc., etc., nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description." So far so good, now the racing rules say:

A. Any amateur wilfully competing at races not stated to be held and actually held under the rules of the Board, or rules approved by the Board, shall be liable to suspension from the race-track for such a time as the Racing Board may determine; and amateurs are notified that to compete against any rider who has been suspended will render them liable to the same penalty.

If, therefore, the League decides not to recognize road-racing, which is equivalent to forbidding it, how can road-racing be legally held under League rules? and is not every man who participates in a road-race liable to suspension under the above rule?

Returning recently from a tour up the Hudson, the writer journeyed over a route from Newburgh to Montclair, but little used by cyclers, but of such general excellence that a brief description may be of interest to future tourists in this direction.

The start for the day was made from Hyde Park, and the usual river route followed to Fishkill Landing, where ferry was taken across the river to Newburgh. The route thence to Suffern is described as 39a on New York Road Book, and it is this we wish to enlarge upon. Climbing the steep ascents of Broadway in Newburgh, a turn to the left is made at top of the second hill, on the road to Woodlawn Cemetery, where we turn left down the hill to New Windsor, and turn right, to the charming village of Canterbury (Cornwall). 6 miles, two of which are heavy riding and the rest good; no dismounts necessary, unless for a sharp, stony, up-hill at the railroad crossing before Canterbury. Proceeding straight through the village, in about a mile or so, a steep, stony hill must be descended with care; turning left at the bottom, following a pretty brook, along an excellent and nicely-shaded road to Mountainville, (given in Road Book as Orr's Mills). Here the left road is taken, not crossing bridge, direct through a beautiful valley surrounded by lofty wooded mountains, and over a good and moderately hilly road, through Woodbury — a charming spot — to Highland Mills, where an excellent dinner was obtained at the H. M. Hotel. The red shale continues excellent for over a mile beyond Highland Mills, when follow two miles of poorer riding, which rapidly improves as Greenwood and the iron furnaces are approached. Thence the route lays down the beautiful Ramapo Valley through Stoatsburg, Tuxedo Park, and Ramapo to Suffern. The entire road from Newburgh to this point leads through scenery that will delight the eye at every turn; and too much cannot be said in praise of it, as no dismount need be made except at one or two hills near the Newburgh end. From Suffern, good riding is to be had to Nyack, whence ferry can be taken to Tarrytown, and this route would prove quite as interesting and more enjoyable than the direct route down the river, as it avoids the steep climbs below Fishkill, and the bad sand below Peekskill.

At Suffern we turned west, following the river via Oakland to Pompton, passing Pompton Pond, a beautiful sheet of water, and proceeding down the valley via Pequannock, Mountain View, Singac, and Cedar Grove, to the macadam at Verona.

Arriving at Montclair, cyclometers showed a distance of eighty-six and a half miles for the day, and as most all of this riding was up and down hill, the general excellence of the roads require no further comment. The Road Book gives the distance from Newburgh to Highland Mills as thirteen miles. Cyclometer measurement shows it to be about three miles further; otherwise, the distances given are nearly correct.

JULY 25, 1887.

CHICAGO.

THERE was organized in Chicago, on the 10th of August, 1886, a club known as the "Illinois Cycling Club." Many were the predictions in regard to its life and growth, and you could hear, on either hand, an occasional sarcasmal remark from members of older clubs that "it will not last long; such things have been tried before," and many other unpleasant hits of like character; but in spite of all, it has lasted and has within its borders over one sixth of the Illinios Division membership.

The club will give a grand smoker on the 10th of August, in honor of its first anniversary. The programme of the evening will consist of a lantern parade, music, and refreshments. The club will keep open doors, and the room will be decorated for the occasion. Come one, come all, and if you have any friends among the wheelmen whose misfortune it is not to belong to our national organization, bring them with you and the committee will see that they are entertained.

We are going to do this up in a manner that will be a credit to the wheeling fraternity at large. Invitations will be sent to all the Division members, and to the unattached wheelmen so far as we can obtain their addresses. League matters are on a boom in this vicinity, and we hope to encourage same by bringing the "unwashed" into our borders.

The lantern parade is, perhaps, the most important feature of the programme. There will be one prize, and possibly two, for the best decorated wheel on this occasion. The parade is not for club members alone, but for all wheelmen who desire to take part, and each will have an equal chance for the prize, providing they do not ride a tandem, as such machines have been ruled out of the contest. The judges are two well-known and impartial gentlemen, such as we find in the character of Ned Oliver and Bob Garden, and they can choose a third party if they so desire.

The Milwaukee scorchers overslept themselves and were an hour and a half late leaving Chicago, consequently, night overtook them when about five miles out of Milwaukee, and they were forced to walk into the city. With the thermometer registering one hundred and four in the shade and a strong head wind, fast work was impossible; however, they cyclometered one hundred and eight miles, and their time was about equal to the previous record. The next trip will be from Milwaukee to Chicago.

The annual ten mile race of the Owl Cycling Club will be run on Saturday next. The prizes will be two gold medals and a club badge. Winship seems to be the favorite, but we believe he will be beaten on this occasion as the course is not in the best condition, and he is by no means a reckless rider. Of course, the Owls are in good condition for this race, so now would be a good time for them to accept the challenge from the Illinois for a team race. Five men from each of these clubs would make an interesting race.

C. H. Pierce, the cycler who is touring from Ogdensburg, N. Y., to Kansas City, stopped with us a few days last week. I had a short chat with him at the rooms of the Pope Company, and found him much pleased with the roads of the West, but he said they could not be compared to those of the East.

The thousand dollars offered by the Gormully & Jeffery Company for a tournament here this fall was offered on the conditions that Spalding and the Pope Company would contribute like sums. Before you begin to agitate this subject, allow me to suggest that you look into the track accommodations, as at present the only available track is at Cheltenham Beach, an out-of-the-way place, and if a tournament was held there, the timers, judges, and referee would compose the audience.

Capt. Palmer has been enjoying a vacation in touring through the central portion of the State. He returned home last Thursday, and called the usual run to River Forest for the Sunday following. I am told that the only member that turned up for the run wore a chestnut gong and carried a Japanese parasol.

SPECTATOR.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

FROM a feminine point of view there is little interest in Mr. Karl Kron's book. I say this without regard to the other interests, for I am inclined to believe that he has covered everything else with painful detail, but the little army of lady riders has been passed over without so much as an acknowledgment of its existence. He can write scores of pages on a savage bulldog, and more upon the history of a lodging-house in New York, but he has no word whatever to say regarding the lady riders who have come forward as devotees of the sport and made themselves an important factor in it.

AND so I say it has little to interest the ladies who are not altogether well pleased with a history of the book, nor in the bull dog, nor in the building, nor in the various legislative battles that have been fought. In such a mass of matter there was no room for us. It was to be expected. Karl Kron is a bachelor.

A CORRESPONDENT writes and asks if she should wear boot or shoe. She inclines to the former because she thinks it supports the ankle. I will advise her to wear a shoe by all means. It will give her greater freedom of action, it is cool, and it is not heavy. In riding the tricycle the ankle needs little or no support. The pedal supports the foot easily and comfortably and the weight of the body is on the saddle. I think my correspondent will find that her ankles will be strengthened by riding, and that in time she will need to have them supported even less than now. Wear a woollen stocking.

THE Boston Herald says: "There are five hundred ladies in Washington who ride tricycles. They attract no more attention there than would a woman on a horse. Many own their own machines. Others rent them as they require them. They go shopping and visiting and calling on them, and are not at all dependent upon the horse cars in consequence."

THE above item must be taken cum grano salis. If one cipher be taken from the figure the statement will come nearer the truth. We hear a great deal about Washington as the "Paradise of Wheelmen." The title may be a just one if it applies to the masculine sex alone, but the truth is the ladies of Washington do not appreciate the fine opportunities for riding that they have on asphalt streets. The best machines do not find a market in the Capital City, and the riders hardly know a bar steerer. The heavy mounts of three years ago are much in use, and the light machines that are used on northern roads by the ladies are not in demand. One of the dealers told a lady friend of mine the other day that there was a good profit on the old machines, for he could buy them very cheap in the north, and as yet, the Washington ladies were unwilling to pay the prices charged for the new wheels. My friend did a good deal of riding around the streets, and though she saw very many machines she saw very few good ones and very few well-dressed riders. The ladies are content to ride around the streets, and they seldom go out into the country, and on the streets the heavy machines run well enough.

WHAT an army of riders would Boston show did she have Washington's asphalt. I hardly think, however, that Boston ladies would be content with street riding. To be able to get beyond the narrow streets and the heated air of the city and enjoy nature in the open fields is one of the chief joys of cycling.

SOME few months ago a friend of mine recommended in this column that "souvenir" runs be held, and suggested a way to carry them out. I notice that the idea has been taken up in Rhode Island. Our friends, the Duke and Duchess of Wellington, went on a run to Providence recently, and while there a complimentary run to Newport was gotten up in their honor by Doctor Bogman and his lady. Seven tandems were in the party. Mr. H. L. Spencer, one of the party, has made some very pretty souvenirs of the run in the shape of some delicate water-color work, tasty designs illustrating scenes of the run painted on rough-edged cards that have been presented to the ladies who participated.

DAISIE.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS, AND, THIS TIME, CLIPPINGS.

THE all-important theme of discussion in Philadelphia cycling circles to day is of the Carnell-Evans assault case. As first detailed in the Times of Wednesday last, Evans was riding quietly on the proper side of the road when Carnell, who was partly full of beer, drove up back of him, and without the slightest provocation struck him with a whip. Mr. Evans at once had the man arrested, and by the aid of the League, through the State division, will prosecute the person to the full extent of the law. Since the Times account was published, the other papers have each commented editorially on the matter, and in every case save one they have been favorable to the wheelmen. The Inquirer is the exception, and urges that the wheelmen should be forbidden the park drives, and exemplifies its ignorance by suggesting that the bridle and by-paths could be used by the bicyclers instead of the drives, although the latter are our only available good surfaces. In pleasing contrast to the jockey-biased opinion of the one lone paper are the editorial comments of the others. The Record gives the following: —

Albert Carnell, of No. 534 South Fourth Street, stirred up a hornet's nest last Monday evening while driving in Fairmount Park when he lashed Rowland Evans of No. 822 North Twenty-third Street, with his whip. Evans, who is a member of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club (?) was on his wheel at the time, and he insists that he used every effort to keep out of Carnell's way. Carnell says that the wheel frightened his horse, but he is under $600 bail to answer the charge of assault and battery just the same. Evans has advertised for witnesses of the trouble in the Park, but thus far has had no response. President Isaac Elwell, of the Bicycle Club, an attorney in the office of ex-Attorney General Lewis C. Cassidy, has taken up the case against Carnell with the avowed purpose of punishing him for an unprovoked assault, and of settling, if possible, the rights of cyclists on public thoroughfares. Last spring Mr. Delp, a member of the Century Bicycle Club, was run into by a physician, who had to pay for the damages done to Delp's wheel, although the physician claimed that the collision was accidental. There have been several decisions in New York, Boston, and Philadelphia, all favorable to the cyclists.

And the North American follows it up with this fair statement of the matter: —

A fair-minded public, interested in the maintenance of the law, will be pleased to note that the case of Mr. Evans has been taken up by the League of American Wheelmen, and that his assailant is likely to be taught by unpleasant experience that it is not healthy in this city of Philadelphia for one man to strike another with a whip or anything else across the face, or the shoulders, or the back, or any other part of his body. A good many people who drive and ride in the Park do so with an idea that if the place does not exactly belong to them they have somehow or other a superior right to its enjoyment. They are willing to tolerate the pedestrian if he keeps his distance, but they draw the line at the man on a bicycle. They can't endure him, and whether by words or blows they would very much like to drive him off the road. We need hardly say that any conduct intended by violence, whether verbal or physical, to accomplish that end, is not to be, and will not be endured. The Park is for no one class; it is for every one; and so long as the wheelman observes the rules under which the Park Commission has authorized his perambulations, those who object to his presence must be taught to keep their objections to themselves. In any case it is not for them to take the law into their own hands, and the Wheelmen's League in taking up the cudgel for cyclers who have been assaulted does the whole community a service.

But ahead of either of these, in date of issue, prominence of position, and importance as a recognition of the power of our 10,000 strong League, is the editorial voice of the Press: —

Bicyclers have had a hard struggle to enforce their rights in the streets and parks, where the owners and drivers of wheeled vehicles are apt to think that no one else enjoys any rights from curb to curb. The temptation of a driver whose horse is startled by a bicycle to lay his whip across the bicycler's shoulders seems to be a very strong one and it will not be cured unless a public example is made of the practice. Fortunately, unlike the pedestrian, the bicycler has an organization behind him which attends to his protection, and by its work discharges a most useful duty in a community like ours, where there is far too little disposition to defend all the rights the law allows.

The grand old Ledger, Geo. W. Childs's paper, the synonym for fairness, square dealing, and conservatism, clinches the nail with this: —

The trouble with bicyclers in the Park is not that there are too many, but too few of them seen there. Fancy any such scrimmages or charges as Fairmount Park has seen and heard lately occurring in the city of Washington, now! There are said to be from fifteen hundred to two thousand "wheels" in Washington, and a goodly number of these are women, who flit about on their tricycles as an everyday occurrence. Public opinion in Washington has accepted the "wheel" as one of invention's last, best gifts to mankind, and even the small-fry on the sidewalk make not as much outcry at seeing a lady ride by on the three-wheeler as the infant population used to do here when a girl was seen on horseback.

Truly Phi'adelphia cyclers are blessed with the support of a clear headed, fair-minded daily press — and it is likely to go hard with offender Carnell and all others of his ilk.

Coningsby has compromised his claim against theatre manager Morton for $125; and again the smile goes around. From the poorness of the case against Mr. Morton, it seems that it would have been decidedly unsafe for him to have offered $25, to say nothing of the hundred, had he not wanted it accepted.

PHACTO.

ST. LOUIS.

THE "amalgamation" rumor which floated about two weeks ago, was evidently misconstrued. It was understood to mean a joining of various athletic clubs with the Y. M. C. A. branch, forming one mammoth club; but this was wrong, and the real scheme is a very practical one. The idea is to organize a stock company for the purpose of building a general clubhouse, with special provisions for every branch of athletics, such as bowling alleys, gymnasium, three-lap cycle track, etc. To accomplish this, it is proposed that a generous tract of ground be leased, and the club building, etc., be secured by the sale of stock, to the extent of $10,000 or $15,000, at $10 per share. Mr. E. A. Smith, of the Missouri Bicycle Club, evolved the idea and is hard at work upon it, having consulted over a hundred well-known men upon the subject. He said: "I have been encouraged in every instance, and a meeting will probably be held shortly to discuss the matter thoroughly. Secretary Ritter, of the Y. M. C. A., Rhodes, of the Missouri Athletic Club and Grant Tilden of the gymnasium are urgently favorable to the scheme, and I have to-day written J. A. St. John about it. I judge that the latter gentleman, by patronizing this scheme, would accomplish more for athletics than he ever has before, and with very much less money. The plan, in short, is to induce patrons of sport, business men and club members to purchase stock, which will be secured by the property purchased. Stockholders could become members of the proposed general club or not. Members would pay a moderate due, and the stockholders would reap the benefit of the tournaments and exhibitions. It would be a grand thing for St. Louis sports, and the Missouri Athletic Club and gymnasium would derive great impetus from it. The Saturday afternoon tournaments of the former are already popular and attended by the best athletes in the country, and to the gymnasium it would be a Godsend, to say nothing of the possibilities for cycling, which would naturally gain recruits from the ranks of the others."

THE fate of the Springfield Gazette, after considerable negotiation with Ducker, falls luckily into the hands of the Record folks this week. Ducker issues the July number, and hereafter the Gazette and Record will appear separately as before. What with nursing the healthy child of the West and handling their new acquisition, Messrs. Darrow will have their hands full, but the facile pen of one and the sketch and camera work of the other will certainly make the Gazette more interesting than ever.

THEY tell me that the St. Louis Cycle Club is inclined very strongly clubhouse-ward. The matter was talked over sensibly at last Saturday's banquet, and if the circular sent to the unattached by Secretary Mockler brings in the expected number of new members, immediate steps are to be taken. President Lucas expects that the membership, which is to be active only, will swell to one hundred and fifty within a few months at the present rate, and with that number, modest dues would secure comfortable quarters. Just at present, the members are attracting attention by the rapid way they get over hills and levels, despite the heat.

THE St. Louis girls who are summering at Clarksville are reported to be having a great time. Parties of cyclers visit the famous hamlet every week, and Arthur Young, 'tis said, was held captive last Sunday and compelled to remain two or three days. Well, Art always was able to do the work of two, on a tandem, and the young lady said she "was n't a bit tired," Monday evening.

ST. LOUIS never experienced a cycling exodus equalling that of this summer. With many of the bright lights away for a month or two, weather hot and roads dusty, nothing is left for the stay-at-homes but to loll in the parks or sit at the club evenings, bewailing their plight and kicking at ye scribe occasionally for dereliction (?) of duty.

THE mildly sarcastic Spectator man gets in some hard whacks this week, and is particularly anxious to "fan" the amiable punster of the BULLETIN "over the head with a handle-bar." Several other people get it as hard.

DR. H. H. KEITH will try your roads in Massachusetts next month. I understand that his headquarters will be at Lynn for a number of weeks.

PHŒNIX.

A LITTLE TRIP FROM JERSEY DOWN EAST.

ON Saturday, July 16, a number of the New Jersey wheelmen and some friends started for New Haven, Conn., to pay a fraternal visit to the New Haven Bi. Club, leaving New York on the 3 P. M. boat, and after a very pleasant sail of five hours reached New Haven, where we were met by a committee of the above club, who gave us to understand that we were in the power of the home club, and had nothing to say, but were to do as they (the home club) said. We received the signal to mount after the hand shaking had gone through with, and were at once escorted to their new clubhouse, where we met more of the the New Haven Club. After spending a short time there we were taken to the Tremont House, where we secured quarters for the night, after which we "done the village" under escort, and retired early.

Sunday, July 7. An early ride was taken by half a dozen of the visitors to get up an appetite, and at eight o'clock we sat down to a substantial breakfast, such as can be furnished by a League house only, and did it full justice, but before we got through a committee was sent after us, and as we had received our orders on our arrival in town the previous night, we did not say a word, but finished our breakfast and followed the committee to the clubhouse.

About nine o'clock twenty-four started off for Savin Rock, and after a short ride through the city we arrived at our destination without any mishap, and after a short rest, to cool off, the majority of the riders indulged in a bath, while their clothes were hung up to dry. After remaining in the water some time we adjourned to a large grove near by, where we were treated to some fancy riding by several members of the home club, in the dancing pavilion.

We remained here until 11 A. M., when we started for the clubhouse, which was reached in less than an hour. Here we formed in a group and had our "good looks copied." We now formed a line and were off for dinner at Brandford Point House, a distance of about twelve miles; over a variety of roads, up and down hill, and over macadam, clay and sand. We all got there in time, and when the bell rang for dinner we filed in and made great havoc with the landlord's eatables. We lingered around the festive board for an hour or so, during which time some of the "club eaters" (which club!) did the whole bill of fare from beginning to end. Then the "Piper Heidsick" was brought on to top off with, and after discussing the merits of the last mentioned we adjourned, as we thought, to see the captain; but the New Haven boys got there first, and we were informed that "Jersey money was N. G. down east." We had to submit, and retired to the lawn, where we got the best of them, and had the cigars all ready when they came down stairs. We were then taken to Prason Point, across the stream, where we laid off for awhile, and returned to the hotel again and remained there until 5 P. M., when we mounted our wheels and started for the clubhouse again. We had a delightful ride home, especially coasting the Banford hill—brakes off. We halted on the top of the next hill awhile to wait for some who had taken another road to come up. By the time we all got together again, the first party were rested and ready for another start, which proved to be somewhat of a scorcher for the most part of the way; but when we arrived at the bridge, the N. J. W. and friends were all there, arriving at the clubhouse a little after six. We again started for East Rock, in order to get a view of the soldiers' monument, the city and sound. On this trip those who got there, both New Haven and N. J. W.'s will remember it for some time, as it rained up there, and also on the way back to the city. It was now nine o'clock, and some of the visitors being pretty well tired out, having ridden about thirty-eight miles during the day, began to think about going to bed, so they could dry their clothes in the boiler-room on the boat.

We left New Haven at 10.30 P. M., and reached New York at 6.30 A. M.

To the members of the New Haven Bi. Club, the N. J. W. and friends desire to publicly express their hearty thanks for the manner in which we were so royally entertained from the time we left the boat at 8 P. M. Saturday evening, until we were all safe on the boat for New York Sunday evening. We would also recommend any wheelmen who may happen to be in the vicinity of New Haven to just drop in and see the boys, and if they do not get "done up" in grand style, it won't be the fault of the New Haven Bi. Club.

We also desire to put in a word for the League hotel, the Tremont House, and to recommend the same to all wheelmen and others who may visit New Haven.

BELMONT, MASS.

HOW is it that I see no letters in these columns from Middlesex wheelmen, describing the delights of cycling about here, in a region peculiarly adapted to it. It is true the headquarters of the BULLETIN are here, but the editorial scope, possibly, does not include personal experiences. Indeed it may be an old story to our riders, but the BULLETIN is read from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and it is both possible and probable, that some few of the League have never sought to annihilate Corey Hill, have never glided through the shady Newtons, or experienced the felicity of a moonlight trip to Chestnut Hill reservoir, that Mecca of Eastern wheelmen, with a party of congenial spirits. How we pity them, but they doubtless have their little specialties too.

But, nevertheless, cyclers from New York and the West are loud in praise of our roads and drives, and say they have nothing like them, with the exception of those living near enough to take advantage of the fine riding on Long Island, where a fifty mile stretch of sidepath, smooth and hard as a board, is common. A friend who has just wheeled from New York here via Long Island to Greenport, steamer and rail to Providence, wheel to Boston, reports a delightful trip, good roads, and fine weather. He proposes to stay here a few days, try some of our famous runs and return by steamer, truly a vacation pleasantly and profitably spent.

A trip to Newport is among the possibilities for a party of bikes and trikes from here, some time next month. Can any one through the BULLETIN, give condition of roads from Providence there, and the best route? If so, they will oblige greatly.

I said no letters from wheelmen, we have one writer, however, who, judging from certain localities named, inhabits this fair region, but who cannot be included in the term wheelmen. Now, what shall it be? Wheelwoman is clumsy and generally undesirable, and wheel-lady is not euphonious to say the least. Perhaps our genial friend the Owl can suggest a proper title, or perhaps the bright and entertaining writer to whom refererice is made, who will concur I think, in the idea that there may be something in a name in this case.

I see that the Massachusetts Club has started anew, and it is to be hoped that by a thus early reorganization they may be able to retain their position as League Club No 1. Fancy that name remanded to the foot of the list, simply because of a little financial difficulty. It should not be, and I think will not.

I have often wondered just what it is that constitutes to many, the peculiar undesirability of the helmet as a head covering. To my mind they are eminently fit, and altogether admirable for the wheel, affording ample protection from the sun, which the ordinary cap certainly does not, and they are both light and neat in appearance. True they are not adapted to every one, but neither are the caps or stovepipe hats for that matter, and no article of dress so distinctive perhaps, would be universally applicable. A friend in relating his experience with one in Baltimore, some years ago, when they were comparatively new, to the wheel, at least, said he was the subject of many remarks from observers, both facetious and advisory, such as "come out from under the hat, your legs are hanging out," etc. But he, strong in his belief in its advantages wears one to-day, and is consistent and comfortable in doing it, which no one, who has backed a hot sun for miles with the League covering, can say next day I think, if able to wear a collar at all.

Speaking of remarks on the road, how is this, sprung as it was, upon an unoffending company of cyclers not long since. One of the party propounded the following: "Why is the owner of that sign," pointing to a striped pole in the distance, "like a famous eastern pleasure resort? No one answered, but each felt involuntarily for his wrench. But it was too late. Clear came the answer in the same voice, ringing with sarcastic triumph, "One is a Bar Harbor, and the other is a har barber." The party was at that moment passing over a bridge, and he was lifted quietly over the rail and dropped into the water. Verily, the ways of the punster are past finding out.

I have noticed several severe cases of road hog mentioned in the BULLETIN lately. There are, happily, few of the genus to be met with here, probably "custom hath bred it in them a property of easiness" to see a string of twenty or thirty wheels roll by, or claim their share of the road when going in the other direction; or it may be, for I have no charity or sympathy for their kind, that they have only accepted, with a very bad grace in some cases, the inevitable fact that the world does move, in that wheelmen have at last rights upon the road which drivers are bound to respect, and it is to be hoped, that when a due sense of this shall have thoroughly obtained with them, they will also come to realize as fully that "ever the right will come uppermost and ever will justice be granted" to all causes of right and reason.

LONG ISLAND NOTES.

TOURING on the island, as a consequence of the general improvement of the roads and the favorable rains, is at the top of a wave of popularity. That parading the South Side is becoming more and more appreciated by wheelmen at large,—as the North Side will be when better known.

Two gentlemen who deserve encouragement are Messrs. Hart and Barlow, of Sing Sing, N. Y., who stopped in Flushing over Wednesday evening on their way down the Island on trikes. To tricyclers I would say, if on their way to the South Side, take only the route through Jericho and Amityville, as this way gives the least narrow-path riding.

HOST CARTIER, of the Flushing Hotel, has quite a reputation as a caterer, and his house will eventually become a favorite with wheelmen.

Hulet's Hotel, at Hempstead, has received an additional story and a general renovation throughout, and if kept in as good style as of old, should receive a good deal of patronage.

From my own experience, Whaley's even has improved very much of late.

The League house at Huntington will be the "Mercantile," a very nice and well-kept place with accommodations for fifteen.

I ADVISE parties having Oyster Bay or Cold Spring as an objective point to go on to Huntington instead. There is a club of twelve members, several good hotels, and any number of fine rides to be taken. Those who suffer from lack of time may find it best to take the train at any station on the main Long Island Railroad west of Hicksville to Cold Spring Station, from whence the road leads direct to Cold Spring, here turn east via the main street direct to Huntington (three miles). The scenery is extremely lovely, and there is but one long hill on this route.

A CINDER path between Jamaica and Flushing is talked of as a relief from our Vu-Vendian seclusion, and to give us better riding facilities to Brooklyn and return. It is calculated that there would be a scant three miles to build, and it is proposed to give the farmers the cinders for the carting of them. In due time Jamaica wheelmen will be asked to co-operate.

THE Brooklyns are talking up another trip to Flushing in the near future, probably, with the coming of the full moon. They can't withstand the allurements of "that float."

I HOPE to be able some day to repay the many courtesies shown our party of tourists to Boston, while on the route, by the wheelmen of North Attleboro, Springfield, Westboro, Hartford, and New Haven. My stay in the last place, in company with a party of New Jersey wheelmen, and our entertainment by the local club, was a most enjoyable affair, including, as it did, a swim at Savin Rock, dinner at the Branford Point Hotel, and a visit to East Rock and the new monument, at which last place the most of us got soaked with rain. The New Haven Club numbers one hundred and twenty-five members, all of them as whole-souled fellows as it is possible to find.

A NUMBER of the soldiers at the fort at Willett's Point have purchased bicycles, and are to be seen frequently on the roads thereabouts, which are among our best. No. 7,556.

ARIEL A-WHEEL.

READING, PA., NOTES.

As every one of the BULLETIN'S correspondents will be eloquent over the "hottest weather for forty years," I won't say a word about it, except to offer it as an excuse for the Harrisburg Club's failing to materialize at Lebanon, Pa., on the 17th inst. The Ariel Wheel Club, of this place, together with the Lancaster and Harrisburg riders, had gotten up an impromptu "meet" at Lebanon as being the common centre, and a very enjoyable time was the result. The morning was hot but it clouded up in the afternoon, and the run out to Cornwall was a very enjoyable one — except to the scorchers. Two of the Reading boys made up their minds they'd show Downey and Smith, of Lancaster, the way to Cornwall, but they didn't. They did n't know either of the Lancaster men before, but they do now. Consul Downey may not be an extraordinary man on the path, but I would not like to tackle his Victor on the road. How is it, Snyder?

We pulled through without any accidents, but two of the Lancaster wheelmen were so unfortunate as to have breakdowns half way between Lancaster and Lebanon. Smith's Expert broke off short at the lower part of the backbone, landing him flat on his stern sheets in the road, and the American bicycle of another man broke at the head. Fortunately neither of them were going at a fast rate of speed or there might have been something worse than a mere break to record. It is an ugly thought — the what might happen should anything give while speeding along at a lively pace, and to the credit of the manufacturers be it said that so few breaks do occur in proportion to the large number of wheels in use.

SPEAKING of accidents, reminds me that there have been several road incidents of a different class from the above. Mr. Brizzolari, of Pottstown, was on his way to Reading a short time ago, when he met a team in the road. The driver not only refused to turn out, but deliberately crowded Mr. Brizzolari over to the edge of a stony gutter, causing him to take so heavy a fall that he broke his collarbone, as well as otherwise injured himself. The rascal then drove off, and as the wheelman was alone he escaped scot free, Mr. B. being too much hurt to trace him. It is a great pity he cannot be discovered, for he would get such a lesson as would be a warning to all scoundrels of his class.

MR. C. R. OVERMAN paid us a flying visit a few days ago, and enjoyed a run over our Oley Pike with several of the Ariels. He is looking very well, and his jaw appears to be healing up, although it is a slow process, and will never be as "good as new" again. He is unable to do any masticating, and in consequence soups, custards, and "sich" form his principal diet. Contrary to the general idea, he did not injure himself by falling from the bicycle. He carries his Victor along with him boxed up in a curious sort of a trunk, that he had made to his order in Chicago. When it is closed, nineteen out of twenty would fail to guess the contents. Indeed, I heard a couple of commercial travellers at the Central House laying bets as to what its contents were. Occasionally, however, the festive baggage smasher "tumbles," and then Mr. O. has to pay up. He reports trade as brisker than usual for this season, and expressed himself as wishing it would let up a little, saying that all hands were played out by the heavy rush of this spring, which was something unprecedented. He was naturally inclined to crow a little over the Clarksville and Crawfordsville races. Of the latter he said that Rhodes rode to beat Whittaker over his own course, and that if the latter was not satisfied he would be accommodated again at any time he chose to name.

I HAD a couple of gentlemen up at the race track the other evening teaching them to ride the bike, and I only wish I could have had a special artist on hand. The machine was an old Standard, and I had the saddle well set back; but in spite of that no sooner had we assisted the elder of the two to mount, and no sooner was he fairly in the saddle, than he deliberately plunged forward as though diving off a bridge, and, with one leg waving triumphantly in the air, took one of the neatest headers I ever saw and this notwithstanding the fact that the machine had not moved an inch forward, and that two of us were holding it for him. He was unanimously voted a great success, but we couldn't inveigle him on to the thing the second time. He gracefully retired in favor of his friend, who, I am sorry to say, endeavored to emulate his example with so much success that we were exhausted in holding the wheel in an upright position. He weighs about 175 pounds, and I suggested to him, after having wrung a couple of pints of moisture out of my shirt, that a chill October day would be better suited to his performances.

THERE has been some talk of getting up a local race meet here this fall, but I fear that we cannot induce that uniform action among all our riders that is so necessary to make it the success it could easily be made if both clubs were to co-operate heartily in the matter. The Ariel Wheel Club appointed a committee to confer with the Reading Bicycle Club on the subject, and it now remains to be seen what action the latter will take. For the sake of the cause I hope to see it worked up to a successful issue.

THE new uniform is not giving universal satisfaction. The cloth itself seems to be all right, and presents a very neat and handsome appearance when made up; but Mr. Wanamaker's fits are poor, and the long wait required to get the suit is outrageous. We all understood that they were to be delivered within two weeks from date of order, which certainly would be ample time; but instead of that three and four weeks is no uncommon delay after sending the order in. In consequence most of us here have ordered the cloth, and have the suits made up by a local tailor. Then the stockings are very heavy, and consequently very hot. They will be capital for winter riding, but the League should adopt a light stocking for summer wear. This could be done without any trouble, and would prove decidedly popular. Another thing the League should do, and that is, furnish a suitable L. A. W. badge at a moderate price, either of oxydized silver or of bronze, like the G. A. R. badges. A handsome badge could be gotten up to sell to League members for a dollar, and leave a good profit for the treasury besides. What do you say, gentlemen? ARIEL.

JULY 22, 1887.

CYCLETS.

THE hot sun has driven wheelmen off the roads in a very summary manner.

THE Pennsylvania Club expects to get into its new house next week.

ALL aboard for Cottage City. The start will be made on Wednesday next.

IT is reported that Thomas Stevens will go to England and deliver thirty lectures.

THE "Owl" is taking a vacation, to-whit, he has gone to Asbury Park, N. J.

THE Boston Herald does n't appreciate Kron's book outside the chapter given over to the bull dog.

KIDERLEN, the Dutch champion, and Dr. Turner have lowered the tandem record for a mile to 2.38 4-5.

SOME practical joker whitewashed the tricycle of an English racing man the night before he was to go on the track with it.

IF you want to stop at the principal hotel at Cottage City, you will have to write down and Sea View can be accommodated.

Go down to Cottage City for a single day if you can do no better. You will get a few hours of fun and be back at work the next morning.

THE Cleveland race meeting will be the grand one of the year. It steps into Springfield's shoes, and is a worthy successor.

PARK COMMISSIONER CRIMMINS, of New York, has resigned. He it was, who gave the wheelmen so much trouble in the Central Park case.

KARL KRON has written his book, and now it would be the proper thing for him to go upon the lecture platform.

THE Wheelmen's Gazette has been sold to the publishers of the Wheelmen's Record. Darrow's pencil will now talk to a large audience.

ONE hundred and forty-six applications this week, and a total membership of 10,736. Think of that for a circulation, ye who have goods to advertise.

TREASURER BREWSTER has been in town. Boston men gave him an introduction to steamed clams and blue fish, and showed him about and around the town.

LEWIS B. HAMILTON has given up racing, though he still rides the wheel. He is now a transitman on the engineering corps of the Meriden and Waterbury Railroad.

R. H. ENGLISH made an attempt to ride twenty miles in an hour at North Shields, recently. He covered twenty and a half miles, and finished the twenty miles in 58.39.

L. PRANG & COMPANY have made a very pretty chromo lithograph of the picture painted for Col. Pope by Henry Sandham. It shows a group of cyclers on a country road.

THE Bicycling News confounds the New York Division with the League itself, and builds up an argument which it is unnecessary to confute, since the foundation is so unstable.

THE World calls St. Louis a "suburb of Gehenna." We don't believe St. Louis will admit itself to be a suburb of anything. It wants to be the principal always.

The following from the Cottage City programme is a gentle reminder to wheelmen that they must behave themselves. "Purple is the League color, and so no red paint is needed."

A LEADING book-publishing firm of Leipzig, Germany, has purchased the right to translate "Around the World on a Bi." by Thomas Stevens, and is now preparing it for publication in Germany and Austria.

THE N. C. U. has just secured a verdict against the butcher Curnick, who assaulted two cyclers on the Ripley road on June 12. There were three counts, and a fine of five pounds on each, was imposed.

THREE members of the Lynn Cycle Club, Charles E. Whitten, Fred M. Barnett, and Thomas F. Tuller, started this week for a wheel tour through New Hampshire. Wolfboro will be the first objective point.

THE English papers are claiming a world's record for W. A Illston, who recently covered half a mile on the Coventry track in 1.14. They forget that a man named Rowe has a record of 1.12 4-5 for the same distance.

THOSE who left the amateur fold now want to get back. Kluge and Hammill are knocking at the door of the Racing Board, and, over in England, young John Illston, who was disqualified in America, is ask the N. C. A. to make him an amateur.

OUR St. Louis visitors reported that they left that city when a thermometer, hanging on a refrigerator registered one hundred and six degrees. Canned east wind from Boston would sell out there. We will send some out it we can.

NEW YORK has gone wild on chewing gum. The editor of the Wheel uses and recommends it, and Schwalbach, of Brooklyn, says the wheelmen buy it in large quantites. This is as it should be. Horsemen chew nasty tobacco, but wheelmen incline to the cleanly gum. Now, let the New York wheelmen get ahead of the New York horsemen by throwing away nasty tobacco cigars and taking up paper-wrapped hayseed.

THE remarks made by the spectators at a race meeting, about the competitors are often more amusing than complimentary. The good folk of Birmingham showed remarkable fecundity in this respect. We did not object to "Go it, Shamrock," or "Home Rule for Ever," or "Well done, Paddy," or "Hurroo for Dirty Dublin," but "Whiskey wins"

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.
A NEW THING

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheelmen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

was rather suggestive, and we do not think we have a bibulous aspect, while "Where's your Dynamite" quickened us up to a 2.30 gait for the moment.—R. J. Mecredy in Irish Cyclist.

ON Friday July 8, at Long Eaton, England, two records were made. George Gatehouse made an attempt to beat the one-mile tricycle record and was timed as follows: Quarter-mile, 41 3-5 (43); Half-mile, 1.22 3-5 (1.22 3-5); Three-quarter mile, 2.02 (2.04 1-5); Mile, 2.41 3-5 (2.46 4-5). Dr. E. B. Turner and E. Kiderlen then tried for a tandem record, and were timed as follows: Quarter, 41 3-5 (41); Half, 1.19 3-5 (1.21); Three-quarter, 1.58 2-5 (2.04); Mile, 2.38 4-5 (2.47 1-5). The old record is given in parenthesis.

ON Thursday, July 21, the New Haven Bicycle Club held its first "ladies' night." About two hundred ladies and gentlemen attended the reception, which lasted from eight until eleven o'clock. The front of the clubhouse was illuminated by many Chinese lanterns hung from tree to tree, and the interior of the house was brilliantly illuminated. The Elm City Banjo Club furnished music, and refreshments were served in the basement.

L. H. JOHNSON has on exhibition, in his store window, a 48-inch Harvard bicycle that has been ridden 20,799 miles. This is more than twice the distance ridden by Thomas Stevens in his trip around the world. In its travels the rear wheel has made more than twenty-five million revolutions. Taking the very moderate estimate of thirty pounds pressure on the pedal for each half revolution of driving wheel, the machine has sustained in the aggregate a strain of one hundred and twenty-five thousand tons. Its life has been an eventful one. Of English make, it was bought new by an American in Germany, and after use there was brought to this country and purchased in 1881 by Mr. Johnson, who sold it in turn to a novice, from whom it received many hard falls. It then became the property of R. D. Mead, of Roseville, who has ridden it up to the present time. The machine is still in good shape, and equal to many thousand miles yet. —Orange Chronicle.

AT the Cleveland races a time limit will be put on every race.

IT is a cause for gratulation that the one-mile championships are to be run this year under the most favorable circumstances. In former years they have been contested at the League meets, and not on the best of tracks. This year they go to Cleveland, where they have a fine track, and where will be assembled the best men in the country.

CAPT. A. D. PECK, Jr., and Lieut. J. M. Burr, of the Massachusetts Club, have returned from their tour to Washington. They report a good time, and tell interesting tales of the hospitality of wheelmen on the route. They rode in all 313 miles. They rode from Boston to New London, then took steamer to Greenport, L. I. They found the Long Island roads very bad, and after getting to Mattituck they trained to Patchogue. They stopped at New York, Trenton, Philadelphia, Washington, and Baltimore where the local wheelmen entertained them, and came home by steamer from Baltimore. They did less riding than they intended to do, but poor roads sent them to the train on several occasions.

A CORRESPONDENT in another column testifies to the comfort of Jersey clothing. We can endorse all that he says, for we have been using the Jersey clothing made by Holmes & Co., of Boston, and have been very much gratified with results. The breeches are made with reinforced seats, and are elastic, light, and cool, and, moreover, they look as well as the cloth garments generally worn by cyclers.

THE Rhode Island wheelmen have sent their route slips for the Massachusetts and Rhode Island road book, and the book will very soon go to press.

W. S. ATWELL, of Wm. Read & Sons, has just made a diminutive spade handle for the brake of his machine.

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT was in Boston a few days ago, and after looking around among the various cycling dealers he decided to purchase a Rudge Crescent tricycle.

IT is expected that the reorganized Massachusetts Club will have one hundred members enrolled by Sept. 1.

THE Worcester Bicycle Club will hold a race meeting at the Agricultural Park, Saturday, Aug 13. There will be a race between Midgeley and Rolston, a team race for Worcester County clubs, and a couple of club races.

CONNECTICUT CYCLERS ABROAD.

CAPT. W. A. HURLBUTT and the Solitary Club, of Stamford, Conn., are on deck, and within twenty-four hours of Liverpool at this writing, where their cycling tour in England begins. The outward voyage on the old "Wisconsin" was slow, safe, and ordinarily pleasant.

The impressive ceremony of a burial at sea was an incident of Sunday, July 10. The sight of a wreck, a spouting whale, schools of so-called porpoises,—the fish had sharp, swordfish noses or beaks, and were miscalled,—a passing steamer, and sea gulls, were slight breaks in the monotony of day after day at sea.

We can dispense with seagoing in future years, unless we can go over in about five days. Time is not only money but pleasure, and we are disposed to economize.

We will dispose of a lot of passengers, and mail for home going steamers, at Queenstown, about noon to-day, Thursday, the 14th, and expect to strike English soil at Liverpool, Friday morning.

Capt. Hurlbutt rides his fine 55-inch Columbia light roadster, and the Scribe will try to get along on a 44 Facile light roadster, during this tour of about thirty-five days, this side.

We hope to see the BULLETIN over here, to kind o' brace us up on home doings, and mail matter addressed to "The Solitary Club, 10 North John Street, Liverpool, Eng.," arriving prior to Aug. 20, will reach us in time for the return voyage, and be gladly received.

We are in a condition to receive and record impressions of matters and things on this side, and will write some memoranda for the BULLETIN.

THE SOLITARY CLUB.

LOUISIANA DIVISION.

PURSUANT to call, the Louisiana Division, L. A. W., met Friday, July 8, at the rooms of the New Orleans Bicycle Club. Chief Consul Hodgson presiding, and nineteen members present. The committee on constitution and by-laws appointed at the last meeting (June 23, 1886), submitted the result of their labors, which were with various amendments adopted. Secretary-Treasurer Baquié's report, showing a balance of $24.21, and a membership of forty-one was received and filed, as was also the report of the Division Racing Board.

R. G. Betts was elected secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year, by acclamation, Mr. Baquié declining a second term.

Resolutions were passed urging the L. A. W. to properly support the wheelmen of our sister city, Mobile, Ala., in their proposed legal fight for the opening of the road there, which at present they are denied the use of.

C. C. Hodgson appointed the following committees for the ensuing year: On Racing, E. C. Fenner, E. A. Shields, A. M. Hill, W. W. Crane, and Geo. Baquié.

Rights and Privileges, W. W. Crane, J. M. Gore, Frank Fenner, J. B. Walters (of Shreveport), and T. L. Bayne, Jr.

Transportation, L. J. Parks, F. M. Zeigler, Jr., H. Fairfax, and B. C. Rea.

Road and Road Improvements, A. M. Hill, R. W. Abbott, A. A. Ruhlman, Chas. M. Fairchild, and R. G. Betts.

Handicapper, Chas. M. Fairchild.

After transacting several matters of minor importance and extending a vote of thanks to the New Orleans Bicycle Club for the use of their rooms, the meeting adjourned.

HEREAFTER meetings of the division will be quarterly, as provided for in the constitution just adopted.

C. C. HODGSON said that he did not believe in one or two men running the division, and judging by the number and size of the committees he evidently means it.

WE are having quite a little record breaking season of our own here in New Orleans, and as a result before the last 'ember of '87 will have departed, the South may be able to show up quite a respectable twenty-four hour record. A. M. Hill inaugurated the movement on the 3d inst by piling up 125 miles; R. G. Betts followed on the 10th and raised it to 131, and Hill, not to be outdone, went at it again on the 16th and put it up to our 24 hour record to its present figure, 150 miles. Mr. Hill has, so I am told, announced his determination to hold the record, and as two or three others will shortly attempt to do better than 150 miles, he will have several more opportunities of making three figured runs.

OUR new club met and completed its organization on the 19th inst., by selecting the name Louisiana Cycling Club, and electing R. G. Betts, captain, besides adopting a constitution and by-laws. Five new members were admitted and everything looks toward a bright and successful future for the young organization.

CHIEF CONSUL HODGSON who is also a prominent member of the Louisianas has offered a silver medal to the member making the greatest mileage between Sept. 1, 1887, and April 1, 1888, provided not less than ten men enter for competition.

BANNER TOWNS.

THE claim made by Warren, R. I., for a banner, in consideration of the largest percentage of riders, has brought down upon us an avalanche of communications in dispute.

Warren claims one rider for every 65.6 inhabitants.

Friendship, N. Y., comes in with a claim of twenty-two riders in a population of 1,300. One for every 59 1-11 inhabitants.

Hartsville, Penn., has one hundred and twenty-five inhabitants and three wheelmen. 41 2-3.

Fredericktown, Mo., has twelve hundred inhabitants and twelve wheelmen. 100. This writer failed to see the decimal point in Warren's claim.

Dayton, N. Y., has a population of five hundred and seventy-three, and one rider. Not a percentage to boast of. Another case of failure to see decimal point.

Plum Creek Neb., has a population of fourteen hundred, and twenty-four wheelmen. One for every 58.3.

JERSEY CLOTHING.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—I have read frequently in the columns of the BULLETIN requests from wheelmen how to prevent sweating (I'm no dude and I consider sweat is correct as applied to a wheelman's condition when coursing over country roads while the thermometer registers eighty degrees and upwards in the shade.)

If you will permit me, I will give you my experience, and think I will show you that attire has more to do with the disagreeable habit of sweating than what one drinks.

To retrospect, I will say that when I commenced riding, five years ago, I adopted the conventional outfit of cloth knee breeches, stockings, and sometimes a "biled shirt" and coat, or perhaps the usual flannel shirt if riding without a coat. In such an attire, I would sweat to such a degree as to have my stockings ringing wet. To remedy this I avoided drinking water, which I found hurtful, and took to ale (ginger ale) and such stomach-wash, which I found agreed with me better; as whereas, I would drink quantities of water and not be satisfied, I found that two or three glasses of ginger ale or

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

THE European team, composed of H. O. Duncan, of Paris (ex-fifty miles champion of the world); Paul Medinger, of Paris (champion of France); and Jules Dubois, of Paris (champion of Europe), having terminated a most successful racing tour in Austria and Germany, are about to visit England, and are expected to arrive the latter end of this month. R Howell (champion of the world), will in all probability join the team in England, and compete in the numerous contests which have been specially organized by several prominent amateur clubs and speculating ground proprietors, who have offered big prizes for this occasion. We are informed that the team will, after finding out one of the fastest paths in this country, attempt to beat the one-mile record, as well as endeavor to uncoil several other records over favorite distances and we may safely look forward to a repetition of some Springfield performances during the next month. — Cyclist.

THE following instructions are from the Chemist and Druggist: Black enamel for tricycles. — Fuse 40 oz. of asphalium and add half a gallon of boiled linseed oil, 6 oz. red lead, 6 oz. litharge, and 4 oz. sulphate of zinc, dried and powdered. Boil for two hours and mix in 8 oz. fused dark amber gum and a pint of hot linseed old, and boil again for two hours more. When the mass has thickened again, withdraw the heat, thin down with a gallon of turpentine. Cement for bicycle tires. — Melt two parts of asphalt and one part of gutta percha together in an iron crucible. When quite hot apply to the wheel, which must also be hot, then slip on the tire. If the wheel is not hot the cement will turn out a failure.

sarsaparilla would be sufficient for a day's ride. Notwithstanding that I abstained from liquids, still I could not arrive at that dry state which I desired. I once belonged to an athletic club in Jersey City, and when "on the floor" would wear the regulation suit of worsted, and I remembered that I experienced no discomfort from 'spiration, though in constant motion; so I bought a pair of worsted knee breeches and rode the wheel in them, of course, at the same time, not forgetting the other necessary articles of toilet.

I found, when riding, that the air circulated through the texture and evaporated the moisture, thus keeping me cool. "Eureka!" I mentally exclaimed, "I will buy a jersey," which proposition I immediately put into effect, and found perfect comfort. I was visiting a friend a few days ago in one of Connecticut's towns, and being in possession of a 45-inch Star, I would accompany him upon it, and we would attack the tough, wearisome hills with which that country abounds, and which same hills have been the means of bringing forward such men as Miller, Ives, Brainard, and others equally as good, whose names are not known to the public, but who, having mastered the hills of Meriden and surroundings, if given an opportunity, would make road riders which would force Jersey and Brooklyn fliers to take a rear seat. I left Meriden after my week's sojourn with a powerful impression of that town's wheelmen.

But to go back to my friend. He would complain of being so warm and moist as to force him, one day, to deplete himself of everything except trousers, stockings, shoes, undershirt, and 'spenders; still he was not cool, while I was pushing my 65-pound Star and did not feel the least bit warm, laying it justly to the jersey trousers and shirt, under which I wore no underclothes. While in motion the perspiration evaporated, and when off my wheel, at rest, I felt no chilliness. To bear out what I have been saying, another friend, who accompanied us, caught a severe cold which he laid to his flannel shirt becoming wet, while I, who am subject to sore throat and chills, experienced only comfort and relief.

I have been caught out in showers and have become drenched, but never have caught cold or even felt chilly.

I wrote you some months back about pumice stone being an excellent medium for polishing nickel wheels.

While in Meriden, I made a note that the favorite finish for bicycles is nickel. My friend, of whom I spoke above, has a 56-inch Expert, full-nickeled, which is as brilliant now as when bought, and it carries its age (four years) with dignity.

Yours fraternally, H. F. FRASSE.

SIDEWALK RIDING.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — An ordinance lately passed and enforced here, to the effect that bicycles should not be ridden on the sidewalks, resulted in a meeting between the town committee and delegates from the Bloomfield Cyclers (an active though young club). The effect of this meeting has been severally styled in neighboring papers, giving the impression that the club committee has gained the free use of the sidewalks in part or the entire town. Kindly allow us space to correct an impression which would stamp us, among the better class of wheelmen, as sidewalk hogs.

At the meeting of these committees on the 9th inst., we, the Bloomfield Cyclers, asked that arrests should not be made under this law, which we acknowledged in effect as a State or common law, not that the law should be repealed; and our request was granted without limitation of any district or sidewalk. Our argument was, that the sense of the law being to protect the pedestrian, it could be accomplished better by the efforts of the club than by making arrests; that we will endeavor to use the sidewalks only in such a manner as will meet with the approval of the citizens, and will always be glad to receive and act on complaints.

Many of our sidewalks being but seldom used, we are glad that visiting wheelmen will not be driven from them by fear of arrest and fine, and we ask them, as gentlemen, to dismount rather than scare or annoy a woman or a child.

We trust that we have not promised more for the cyclist than his conduct will warrant us.

T. D. PALMER,
Chairman Committee.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26.—The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 42 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Dawson, of Pawtucket, second; C. M. Morse, of Pawtucket, third. Turner rode a Columbia, Dawes a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country; it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators. . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize.—Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. I. Damery, 51-inch Columbia Light Roadster, fourth; Ludwig Forster, 54-inch Victor, fifth; S. J. Mills, 58-inch Expert Columbia, did not finish.

PROVIDENCE is not surprised at the story we told of a clergyman who road to his church on a tricycle. The Journal says: That is a very good little story, but there is nothing about it to startle Rhode Islanders, where such cycling clergymen as Rev. Louis A. Pope, Rev. Mr. Ewer, and Rev. Mr. Day add distinction and muscular legs to the wheeling craft hereabouts. The other day they installed a new pastor at the Congregational Church in Barrington. Mr. Pope was an invited guest, but he was far away on his bicycle. He got there just the same, however, and rode seventy-four miles to do it, arriving in time for the ceremonies with plenty of his second wind left. By the by, there is a local Episcopal clergyman whose Sunday duties are on a long circuit of mission churches, and he drives from the morning service at once to the afternoon service at another, and to the evening at a third. He contemplates buying a wheel, and he says he can get one for nothing, inasmuch as it now costs him upwards of $300 a year for cariage hire, which would be saved. An Episcopal clergyman, it would seem, has rather an advantage over nearly all other clergymen, as he can ride in his Knickerbockers on Sunday, and when he gets to the pulpit hide his frivolous legs behind his surplice.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

FROM whatever point of view we look at the horse cars they are an aggravation. I am mindful that they carry us safely from urban to suburban scenes, and I do not forget that they are the poor man's carriage. But, however we regard them, there are not a few of us who hold that steam railways would give us quicker and better service, and we, who do not hold city property, are waiting eagerly for the elevated roads.

I AM all out of patience with the horse cars just now, for they are encroaching upon the best roads north of Boston, and restricting our riding district within still narrower bounds. Malden, Maplewood, Linden, Melrose, Stoneham, and Revere have given us some of our best roads, but we shall see them no more, for they are banded with iron and surfaced with metal. We look to advancing civilization for better roads. We may look in vain, for advancing civilization multiplies the horse car.

I AM not naturally of a timid disposition, and I do not harbor the natural antipathy of the sex towards horned animals. And yet there are situations when even a cow creates terror. I passed through a herd of them last week, and did it without a mishap, though I confess to a fearful condition of mind. We were coasting a long hill (I say "we," because I was on a double with a friend), and when half way down we were startled to see a herd of cows taking up the whole road and coming towards us. There was nothing for us to do but slow up, which, thanks to a strong brake, we were able to do, and wait for the stupid and unwieldy creatures to make a passage for us. This they were willing to do in their own way and time, but our appearance was so sudden and strange to them, that they were confounded and driven into stupidity ten removes lower than their common endowment. We were concealed from the rear animals by the leaders. Cow No. 1 would slowly turn aside for us and expose us to the sight of her file follower, who had not till then been aware of our presence. The look of dumb astonishment that met us was hard for us to understand. We could n't tell whether it meant peace or war. It meant peace every time. We ploughed our way through the herd in this way, creating astonishment and terror in front, while at our sides the wheels were scraping the sides of animals who were not quick enough to escape us. Our safety depended upon the gentleness of the beast. If there had been a cross cow in the herd, we would not have escaped so easily.

MY little friend Miss G—— has become an expert hill-climber, and if the conditions are right she takes the hardest hills with the greatest ease. Her mount is a very light and graceful Humber Cripper, which she pedals at good speed, and she is always accompanied by her dog, which plunges in and out of every yard and field along her route. She has had occasion to discipline her four-footed friend several times, and that she may do this to the best advantage, she carries a dog-whip with her. This dog-whip she has become expert in the use of, and she can flirt it over a wagon chain or buggy brace and secure a tow up a hill. Thus she gets up the high hills without walking, and she has been known to wait at the foot of a hill for a wagon to come along and tow her up. Must we all come to the dog-whip?

MRS. M—— and "Jack" have finished their tour of our roads and gone to their home in New York. They write me that their trip was one of great pleasure, and they consider it the most enjoyable of all the vacations they have taken. And now there comes from Philadelphia, a gentleman and lady who propose to repeat the programme of our New York friends. Mr. and Mrs. James M—— are "doing" Lexington and Concord and Nahant, Salem, Gloucester, and the North Shore trip. I know that they will enjoy the trip.

I am off to Cottage City this week, and my wheel tires will be pressing the asphalt of that lovely summer resort. I hope to be able to write a line regarding what I do, though writing under the circumstances that will surround me is no easy task.

I AM told of a ride which Miss Maggie K—— and her sister took the other day. They made a run to Gloucester from their home in Maplewood, and spent the night there. It was necessary for them to be at home the next day, and when they got up the next morning and found it raining, their spirits were a little dampened by the prospect of a ride home under such depressing circumstances. They had to do it, however, and so they set out. They had a great deal of trouble, got very wet, but arrived home in the best of spirits, having ridden twenty-five miles.

I MET a trim little figure a-wheel the other day. She was dressed in a suit of light French flannel, with plain skirt and sailor waist. On her head was a very pretty Glengarry, I think they call it, — or is it a Deerstalker, — made of the suit material. The costume was very effective, not showy, but well adapted to riding if the wearer is fortunate enough to keep her skirts free from oil. A grease spot on such a dress would advertise itself very successfully.

THERE are some ladies who can ride and avoid grease. I cannot. My friend Mrs. G——, of Somerville, had one costumie which was made up with a white silk panel extending over the whole front. I can't say how many times she wore it, but she kept it free from oil. DAISIE.

JERSEY.

OWING to the requirements of early copy I was unable to let the BULLETIN have an account of the five-mile road championship of Union County races run at Westfield last Tuesday under the auspices of the Union County Wheelmen. The race was originally set down for the previous Saturday, but rain necessitated a postponement. Rain, too, had begun to fall when the road racers and their friends began to arrive in Westfield on Tuesday, but the management resolved that the affair must be run off rain or shine, and as the competitors were anxious for one another's gore they were called to the scratch. The course was a triangular one, nine circuits less some fifty yards or so being required to complete the distance. The course was level, but the rain had fallen just long enough to make the dirt surface of the macadam sticky, and give the racers a little harder pushing. M. D. Ackerman and L. Heyniger sported the colors of the Plainfield Bicycle Club; A. N. Pierson and E. R. Collins represented the Union County wheelmen; W. H. Caldwell raced for the Elizabeth wheelmen, and H. P. Peck was the unattached candidate from Plainfield. For the first six laps the Plainfield contingent took turns in making pace; then Caldwell and Pierson, who had been lying back and racing side by side, went to the front, the former leading. There was an immediate change in matters, and the pace became more like racing. Caldwell pounded away like a good fellow, with Pierson close at his heels. They ran in this order until the bell rang for the last lap, when the struggle began in earnest, and neck and neck they dashed down Broad Street at a three-minute clip. A quarter of a mile from the finish Pierson made his effort and passed him, gaining a lead of fifteen feet. Caldwell hung on, however, and would not give up the fight. Pierson held his lead until within a hundred yards from home, when Caldwell ducked his head a little lower, and put on all the steam left in him. Foot by foot he crawled upon the speedy Pierson, and passed him fifteen yards from home, winning by a length and a half in 18.47 1-2, remarkably good time for the day and course. Pierson's time was 18.47 1-2; Peck, third, in 18.53; Heyniger, fourth, and Ackerman, fifth. The last-named had slipped his saddle, and was obliged to fall back. It was a splendid race, and the leaders finished very tired, as they should have. The officers of the race were: Dr. F. A. Kinch, Jr., referee; John C. Wetmore, E. W.; Joseph Sanford, P. B. C., and J. C. Hetfield, judges, and L. S. Miller, U. C. W., and A. L. C. Marsh, P. B. C., timers. After the race the U. C. W. entertained their guests in a most hospitable manner at their clubhouse, and the three trophies, the gift of the citizens of Westfield, were presented.

I AM much disappointed to be obliged to report a postponement of the proposed races at the Roseville track next Saturday, and the unavoidable abandonment of the bi-weekly racing scheme. There is some consolation, however, in the news that a big meeting is to be held on the 20th inst. Secretary Willever writes: "The heavy and continued rains of the past two weeks have put our track in such a shape that we will not be able to run the races on Aug. 6, as announced. We also failed in our negotiations with the base-ball people for the semi-monthly races, and that plan is off permanently. I think it was a good one, but we could not make the base-ball people see it. We have, therefore, postponed the affair until Aug. 20, when we will run twelve races, all short. The charges will probably be twenty-five cents admission, and twenty-five and ten cents for grand stand seats. We will not definitely decide upon the programme until we ascertain how many clubs wish to hold club races. We will offer suitable prizes and advertise liberally. We have the promise that Rowe will be here, and if Whittaker, Crocker, and Hollingsworth are East at that time, as expected, they will, in all probability, be with us. The committees are: Race Committee, J. C. Willever, J. Warren Smith, E. E. Sargeant; Prize Committee, J. B. Lunger and H. A. Smith; Advertising Committee, L. J. Hardham, R. M. Sanger." The affair should be a great success in every way, as the postponement will only whet the appetites all the more.

I HEAR that, following the good example set by the Union County Wheelmen, the Plainfield Bicycle Club will before long give a ten-mile road race for the championship of the County of Union. Recent trials have proved that they have good men, and they need not be ashamed to place them in competition with the fast men of Westfield and Elizabeth.

IODO tells of a wheelman who wrote to the Pope Company offering to exchange a barrel of whiskey for a bicycle, and adds that the offer was only equalled by that of the man that offered a convenient grave lot in payment for one. If this is a chestnut, Mr. Editor, strike it out, as I do not wish to have the reputation of not knowing one when I see it. [It is. See BULLETIN, July 15. Ed.]

THE Passaic County Wheelmen have taken steps to become incorporated, after which the clubhouse scheme will be pushed through. The weekly drills are being continued, and the men are said to be attaining enviable proficiency.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE road race for the Tryon cup is a subject of universal cycling interest in Philadelphia just now. The course has not been altered from the original suggestion of the firm offering the cup, and will probably be about twenty-two miles out and in the Lancaster Pike, with the finish at Bryn Mawr. The race will be run, so far as can now be foreseen, on Saturday, Sept. 10, in the afternoon. If our principal track racer, Kolk, rides with the Universi y Club, as he is likely to do, the South End will have no team entered, so that there will be only four teams entered, the Pennsylvania, the University, the Century, and the Tioga. The Philadelphia Club will have no team, and the Germantown is not represented at all. Permission has been accorded the committee, by the company controlling the pike, to give the race, provided the company is relieved of all responsibility in regard to any accidents which may occur as a result of the race.

The State Division has taken up the Carnell-Evans assault case, and will push it to the very last bit there is in it, bringing a second suit for damages as well as the criminal suit for assault. The case will not come up until September next Mr. Evans, by the way, has secured his desired witnesses to the assault, and is in a practically invulnerable position.

Mr. Howard B. Mingus and his brother, Walter J. Mingus, two of the best and quietest of Philadelphia's careful riders, were very nearly driven over by a careless driver in the Park, last Friday night, at about ten o'clock. Mr. Howard Mingus was crowded in to the gutter and upset, but as they supposed the driver was drunk, they paid no further attention to him and let him pass. After they had gone a little further, they found him waiting for them with a guard, who placed them under arrest on the charge of "reckless driving," which, as the fellow — whose name is Cairns, and who is a barnacle of the coroner's office — was passing them and going considerably faster than the bicyclers, is certainly as equally applicable to his own case. The riders mean to fight the matter, and have secured the services of Hampton L. Carson, Esq. A counter suit will also be brought against Cairns for assault in upsetting Howard Mingus. There seems to be a peculiar similarity in the names of the recent editions of the road-hog which have been foisted on the cyclers. In England, Mr. James Alfred Curnick has just had his dose of fines and narrowly escaped imprisonment; Mr. Alfred Carnell is under $600 bail for court for assaulting Rowland Evans in Fairmount Park; and finally this man Cairns is trying to enforce his right to ride over the wheelmen. What 's in a name? PHACTO.

DETROIT.

THE coming team race between the East Saginaw Bicycle Club and the Detroit Bicycle Club is the topic of conversation at present. These two teams met before, but, through a misunderstanding in the manner of scoring, Detroit was beaten. They immediately issued a challenge to any team in the State for a team race of any distance under twenty-five miles; Saginaw, so far, being the only club to accept. Adrian and Grand Rapids both have good teams, and should be heard from. The time and place of race has not yet been agreed on, but will probably take place in September, and no better stretch could be chosen than from Ypsilanti to Ann Arbor.

RESOLUTIONS of condolence have been sent to Mr. L. J. Bates by the members of the Detroit Bicycle Club, on the occasion of the sudden death of his wife. Mr. Bates is honorary President of this club, and had been active president for several years before his removal to Lansing.

DID you ever hear of base-ball fever among cyclists, Mr. Editor? The wheelmen of this city have a very severe attack, and a match has been arranged between the members of the Detroit Bicycle and Star Clubs, to come off at an early date, as soon as the intending contestants learn to catch a fly. If your correspondent can find paper enough in the city on which to score, he will furnish you a detailed account.

B. J. HOLCOMBE, president of the Detroit Bicycle Club, and Clarence Smith made, on August 24, the first 150-mile run ever made by Detroit wheelmen in one day. They left Windsor at 4 A. M., and made a run to Blenheim, seventy-five miles and return, arriving in Windsor at 11 P. M. Mr. Holscombe, who has been president of the Detroit Bi. Club for two years, has won for himself an enviable reputation as an executive officer; but it now appears that he also deserves the reputation of a record-breaker, as no other member of the club has accomplished so long a ride.

DOWAGIAC claims to have the most unridable district in the State. Notwithstanding this, they have a most active, able-bodied club.

THE E. S. Bicycle Club have accepted the challenge issued by the Detroit Bicycle Club for a team race, requiring, however, that the race be ten miles, and run on the Bridgeport road. East Saginaw can boast of two teams of three men, either one of which will be a fair match for any team in the State.

SPOKES.

BAY CITY, why do we not have a few more of those forty-five members come into the fold— L. A. W.?

WHAT's the matter with Adrian, in the team race? Not a word heard from them yet.

VICE-PRESIDENT WILLIAMS, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club is spending a two weeks' vacation in Detroit.

THE Bay City Bicycle Club's annual tour is to leave that city about August 6; arrive at Detroit, August 8, en route for Buffalo. The tourists will visit St. Thomas, London, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, on their way. From Detroit to Blenheim they will pass over the route on which Messrs. Holcombe and Smith made their 150-mile run. The Bay City Club now numbers forty-five members. MICH.

LEAGUE TREASURER BREWSTER is reported as having visited Boston, where, with Hub hospitality, he was "introduced to steamed clams." Poor Brewster; if he will come down here the Rhode Island men will regale him on baked clams, and any Rhode Islander will tell him that the man base enough to steam a clam would steal a sheep. — Providence Journal.

Well! well! well! Have we got to give up the pile of stones, the big fire, the mass of rockweed, etc., etc., and take to the baker's oven? There is no poetry in a baked clam.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

ROAD RACING.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — My friend Luscomb has done, as often before, a good thing for the League by his action in reference to road racing.

I have long been of the opinion that the only recognition the League could properly extend to road racing would be that which it would extend to any other form of deliberate law breaking, viz, suspension for first offence, and expulsion for a repetition. A man who deliberately makes a race track out of a public highway is a road hog of the worst description. The suggestion that the consent of the local authorities might be obtained is nonsense. The local authorities are bound to protect the rights of all users of the highways and have no shadow of right to grant special privileges to one class at the expense of the others.

Racing is a nuisance anyway, leads to gambling, jockeying, and all manner of hard feeling and is physically injurious to the racers, but so long as young men are fools enough to go into it on tracks owned or rented for the purpose, it is probably no body's business to stop them. When it comes to racing on the public highway, it is quite another affair, and I am of the opinion that the League should take the matter in hand, and notify persistent law breakers that they must no longer disgrace the League by their evil courses.

With what face can we demand our rights and deliberately form associations to deprive others of their rights. Membership in a Road Racing Association ought to be a disqualification for membership in the League.

REORGANIZATION.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — One long letter on the reorganization question ought to be enough for a single member; but your correspondent "Sirrah" has actually forced me out again to defend myself from the suspicion of desiring to take power from the general membership, and give it to the officers. There is nothing that I would more desire than to see the general meeting kept up with supreme powers; but the League has taken away from it everything except the liberty of speech, and every proposition brought forward by myself or others to give the general meeting something to do — to infuse life and spirit into it by electing our president there, for instance — is "sat upon" by the vast majority. So why keep up such a Rump Parliament, which nobody cares for and very few attend?

The fact is, the officers hold all the power in the League already, but they have assumed it by thoroughly irregular means, simply as a matter of necessity for the despatch of business. My idea is not to give them more power, but to define what they already possess, and thus make it impossible for them to go beyond this unless by the will of the membership at large, expressed through an amendment to the Constitution. For this purpose, I sketched briefly — omitting details, because Chairman Luscomb asked us for our ideas, not rhetoric — those portions of our present by-laws which seem to me to properly belong in the Constitution.

EDWARD J. SHRIVER.

NEW YORK, July 26, 1887.

FOLLOWING is a copy of a card received by the Pope Manufacturing Company last week, under date of July 22: "Out of 47 miles from Bishop to Elko, I actually rode 11 to-day, covering the distance in 11 hours, the hardest day's work I ever did. This State can have my gizzard if it keeps on like this. I am thankful that I am only 500 miles from Frisco. Yours, Nellis." Nellis started with a companion from Herkimer, N. Y., several weeks ago for the purpose of cycling to San Francisco. He desired to make a record which should down all previous performances of the kind. His companion, however, believed in taking things more easily, so they separated, and Nellis is now almost a week ahead of the other man. They both ride Columbia bicycles.

THEY have got the road-racing fever badly out about Kansas City. I observe that they prefer the prairies of Kansas, however, to the hilly country just this side of the state line. Kansas City, particularly, with its bluffs and precipitous streets, so steep that stairways occasionally take the place of sidewalks, is more adapted to the production of "toughs" than racers. Nelson I. Haynes, of the Outing Cyclists, and Harry Ashcroft, of the Kansas City Wheelmen, are the present road champions, having covered the ninety-six miles included in the trip from Kansas City to Paola, and return, in seventeen hours, on dusty roads and in tropical weather. The Paola Club will now offer a medal for the record time for one way, this season, and the above figures are expected to drop with a dull thud soon.

ST. JOSEPH'S oldest rider, W. H. Cameron, gives up his old reliable for a Yankee Star. Cameron is the hardest League worker in his part of the State, and always seems ready to do more. As a happy result, he sees a thriving club growing up in his hilly home, and the only fault he finds is that his fellow-members are as loath to join the L. A. W. as he is anxious to have them. The League helped you out of trouble once, St. Joe. One good turn deserves another.

THAT Carthage ordinance, on investigation, proved not so obnoxious after all, its purpose being merely to include cycles in the general law covering the use of vehicles. The usual penalty is provided against carelessness which might injure pedestrians or infringe on their rights. Representative Stewart cleared the matter. They say Stewart has a weakness for looking after things in Jasper County, any way. He has just returned from Colorado.

PAPA BREWSTER comes home from Boston town looking bright as a dollar, and very happy after his second vacation down east. He remained in Boston a week, and tells me that "the boys" kept him moving through a deluge of fun day and night, without intermission. He slept hardly a wink, but grew fat just the same.

BREWSTER will shortly call another meeting of the division board, to look over the results of the heavy correspondence which the representatives have been engaged in recently, in the interest of the L. A. W. He compliments Kansas City's representative, Stuart, and says he is a hustler.

THE Division meet, which promises something more than its predecessors in the way of enjoyment, will probably occur in September, the exact date to be decided very shortly.

W. I. FLEMING and E. A. Gould, both at Philadelphia, left town Wednesday morning for Joplin, in the southwestern corner of the State. They took the Manchester Pike, and I fear will meet some very jagged surface between its terminus and the other side of the Ozarks. They had ridden from Philadelphia to St. Louis in twenty-five days, covering 1,605 1-2 miles to this point, by cyclometer measurement. They were delayed five days by rain and walked the last twenty-one miles preceding their arrival at the big bridge, having unfortunately taken the sandy route via Edwardsville, instead of the Collinsville or Belleville roads. The National Pike was followed for 480 miles, beginning at Bridgeport, O., on the Ohio River, and ending at Terre Haute, Ind. Fleming is a careful statistician, and finds that his valuable notes are ample compensation for the trifling trouble they incurred. He uses a wheelman's record book.

To-day's mile Race at Union Park was captured by Hodgen, who won both heats and the final. The five-lap cinder track was bad and the weather hot, but the time was ridiculously slow. In the final, the first two laps were ridden in about four minutes, it seems, and this caused so much disgust that, though the last three laps were well ridden, the riders were disqualified and the race declared off.

YOUR Indianapolis contemporary tells me that the readers of the Wheelmen's Gazette are to be afflicted with a little stale news, and with as much good literary matter as can be found. The Darrows don't believe, they say, in a monthly news sheet. They are about right. PHOENIX.

CHICAGO.

THE arrangements for the smoker to be given by the Illinois Cycling Club on their first anniversary are swiftly drawing to a close. The invitations have been mailed, and we hope eye this that each one has received and read same, and has the date fixed upon his mind in a way that can only be satisfied by his presence at the clubroom on this occasion. According to the stories I have been hearing, some of the wheels that expect to cut a conspicuous figure in the lantern parade, will be decorated to such an extent that the owner will find it more convenient to walk than to ride, especially across car tracks and around corners. Remember the date, Wednesday evening, Aug. 10.

THE first race of the Ehlert-Van Sickle series, for the championship of the State, was run at Cheltenham Beach on Saturday last. The race was started a few minutes after six o'clock, the distance being five miles. Van immediately goes to the front, and is setting a terrible pace. Ehlert lost his pedal on the first corner, and by the time he caught it, Van was sixty yards in the lead. This did not discourage the little man, however, and by making one of his capital spurts, he was upon the heels of his opponent. From this point, and until the nineteenth lap, the race was a loafing one, and was of little interest. As the men crossed the line at the finish of the nineteenth lap, Ehlert was in the lead. Here Van made his final effort, taking his opponent by surprise, and opened up quite a gap. Ehlert followed him with his usual pluck and determination, and caught him coming into the home stretch. He rode grandly and crossed the line a winner by less than a yard. I regret that it is beyond the power of my pen to picture the finish of this race to the many readers of the BULLETIN, but suffice it to say that it was the grandest ever seen in Chicago, and can only be appreciated by those who were fortunate enough to witness it.

THE ten-mile race being the second of the same series, took place at the Beach this afternoon. The men had scarcely gone a mile before a spoke came out of Ehlert's wheel. When Van discovered this he attempted to run away from his opponent, but found it was not so easy as he imagined. The pace began to decrease at the end of the first five miles, and the men rode along at the usual loafing pace until eight miles had been ridden. Here Van's saddle began to slide down the backbone, and he was forced to change wheels. Ehlert did not increase his pace, however, and only rode one lap while Van was getting another wheel. After Van mounted the second time he endeavored to cover lost ground, but could not get away from his opponent. Ehlert made a grand spurt at the finish, gaining another half lap on Van. This gives the Illinois man the championship of the State, and the club is loud in the praise of its newly developed racing man. Of course, there will be comments of all kinds in regard to Van's saddle, but it seems very funny that a man who is so old at the racing business as N. H. Van Sicklen, would go on the track with a wheel in the condition that his was. I am also surprised that Ehlert should start in such a race on a wheel with at least a dozen loose spokes. This speaks well for the repairer that handled it the day before the race.

THE second annual race of the Owl Cycling Club was contested on Saturday last. There were only five starters from a club of sixty. Winship had everything his own way, and crossed the line three minutes ahead of second man, in 36 m. 9 s. Fulton surprised his many friends by taking second place. Perhaps Harmon was the most surprised of any, as he had second place, and possibly first, figured out some time in advance, Fulton had made great preparations, so Harmon had to be satisfied with third place.

TOURISTS in this vicinity have been complaining of not obtaining the reduced rates allowed by many of the League hotels. Nine times out of ten you have to settle your bill with the clerk instead of the proprietor, and his usual reply is that he has no orders to allow reduced rates to any one. I think it would be a good idea to change the hotels in such locations, as there is always somebody who is looking for the patronage of the wheelmen.

FRANK B. CUTTER, who has so long been an active member of the Illinois Club, will soon return to his old home in Cambridge, Mass. He has learned to ride since he came West, and will carry his wheel back with him. Cambridge wheelmen will find in him a pleasant associate, an active League worker, and, above all, a perfect gentleman. He leaves behind a host of friends who are ever ready to welcome him back among them. May success attend him in all his walks of life. SPECTATOR.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

YESTERDAY, for the first time, we availed ourselves of the pleasure of riding through Central Park. After the hot and jolty ride over the stones from 23d Street ferry, the cooling shade and fine roads of that formerly forbidden territory were extremely refreshing and thoroughly enjoyed. Our destination being Tarrytown, we made our exit by the 7th Avenue gate and followed the rather heavy surface of that thoroughfare to and across the bridge at the Harlem, and thence along Jerome Avenue to the Kingsbridge Road. There is always a preference of routes between the Park and Yonkers, and knowing this we had previously consulted a prominent wheelman, supposedly familiar with the local condition of things at all times, and upon his advice proceeded as above. To say that we were disappointed does not well express our feelings. True, the road was ridable for the entire distance, but so far inferior to our expectations; and also to other routes we have taken, that it was lucky for our friendly adviser he was not along. Kingsbridge Road was reached at last, and after pretty nearly breaking our necks getting down a hill, which I believe is called Breakneck Hill, we arrived at Kingsbridge, and again, through kind advice, proceeded to Tarrytown via the wretchedly macadamized and shadeless Broadway, instead of following our own inclinations and taking the splendid surface and shade of Riverdale Avenue, which is far preferable, notwithstanding its many hills. From Yonkers to Tarrytown the road, for the first few miles, was in poor condition, particularly so on the hills, most of which had been so washed by the recent heavy rains as to require frequent patches of fresh broken stone, rendering coasting dangerous if not impossible, and riding difficult. Tarrytown was reached at 9.30 A. M., and half an hour later saw us on the little steamer bound across to Nyack. On the boat were two tourists who had left the city the night previous bound to Saratoga, and who intended taking the west side of the river from Tarrytown up to Newburgh.

They were discussing the merits of road books, and we were amused to hear one, who had a copy of the Pa. & N. J. Book, remark, that "the N. Y. Road Books was no good, and he would n't have a copy." It seemed a case of "sour grapes," so we eased his mind by informing him that the compiler was an idiot, and the committee ought to be hung for having had such trash published; and also told him that as the edition was nearly exhausted, perhaps they would not hurt his feelings by sending him a copy. From Nyack to Piermont the road along the river bank offers as pleasant wheeling as one could wish for. Thence to Tappan, Sparkill, and Closter, "he must turn inland and be content to do most of his riding, and a good deal of walking, on the side paths of rather sandy and hilly roads." So says the great K. K., and so we found it, and with the hot sun pouring down upon us, we were exceedingly glad when Closter was reached, at which place the bad riding may be said to end. The mile thence to Demarest was quickly covered, and at the Tenakill House a refreshing bath and good dinner made us most comfortable.

Two hours later, a party of eight members of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club arrived, having come via Central Park and Riverside Drive to Fort Lee Ferry, at 125th Street, thence from Fort Lee, via the Palisades, to Englewood, and up the valley to Demarest, reporting good riding the entire distance.

One peculiarity of the region from Nyack to Closter is the sanctimonious strictness with which every place of refreshment is closed on Sunday. We could not obtain a glass of ginger ale, soda, or a drop of milk for love or money. Luckily wells and springs are plentiful, otherwise, the tourist would fare badly on a warm day.

The crusade on the signboard question is, I believe, having some effect. We noticed Jones a few days since with a pile of boards under his arm, and later, saw him busily engaged stencilling the same. We are informed that the trouble has been in the neglect of the Division to furnish Consuls with any boards, or the means wherewith to obtain them. All that have been put up on Long Island, and also those which are now being prepared, have been paid for out of the pockets of the Consuls. This is decidedly wrong, and should be rectified at once.

Messrs. Warburton and Buddington, of the Long Island Wheelmen, have just returned from an extended tour to Rutland, Vt. Both rode safety wheels of the Rover pattern, and express themselves well pleased with the performance of their respective mounts. Elliot Mason and wife recently made the trip from New York to Patchogue, Mrs. Mason riding a single tricycle. This is a brave trip for any tricycler, and we therefore extend our congratulations to the first lady to accomplish it.

The second of the series of road races held by the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, occurred on Saturday afternoon last, over the famous Irvington-Millburn Course, the distance being ten miles. The start was made at 5.30 P. M. The championship race was won by Todd in 40.20, with Meetser a close second, while Mead finished first in the novice race, Kenmore second. The final race, distance five miles, will be run in September, and will decide the series.

Bath Beach is becoming a favorite resort with the cyclers of this city who enjoy salt-water bathing. Easy of access, and with good accommodations, its popularity is becoming more pronounced every week. BON.

CYCLETS.

ONE hundred and sixteen applications this week, and a total membersip of 10,853.

THE Cambridge Club gave a farewell dinner to Capt. C. L. Smith, at the Point of Pines, on Tuesday evening last.

THE Kings County Wheelmen talks of building a cycling track.

THE Montreal Club entertained the touring Ildermans in royal style.

ONCE more comes the report that a cheap way of making aluminum has been found. We have heard that so often that we are very tired.

MCCURDY is in training for a long ride. He wants the hundred mile track record.

THE New York division will have a three days' outing at Cooperstown, near Lake Otsego, New York.

SOME boys sprinkled shot on the floor of a bicycle school in Kingston, N. Y., and the riders tumbled to it.

IT is reported that the Hampden Park Track Association is considering the advisabillty of giving a bicycle tournament on a small scale this fall.

THE Cleveland track is probably as fine a one as we have in America, and if it takes off its cap to any track it is only to the one at Springfield.

T. W. ECK was married last week at the house of John S. Prince in Omaha to Miss Jenny Carlisle, of Minneapolis.

IT is reported that Sidney Lee, of England, bicycle dealer, racer, and record breaker, will come to America.

THE Wheel publishes, July 29, a portrait of Hon. Jacob A. Cantor who introduced and fought through the New York Legislature the Liberty Bill.

SEVERAL members of the Capital Club will come to Boston this week and explore North Shore roads under the pilotage of Charles Richards Dodge, who is quartered for the summer at East Gloucester.

THE Lockport (N. Y.) wheelmen will hold a tournament at the Fair Grounds, August 18. Entries made to C. A. Ward, 91 Main Street. Fee, fifty cents for each event.

BOB NEILSON is improving the shining hours by umpiring base-ball games. He is used to the cries of an angry audience, and is therefore well qualified for his new business.

THE Brooklyn Bicycle Club proposes to issue a pamphlet which shall set forth the pleasure and profit of wheeling A judicious distribution of this will make riders, and swell the ranks of cyclers.

MASSACHUSETTS is to lose two more wheelmen. W. O. Green, of Holyoke, representative, goes to New York, and Captain Charles R Smith, the handsome captain of the Cambridge Club, goes to the same State.

IN a trial race last Saturday to select a team to represent the Dorchester Club in the road race of the Eastern Road Club in September, W. S. Doane was winner, making the distance in 1h. 40m. Only three men entered, and but two of these, Doane and Benson, finished.

KIRK MUNROE, first Commander of the League, laid aside his wheel several years ago. He has now taken it up again, and is doing a good deal of riding in Cambridge, where he is now residing, and in the other suburbs of Boston.

THE bicycle has been successfully raced against man and beast, and now arrangements are being made to have the machine compete with a fowl. Fred Russ Cook is to race with an ostrich at San Francisco.

THE hill-climbing contest, at Bangor, Me., on the 28th of July, was won by Mr. J. R. Coulter, of Grove City, Penn. He rode a 50-inch Columbia roadster. No others succeeded in getting over two thirds way up.

W. B. EVERETT & CO. have sent us a beautiful photograph of the Victoria, taken under the shadow of Trinity. On the wheel are C. W. Fourdrinier, W. B. Everett, F. W. Weston, Dr. W. G. Kendall, H. W. Gaskell, and J. S. Dean, all of the Boston Club.

CYCLING photographers who secure good pictures should remember that the League headquarters is a good place to send them. We have a very fine collection of photos send in by wheelmen, and they are a source of no little interest to visiting wheelmen.

S. P. HOLLINGSWORTH has joined the Columbia team, and is in training at Lynn. He laments the departure of D. Rogers & Co., for they were to contribute the bicycle which fell to him as a prize in the Clarksville race.

THE Binghamton Bicycle Club is arranging for a tournament to be held in September, and have already commenced work on the repairs of the track at Riverside Park for the event.

THE eight miles road race of the Montreal (Can.) Bicycle Club was held on July 23, and was won by E. W. Barlow in 31.30, he having a start of 4.30. E. P. Baird, scratch, was second, in 27.1; C O. Palmer 5m. start, third, in 32.2.

"PHŒNIX" in the Gazette has been raking up the case of Fred Foster, of Baltimore, and working it off as news. It made us all tired when it was fresh. It paralyzes us now. If "Phœnix" or any one else wants the whole story of this affair let him read back numbers of the cycling papers Else, let it rest.

THE Cleveland race meeting will attract the flyers this year. Our best racing men are after the League championship for one mile, and the field of starters will be a better one than the race has ever before called forth. In previous years the contest has been very one sided and uninteresting.

IF the Agricultural Society would construct a track for bicycling purposes Worcester could have a tournament, but as the track is at present it is unfit for riding, and Hendee, Midgley, and others are training on the country roads instead of on the park. It is simply ridiculous to imagine that running horses and bicyclists can use the same track.—Worcester Spy.

THE racing men who are training at Lynn have been playing ball with the "Pulverizers." The score was 27 to 16, and the bicycle boys paid for an ice cream supper which victor and vanquished sat down to. The wheelmen were placed as follows:—Rhodes, 2b.; Rowe, 1b.; R. A. Neilson, c. f.; Windle, 3b.; J. Neilson, r. f.; Annis, s. s.; Carter, l. f.; Whitmore, c.; Newhall, p.

WE have conducted no fixture column this year, but shall establish one before the fall tournaments. We shall not give in the column devoted to fixtures anything more than date and place of meeting. If clubs wish to have closing of entries, secretary's address, etc., put in, we will mildly suggest our advertising columns, where five lines can be inserted for a very moderate sum, and a large advertisement can be carried at a very low rate.

WE are cordially invited to a "smoker" to be held by the Illinois Cycling Club of Chicago, on Aug. 10. We are obliged to decline with thanks. What is a smoker? We had an idea that we knew, but the Chicago boys announce as the programme of the evening,—a lantern parade, music, and refreshments. Well, we have little doubt that the lanterns will smoke, and we hope the coffee will be hot enough to do so also.

A GERMAN rider, Mr. Emil Pfahler, has been touring from Kief to St. Petersburg, Russia. The distance is about one thousand miles, and it took Mr. Pfahler ten days to accomplish it. The tour was not one of unalloyed pleasure. What with shepherds who thought he was a good target to practice on with their firearms, and what with dogs who took him to be fair game to chew up, the enterprising German did not have a hilarious time.

CAPTAIN A. D. PECK is an enthusiastic believer in the L. A. W. He considers it a great organization, and has reason to know that the direct benefits accruing from membership in it amount to many times the sum paid for initiation fees and dues. He estimates that during his recent tour to Washington his League ticket secured him sufficient reduction at the various hotels to pay his dues to the organization for very many years.

THE Overman Wheel Company have put upon the market a new lamp, with the Serrell system of ventilation. The air is let into the lamp at the lower sides, and is carried upward to a level with the wick before being admitted to the flame. This, the makers claim, keeps the lamp alight by correcting the error whereby the air enters other lamps with a strong upward draught and extinguishes the light. We have tried the lamp on the road, and it has not once gone out. Our machine was not one to put the lamp to the severest test, for there it has no great amount of vibration, but we went over a number of stones, over cobbles, and down into gullies without losing our glim. We have no reason to believe, however, that results would not be the same if we had carried the lamp on a direct steerer without a correcting spring.

THE road race under the auspices of the Newton Bicycle Club occurred last Saturday afternoon. The course was from Newton, through Newtonville and West Newton, to Natick and return, about twenty miles. There were six entries. It was a handicap race, and the contestants started as follows:—E. S. Martin, at 3.49 o'clock; I. H. Aubin, at 3.54; W. H. Barker, at 3.59; F. L. Wilson, at 4.01; A. W. Whittaker, at 4.04; W. K. Corey, scratch, at 4.09. The first man to reach the finishing line was E. S. Martin, who crossed at 23½ minutes past five o'clock, covering the course in 1.35; W. H. Barker, second, at 5.33—time, 1.34; W. K. Corey, third, at 5.33 1-4—time, 1.24; F. L. Wilson, fourth, at 5.35 1-6—time, 1.34; J. H. Aubin, 5.36—1.51. Whittaker did not finish. The first prize was a gold medal, the second, silver, mounted with a gold eagle, and the third a silver medal.

THE projected cinder path from New York to Philadelphia is being discussed in cycling circles, and it looks as though the near future would give us some such pathway. Mr. Gardner Cain, of Trenton, N. J., a member of the committee appointed by Chief Consul Cooley to look into this matter, thinks that the cinder path cannot be made with any degree of success. The present route laid out in the guidebook, after leaving Trenton toward New York, is by the way of Pennington, Hopewell, Harlingen, Bound Brook, Plainfield, and Orange. On the route, Mr. Cain says, the roads are so narrow that there is no room for a path two feet wide, which is the prescribed width. Besides this, the farmers are bitterly opposed to bicycles, and they would not take any pains to keep the path in repair. In fact, on these narrow country roads the whole width is needed for the wagons. If the League would change the route and go up the Brunswick pike, then he thinks a path might be successfully constructed. Mr. Cain thinks the project will not be a success. The cinder path is for the purpose of making a hard, smooth track for the bicycles. The longest one in the country, and the best, is at Wilkesbarre, which is eight miles in length. There are many roads which are either so sandy or rough that the bicycle cannot go over them.

NOTES AND QUERIES,

(81.) CAN any wheelman give me information concerning routes and roads, etc. north to Portland, Or.? Within the next four or six weeks I will leave for the north, then tour towards the east through Washington Territory and northern States, and any information that will tend to help me, will be thankfully received.

MELVILLE A. BLEY, L. A. W 6700.

(82.) REPLYING to request of "Quadrant" in Belmont, Mass., notes, I would say that the best route from Providence to Newport, R. I. is as follows: Providence to East Providence, to Barrington, to Warren, to Bristol, to Bristol Point, to Bristol Ferry, and via West Road to Newport. The distance is thirty miles, not including an arm of the bay one mile wide, between Bristol Point and Bristol Ferry. The lighthouse keeper at the Point will row parties across in a small boat. This answers for one or two persons with bicycles, but might be inconvenient for a party of bikes and trikes. If large enough, I would suggest that the party hire a vessel at Bristol to carry them to the Island ferry. I have heard that a line of steamers between Fall River and Providence, stop at Bris ol and Bristol Ferry. It might be feasible to connect with these, but I do not know their running time. Another route, some five miles longer, with one or two miles unrideable sand, may be taken by turning east from Warren to Fall River, to Tiverton, and via Stone Bridge and West Road to Newport. Another road from Bristol Ferry to Newport, is the East Road, but it is poor riding, much inferior to the West Road. The route I recommend is all good, and the first eighteen miles to Bristol Point is fine. Two members of the Newport Club made the ride in three hours, and were delayed at the ferry more than one half hour. See Outing for August, 1884, for an excellent description of this route by H. P.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

TRANSPORTATION.

THE following is an extract of proceedings of meetings of National Association of General Baggage Agents, held at Denver, Col., July 20: "Mr. Walch, of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé R. R., introduced a resolution to carry bicycles in baggage cars without check, when owners of the same are on train. This motion elicited a good deal of discussion in which a decided prejudice was shown against bicycles, but the motion was finally adopted." This affects the action of every railroad in the United States, and increases the probability of continuance of privileges now enjoyed by wheelmen.

SECOND ANNUAL MEET OF THE KANSAS DIVISION.

THE second annual meet of the Kansas Division was held at Paola, Kansas, July 18, 19, and 20, and was a complete success as could be wished for. Everybody enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent, and too much cannot be said in praise of the generous hospitality extended to the visiting wheelmen by the citizens of Paola, who did all in their power to make things pleasant for everybody, and right well did they succeed.

As early as Sunday evening wheelmen began to straggle in from all parts of the State, and by Monday night there was a large crowd in attendance. Professor Ley of Kansas City gave a fine exhibition of fancy riding in the Square, Monday night, and this, with a few minor runs, filled out the first day's programme, the more serious business being reserved for Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Tuesday A. M. trains brought in a goodly number to swell the already large crowd, and while the State members adjourned to the Opera House to attend the business meeting, the great unattached and visitors sought the track where it is said they "whooped her up" in great style.

BUSINESS MEETING.

Chief Consul Everest being unavoidably absent, the meeting was called to order at 9.35 A. M., Vice Consul C. S. Davis of Junction City in the chair. Messrs. Pulsifer, Phillips and Candy were appointed a committee on credentials, and reported that delegates from Central Cycling Club and Leavenworth County Wheelmen were present and having proper credentials, recommended that they be permitted to cast the vote of their respective clubs, viz., Central Club, H. S. Hale, delegate, 10 votes; Leavenworth County Wheelmen, Otto Wulfekuhler, delegate, 9 votes. On motion of Mr. Buxton, the report of the committee was accepted and committee discharged.

Roll call showed 31 members present at meeting.

The Secretary-Treasurer then proceeded to read the minutes of the last meeting, held at Junction City, Sept. 22 and 23, 1886.

On motion of Mr. Lydecker, minutes were adopted and ordered placed on file.

Chief Consul Everest being absent and having forwarded no report to be read at the meeting, Mr. Davis read a communication from him expressing his regret at being unable to attend.

The Secretary-Treasurer, C. C. Candy, then submitted the following

The chairman of Touring Committee reported no progress had been yet made in compilation of Road Book. Messrs. Schott, Pulsifer and Lydecker indulged in an animated discussion as to the reason of there being no road reports. It was shown that information of a reliable character was about impossible to obtain. Mr. Schott gave it as his opinion that the members of the Touring Committee be required to prepare a road report of their respective districts. Mr. Pulsifer stated that he was ready and willing to do this.

After discussion by Messrs. Pulsifer, Schott, Taylor and Bates, it was, on motion of Mr. Phillips, decided to re-district the State.

Messrs. Phillips, Bates, Schott, Brown and Everest were appointed a committee of five to divide the State into such a number of districts as in their opinion seemed best.

Mr. C. S. Davis, as chairman of Racing Board, stated that he had no special report to make, but desired to say that the ten-mile L. A. W. championship would be run at Junction City, Sept. 22d next, under auspices of Central Cycling Club.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

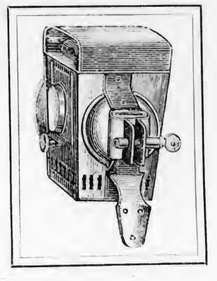
THE CELEBRATED



KING OF THE ROAD LAMPS.

Manufactured by J. LUCAS & SONS, Birmingham, Eng.

These Lamps are unquestionably the best in the market. Made of the best tin, every part riveted (instead of soldered), they are a thorough piece of workmanship. Being of large size, they throw a very powerful light; but from their peculiar construction, being divided throughout their entire length, they can be placed within a many-spoked wheel. They are provided with red side lights and red danger light at the back. The 1885 pattern, here represented, is far superior to the old style. The improvements are: (1) Adjustable axle bearings. (2) Wind-up burner, by which the light may be regulated from the outside, thus avoiding the annoyance of opening the lamp. (3) Improved arrangement of powerful detached reflector, which prevents its getting smoked. (4) Slide at side for lighting. (5) Patent clip on front containing wick igniter, etc. Sold by

Mr. Pulsifer moved that the State Racing Board take proper steps to locate the State championships, and that they, if possible, secure a national championship to be contested at the next State meet,—said State meet to be held under auspices of some League club. Carried.

Mr. Bates suggested that State championship medals be furnished by the Division.

Mr. Pulsifer suggested that the Division officers should then decide what the Division could afford.

Mr. Bradley, seconded by Phillips, moved that a contribution of $1.00 be asked from each State member, on or before March 31, 1888, the Racing Board to have full control of the money so contributed.

Mr. Candy moved in amendment that the funds be collected by secretary-Treasurer, and held by him subject to draft of chairman of Racing Board.

After discussion of question of establishment of challenge or championship medals by Messrs. Davis, Lydecker and Bates, Mr. Bradley re-stated his motion, accepting Candy's amendment, which was unanimously carried.

The election of secretary-treasurer being in order, Mr. Pulsifer moved suspension of rules, and that C. C. Candy be declared the choice of the Division for secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year. Carried.

The election of Racing Committee resulted as follows: — Chairman, W. C. Bradley, Ottawa; W. C. Schott, Leavenworth; J. H. Everest, Lyons; C. I. Davis, Junction City; W. H. Taylor, Topeka.

Mr. Davis stated it as the wish of the chief consul that the meeting recommend for appointment one additional representative, the membership omitting the Division to two.

Mr. Everest nominated A. Jos. Henley, of Wichita.

Mr. Pulsifer nominated Chas. S. Davis, of Junction City.

Formal ballot resulted as follows: Henley, 11; Davis, 20. Mr. C. S. Davis declared the choice of the meeting.

Mr. Bates moved that it be declared the sense of the meeting that the next meet be held at Topeka, seconded by Lydecker and unanimously carried.

Motion to adjourn. Carried.

The races were well managed, hotly contested, and were a very interesting feature of the Meet.

One and half-mile, novice, — E. R. Jewett (1), 4.32; R. B. Hall (2); H. H. Everest (3).

The three days' session ended with a banquet tendered the visiting wheelmen by the ladies of Paola. The visitors did justice to the dinner, and after the clearing of the board a season of toasts and speeches was enjoyed.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

SOME OF THE TRADE

Delight in informing their friends that we do not sell any wheels to speak of, that the demand for them is very light in wheeling centres, where bicycle riders are posted.

WE APPEND HEREWITH

A few letters from some of our agents who had given up a well-known line of wheels rather than ours.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 18, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We have sold twenty-five Champions so far — twenty-one in the city, the balance outside, which is double the number of fine wheels ever sold in Louisville by both the agencies put together in a year, and I think we will sell not far from one hundred Champions this season. It has not been hard work to sell them, they sell themselves. If an old —— rider is skeptical, he is the man I want to get hold of, and let him first try an —— and then a Champion. In this way we have mounted seven prominent riders on full nickelled Champions. Of course, this has had an effect no choice of wheels for beginners, which we intend to keep up. In fact, the machine has the most good talking and taking points of any machine I ever saw. For instance, you can grasp the large wheel and backbone of an —— just above the step — it is not very hard work to bring the wheel and backbone together. Now try the Champion, and you will find that it don't go together worth a cent; and as the backbones on both wheels are nearly the same, one must give in the head and the other does n't. I have ridden my own mount (a Champion, of course) over 500 miles this season, and have given it a pretty thorough test on rough roads, and I certainly would not exchange it for anything in the wheel line I ever saw. I rode it April 3d (after the snowstorm), eighty miles, from Harrodsburg to Louisville in ten hours, with six inches of mud for forty miles, and not anything loosened but a spoke. I 'll not say anything more about the Champions, now; you may think I 'm trying to sell you one. Our successor has sold one —— so far.

HERE'S ANOTHER.

The New Orleans agent, by far the largest cycle dealer in the extreme South, says:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., April 21, 1887.

Gentlemen: — Your favor of the 15th inst., asking for a candid expression of opinion as regards the American Champion Bicycle, manufactured by Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co., has been received. In reply, I would say that in all my experience I have not found a wheel that gives such entire satisfaction, and sells as readily as the "Champion." I have sold it since first introduced, and in this State it outnumbers other makes of high grade wheels about seven to one. It has proved a durable, easy running wheel, and its reputation here is fully established. You can recommend it to your customers with the utmost confidence. I could send you any number of direct testimonials, but infer you are writing for what is called a "condensed" experience.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

The Cincinnati agency is equally enthusiastic. Any one who has seen the four-horse teams of Cincinnati will understand the reference to the roads in the following.

CINCINNATI, O., April 10, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We are in receipt of yours asking information regarding the Gormully & Jeffery goods. We feel that we cannot say too much as to the good merits of their machines. We have handled the "Ideal" for four years, and the "American Champion" from its first appearance last season. In every instance they have given perfect satisfaction to the purchaser. The American Champion, for ease of running, rigidity, and general durability, is not excelled by any wheel. The American Challenge is a good staunch roadster at a moderate cost, that has proven itself by actual usage on our roads (and worse could not be found in our immediate vicinity), to be a thoroughly reliable machine, answering all the requirements of a good all 'round bicycle at a moderate cost. The Ideal is, beyond a doubt, the best boy's wheel ever produced. The success of the wheel has been phenomenal about Cincinnati, and it is certainly well earned. It affords us great pleasure to offer these machines to the public, knowing that for thorough workmanship, reliable construction, and good quality of material employed in their manufacture, they are all that is claimed for them and sure to give satisfaction. We congratulate you on having added these wheels to your list, and wish you every success that they are bound to bring you.

There are plenty more to follow. In fact, we are prepared to satisfy an extraordinarily keen appetite for reflection. Catalog on application.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26. — The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 42 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Dawson, of Pawtucket second; C. M. Morse, of Pawtucket, third. Turner rode a Columbia, Dawes a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country; it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators. . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize. — Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. L. Damery, 51-inch Columbia Light Roadster, fourth; Ludwig Forster, 53-inch Victor, fifth; S. J. Mills, 58-inch Expert Columbia, did not finish.

THE FIRST LEAGUE CLUB.

WE have been at work now some months, preparing a list of League clubs in the order which should be given them under the rules of the League. We are not quite done with the work yet, for we find it very difficult work to get responses from a large number of clubs who have no certificate filed at this office, and whose officers fail to respond to our repeated calls for these.

In arranging the clubs we have given them position in the order in which they joined the League, and when two clubs unite with us on an even date we classify them by their date of organization. Under this system it was necessary for us to arrange according to date of organization all those clubs which were represented at Newport where the League was formed. This put the Massachusetts club at the head, and gave the New York club the sixth place To this arrangement the New York club objects, claiming that they have always had the first place in line, and they desire to keep it. In the absence of records, data, etc., and for want of anything like system in arranging the clubs, we have been standing out for our system of placing the clubs, but have written the New York Club officers that if they can show us good reason for their claim under any logical system we would yield to their request. After a good deal of correspondence we yield the point to the New York Club, and give them the first place.

Their right to the first position will be shown by the following correspondence, which gives a number of interesting facts relating to the early history of the League.

The following are extracts from the records of the New York Club:

Extract from minutes March 1, 1880: —

"The Captain's report embraced an account of what had been done in the way of arrangments for the Newport meet. A letter was read from Mayor Benedick of Newport, promising his aid and co-operation. It was then moved, seconded, and carried, that the New York Bicycle Club take the initiative step, by sending letters to the various bicycle clubs, inviting their co-operation in this plan."

Extract from minutes, May 5, 1880: —

"It was moved, seconded and carried that the New York Bicycle Club be represented at the convention in Newport by two delegates with power to act in all matters pertaining to the formation of a National Association of Bicyclers."

Extract from minutes June 7, 1880: —

"The Captain submitted a long verbal report on the Grand Meet at Newport. It was moved seconded, and carried, that the New York Bicycle Club join the L. A. W. in a body."

The following letter from the first commander of the League, to Mr. Shriver, of the New York Club, tells its own story:

"The original idea of such an organization was entirely my own, and I first spoke of it to Kingman Putnam one night in the latter part of January, 1880, as we were walking home from the American Institute Rink, where we had our club room. He was delighted with it, and at the monthly meeting of the club, held in February of that year, I broached the subject to the members. Putnam seconded my remarks, and the club received the proposition to issue an invitation for a general gathering, with enthusiasm. As a result of this meeting, the New York Club alone — not conjointly with the Boston Club — issued a circular note of invitation to all bicycle clubs then in exi-tence in this country to meet them at Newport, on May 30–31.

Representatives from thirty-one clubs gathered at Newport in consequence of this invitation, and on the morning of May 31, in the Newport Skating Rink, I had the honor of calling to order and addressing the first general assembly of wheelmen ever held in this country. The name, "League of American Wheelmen" was my own pet name, and its adoption was stubbornly contested by the advocates of "American Bicyclists' Union," "Bicyclists Touring Association," and other titles.

The Boston Bicycle Club asked to be allowed the honor of being the first to enter their names upon the roll of membership of the new organization. To this the New York Club yielded a reluctant consent in recognition of the Bostons being the oldest and most influential club in the country; but claimed second place. This claim was made in virtue of our having taken the initiative in the movement that resulted in forming the League, and was at the time cheerfully allowed by the Massachusetts, Essex, and other clubs whose date of organization was prior to ours. I gave in all the names of our club members and became responsible for the dues. In the parade that followed the first League meeting, although I had already been elected commander, I invited Captain Hodges of the Boston Club to take command, as I considered the compliment due to the age and standing of his club, but I insisted that the New York Club should have the right of line and lead the procession, which it did, followed by the Boston, Massachusetts, and other clubs.

For the parade of the following year in connection with the League Meet in Boston, I, as commander, arranged the clubs and gave them their positions according to the order in which they had joined the League. This placed Boston first, New Yorks second; Massachusetts third; New Haven fourth; Essex fifth, etc. In this giving of positions I was assisted by Albert S. Parsons, corresponding Secretary of the League, who produced his record book containing the list of membership, for this purpose.

Yours Fraternally,

KIRK MUNROE.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

WHO shall write the story of Cottage City? It is now a memory only, and I fear that my feeble pen will fail to do it justice. My cycling log book had many precious pages, and now one more is added. It is a precious page and yet it is stamped with regret. Tantalus could have suffered no more than I did when I saw cycles, cycles everywhere, but never a chance to ride. I was without a costume and without a cycle. The tandemons explored the island so far as cycle riding was possible, and Daisie walked.

LET me call the roll! Doctor E. Y. Bogman and wife, of Providence; Mr. and Miss Coleman, of Cambridge, Dr. A F. Wyman and wife, of New Bedford; Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Adams, of Haverhill; Mr. and Mrs. Stall, of Boston. These were the tandemons, and many merry times did they have together. They did not neglect the inevitable photo. Then there were a number of ladies who rode singles, including Miss Nickerson, of Somerville; Miss Louise Grout, of Newton Centre, and Mrs. F. P. Myers, of Boston. I wonder if I have forgotten any one. I mention these as among the visiting lady riders who ride at their homes. Everybody rides at Cottage City.

TWENTY-FIVE miles of asphalt pavement and few hills. This results in a spectacle not possible to see anywhere else. The ladies ride in everyday costume with no thought of oil. Many have large black aprons, which they tie around them to hang behind, and these are supposed to protect the skirts. Gentlemen ride in black coats and tall hats, and riding costumes are rarities. This is well enough for Cottage City. It would not do elsewhere.

I WAS persuaded by a friend who lives at the City to leave my wheel at home. I left riding dress in my closet and my wheel in the stable. I shall never forgive myself. It was a stupendous mistake. Once, in sheer desperation, I mounted for a ride after the fashion of the place. A dress well-steeled in the back and with plenty of drapery was forgotten, and I wheeled over to Vineyard Haven. It was my only ride, but it was a most charming one.

MEANTIME, the tandemons were wheeling to their heart's content. And yet it was an outing of supreme delight. We walked on the bluffs under the bewitching influences of moonlight on the sea; we listened to the strains of delicious music in the park, we danced at the Sea View, we saw the parade, the races and the ball match, we ate clams at Katama, and we bathed to the music of a brass band.

WE were prepared for everything. Was a ride on the tapis? Call up the tandems! Was a dance to be danced? Call up our Cambridge party and let them show the islanders how youth and beauty can glide through the mazes of Terpsichore's art.

COTTAGE CITY has captured us body and soul. We are going again next year and let no lady leave her wheel behind. I made some very charming friends, and I think we enlisted a large number of recruits for the annual fall run of the ladies.

ON Sunday we went to Vineyard Haven and saw the Volunteer, the Puritan, the Mayflower and the great fleet of yachts of the New York Yacht Club. I rode behind a horse whose slow pace was unequal to the rapid progress of our tandem escort.

CYCLERS take to the water as naturally as ducks, and the bath houses were well patronized by our party. If I were writing for a different paper I should at this point say a word about bathing as it is practised at the seaside resorts, but I fear the editorial blue pencil that runs through matter not connected with cycling. Let me put myself on record, however, as one who believes that the promiscuous bathing of the sexes in such places as these, under the eye of the assembled public, and in scanty costumes, is not conducive to the highest order of morality. Am I a prude? Perhaps so; I am unable to draw the line which allows a lady to appear in public on the beach in a costume which would not be tolerated in the drawing-room.

SAILING on Vineyard Sound, was down on the list of things to be essayed. We did not go. A few ladies of our party ventured out by moonlight, and the terrible mal de mere marked them for its own. Their sufferings kept us on dry land.

WE spent one evening with Dr. Tucker, who is president of the M. V. Club, and owns the most lovely cottage on the island. From the balcony of this cottage we saw the fireworks, and listened to the band concert. A hasty inspection of the cottage showed us what wealth could do to make life luxurious at the sea side. As we sat there, our attention was attracted by the notes of a cornet playing a funeral dirge. It came nearer and nearer, and soon there emerged from the darkness a procession of ghostly shapes, making their way towards the cottage. As they came to the door, we noticed that each ghost had pinned upon the front of it's shroud the name of the disease that removed it from the world. One died from corns, another from rheumatism and still another from warts. The Doctor received them kindly, and after they had performed certain mystic ceremonies, he asked them what they wanted. Immediately they turned their backs and exposed the name, thereupon written, of the doctor's famous medicine. They were each given a bottle and then they vanished into the obscurity from which they had emerged. It was a very good joke played upon the doctor by several young ladies and gentlemen.

BUT I can say no more. I talk but of Cottage City this week, and I have room for nothing else. I do not care to bore my readers, but so vast were our experiences that I fear that they will come into my letters for very many months.

LADIES I have bad news for you. I am told by an inventor, that he has a patent pending for a device to go on a tandem which will show just how much work each rider is doing, and expose the weakness of those who are not strong. I will not suggest that any lady rider "loafs" on a tandem, but I do not believe it at all necessary for the men to know what proportion of the work the ladies are doing. I shall not buy the device. DAISIE.

QUAKERTOWN TROUBLES.

BICYCLES IN THE PARK.

THE Philadelphia Record, for Aug. 5, says: "Primarily the walks in the Park were intended for the accommodation of persons on foot, and the drives for persons in carriages or for other vehicles drawn by horses. Thd bicycle rider is an innovation only to be tolerated so long as he shall behave himself. He has not the right of way. He should keep out of the way of pedestrians as a matter of course and of civility. He should get out of the way of carriages for a double reason. In the first place, he is liable to scare spirited horses with his machine; and, secondly, as the pleasure and safety of the million should be preferred before the pleasure of a single person, or of a dozen or a hundred, in a place intended for public rather than private enjoyment, he should get out of the way as a matter of correct principles. The bicycle was permitted in the Park as an experiment. Doubtless, the presence of bicycle riders might be endured indefinitely if they would conduct themselves as gentlemen, but not otherwise. The bicycler who imagines that he has the right of the road is a trespasser upon the public forbearance and an abuser of his privilege.

"The persons charged with the maintenance of order in the Park should have an eye on bicyclers. Either a part of the Park should be set off for their especial use, or they should be made to drive their machines upon the public roadways with the greatest circumspection. Perhaps it would be better to entirely withdraw a privilege which has been abused of late, and which is attended with danger to others."

Commenting on which the following, from the North American, is certainly non-partisan: "It seems to us that our usually fair and good-natured contemporary is unjustly severe upon the wheelmen in the editorial article above. It talks as though the wheelmen had no rights which any one was bound to respect; were only permitted to enter the Park on suffrage and on specific pledges of good behavior; were a good deal of a nuisance anyway, and really ought not to be allowed to continue their, at present, restricted perambulations. What is there to justify this kind of talk? Are not the rights of a man who rides on a bicycle precisely the same as the rights of the citizen who takes his ease in a buggy or mounts the aristocratic drag? So it seems to us. Of course the argument is that a bicycle is a dangerous object, because horses are apt to shy at it, but so few accidents from this cause have been reported that the danger seems to have been greatly exaggerated. Then as to the behavior of the wheelmen It may some times have been open to censure, but on the whole the cycler has been more sinned against than sinning, and it is the persons who strike at cyclers with their whips as they pass them, upon whom the Park guards should have an eye. Perhaps our contemporary drives a spanking team and has personal reasons for disapproving of bicycles, but it should, and to give it its dues it generally does, strive at all hazards to be fair."

The Record article above and the retaliatory comment is attracting universal attention from such of Philadelphia's wheelmen as have time to spare for fanning up a miniature cold wave. The ground taken is preposterous, and the statement that the cyclers have behaved in an ungentlemanly manner is libellous; wheelmen do not need to be told, that in every case in which parties have tried in courts to show that bicyclers have not precisely equal rights with the riders in every other kind of road vehicle, the courts have ruled in favor of the bicycler. The general impression among the riders is, that the Record's articles is the result of some of the machinations of the fellow Cairns, of the Philadelphia coroner's office, a kind of political bum, who had two wheelmen arrested last week, for not getting out of his way, and then, when the case came up for a hearing, sneaked away and disappeared. Several offers have been made of subscriptions to a fund to arrest Cairns, and prosecute him for preferring false charges against the wheelmen, and it is not improbable that, in the light of the recent developments, such an action may be brought.

The Philadelphia bicycle clubs are arranging for a twenty-mile team race for the Tryon cup, which is to take place on September 10. The event is in charge of a committee of one member from each club, which has already made the necessary arrangements. Teams of four can be entered from all Philadelphia clubs, and so far, five have been entered: Pennsylvania, Century, Tioga, South End and University, of Pennsylvania. An entrance fee of fifty cents will be charged, and entries close with J. R. Lincoln Edwards, secretary, 1419 Wharton Street, September 3.

The cup is to be awarded to the club team making the best record in this way. All the contestants will be started off together. The first man to finish scores twenty points, if there are that many starters; the next man nineteen, and so on. The club team scoring the highest number of points wins the cup. A special prize, to be paid for by the entrance fees, is to be awarded to the first man to finish the twenty miles. Fine prizes will also be offered to the different clubs who make the twenty miles in one hour and twenty minutes or better, a four-minute gait.

The course selected for the race is a fine piece of macadamized road on the Lancaster Pike. The start will be made from Bryn Mawr, coming towards the city to a point near the first tollgate. Then a turn is made, and the course follows out again past Bryn Mawr to the foot of Devon Hill, where there is another turn, and a return to the starting point at Bryn Mawr. PHACTO.

ST. LOUIS.

THE Division Board held a called meeting on Thursday evening. The handbook which C. C. Brewster proposes to issue was the main topic of discussion, and a general outline of the coming book was chosen. It will combine the qualities of a roadbook, and the handy bits of information contained in the first book published by the Division. From the present lookout, it may be expected to appear by the 1st of October. The correspondence which our representatives commenced a month since, for the purpose of enlisting every wheelman in the State on the Division roll, has borne good fruit both as regards membership and an increased knowledge of the wheeling advantages in various portions of the State. The wheelmen in Carthage came into the League in a body. Stuart, of Kansas City, grew tired of asking for road information by mail, and now mounts his wheel twice each week with a view of obtaining a correct measurement of the roads about his city. The Division Board elected Frank Pratt third member of the finance committee, and will meet again two weeks hence, to read the first proof of the handbook.

THE Missouri Club held its usual busy meeting on Tuesday. Several new names were placed on the reserve list, which grows longer each month. The mileage of one hundred active members of the club (of this number some have reported no mileage), for the months of April, May, June, and July, stands at nineteen thousand miles. The ten members ranking highest have rolled up some rattling figures, when one thinks of the scorching season which is passing, and Capt. Brewster has himself ridden five hundred miles the past month. The club will probably adopt a strong by-law at its next meeting, to provide against the depredations of the tool-thief and the carelessness of the gent who borrows a friend's wheel and disappears with it for an indefinite period. The club shook hands with itself over the flattering resolutions sent on by the secretaries of Eastern clubs, complimenting the Missouri Bicycle Club on its success as an entertainer at the Meet.

LAST Saturday's loaf at the games of the Athletic Club has resulted in a great deal of squabbling between the racing men and members of the club. This is much to be regretted. The outcome of what was heralded as an interesting event is bad blood between the Athletic Club and cyclists, and an injury to our sport generally. Our men used a bad track as a flimsy excuse for ridiculous riding, and the judges, being ignorant of the L. A. W. rule, which fails to provide against loafing, disqualified the riders. The latter are now clamoring for their prizes, and threaten suit if they are not forthcoming.

TO-DAY, the Missouri Club, or rather that small portion of it which dutifully observes club runs in these dog-days, ries itself a few miles into the country to Camp Marvin, so named because it is the scene of an annual gathering of Methodists during several weeks of August. I understand that a ladies' run is soon to be organized, starting at the clubhouse and ending at some cool retreat in Forest Park. The "toughs" will mount their old reliables, while the too-lazies and ladies will mount 'buses, carrying with them hampers full of those good things which go to make life bearable. The Cycle Club, to-day, is scorching eastward to the breweries and bottomless gutters of Belleville, Ill. Weather is very cool.

PERCY STONE went to Cleveland last night. He thinks that he has not altogether recovered from his sickness at Clarksville, the effect of which he notices at times. The DeSoto race has had no perceptible effect on his running gear, and he managed to pump through a mile on the bad (!) Union Ground track, the other day, in 2.57. He says that Bob Neilson, Rhodes, and himself will compose the Victor team this season; but that he will confine his efforts to the smaller tournaments near home this time, as he does not care to go East and overdo himself. Percy is very sensible in this view, and with care will be in shape to tackle the finest when he reaches Cola's racing age — twenty-two years. He is now twenty.

SECRETARY-TREASURER AB. LEWIS is expected to return home from his long European trip about the 12th, though this date is not known to his brother, who expects him about the 25th. The affairs of his office have been conducted smoothly by the latter, and handsome Ab., whose face was missed at the Meet, will find fast friends, much to eat, and re-election awaiting him.

SEPT. 30 and Oct. 1 (Friday and Saturday), have been chosen as the dates for the annual Division meet. It will occur during the heat of the gayeties of G. A. R. week, and a rattling old time may be expected. Lend a hand, Chicago, and we will take you out on another "tour of St. Louis County," and do you up in more ways than one. Iowa did you up last year by the size of its delegation.

THEY say that President Kirkpatrick is a regular hustler on the smooth roads of Central Ohio, and Alex. Lewis tells how he had to pump to catch his excellency, who had started ahead to catch a train at a little station some five miles ahead.

I RECENTLY had a very interesting interview with W. M. Chauvenet, of this city, relative to the wonderful table-land roads which extend through the central portion of the Republic of Mexico. I hope to dish it up to the readers of the BULLETIN in the next issue. PHŒNIX.

MICHIGAN.

DETROIT. — Chief Consul Johnson has gone on a two weeks' vacation.

IN CAMP. — At Base Lake, Robert Traub; at Four Towns, George Lane.

"DUNDER und blitzen! Was ist das?" exclaimed the elder Beller, as twenty-five dusty cyclers called simultaneously for tickets, towels, and trunks. When Capt. Peck, of the Detroit Bicycle Club, decided to vary the usual run to the Pointe by stopping at Beller's for a swim, it was hailed with delight by the riders; for what is there more delightful after a dusty ride than a plunge into a cool, refreshing bath, and in this case it was the Detroit River, which even Lieut. Bowley acknowledged to be large enough for him. After swimming and ducking to their hearts' content, the party rode out to the Pointe and back by moonlight, finishing one of the most enjoyable club runs yet held this season.

COLDWATER. — A sad accident occurred here on Monday evening, Aug. 1. Mr. L. M. Bassett was riding his tricycle on East Chicago Street, when something attracted his attention, and while looking back, one wheel of his trike dropped off the sidewalk and overturned the machine. The fall fractured his leg just below the thigh. As Mr. Bassett is quite advanced in years, it will be some time before he can be around again.

UTICA. — E. C. Andrus is the pioneer wheelman of this town. With the hard gravel and clay roads around Utica, there should be a rapidly growing club. MICH.

LONG ISLAND NOTES.

"BON'S" remarks concerning signs, etc., were appreciated. I understand that Consul Jones, of Brooklyn, will soon have his district under way, and intends to work as far out as Jamaica, where Consul Waters' district lies. The latter has done good work in tree-trimming, etc., but has done no signing. I shall try very hard to get some of the wheelmen in Hempstead to join the L. A. W., with the hope of getting a live consul there, where one is especially needed. Nowhere is the necessity of signs more apparent than on the "New Bridge" route to South Oyster Bay, at the triple forks, about four miles beyond Hempstead, where there is not the slightest indication which of the three roads should be taken. The same holds good in regard to the turn at the hotel, a mile or so beyond.

A PECULIAR drink, known as "Shandy Gaff" is becoming a favorite with athletes around here, and I find that it is especially adapted to the use of wheelmen. It is made of equal parts of ginger ale and lager beer, thus retaining the strengthening properties of the beer, with none of its usual deleterious after effects.

THE composition of the Huntington Bi. Club is unique by comparison with the other clubs hereabouts, having nine Stars out of a total of twelve members. An explanation of this may be found in the multiplicity of hills which surround the town.

ONE of our club members, while on a recent trip, became the victim of a peculiar succession of coincidences. While riding along a narrow foot-path he came to where a cow was tied to the fence with a short piece of rope, which lay across the walk. Thinking to get by in safety he put on a spurt, but when just over the rope the cow jumped away, hauling the rope taut between the wheels, giving the gentleman a somewhat abrupt sider, and at the same time pulling over a length of fence, with which mixture of fence, rider and wheel she attempted to run away, with poor success. Here our friend imagined he had all the elements of a first-class tragedy, but there was something missing, and it soon appeared in the person of the somewhat irascible old lady owner of the herein-before mentioned cow and fence, for the damages, to which latter she demanded payment. Here I draw a veil of merciful obscurity.

CAPT. PETTIT, of Babylon Dock, is a favorite with wheelmen, as is his 27-foot boat, which is a model of neatness and convenience. Babylon sail-boats are noted for their speed, and nothing pleasanter can be found than a sail across the bay or a swim on the flats. This wonderful sheet of water, nearly eighty miles in length, is a paradise for sportsmen, and is peculiar for the shallowness of the water, the depth of which, over the larger part of the area, is not more than from two to ten feet.

"HEMPSTEAD PLAINS," in the vicinity of Garden City, are so free from ob-tructions to the sight that distances are very deceptive. A friend of mine, when he came in sight of St. Paul's school, from Hyde Park, exclaimed that we were nearly there. "Not more than three-quarters of a mile more," said he. It proves, on being ridden, to be full two and a half miles. I doubt whether a better two-mile straight run can be found on the island than this broad avenue leading from Garden City directly west to Hyde Park. The hollow near the western end, known familiarly as the "Gulch," has this year always been ridable, as the effect of the driving over the road of the large flocks of sheep belonging to the Stewart Estate, the myriad hoofs packing the sand very hard, and giving the surface the peculiar raked appearance, at the cause of which so many have wondered. Dogs are employed in driving these flocks, and turn them out of the way of carriages or wheelmen very handily.

I have been recently told that the country out on Montauk Point, beyond Sag Harbor is very fertile, and that good roads abound. Can anybody enlighten me in regard to this matter? This region is generally represented as being a regular shoal of sand.

A GREAT deal of quiet touring has been lately going on, down the island; hardly a night passing that there are not parties staying at Pettits, in Jamaica, or at the Flushing Hotel, as these hostelries may be reached "the night before," and an early start made in the morning.

ALL those who fall into our tender clutches are made to see the elephant, and all the other animals, generally ending up with a swim at "that float," which proved so alluring to the "B. B. C.'s." The more the merrier. Where is Brother Veysey's party of Harlemites? No. 7556.

CHICAGO.

"WESTWARD the course of Empire takes its way." A saying old, but, nevertheless, true. Cleveland has succeeded the mighty Springfield as a racing centre, the beloved Ducker has taken up his abode in Buffalo, the Gazette has found a resting-place in Indianapolis, and now Burley Ayers, who has so long been Pooh Bah of the League, will take his wheel for a sojourn on the pacific slope. We may be a little new out here, but "we get there just the same."

I HAVE just been informed of the organization of a new club, in the northwest portion of the city. The name I have not been able to learn, but am assured that it will be a League club. It starts out in life with the lucky number of fifteen charter members. They have a brilliant future before them, and we wish them all the success and pleasure that is usually found wrapped up in the mysteries of cycling.

ON Sunday last, a party of four, consisting of Newell, Loveday, Bowbeer and Munger, all of the Illinois club, succeeded in lowering the record between Chicago and Milwaukee, from sixteen hours to eleven hours and fifty-five minutes. This is considered a wonderful performance by those who are familiar with the condition of the roads, and we venture to say that it will stand as a record for many days. The famous Peters made the sixteen-hour record, and was willing to stake his wheel against it being lowered this season. We notice, however, that he was the first one to "crawfish" out of the team race between the two places.

THE twenty-mile race, being the third and last of the Ehlert-Van Sicklen series, took place at Cheltenham Beach, this afternoon. Van lead the first seven miles, averaging 3.05 to the mile. Ehlert spurted to the front at the end of the seventh mile, and rode the eighth in 2.48, and lapped Van in the twelfth mile, at which point Van gave up the race. While Ehlert was in the lead, the pace averaged 2.58. Ehlert will represent the Illinois at Cleveland next week, and doubtless will surprise many of the Easterners. While he does not go as dark horse, he is comparatively a new rider; consequently, he will be looked upon, for the present, as one of the ordinaries.

CHIEF CONSUL VAN SICKLEN gave a lawn party last Wednesday evening, at his residence in Windsor Park, complimentary to the Owl Cycling Club. The Owls report a pleasant time and say the evening was enjoyed immensely. These birds of darkness will spend Sunday in St. Joe, Mich., and will carry their wheels along and sample some of the sandy roads.

IN the early days of cycling, it was nothing unusual for the captain and lieutenants to make a club run alone; but, alas! how time has changed the state of affairs. At the present day, the captain is the easy goer or go-as-you please of the club. I know of one who has called on an average of two runs a week for the past three months, and has put in an appearance at about three, and in two of these cases he turned back at the Park. A hint to the wise is sufficient. SPECTATOR.

LEAGUE HOTELS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — What is the use in selecting good hotels to be designated as L. A. W. headquarters, and securing reduced rates there, when so many wheelmen neglect to avail themselves of these advantages? Many are evidently too lazy to make the necessary hotel changes in their road books as they should, or do not notice properly the BULLETIN. We valley consuls, have given this hotel business much attention and are vexed to see our labor ignored. If what we do is not used, we may as well do nothing. SHENANDOAH.

A PLEASANT ROUTE.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — There are a number of wheelmen in New York and vicinity, who are so occupied during the week that they can only get away from Saturday noon until Monday morning, and, who, if they knew of a trip that could be made in that time, that would take them over the best part of the Hudson River by boat and give them a spin through one of the best riding districts of New York State, would avail themselves of it. I submit the following as one of several that I have been over and tried, and hope that you will give it space in the BULLETIN.

Take steamer at foot of Franklin Street North River for Stuyvesant, at 6 P. M. on Saturday. Fare $1.00, stateroom $1.00, and meals fifty cents each. Arrive at Stuyvesant early Sunday morning. Take the road directly up the hill, bearing a little to the left as you leave the dock, for Kinderhook, five and one quarter miles, where if you did not breakfast on the boat, take breakfast at "Kinderhook" Hotel (L. A. W. hotel), meals to wheelmen forty cents each. Take direct road to Valatie, one and three-quarter miles using the path on left of road all the way. Road leads about east from Kinderhook, and is almost like a race track. Cross iron bridge at Valatie, and at top of hill take first left hand turn two blocks to top of another slight elevation and turn right one block to brick church and turn left into direct road to Riverville, two and one-half miles. At cross road, one and three-quarter miles from Valatie, take left turn (straight ahead is more direct to North Chatham, but leaves out Kinderhook lake). At Riverville turn right across the Boston and Albany Railroad one-fifth mile to entrance to hotel at Kinderhook lake on left. There is a good hotel on the lake, and boating, fishing, etc. A pleasant spot for a rest of half an hour. Keep direct road past lake entrance and take first turn to left for North Chatham, 2.94 miles, keep straight through North Chatham to small park, and then turn right over bridge to cemetery, and then turn left and keep direct road to Nassau 3.62 miles. Take dinner at the hotel on the square in Nassau. They set a good table, and charge fifty cents. At Nassau take left turn from the one you came in on, for East Greenbush, about seven miles, following the regular Albany turnpike. The road from Nassau to East Greenbush is rather hilly, but smooth and hard. Keep direct road into Greenbush (East Albany), 4.60 miles and take South bridge to Albany. Turn right after you leave bridge up Broadway to State Street. Turn left up State to corner of South Pearl, the Globe hotel, or up North Pearl to the Kenmore. Take night boat back to New York, or train and sleeper. The whole wheeling distance is about thirty miles, and from Stuyvesant to Nassau the road is A 1, after that the road is good, but rather hilly. L. A. W., 4096.

THE ROSEVILLE MEET.

EVERYTHING points to a big success for the Meet to be held at the Roseville track on the 20th. The programme has been well arranged, affording ample chance for both novices and flyers, while the two professional events should offer a good chance to witness some fast pedalling. The events, as decided on, are as follows:

Trigwell's ball-bearing head, and perfection backbone and forks. The ball head has been PROVED by two years' use a great success, and the best criticisers are not competing dealers, but the users and riders, and we refer to the latter's testimonials in our catalogue. Did any rider ever see too rigid and strong backbone and forks? Are not the Strengthened Perfection Pattern Backbones and Forks common sense improvements? Notice the advantanges. Perfectly rigid forks and backbones which do not break nor spring out. Especially fitted for rough road work. And look at our rim with the thickened base; no such thing as buckling.

NEW YORK ROAD BOOK. — CORRECTIONS, ETC.

Route 20 page 2. The telegraph wires have been removed, and as the two lines referred to have been erected on a road which leaves Poughkeepsie two blocks above the Post Road, along which they formerly ran, and which should be taken, the present directions in road-book might prove confusing.

Approaching the city from New York, hold South Avenue until the little park which contains the old cannon is reached; t. r. on Montgomery Street, two blocks, and t. l. to Main Street, at the corner of which is the Morgan House. To proceed, keep straight north from the Morgan House two blocks, t. l. two blocks to the Post Road, and t. r. along it to Hyde Park, etc. This is the best way of getting through the city and avoiding its cobbles.

Route 22, page 1. From Hillsdale, after leaving Sunmit House, bear left through North Egremont, instead of taking r. f. through South Egremont, as per road-book. Road is more level and generally better.

Route 23, page 2. Springfield, Mass., is given as 153 miles from start, at bottom of page. In carrying the distance over to page 3, it is given as 151 miles. This is an error, and consequently all following distances in route are two miles short in totals.

Route 21, page 1. At marble quarry, two and a half miles north of Unionville, t. r. through the quarry to Pleasantville, and direct to Mount Kisco, where t. r. just before r. r., and t. l. at next road direct to Brewster's Station.

Route 31, page 1. From Albany book says, "Out State Street direct via Washington Park and Hartsville." This should be Hurstville. Official repairer at Albany is James Bradley, 42 Norton Street.

Route 52, page 2. On account of a mistake in punctuation in paragraph of directions, reading "Present certificate," etc., the turns are given in exactly the opposite direction intended. The directions properly punctuated, will read, "Straight up hill to asphalt (Western Av.) and t. r.; at Vermont Street t. l.; at Richmond Avenue t. r.; at Circle t. l. to Delaware Avenue; t. l. on Delaware Avenue to Genesee Street, and t. l. to the Genesee.

EXPERT Columbia No. 10780, 48-inch, cowhorn handles, was stolen from Jno. H. Milby, Spencer House, Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 23. Any one who may discover the machine should telegraph to the owner at once.

ON the grounds of the Athletic Club at Indianapolis, August 6, Prince Wells lowered the unicycle record for ten miles from one hour to fifty-nine minutes and forty-five seconds. The ten miles were made without a dismount.

THE East Hartford, Conn., Wheel Club will have a tournament Friday and Saturday, September 9th and 10th. The programme will be made up largely of handicap and class races.

JERSEY justice beats all. A wheelman of Camden, N. J., was attacked by a strapping bartender out on the pavement, as he was passing by the place, and the wheelman took the law in his own hands, and now the bartender nurses a black eye.

ROWLAND EVANS, who was recently assaulted in Fairmount Park, Phila., writes that he is not a member of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, but is unattached.

S. I. SNYDER and John Kennard climbed the Cemetery Hill at Clearfield, Pa., on their bicycles, the other evening. The hill makes an ascent of 160 feet in 1,700, and every bicyclist in town has given it many a hitch only to fail, 'til Snyder and Kennard "got there."

GEORGE W. NELLIS JR., arrived at San Francisco from New York Wednesday, he having made the trip on a bicycle. He started May 24, lost fifteen days by rough weather, and lost twenty-three pounds in weight. He averaged fifty miles a day.

An exchange recommends that the League change its badge, since the design has been stolen by the C. T. C. How absurd! The badge has given good satisfaction and there are very many expensive ones in possession of League members. Let us retain the old. If England wants to copy us why should we care. "Imitation is the sincerest flattery."

A STRANGER tried to sell an American Safety bicycle to Samuel T. Clark & Co. of Baltimore, last week. The circumstances of the case, and the unlikely story he told led Mr. Clark to suspect that the seller did not come honestly by the wheel. He had him arrested and detained pending a search for the owner. Any one who has lost such a wheel will do well to write to Mr. Clark.

FRED T. SHOLES, of Cleveland, took his camera to St. Louis and secured several good views. He has complimented us with views of the bridge and a view from the bridge, a view of the art museum and the "bastile" in Vandeventer Place. Very many thanks, Mr. Sholes. Our gallery of views is very greatly improved by your contribution.

AUGUST KOCH, of Peoria, Ill., was run into by a man in a buggy on Aug. 1. He was not injured, but his cycle was wrecked. The Peoria Club has offered $10 for the capture of the driver.

A WHEELMAN who recently took a two months' trip in the northeast estimated that his membership of the L. A. W. saved him in hotels and in attention the round sum of $150, more than he would pay out in dues in a lifetime. — N. O. Picayune.

THE Scientific American shows a sketch of a proposed ambulance made with bicycles. Two large wheels are employed, and between them is swung a hammock attached to the handle-bars. A patient is laid in the hammock, and the wheels are pushed along by attendants, who take hold of the handle-bar with one hand and the backbone from another. The little wheels are removed, the bicycles are placed back to back, and a bar running from one small fork to the other keeps the wheel upright.

ONE of the bitterest satires upon what people call the freedom of this land is the existence of such things as stamway lines. For nobody's advantage but their own a trading company can get the right with very little trouble, to utterly ruin the roadways for every class of traffic but their own. If roads were only decently made and kept, there would exist no shadow of an excuse for their existence, for all their work could then be done much more cheaply and efficiently, and with quite as much comfort to the passengers, by omnibuses, and with twice the safety to pedestrians. — Cycling Journal.

A. T. STEVENS, who has been laid up with a lame knee, began riding a tricycle last week and goes to and from business on it. He does all the driving with the good leg, but lets the other follow the pedal around. This motion, in two days, had so strengthened his knee that he could discard his crutches, for the first time in six months, and hobbles about with a cane. In the light of such an experience what becomes of the constitutionality of a proposition to tax bicycles? In Mr. Stevens' case it would be the same as taxing his crutches. In general it would be a tax of a man's leg power, which would be equivalent to a tax on walking. —Post-Dispatch.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

PAINFUL as was the report that artists were starving to death in Paris, because they could do nothing but paint pictures which nobody would buy, yet more painful is it to read that the professional bicycle riders will soon find their occupation gone. Sad, indeed, will it be to see these limber-legged "professors" reduced to the necessity of earning a living like the rest of us. But everybody can't live by and on "art." If the world had no inhabitants but bicycle riders and artists and ball players and elocutionists, we should all starve to death, which would be a good deal worse, than things are now.—Herald.

"PEDAL AND PATH" is the title chosen by George B. Thayer for his little book of travel which describes his trip from Connecticut to San Francisco. The book not only tells of the ride but describes places stopped at and people met with on the road, and is in fact a series of letters written to the Hartford Post and now revised and published in book form. A large number of illustrations aid the text. We have found it very entertaining reading.

THE Newport, (Ky.) Bicycle Club opened its new and elegant Club House at York and Mayo Streets, Newport, August 6, and entertained about two hundred wheelmen. The Newport Club has now one of the finest club houses in the West.

CINCINNATI wheelmen are at last going to have a race meeting that will infuse some life into the wheeling interest of that city and vicinity. The race meet is under the auspices of the Central Wheelmen and will take place on September 10, the first anniversary of the organization of the club. A large list of gold and silver medals etc. will be offered as prizes and some excellent races may be expected. After the races all wheelmen are invited to meet at the club house of the "Centrals" to take part in a lantern parade which will move over the principal streets of the city and return to the club house, where the "Centrals" will set a luncheon for the assembled cyclers. A large number of prominent citizens and wheelmen have signified their intention of being present; among them: Mayor Smith, President Kirkpatrick, Chief Consul Dunn, of Ohio, Chief Consul Croninger, of Kentucky, and many others. A cordial invitation is extended to all wheelmen to be present and take part in the celebration.

COTTAGE CITY.

THE meet of the Massachusetts Division at Cottage City was eminently successful. Very many wheelmen from Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New York went to the island, and engaged in the festivities. Chief Consul Bidwell, C. H. Luscomb, F. P. Share, Dr. Gilfillian, E. B. Hutchinson, and D. G. Corwin, all of New York, and Mr. Ludwig, of Baltimore, represented distant wheelmen.

The first detachment of wheelmen arrived at the island Wednesday evening, and the number was increased on the arrival of every boat.

Thursday forenoon was given over to the business and from the meeting the wheelmen went to Katama for the clambake.

Friday morning two hundred wheelmen, under command of Chief Consul Hayes, paraded through the streets, and in the afternoon there were races as follows: —

COTTAGE CITY, August 5. — Races under the auspices of the Massachusetts Division.

One Mile Novice. — F. A. Delabarre (1), 4.41; E. A. Phemister, (2); W. L. Adams (3).

Half Mile Rowing Tricycle, 2 in 3 — First heat: Wallace Ross (1), 1.52; Geo. H. Hosmer (2), 1.57. Second heat: Geo. H. Hosmer (1) 52 1-2; Ross (2). Final heat: Ross (1), 1.57 3-4; Hosmer (2.)

One-Mile Handicap. — J. F. Midgley, scratch (1), 4.22 1-2; F. A. Delabarre, 50 yds. (2.)

The distance run, though called a mile, was nearer a mile and a half.

A reception and dance at the Sea View House was on the programme for Friday evening, and on Saturday there was sailing in the forenoon and a base-ball match in the afternoon. The whole outing ended with a hop at the Sea View on Saturday night.

NOTES.

THE presence of the ladies made the Meet very attractive to the great majority of wheelmen.

THE Somerville club occupied a cottage on the camp grounds.

THE thanks of the Division are due the committee on entertainment, which consisted of Dr. Mott, Mayor Dobbs, and Mr. Young.

EUGENE SANGER, E. J. Briggs, and Charles P. Cubberly, of Somerville, rode to the meet on their wheels, taking a boat at New Bedford.

CHIEF CONSUL HAYES was made a member of the Martha's Vineyard Club.

DR. TUCKER kept open house for wheelmen.

The game of base ball was diastrous to the wheelmen. The score, 23 to 2, speaks well for the ability of the islanders, though the wheelmen were not altogether lacking in skill.

THE "Hayseed Battalion" was organized during the meet. The ability to make a noise was the only qualification demanded.

ONE of the happiest men at Cottage City was J. B. McCune. The Springfield Roadster ran away from everything in the races, though it was pitted against all other types.

Secretary Lawton was re-elected Secretary Treasurer by a unanimous vote.

The following committee were appointed:

Rights and Privileges, — Charles E. Pratt, W. S. Slocum, J. S. Dean.

Finance, — J. F. Adams, F. P. Kendall, A. L. Bowker.

Rules, — W. H. Emery, C. S. Howard, W. M. Farrington.

Touring, — J. H. Grimes, F. P. Kendall, A. D. Peck.

A discussion on road racing took place. Mr. Tippetts thought the subject should be agitated, and all the influences of the League should be used in the direction of road improvement. Mr. Slocum set forth the law on the subject, and showed that there was no existing statute under which the League could work. He suggested that the best and the only way to secure good roads, was to influence the local authorities to do it.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Geo A. Perkins, of Cambridge, for his efforts in behalf of the Signboard Bill in the legislature.

A vote of thanks was passed to the Martha's Vineyard Club for the hospitable treatment of the Division, and the many courtesies shown the members.

ENGLISH RACING.

SOME of the best among the recent performances on the English track are given below: —

JULY 19, on the Coventry track, A. P. Engleheart on a Safety, led by J. H. Adams, T. E. Fenlon and F. S. Buckingham, lowered Howell's five-mile record and established New World's records for the Safety: One mile, 2.40; two miles, 5.26; three miles, 8.9; four miles 10.54; five miles, 13.35⅘.

AT Long Eaton, July 16, W. J. Morgan made the quarter-mile in 33½. Temple made a half-mile in 1.11, according to several watches, but on account of some blundering the performance was not credited.

ON July 20, at Long Eaton, with Snyder, Lees, Hinchcliffe, Morgan, and Temple making pace, Woodside lowered the English records from five to ten miles, making the whole distance in 28.34⅘. The following are the times: 1 mile, 2.52; 2, 5.53; 3, 8.41; 4, 11.26⅘; 5, 14.18; 6, 17.12; 7, 20.05; 8, 22.58; 9, 25.47; 10, 28.34⅘.

AT the Aston Lower Grounds July 23, W. A. Illston won the Speedwell challenge cup outright in a 10-mile race, beating W. F. Ball by four yards in 32.1⅘.

ON the same day at Catford Bridge, Speechly, 50 yards, won the first heat of a mile handicap in 2.58⅘. Osmond won the final in 3.0⅘, by two lengths from J. H. Adams, Speechly third.

AT Bradford, same date, J. E. Fenlon won a mile race in 2.14⅘, and a two-mile open handicap in 5.41⅘.

THE North Shields Bicycle Club held a meeting July 23. W. Wood won a 15-mile professional championship in 46.15⅘. English a yard behind, Lees third and close up. The last lap, 352 yards, was ridden in 20s.

R. TEMPLE ran from scratch in a mile handicap at Long Eaton July 23, conceding the winning opponents 130 and 170 yards respectively. He finished third in a field of seven, among them Woodside. Time, 2.37⅘. Engleheart then beat Allard in a two-mile bicycle race for suspends by three yards in 6.6.

SPEECHLY, 35 yards, ran second to Langley, 15 yards at Stamford Bridge, in a mile handicap, July 22. Time, 2.59⅘.

F. J. OSMOND made an attempt to beat G. Lacy Hillier's five mile amateur record of 14m. 18s. at the Crystal Palace track, England, July 21, and rode the distance in 14m. 18⅘s., losing by less than a second. The wind was not in his favor, so that there is no doubt that, given a good day and a good track, Osmond can accomplish the feat with comparative ease.

AT Grimsby, Eng., Aug. 9, Ralph Temple beat Fred Lees in a half-mile race by four lengths, and also won a mile handicap.

NEW YORK DIVISION MEET.

To the Members of New York State Division, L. A. W.:

THE annual Meet of the Division will be held at Cooperstown, Sept. 23 and 24. The general business meeting of the Division will be called at 3 P. M. Sept. 23. The Board of Officers meeting will be at 8 P. M. on the same day.

The headquarters of the Division will be at the Hotel Fenimore where the meetings will be held. It is not intended that this shall be a formal affair, with a duly prescribed programme of entertainment, but an informal gathering of our members, each to enjoy himself as his taste may dictate.

Cooperstown is beautifully situated on the southern end of Otsego Lake, being bounded on one side by its shores, and on the other by its outlet, the Susquehanna River. The lake extends in a direction from north-by-east to south-southwest, about nine miles, and varies in width from three quarters to a mile and a half. It has many bays and points; the first are graceful and sweeping, and the last, low and wooded; they contribute largely to its beauty. The shores are generally high, though greatly varied. On the eastern side, extends a range of mountains, that vary in height from four hundred to six hundred feet. A road along the side of the lake is peculiarly pleasant, and travellers call it one of the most strikingly picturesque roads within their knowledge. The western side of the lake is also high.

The facilities for navigation on Otsego Lake are manifold. Besides the trim little steamers, the "Natty Bumppo" and the "Pioneer," which ply regularly up and down the lake, there are

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

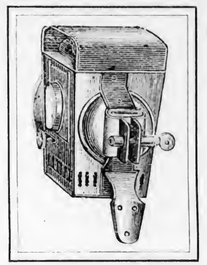
CELEBRATED



KING OF THE ROAD LAMPS.

Manufactured by J. LUCAS & SONS, Birmingham, Eng.

These Lamps are unquestionably the best in the market. Made of the best tin, every part riveted (instead of soldered), they are a thorough piece of workmanship. Being of large size, they throw a very powerful light; but from their peculiar construction, being divided throughout their entire length, they can be placed within a many-poked wheel. They are provided with red side lights and red danger light at the back. The 1885 pattern, here represented, is far superior to the old style. The improvements are: (1) Adjustable axle bearings. (2) Wind-up turner, by which the light may be regulated from the out-side, thus avoiding the annoyance of opening the lamp. (3) Improved arrangement of powerful detached reflector, which prevents its getting smoked. (4) Slide at side for lighting. (5) Patent clip on front containing wick igniter, etc. Sold by neat little steam launches, the "Gom" and "Glimmerglass," always at the service of private parties, also fleets of row boats and sailing yachts, lying at the village docks at the service of pleasure seekers.

STODDARD, LOVERING & CO.,

132 Congress Street - - - - BOSTON, MASS.

A series of delightful runs can be taken about Cooperstown,— each possessing a peculiar charm. Among them may be mentioned the following: —

Up the west side of the lake to the first road on the left, take that and each succeeding left hand road, until you reënter the village. Distance, about eight miles. Up the west side of the lake till you reach the second road, and then on through Pierstown, until you reach the first road running towards the lake; that terminates at a five-mile point. Then south along the lake until you reënter the village, a distance about eleven miles. Up the east side of the lake about three miles, take the road leading across the mountain, which affords some of the finest views of the lake. Turn to the right when you reach the valley beyond, and return to the Fenimore by the "Vision" road, a distance of about nine miles.

Down the river road on the west side about three miles, cross the valley by the first road, Phœnix Mills Bridge, and return to the village by the road on the east side of the river, or continue down the river about six miles from the Fenimore to the Clinton factory, and cross there.

Down the river road to the first road on the right, take that through Toddsville and return to the village, by taking either a road over the hills, two turns to the right, or turn to the left and come back by the river road; the latter about seven miles, and the former about eight miles.

Down the river road to the road below Hartwick Seminary, turn to the right, and at the top of the hill you reach two beautiful little lakes. The view from this point is very fine.

Down the river road about three miles turn to your right, and on to Hartwick Village, a distance about nine miles from the Fenimore. Cross either bridge at the village into Middlefield, turn south and then ride around the Beaver meadow, going on one side of the hill and returning on the other, a distance of about seven miles.

The run to Wykoff Tower, on Mount Otsego, about eight miles north of the Fenimore, affords one of the best and most extensive views of the State.

Hooker Mountain is ten miles south, and rivals Mount Otsego in variety and extent of prospect. Many of the prominent peaks of the Catskills can be seen on a clear day. In going, take the road through Westville and return by the gulf, on the direct road to Schenevus.

Moose Hill, near the line of Middlefield and Westford, about eight miles southeast of the Fenimore, affords an extensive view of a beautiful section of the country.

In riding to Richfield Springs, it is well to go by way of the lake to five mile point, and over the hills to that noted resort, or through Pierstown and over Mount Otsego, and return by way of Schuyler's lake.

In riding to Cherry Valley, those who do not know the roads to that historic village, will do well to follow the telegraph wires leading there, or drive to the head of the lake, then turn to the right and on about four miles to the village, a distance by this route of about fifteen miles.

A run around the lake, a distance of about twenty miles, is one of the most pleasant.

The run to Sharon Springs, by way of Cherry Valley, is about twenty-three miles.

It will be readily seen that members of the Division fortunate enough to attend the Meet can enjoy two days of delightful touring over excellent roads, with scenery unsurpassed, not to mention the pleasant little trips on the lake, rowing, yachting, and fishing.

I trust that all the members of the Division will make an effort to attend this Annual Meeting, at least one day, and I will guarantee that they will be amply repaid for the trouble. Hotel and transportation rates will be published in the next issue of the BULLETIN. In the mean time, any members desiring information not contained in this announcement will please write to the undersigned, who will take pleasure in answering questions, or in giving any information that may be desired.

SOME OF THE TRADE

Delight in informing their friends that we do not sell any wheels to speak of, that the demand for them is very light in wheeling centres, where bicycle riders are posted.

WE APPEND HEREWITH

A few letters from some of our agents who had given up a well-known line of wheels rather than ours.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 18, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We have sold twenty-five Champions so far — twenty-one in the city, the balance outside, which is double the number of fine wheels ever sold in Louisville by both the agencies put together in a year, and I think we will sell not far from one hundred Champions this season. It has not been hard work to sell them, they sell themselves. If an old —— rider is skeptical, he is the man I want to get hold of, and let him first try an —— and then a Champion. In this way we have mounted seven prominent riders on full nickelled Champions. Of course, this has had an effect no choice of wheels for beginners, which we intend to keep up. In fact, the machine has the most good talking and taking points of any machine I ever saw. For instance, you can grasp the large wheel and backbone of an —— just above the step — it is not very hard work to bring the wheel and backbone together. Now try the Champion, and you will find that it don't go together worth a cent; and as the backbones on both wheels are nearly the same, one must give in the head and the other does n't. I have ridden my own mount (a Champion, of course) over 500 miles this season, and have given it a pretty thorough test on rough roads, and I certainly would not exchange it for anything in the wheel line I ever saw. I rode it April 3d (after the snowstorm), eighty miles, from Harrodsburg to Louisville in ten hours, with six inches of mud for forty miles, and not anything loosened but a spoke. I 'll not say anything more about the Champions, now; you may think I 'm trying to sell you one. Our successor has sold one —— so far.

HERE'S ANOTHER.

The New Orleans agent, by far the largest cycle dealer in the extreme South, says:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., April 21, 1887.

Gentlemen: — Your favor of the 15th inst., asking for a candid expression of opinion as regards the American Champion Bicycle, manufactured by Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co., has been received. In reply, I would say that in all my experience I have not found a wheel that gives such entire satisfaction, and sells as readily as the "Champion." I have sold it since first introduced, and in this State it outnumbers other makes of high grade wheels about seven to one. It has proved a durable, easy running wheel, and its reputation here is fully established. You can recommend it to your customers with the utmost confidence. I could send you any number of direct testimonials, but infer you are writing for what is called a "condensed" experience.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

The Cincinnati agency is equally enthusiastic. Any one who has seen the four-horse teams of Cincinnati will understand the reference to the roads in the following.

CINCINNATI, O., April 10, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We are in receipt of yours asking information regarding the Gormully & Jeffery goods. We feel that we cannot say too much as to the good merits of their machines. We have handled the "Ideal" for four years, and the "American Champion" from its first appearance last season. In every instance they have given perfect satisfaction to the purchaser. The American Champion, for ease of running, rigidity, and general durability, is not excelled by any wheel. The American Challenge is a good staunch roadster at a moderate cost, that has proven itself by actual usage on our roads (and worse could not be found in our immediate vicinity), to be a thoroughly reliable machine, answering all the requirements of a good all 'round bicycle at a moderate cost. The Ideal is, beyond a doubt, the best boy's wheel ever produced. The success of the wheel has been phenomenal about Cincinnati, and it is certainly well earned. It affords us great pleasure to offer these machines to the public, knowing that for thorough workmanship, reliable construction, and good quality of material employed in their manufacture, they are all that is claimed for them and sure to give satisfaction. We congratulate you on having added these wheels to your list, and wish you every success that they are bound to bring you.

There are plenty more to follow. In fact, we are prepared to satisfy an extraordinarily keen appetite for reflection. Catalog on application.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26. — The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 47 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Lawson, of Pawtucket, second, and C. M Morse, of Pawtucket, third. Turner rode a Columbia, Lawson a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country; it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize. — Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. L. Damery, 51-inch Columbia Light Roadster, fourth; Ludwig Forster, 54-inch Victor, fifth; S. J. Mills, 58-inch Expert Columbia, did not finish.

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded September 15th.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of, "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

THE following letter from the Westchester (N. Y.) News tells its own story, and gives an idea of one of the quarters in which the League can find allies for it's coming warfare on the roads. The author keeps a little inn or roadhouse, near New York City, where he dispenses the best of hospitality and gives his guests the benefit of a bright wit, sharpened by sundry experiences as a member of the Pope's Legion, of the Fenian army, and of other bands of adventurers. He pays particular attention to wheelmen, and his interest in their patronage has probably helped to call his attention to the roads:

ST. BONIFACE HOTEL.

To the Road Commissioners of West Chester: —

I have heard that you meet at the Town Hall this afternoon for the performance of some supposed duties. If others should withhold the opinions they possess of you in your official capacity, there is no reason that I can see, why I should do so.

If any office-holders that I have the honor, or misfortune, to be acquainted with deserve censure, none more unquestionably deserve both than you, gentlemen. You are by nature and education totally unfit for the offices you had the presumption to aspire to, and to which you were elected by stupidity, and through the rascality of individuals who had no more thought, respect, or care for the welfare of the business community than you collectively have ability to perform the duties which your office demands, or necessity requires. You are an eyesore, in your official capacity, to everything respectable, and by your misplaced ambition bring disrepute on the town, and hardships upon those to whom for the proper development of their business, good roads are a desideratum. The roads in and around here are a disgrace to civilization, and if other men, without waiting for other times, were elected to the position, that you most certainly are unfitted for, much greater success would be achieved by those who depend upon this place being visited by outsiders and persons of means. It is quite possible, you may say in answer to this, if it is possible for you to give your limited ideas proper shape, "that it is not your fault that the proper and necessary repairs, work, etc., etc., is not performed," but my reply to that assumed assumption is, if you cannot do what's necessary in the premises, why don't you get out and give others, who possess the necessary qualifications, the chance to get in.

I am perfectly well aware of the fact that anything I, or any other individual whose brains are unsoiled with a knowledge of rings, or hands unpolluted by political contact, will have any more effect than water is said to have upon the backs of geese, but it is a satisfaction, at least to myself, to say how I feel towards you, and what standing you've got in my humble estimation. And to conclude with this truism, that not a small percentage of those who aspire to office here, and who, unfortunately, get too often elected to important offices, could not in any European county, town, or village, hope to get the appointment of lamp-lighter or bill-poster. Then thank God that the reasons which compelled yourselves or ancestors to depart from the European continent, landed you in a country whose benighted citizens elected you Road Commissioners, — for had you remained on the 'tother side you never, politically speaking, had been heard of.

I have the honor to remain gentlemen, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

RUDOLPH FITZPATRICK.

West Chester, N. Y., July 27, 1887.

AT Willows, Cal., a paper has been circulated and signed by a number of merchants and farmers, wherein it is agreed to boycott all persons riding or employing a person who rides a bicycle. This is a new form of attack. A League member writes that the movement was started on account of the careless and inconsiderate action of a few boy riders.

IT cost the New York division nearly a thousand dollars to carry through the Liberty Bill. The counsel fee was $750. In response to a call for subscriptions, Chief Consul Bidwell tells us that the money is coming in very rapidly and he does not doubt he will get all he wants.

FIFTH ANNUAL MEET AND TOUR OF OHIO DIVISION.

"A SUCCESS in every respect" is the unanimous verdict of all members of the Division, who attended the above Meet and accepted the hospitalities tendered by the local cyclists of Mansfield, Marion, and Springfield for the past three days. The Meet proper took place in Mansfield on the 26th inst., a large touring party from Canton arriving overland on Monday evening, and every train in the morning was crowded with riders and machines giving the efficient reception committee of the Richland Ramblers plenty of work. On arrival of the visitors, they were escorted to the courthouse where roomy storage quarters for wheels were found in the basement; and then to the club rooms of the Ramblers fronting on the Park, which excited many favorable remarks on their arrangement and furnishing. All riders registered in the club album, and were then duly presented with an original and appropriate souvenir in the shape of a gold key representing the freedom of the city, marked "Richland Ramblers, Ohio State Meet, Mansfield, 1887." Over one hundred members assembled in Miller's Opera House at the time set for the annual business meeting, the stage being occupied by Chief Consul Dunn, President Kirkpatrick of the L. A. W., Mayor M'Crory of Mansfield, Secretary-Treasurer Meyer, and reporters of the local press. The Mayor, in a neat address, welcomed the cyclists to the city and asked them to do as they liked with it during their stay. Chief Counsul Dunn responded, and then called the meeting to order and proceeded to deliver his annual address: —

To the Members of the Ohio Division, L. A. W.:

THE months ensuing since our last annual meeting have brought to your officers much of discouragement, labor, and anxiety, while success seems to have followed their efforts in many notable instances.

At the meeting in Massilon, early in September, 1886, considerable discussion was indulged in regarding improvements in the machinery and methods of this branch of our organization. I remember that I there maintained that our system of elections might now be radically changed, so as to conform more strictly to the spirit of American institutions; i. e., to more thoroughly popularize the nomination and election of our officers.

Upon assuming the Chief Consul-ship in November last, it was my hope that the desired reform might be brought about in our spring elections; but the general drift of events in the somewhat troublous history of the past year convinced me that an immediate change in our system would be but temporary, pending the more than probable reorganization of the League of American Wheelmen.

That the League has outgrown her first code of laws is as patent a fact as that her mission is ever growing wider, broader, and more beneficial to her membership and the outside public. What, then, shall be her future organization, scheme of government, and methods of operation, is the query I would address to each one of you; and if you will show your zeal for the cause, by suggestions upon these points, you may have less cause than heretofore to find fault with the machinery of the organization.

While bidding a position on the important committee (instructed to formulate and report next year a new scheme of government), by virtue of another office in the League, as your Chief Consul I desire to represent, upon that committee, the best ideas of the members of the Ohio Division, as well as my own.

I desire to call attention to the very sensible suggestions made last year concerning the value of earnest, individual, local effort on the part of every member toward more fully informing the public of our objects, and enlisting the co-operation of friends in all our undertakings. Let the common good of our fraternity be an inspiration to thorough, prudent, business-like use of all the influence you possess, in behalf of good officers, good laws, and good roads. Enlighten your friends in all parts of the State, by personal information, judicious use of the columns of your local newspapers, and by correspondence, upon the aims, rights, and advantages of our membership. Use your wheels in such a way as to usurp no right for which the League may not defend you, and do all in your power to influence young, careless, and selfish riders against all lawlessness. Our greatest enemies are these untamed brethren, who might be dignified by the title of "William A exanders."

Referring again to the proceedings of the last meeting, it will be remembered that, by unanimous vote and with great enthusiasm, we declared Mr. T. J. Kirkpatrick to be the nominee of the Ohio Division for the office of President of the League of American Wheelmen. That enthusiastic vote was regarded by your officers as instructing them to spare no effort in pushing the candidacy of our nominee; and at the annual election of officers, held in St. Louis in May, Mr. T. J. Kirkpatrick was unanimously, and by acclamation, declared the President of the League.

Thus publicly, and on your behalf, I congratulate our new president upon his well-earned advancement, and assure him of our confidence in his administration of the affairs of the League.

The past year has been one of trial to the League. Discord, bitterness, and disloyalty seemed at one time to threaten her usefulness, if not her very life.

During the agitation and ferment, your representative officers saw fit to submit, in dignified silence, to accusations too base to merit reply, until supported by definite charges. Those charges were never formulated; and in the harmony which environs and enwraps us all, we bury all grievances, and bask in the mutual and fraternal spirit which overshadows us all. To our constituents, we have no apologies to offer, and duty performed is its own reward.

The sales of the Ohio Handbook have not, by any means, equalled the volume predicted by its friends. That it is still of great value cannot be denied, and it is hoped that a more patriotic spirit will influence every member not yet owning it to purchase one or more volumes, even though its usefulness may not at once be apparent.

The addenda, published under the direction of an able committee and sent free to every member, supplies all that was lacking in reliable data up to date of publication.

Your officers hope for sufficient sales of the handbook, in the near future, to enable them to pay, from the proper fund, the balance still due the publishers, for whose patience we are deeply indebted.

Less than eleven months ago, at the time of our last meeting, our membership was 800. The Division had increased sufficiently later in the fall, to entitle us to 17 representatives. The Executive Committee met in Mansfield in January, and divided the State into 17 districts. Our membership at present entitles us to 16 representatives, and we confidently hope for such a continued growth as will entitle us to a representation of 20 in the next meeting of the Board of Officers. This result can only be obtained by patient, persistent, and zealous work on the part of every member.

The grand work accomplished by some of our sister Divisions should nerve us to increase our influence and our working force in every way, in order that we may be ready for effective warfare whenever an emergency arises.

The rights of wheelmen are becoming daily better understood, more fully appreciated, and more widely recognized.

The recent signal victory of the New York Division, under the leadership of her able Chief Consul, whereby liberty was granted to all wheelmen in the stronghold of the enemy, — the parks of the Metropolis, — is an earnest of the future work of the League, and, perhaps, but a precursor of a similar struggle and victory in our own Division.

In Ohio, legislators have provided no adequate laws governing the rights and uses of the highways. These laws must be placed upon our statute books before more direct effort can be made in behalf of special legislation. It would be well for us to take proper action at this time for the commencement of active political work of this nature.

To one who is officially informed upon the extent and value of the labors of your officers, it would seem but fitting that I here express my thanks for the splendid work of the representatives, who have, almost without exception, done faithfully all that lay in their power; and it gives me especial pleasure to record my very sincere appreciation of the laborious and painstaking services of our former secretary-treasurer, Mr. George S. Atwater, and his successor, Mr. Frank C. Meyer.

Permit me, in conclusion, to again urge upon you, each and all, the duty of bringing into our ranks every eligible wheelman in the State. We need them in our efforts to build up good roads and good laws. They need our assistance, fellowship, and protection. There is but one class amongst them whom I would have remain outside the fold, and that is the low-bred and dishonest class, who are financially able, but still unwilling to support our cause, while boastfully enjoying all the benefits we succeed in obtaining.

I would urge you to use often the advantages vouchsafed us by those constant friends of ours, the newspapers. Let us, upon our part, recognize their valuable services, and maintain this friendship for all time.

Respectfully submitted,

During the reading of several portions of the address, and at its close, the members applauded vigorously. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, after which the Secretary-Treasurer read his annual reports, which were duly accepted. The chair appointed a temporary nominating committee, who retired to deliberate, and during their absence an informal discussion on roads and road law was participated in by a number of members. On their return, the committee presented the following report: "Your committee respectfully present the following nominations: For nominating committee, J. W. Spahr, H. S. Livingston, Dr. J. H. Boyer; for secretary-treasurer, Frank C. Meyer; for third member finance committee, J. M. Tryon. On motion, the report was accepted and the gentlemen named were duly elected by acclamation. On motion of Mr. Kirkpatrick, the Chief Consul was directed to select a committee on "Rights and Privileges" to protect and defend wheelmen legally and otherwise by enforcing existing statutes and the passage of new ones looking to better roads and recognizing more fully the rights of bicycles and tricycles as vehicles. After passing a vote of thanks to the wheelmen and citizens of Mansfield, Marion, Prospect, Richwood, and Springfield, for the entertainments tendered during the meet and tour, the meeting adjourned.

The parade formed at the Park at 1.30, and proceeded over a long route ending at the lawn of Mr. Gilbert, where refreshments were served. A pleasant feature during the parade was a stop under a banner inscribed "Welcome Wheelmen," where each rider was decorated with a bouquet by the lady friends of the local club.

The contests were started immediately after the parade and were: A coasting race won by H. U. Gates, of Columbus, with N. T. Krause, of Canton, second, on a "New Rapid" and "Victor" wheel, respectively. The hill-climbing contest was on the celebrated "Catholic Hill," which had never been scaled on a wheel until this day, when the winner and the second in the contest, Messrs. Frank Meyer, of Canton, and Henry Holtkamp, of New Knoxville, both Pony Star riders, succeeded in reaching the top. Seven "crank" riders started but none reached the points scored by the Stars. A ten-mile team road race was then started, Akron, Massillon, and Canton clubs being represented, and after a hot race over a rough and hilly course, B. Work, of Akron, took first place in 42.48; E. H. Pille, Massillon, second; G. C. McNiel, Akron, third; N. T. Krause, Canton, fourth; the score by points being Akron sixteen, Massillon fifteen, Canton thirteen. The visiting riders wheeled to the ball park and witnessed a hotly contested game, resulting in a victory for the Mansfield team, who were vociferously voted "all right" by the visitors on announcement of the score.

In the evening, a promenade concert and refreshments were tendered the division on the spacious grounds of Hon. John Sherman, which was highly enjoyed by all, especially the ladies' men, who could be seen in all directions buzzing the fair maidens of Mansfield, while the fine music of the American Band and Ramblers' Vocal Quartette, fireworks, colored lights, and the moon made a perfect evening and a fitting close to the day's pleasures. The Richland Ramblers deserve the highest praise for their admirable arrangements and the energetic way every item was pushed through on time to the minute.

On morning of 27th, all took the train on the "Nypano" for Marion, and a jolly party it was who crowded into the forward coach reserved for the wheelmen. All will ever remember the innumerable "Bottles Hanging on the Wall" vociferously disposed of (in verse) by the choir and chorus; and the sudden translation of our dignified C. C. into the baggage car at the hands of a vigilance committee, who accused him of perpetrating a chestnut.

After unloading the wheels at Marion, a parade was formed and rode over the principal streets of the town, finally resting on the lawn of Mrs. Baker, Mount Vernon Avenue, where a fine picnic lunch was served under the trees by the Marion ladies. All members, especially the unmarried, — which, of course, are always in the majority when you find a party of men of any age away from home, — have pleasant recollections of toothsome viands served by lovely maidens, and those romantically inclined heaved a deep sigh of regret at our short stay in Marion.

After dining at the Kerr House, the touring portion of the Meet began, one hundred and ten riders leaving at 2 P. M., lead by the pacemakers, Messrs. Barnett and Maxwell, of Springfield, Chief Consul Dunn and aides, Messrs. T. J. Kirkpatrick and H. Olds, who were mounted on a Columbia tandem. Frank Meyer, of Canton, was tourmaster and rode at the rear, keeping a sharp lookout for cripples and stragglers which, luckily, were very scarce. A fine run, without special incident, was made to Magnetic Springs, a distance of twenty-two miles, stops being made at Prospect and Richwood, where refreshments were served to the wheelmen, and an almost ovation, reminding one of the conventional circus-day crowds, received the long line of dusty riders.

After a pleasant night's rest at the Sanitarium Hotel and an early breakfast, the tourists rode to Fountain Park, via Marysville and Milford, where, after dining, a majority of the party decided to divide the afternoon's trip by taking the cars to Urbana; but this did not suit the road toughs, who did not wish to miss the elegant riding offered by the smooth pikes, so a scorching party, lead by Barnett and Maxwell, numbering twelve, started out while the rest were enjoying an amateur game of ball and a bath in the refreshing waters of Brush Lake while waiting for the train, and reached Urbana three quarters of an hour in advance of the tenderfeet. Here all again joined forces and proceeded over the fine Valley Pike to Springfield. The only item of note, and one which was a decidedly novel experience to most of the party, was fording a small creek which crossed the pike without a symptom of a bridge. It is rumored that a number of riders came to grief here, and took headers and sprawls into the wet; but, as the tourmaster was on an excursion to the head of the line at the time, the official report lacks any such interesting items. When half way down, the tour was met by a large party of Springfield wheelmen, lead by our genial eleventh district representative, Joe Spahr, and we were soon escorted to the Arcade and comfortably quartered, — the day's ride summing up fifty miles.

But the great feature of the meet was reserved for its close in the shape of the elegant banquet tendered the Division by the Springfield wheelmen at the Arcade. At 11 P. M. the visitors were escorted to the dining room to the music of an orchestra, and were soon seated at two long tables very tastefully decorated; a floral bicycle, the work of Mesdames Olds and Ricks, being a conspicuous and much-admired object. The following menu was served by an experienced force of waiters, who moved in time to the music between courses: —

Olives.
Mock Turtle.
Broiled Fillet of Salmon à la Béchamel.
Parisienne Potatoes. Sliced Tomatoes.
Broiled Spring Chicken on Toast,
Aux Petit Pois.
Westphalia Ham. Smoked Tongue.
Shrimp Salad à la Mayonaise.
Delicate Cake. Macaroon Cake. Composition Cake.
Vanilla Ice-Cream.
Bananas. Oranges. Peaches.
Figs. Raisins.
Cheese. Crackers.
Java Coffee.

Shortly after midnight, President T. J. Kirkpatrick, who with his lady occupied the head of the table, rapped the assembly to order, and in a pleasant vein introduced the following gentlemen on the list of toasts, the subjects being: —

Address of Welcome.....Judge John C. Miller
The Ohio Division.....Chief Consul Dunn
The Machine That Has Come to Stay..Rev. J. B. Helwig, D.D.
The Wheel Goes.....C. M. Nichols
Chestnuts.....D. T West
The Ladies.....Rev. F. G. Mitchell

These responses were all happily worded and well received, — a pleasant feature also being a part song by the Richland Ramblers' Quartette. On a request made by President Kirkpatrick, all rose and sang "Auld Lang Syne," and the fifth Meet was ended. Nothing occurred during the three days that marred the pleasure of the party in the least, and the boys scattered, after good wishes and the hope that the next gathering may be nearly as good as this, — to excel it would be out of the question.

SOLITAIRE.

CANTON, Ohio, July 29, 1887.

JERSEY.

THE boys are looking forward to a fine afternoon's spurt at Roseville, next Saturday. I understand that the entry lists for the twelve events in the programme have been filled well, as they should have; for one could not devised a series of contests better fitted to give all hands, novices, flyers, and professionals, a better chance. I am told that most of the flyers, who did such big things at the recent Cleveland tournament, will be on hand. "Mark my word," said a friend well up in racing intelligence, "It will be a big afternoon's racing. Crist, Rich, Foster, Stenken, Wilhelm, and the rest of them will have some big battles. I believe that Rowe, if he cares to, or can make any money out of it, will knock the mile record silly. Look at his 2.30 1-4 over a four-lap track at Cleveland, that cannot compare with the Roseville path. I tell you, look out for big sport." And I'm a lookin', and I expect a big attendance at the bed-rock admission prices charged. No doubt all the clubs about New York will be represented by large delegations of members and their best girls, and the uninitiated beaux and belles of Jersey will turn out in large numbers to "see those dear boys ride those lovely bicycles." I am praying hard for fair weather; for I realize that on the success of this venture the future efforts of the managers of the track, toward giving us first-class racing will depend much.

G. J. MARTIN, of the Elizabeth Wheelman, who has been captain since its organization, has resigned that office, on account of business engagements interfering with a too conscientious performance of his duties. A committee has been appointed to wait on him, and ask for a withdrawal of the resignation.

THE Atalanta Wheelmen, of Newark, are to move into their new club rooms, in the North Ward Bank Building, on Broad Street, this week. The clubhouse project has been abandoned for the present.

IN reading the New Jersey World, the other day I saw that some complaint was alleged to have been made against the bicycle riders of Burlington County for reckless riding on the roads. It is probably merely the howl of some of the Chinese enemies of wheelmen; and if there has been any violation of horsemen's rights, it has been, no doubt, by a few of the boys that exist among the cyclers, as well as the drivers of the horse. The local wheelmen should see that a few worthless fellows should not be allowed to prejudice the interests of the fraternity at large.

A "NASTY horrid girl" is cruel enough to suggest that "Daisie" grumbled at Karl Kron's "slight" to the ladies in his book, because the principal and almost only feats of lady riders recorded therein were credited to Jersey women. I, of course, would not venture to uphold her in her spiteful jealousy, but simply utter a humble word of commendation for the prowess and push of the ten lady riders of the Orange Wanderers, and the twelve of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, and bid the Boston fair ones to go and do likewise, and even better; for Mrs. L. H. Johnson's day run of over one hundred and fifty miles remains yet a good high mark to shoot at.

I SHUDDER with a holy horror at the naughty knowledge your Long Island correspondent has of "shandy gaff," as evinced by his actually giving the component parts. He had better stop in his mad career on the downward path, or pretty soon he will be sunk so low in infamy as to be acquainted with the make-up of other such new drinks as stone fences and soda cocktails.

D. B. BONNETT has been elected a trustee of the E. W., to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of P. A. Oliver.

SUNDAY before last, eight of the Passaic County wheelmen had a run from Newburgh to Poughkeepsie and return, coming back to New York by boat.

THE Bloomfield cyclers will decide their mile club championship at Roseville, next Saturday. The B. C., though organized but recently, is rapidly making itself known among the Jersey clubs.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

HERE is a letter which has come to me by post. The writer dislikes my criticism of his book, and alleges that I have done him an injustice. But read what he says: —

DEAR MISS DAISIE: — It almost breaks my heart to observe the thoroughgoing manner in which you try to dash my fond hopes of persuading "the little army of lady riders" to buy, read, and circulate my book. You innocently bear false witness against me by saying (BULLETIN, July 29, p. 53), that it "has passed over this little army without so much as an acknowledgment of its existence," and that, therefore, though the volume has "covered everything else with painful detail, it has little to interest the ladies." Ah, "Daisie!" how could you be so careless? If you will but turn to the final page of my seventy five page index, you will find I have there devoted more than a solid column of fine type to a special alphabet of "women," — a catalogue of nearly one hundred references where my monster volume makes mention of your own sweet sex. The "lady tricyclers" alone claim a dozen references, and the "wives of wheelmen" about as many more. After the great painstaking given to this special index, to have you declare that my book "has no word whatever to say regarding the lady riders," does seem, indeed, the "most unkindest cut of all!" Must I suggest, also, that you are cruelly inaccurate in saying I have written "scores of pages on a savage bull dog." Nineteen pages are not "scores," and Curl was never savage. Indeed, the sole literary object of the volume is to justify his memory in history as the most tender-hearted specimen of his race, as having always "roared you as gently as a sucking dove." So, please don't condemn Curl until you have formed his acquaintance, and don't assume that his character may not be voted charming, even "from a feminine point of view." Let me confess, too, that it was a woman's praise (given long ago in the days when we both were young) of my verbal reminiscences about Curl, which finally led me to conceive the notion of writing his biography, and so led to the production of the monumental tome which his portrait adorns. Since lively modern girls of sixteen and eighteen and twenty have all, more recently, laughed their approval to me of the actual biography, I may surely be pardoned for hoping that "the little army of tricyclers" contains many who will also be able to find some fun in it. My own personal chance for favor among them may have everlastingly gone by, but I want to have Curl be given a fair show for becoming "a pet of the ladies." As for my sketch of "Castle Solitude," I am certain that, among an equal number of men and women, who might have the patience to peruse it, more of the latter would be interested than the former. Curiosity in studying the secret and forbidden phases of life is not the exclusive attribute of either sex; but, as regards the peculiarities of the queerest lodging-house that ever existed on this planet, there can be no doubt of their making the stronger appeal to the imagination of that half of humanity whose interests are chiefly domestic, because taken "from a feminine point of view."

KARL KRON.

I DO not wish to do any one an injustice, and especially would I avoid this in the case of our eccentric friend from New York; but nothing that he says above changes my view of his book. I have carefully looked over his index, and I find that he has indeed given a great deal of space under "women," but I venture to say that there are nearly as many words in the index as there are words in the book relating to "the little army of wheel women." Casual mention is made of certain records made by the ladies, and here and there brief notice is taken of some cycling episode in which the ladies figured, but beyond this there is nothing. Allusions to the Cary Sisters, to "Cecil Dreeme," to "Maidens of College Days," and others, may make good the claim that woman figures in the book; but they do nothing to disprove my original statement that Mr. Kron passed over a very important branch of cycling.

BUT why am I saying all this? I have been long enough in journalism to know the tricks of the trade, and I can imagine Mr. Kron laughing to think that he has driven me to another notice of his book. I do not much care, for I do not begrudge him a successful issue to his venture, and, moreover, it gives me what is dear to the feminine heart, — the last word.

I FIND the following in a Western paper: "A bicycle for lady riders is promised for this fall to the Washington ladies. There are several fair riders in that city ready to take to this lady bicycle when it comes. It will be so arranged that a lady who will learn to ride it can do so with as much grace and propriety as she could ride a tricycle. It will be a modification of the Rover type of bicycle for gentlemen, with the backbone or frame curved downward like the letter U between the wheels, so that when the lady sits upon the saddle there will be no obstruction in the way of her dress between her feet and the saddle. 'The only trouble,' said the dealer, 'will be in mounting. Ladies who ride will have to have gentlemen with them to assist them in mounting.'"

THE item serves to fill a few lines of space in the paper, and therefore has its uses; but I wonder if the writer really thinks there is anything behind the statement. I wonder if any one seriously imagines that the ladies will ride the bicycle. If such a thought is cherished, I hope it will be dismissed before money is sacrificed in building machines that are not wanted. The ladies do not want bicycles. There is room enough for improvement in the tricycle to engage the attention of makers for many years to come. The tricycle can be improved by a very large percentage, and there is no need to talk of two-wheeled machines which must be balanced, and from which there is increased vibration over the tricycle.

IF I were to make a tricycle for ladies, I would do away with the handle-bar and the automatic steering, and I would make it very much lighter. I became a convert to handle-bar steering because I found that I could climb hills much easier and could get more out of the machine on the levels, but experience has convinced me that side-handles, placed where the bar-handles are now located, would be still better, and would give a lady more ease of mounting.

AT first I was willing to submit to the trouble of clambering into the saddle from behind, for I found compensation in the advantages of the handle-bar steering, but I now believe that we can have ease of mounting and ease of riding in happy combination.

REGARDING automatic steering, I will say that it is well enough if the forward wheel runs true, but with a spring to correct vibration on the front wheel, you will rarely find a true-running wheel, and the rider has to hold back against the spring almost unceasingly. I have had aching hands to testify to this very many times.

AGAIN, I believe it to be within the power of American mechanics to so construct a wheel that the dresses of lady riders will go free of oil.

AND now I am off to the backwoods for a rest. Cycles and cycling will be laid aside for a brief season, and pastoral pleasures will give me occupation.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

HERE is good policy for the League, right in a nutshell: —

"Good roads are the basis of commercial prosperity, as the Romans knew when they built roads which are models to-day. With free bridges and good roads Pennsylvania will be doubly prosperous." — Philadelphia News.

IF Pennsylvania only practised what her newspapers preach, in the main, the highways and bye-ways of the promised land would not be a circumstance to those of this State for smoothness and beauty. If but a small, a very small, like modicum of the preachings were practised, Pennsylvania would have fairly good roads. But she doesn't. Not Pennsylvania. Throughout the entire territory, big enough to almost swallow England, a succession of execrable roads is the rule. The solitary exception to prove it is the Lancaster pike and its few connecting roads, to which the Philadelphian is naturally limited for pleasurable riding. Some few riders get a great deal of fun out of the Jersey pikes, just across the river; other hardened bikers make long cross-country runs, taking the bad with patience for the sake of the oases of hard level highway which are occasionally found. To such of these as have not "been there" this season, let me tender a word of warning: Avoid all of Montgomery County, east of the Schuylkill. It used to be that the Bethlehem Pike, leading out from Chestnut Hill, was fair riding. Now it is barely possible to push a wheelbarrow over it. The Skippack, Plymouth, and Limekiln pikes are all atrocious, and the old York road is even worse than usual. The heavy rains we have had here lately have washed bare and exposed each individual stone in Montgomery County, and the stones are crowding each other hard for place in the roads. One of the oldest Philadelphia riders — and he is not yet in his dotage — was obliged to consume an hour and twenty minutes in covering the five miles from White Marsh up to Morristown, via Cold Point, — mounted on a Columbia bicycle, too. The road race for the Tryon cup continues to absorb all attention. Messrs. Hill, and Richwine, of the Pennsylvania Club, are each to be mounted on 35-lb Ivel Safeties, geared to 60 inches. Bailey, of the Century, and McGlathery, of the same club, are well spoken of for first place. The two Gideons will not ride with the Germantown club, even if that organization should have a team; and Sam, the younger and stronger of the two, declares that nothing could tempt him into such a race on a bicycle.

Kirk Brown, president of the Century Wheelmen, was married on Monday, August 8, to Miss Jennie Turner, and the pair have gone to Boston on a short wedding trip. Mrs. Brown has frequently been Kirk's tandem partner for long trips through the country — at one time this spring covering over fifty miles in one day. She is as sweet and pretty a little cyclist as ever mounted a wheel, and Kirk is to be heartily congratulated.

PHACTO.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

RETURNING to the city after a week's outing down Long Island. I find things cycling in very much the same quiet state as when I left. The arrival of more salubrious weather has brought out an increased number of park riders, the drives on Saturday having a liberal sprinkling of wheelmen, the Brooklyns and Long Islands being most conspicuous in numbers.

Luscomb, of the Long Islands, has just returned from Cottage City, whither he went to attend the Massachusetts Meet and learn to ride a bicyclette. He expresses himself as much pleased with the dwarf and chances are he may adopt one as his permanent mount.

Visiting Huntington recently, I was much surprised and pleased, to find cycling booming in that thrifty and pretty little village. A club has been formed with twelve members, which number will shortly be increased to twenty-five. It is their intention to become a League club, in fact most of the boys are already of the fold. The Huntington boys are hail-fellows-well-met and tourists are advised to stop over and see them.

Messrs. Scudder and Grummond of the Huntington Club, arrived here Saturday, en route for a week's tour up the Hudson. They were the guests of the Brooklyn Club, and expressed themselves as well pleased with their reception and entertainment. On Sunday, together with a party of Brooklyns, a sail was taken to Long Branch, followed by one of those excellent dinners provided by the Peninsular House at Sea Bright, and a run over the famous Rumson Neck Road to Red Bank and return. The party numbered sixteen, and a jolly time was reported all around.

I notice in your Long Island notes, that our Flushing friend recommends "shandy gaff" as a suitable beverage for riding. Our experience is, that unless the subject has a strong head and a stronger stomach he had better postpone his "shandy gaff" experiments until the day's riding is over. Although not a prohibitionist, experience has taught me that temperance drinks are the best to ride on, particularly in hot weather

We have heard some complain that cycling is an expensive recreation. According to the report of a tavern keeper near the Park, some of our fellow citizens have reduced economy to a science. A certain prominent wheelman recently ordered a light meal, and requested the waiter to give him a piece of lemon. Squeezing the lemon in his glass of water and helping himself to sugar, he prepared for himself a refreshing lemonade, and was much surprised, and very indignant when informed that the establishment did not supply lemons and sugar gratis.

Raymond is off for a two weeks' sojourn at Shelter Island. Vail is at Schooleys Mountain, and Meeteer started on Sunday for a tour through the State to Lake George and return. Nothing has as yet been done regarding the opening of the East Drive of Prospect Park to wheelmen. Several have used it with indifferent success, some getting through all right and others being requested to turn back and take the West Drive. From careful observation I am inclined to think that its free use by wheelmen would result in no inconvenience to any one, and as it only requires the asking to obtain its use, it would be well to have the matter settled at once and for all.

The long delayed, but exceedingly satisfactory news of the coming State Meet at Cooperstown is very gratifying, and already we hear of parties organizing to take in the good things promised. It is seldom that our division fails to carry out anything that it undertakes, but the proposed week's encampment at Cooperstown in August, was one of it's few failures. It was this division which conceived the idea, but it was left for Massachusetts, to not only follow, but successfully carry out that idea by a most successful week at Cottage City. The three days' Meet will in a measure atone for our failure, and will lead us to look forward to grander things in the future.

The Brooklyn Club is planning a weeks' tour for the first week in September, taking in the Water Gap and the Hudson BON.

THE engagements of the American team abroad are as follows: North Shield, Aug. 22; Jarrow, Aug 20; Tenby, Aug. 24 and 27; Swansea, Sept. 3; Newport, Sept. 8 and 9; Swansea, Sept. 17.

CAMDEN.

THE boys are waiting anxiously for the completion of their track; in the mean time they are practising on a horse track, and some very good time has been made on it, 1.45 for a half mile being the best time made so far.

THE club took in thirteen new members last meeting night, and we held a rousing meeting, lasting until nearly 12 p. m.

OUR monthly club run was enjoyed by thirteen members, after which a course of refreshments were served; and just here I warn you if you do not want to get a Jersey boy sick, do not give him melons. Mr. Secretary, how I do wish you could have been along.

MR. B. O. MILLER, Ex-consul, is in good condition this season, and, it is rumored, is making fast time.

THE Camden wheelmen intended putting a team in the Tryon road race, which is to be held in Phila. Sept. 10, but i: was thought of too late, the entries were full.

MR. H. B. WEAVER, Camden's fast track man is departing for a three weeks' sojourn down in Jersey, and on his return we will expect great time from him, as we understand he intends putting all his time in riding.

WE were talking recently with an Englishman who stated that on the other side he had a bicycle that when he was mounted on it, he could look into a second story window and see the floor; how some people can equivocate.

Yours truly, NEDMAC.

SHENANDOAH VALLEY HOTELS.

IN view of the numerous inaccuracies in the Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Maryland Road-Book, as pertains to hotels along the route through the Shenandoah Valley, there is given below a list of the hotels, correct to date. Is it asking too much of parties owning these books that they make these corrections? And is it not proper that all L. A. W. members should carry their tickets and avail themselves of the very considerable advantages offered by these hotels? The local consuls take considerable pride in the success of this part of their labors, and would like to see proper appreciation: —

Harper's Ferry	Green's Hotel.
Charlestown	Carter House.
Berryville	Virginia House.
Martinsburg	St. Clair Hotel.
Winchester	Taylor Hotel.
Strasburg	Central House.
Woodstock	Shenandoah House.
New Market	Central House.
Luray	Hotel Laurance.
Harrisburg	Revere House.
Staunton	Hale House.
Natural Bridge	Forest Inn.

All give special rates of $1.50 per day, except at Luray and Natural Bridge, where we get $2.00 rates All give proportionate price for single meals or lodging, except Charleston, where rate for single is fifty cents each.

Recommended, though not yet appointed: —

Mount Jackson	Wilson's Hotel.
Lexington	Irvin House.

LOCAL CONSULS.

Martinsburg
Winchester	L. N. Barton.
Woodstock	N. B. Schmitt.
Harrisonburg	P. S. Thomas.
Staunton	F. R. Webb.

The lower portion of the pike is in specially fine order. There are seven miles just east of Harrisonburg lately repaired, but ridable. The repair camp is now at Staunton, working east. Some of the hills between Mount Crawford and Staunton are in bad condition from storms; but don't be discouraged. A party of ordinary easy riders made the last twenty-five miles, — Harrisonburg to Staunton, — in three and one half hours.

NEW ORLEANS.

THE Division Racing Board has finally completed the programme of our third annual race meet, which will occur Thursday, September 15, at Audubon Park, in this city. Instead of charging an admission fee, some six thousand personal invitations will be issued, thus insuring a large attendance, and serving as a sort of introduction of the general public to cycle racing. The following comprises the list of events: — Half-mile boys' race; one-mile, for members of the Louisiana Cycling Club; one mile, for members of the New Orleans Bi. Club; half-mile dash; one hundred yards slow race; one-mile State championship; quarter-mile, hands off; one-mile, handicap; half-mile ride and run; half-mile consolation; two and one-half miles team race, five men to each team.

THE one-mile State championship promises to be a grand race. Last year, Guillotte, Hughes and Hill, all of the N. O. B. C. were the only contestants. Hill won by a scant six feet, Guillotte second. Guillotte had beaten both Hill and Hughes the day before in the club championship, but in a subsequent race he fell and bruised his side and leg considerably, so was not in the best of trim for the State championship the next day; hence, this year's race will be for blood. Hill, so rumor says, will ride a Columbia racer, and Guillotte is training hard on a Champion roadster; whether he will ride it on September 15 remains to be seen. Hughes, also, is expected to use a racer. But this is not all. George Guedry, and Ben Rea, of the N. O. Bi. Club, C. T. Mitchell, of the Louisiana Cycling Club, and possibly J. B. Walters, of the Shreveport Club, will this year also take a hand. They are all good men, and the extreme uncertainty which overshadows the race is what causes the interest.

THE Gormully and Jeffrey Co. have donated the medal for the championship race; and well they might, such is the number and popularity of their wheels in this neighborhood.

THE Louisiana Club has issued a schedule of runs for the month. The first, a hare and hounds, or paper chase, which was fixed for the 6th inst., was interfered with by rain, which for nearly two months has fallen almost daily, bringing road riding to a temporary halt, and causing a painful uncertainty to hover about all set runs. C. C. Hodgson has offered a medal to the member of Louisiana's making the greatest mileage between September 1, 1887, and April 1, 1888, but stipulated that not less than ten men should enter for competition, each to be provided with a reliable cyclometer. Unfortunately, while more than the ten are willing to enter, not more than five or six have cyclometers, and the chances are that Mr. Hodgson's kind offer will hardly be taken up. The captain of the club has also offered a couple of prizes for the best and second best mileage to April 1, 1888, which will no doubt cause some good scores to be handed in monthly.

THE New Orleans Club held its first club run in months on the 29th ult. They intend suspending their initiation fee for a time, and will make a strong effort to increase their ranks. And, by the way, I have previously neglected to mention that the club, at its July meeting, finally passed the amendment making League membership no longer compulsory, and is now no longer a League club.

JULY 30th a bicycle race of about five-eighths of a mile was run at an out-door festival, given for the benefit of a local cause, which was won by R. W. Abbott, by three feet, in 2 17; H. W. Fairfax, second; R. G. Betts, third; C. B Guillotte, A. Bushler. O.Guillotte's rear tire came off about two hundred yards from the start, forcing him to abandon the contest.

WALTER C. CLEPHANE, of Philadelphia, and Lewis P. Clephane, of Washington, arrived in Boston on Sunday morning, the 7th inst, and while at the Tremont House were waited on by Dr. W. H. Emery, who gave them a glowing account of the fine roads about the city, and offered his services to show them around on the following day; but when the time arrived, much to the chagrin of the genial doctor, they announced their intention of immediately proceeding to Providence. The doctor accompanied them as far as Dedham, when he signified his intention of returning to the city, and preferring charges for their immediate expulsion from the League for their contumacy.

DENVER.

WHILE in the east, thermometers have been hovering in the region of 100 deg. and over, we have been enjoying the delightful air of Colorado. Every Sunday from now until December 31, will see members of the Denver Ramblers taking their weekly run to the convenient cañons of the Rocky Mountains, some of which are scarcely fifteen miles from Denver, and are reached over the finest natural roads in the country. Here we lie around and rest, climb to heights and view the plains, or sometimes we try our skill at trout fishing. On July 4, about a hundred of our wheelmen indulged in an excursion to Colorado Springs. We chartered a train for the 3d and 4th, and ran on our own time. At Colorado Springs we were met by the wheelmen, with a brass band, and escorted to the hotel. During our stay we wheeled to Glen Ayre, through the Garden of the Gods, and to Manitou, where we spent the night. On the 4th we took in Cheyenne Cañon, and Seven Falls, rambling past a toll-gate, where an admission of twenty-five cents is usually charged. A stray picnic party also received our attention. At Colorado Springs a firemen's tournament was in progress. We returned to Denver on the night of the 4th, well satisfied with our sojourn. RETLAW.

ROAD RACNG.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I am glad to notice, by the last number of the BULLETIN just received, that my friend, Dr. Blackham, properly characterizes road racing, and "talks right out in meeting" in a very characteristic way. The doctor is right, and, as usual, strikes the nail square on the head. On the same page appears a communication from "Phacto," in which he treats of the rights (or wrongs) of cyclers, and of a proposed wrong to drivers and horsemen, namely, a proposed road race on the Lancaster pike. Imagine yourself driving a horse of sensitive and "nervous" organization on the pike during the race, and meeting a group of cyclers going like the wind! But it is stated that "permission has been accorded the committee, by the company controlling the pike, to give the race, provided the company is relieved of all respo sibility in regard to any accidents which may occur as a result of the race." How can the company be "relieved of all responsibility" when it has the power to prevent furious driving and does not? I sincerely hope this race may not be run. Cyclers especially, who need at times to assert their rights upon the highway, should be, and need to be, careful of the rights of others.

PHILA., Aug. 10, 1887.

"XM. M.'S" CLAIMS UPON "L. A. W."

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Your friendly recommendation of July 22, to "guarantee satisfaction for every League member" who invests $2.00 in the purchase of my "encyclopædia of wheeling," tempts me into asking attention to its claims as a "League document," worthy of general circulation on that special account.

When the scheme was first sprung upon the public, by my call for the prompt pledging of one thousand "dollar subscribers," as a preliminary to attempting the formal canvass for three thousand (Wheel, Jan. 25, 1884), your official predecessor of that period, in giving hearty editorial support to the call, said: "Karl Kron, as an individual, is in a better position to publish a work of this character than the League; and he proposes to do what the League cannot accomplish, for lack of funds" The book then promised was to have 300 pages of 75,000 words; whereas, the actual book contains 908 pages and 675,000 words.

Even had funds not been lacking, the League could not with propriety, have issued so "odd and cranky a specimen of book-making" (to quote the Philadelphia Times, which also calls it "useful to wheelmen,") as the one on which I have risked a cash outlay exceeding $6,000. But, as you are good enough to remark, these eccentricities of mine "raise it above dulness, and make it all the more interesting." No chapter of the volume was put together more slowly and laboriously than the one giving the history of the League (pp. 615-633), and this also had a wide circulation in the "Wheelmen's Reference Book"; while the summary of the League's transportation arrangements, and the seven pages addenda, which concisely chronicle the League's measures for maintaining its political integrity during the opening months of '87, required an enormous amount of painstaking. Altogether, they comprise 30,000 words, or enough to make a sizable book, if printed in coarse type.

When this history of the League first appeared (May '86), it was warmly praised by the Springfield Union, which quoted a column or two from it; and the Wheelmen's Gazette reprinted these extracts in December. Hence, I say that, while it would not be proper for the League to republish these 30,000 words as an "official handbook," they nevertheless serve in some measure the uses of such a book, and will be read by many whom such a book could not reach. As a business man, therefore, I ask such officers and members of the League as are pleased with the manner in which I have presented its claims to the public, to reward me by endeavoring to place my book where it will best confront that public: I mean, by selling copies of it to public libraries and reading-rooms, and to the proprietors of the chief hotels. (No "reduced-rates" resorts are wanted as patrons.)

I venture to trespass still further on your indulgence, by explaining how I hope to sell the first edition of 6,200 books, whereof some 4,600 have been despatched by me to various depositories, during the past two months. In the case of nearly every town where two or more of my subscribers reside, I send one of them a package containing a few extra books, in order that the sale of these at $2.00 each, may offset my loss on "half-price" supscription copies. The costs of thus packing and delivering five or six is no more than it would be for two or three; and I prefer to have the unsold books thus scattered throughout the country, in two hundred or more depositories, rather than keep them in a single pile at the manufactory in Springfield.

Another month or more will probably be required to complete the task of thus distributing the books; and I shall then issue circulars which I trust will have persuasive power enough to send local purchasers to the various depositories. Otherwise, as a final alternative for clearing out their stock, I shall forward stamped labels for mailing books thence to distant purchasers, instead of sending such labels to the manufactory. Hence, it appears that all I ask of any subscriber who receives extra books from me is, that he shou d give them storage, and should ultimately deposit them in the post-office, if I fail to send buyers to him. Of course, my hope is, that many recipients will be enough pleased by the volume to take active measures for selling it among their acquaintances; but I do not urge this course upon any one. I am quite willing to do all the work myself, if only they will grant me the slight favor of holding the volumes subject to my order. When sale has once been made of these which I now send out with the "half-price" copies, the experiment will end. I do not expect to forward later supplies to depositories, except in a dozen of the chief cities, — unless some volunteer enthusiast definitely asks for the chance to help me further.

Every subscriber whose "specially numbered and autographed copy" awaits him at a depository, can get it there on payment of the promised half-price, namely, $1.00. Every other subscriber who wishes his copy specially delivered, prepaid by mail or express, is requested to send me $1.20 (preferably by order on American Express Company, which costs only five cents and is absolutely safe, unlike that wretched invention, "the U. S. postal note," though I will not refuse to deliver it to any subscriber who sends simply $1.00. Every subscriber who has changed his residence to one of the large cities (or to any smaller place where I have an agent), may obtain from me an order which will enable him to get the book at the depository there, together with a duplicate of the original autographed fly-leaf, on payment of $1.00.

Every subscriber who does n't care to claim the book at that half-price promised, I am quite willing to release from his pledge, — provided only he will take the trouble to send a postal card releasing me from obligation to hold his copy longer. All who may henceforth forward me money-orders, in claiming their books, are invited to mention the number of wheelmen in their respective towns, and the number of books they themselves may be willing to accept on deposit for possible sale. All who may remember consenting to act as agents, in response to my circular of April 15, '86, and who have not yet received any packages from me, are invited to tell me of their present readiness to receive them, and to give me the names of any subscriber known to have removed from their town.

The bulk of letter-writing demanded of me in distributing these 4,600 books has been too great to allow of my sending written notice, except with the more important packages. In very many cases I have had to assume that the recipient's perusal of my printed circular, "Selling the 30,000 Books," would suffice to make my wishes clear. Those who have not yet read it, or reported to me, would confer a favor by notifying me of the books' arrival, — without waiting for any further reminder. I wish, too, that the 254 "paid-in-advance-men" would all report to me. I 've sent out books, marked "paid," for almost all of them, — either directly, or through depositories, — and I should like to have the receipts of the same acknowledged. A postal-card will suffice, in cases where the volume has not been examined enough for fulfilment of the request printed on it's 714th page. As regards the few "paid" books which I still hold, I wish to be assured of their owners' addresses before sending. I am ready also, to despatch the volume "on approval" to any League member who has not seen it, provided he will agree either to send me $2.00 for it at the end of a week, or else pay seventeen cents for return postage. THE Long Island wheelmen have published a year book containing a deal of useful information for clubs. It has thirty-two pages, and an infold which gives a picture and plans of the new clubhouse. A list of offices, committees, rules, laws, and a roll of members comprise the contents of the book.

DR. J. F. LEWENBURG, of Philadelphia, has returned from his trip across the water, and writes a very glowing description of the pleasure he had awheel in Albion. He rode fourteen hundred miles on English roads, and took twelve dozen pictures with his camera, which was slung on his back in a knapsack.

C. H. SMITH has invented a new luggage carrier. It consists of one piece of steel bent at the ends into hooks, which clasp the handle bar, then projecting forward for six inches and bent down so as to rest against the lower part of the head of the wheel, forming a rigid support for the weight of the bundle. Straps are then passed around the bundle so as to secure it to the support.

CHIEF CONSUL BIDWELL was in Boston last Sunday, but was hurried off to the Point of Pines by Vice President Hayes and the editor. BICYCLE racing for money prizes is a dead card in Omaha. It has been murdered by the shameless cupidity of the men who profited by it. From an Eldorado for the peripatetic pedal-pusher they have transformed the city into a mass of 200,000 cold shoulders, the coldest of which are possessed by gentlemen who admire cycling for its health-giving qualities and the innocent pleasure it bestows. The professional wheelman has had his day in Omaha. — Chronicle.

Two Massachusetts wheelmen sat on a settee in front of the Pawnee House at midnight during the Meet at Cottage City. They were approached by a guardian of the peace who informed them that it was time for them to go to bed, and he threatened to arrest them if they did not at once turn in, — they turned in. As this was the only case on record of this kind, it goes to show that Massachusetts wheelmen retire early.

MR. W. J. ALLEN, of Boston, has been looking over the situation in Worcester, with a view of arranging for a bicycle meet, to be held in that city within a few weeks. Mr. Allen is in correspondence with the leading professionals, and with others interested in the success of this sport. He intends, if he is supported in his efforts, to have a series of professional and amateur races, and is quite certain that the best riders will come there after the New Jersey races are over.

A FRIEND writes us from Cottage City as follows: "The best joke ever gotten off on K. K. has just been perpetrated here. A young lady on looking into XM. miles for the first time, very innocently inquires, if the bull dorg was K. K.'s portrait. She really wanted to know, too, which makes the joke very much to the point." The writer's reputation for truth and veracity has never been questioned by us, but we must confess that this shakes our confidence a little.

DANIELS, trainer of the Columbia team, is responsible for the following statement: "Dick Howell is coming to this country this fall, and probably Sandy Sellers will come with him, and these two will race somewhere with W. A. Rowe for $1000 a side, and the championship of the world. The race will be for the best three heats out of five. They will go to a place offering the best inducements. Lynn and Springfield will probably bid against each other for the privilege and it may be that Roseville will be a bidder.

THE second annual tournament of the R. I. Division L. A. W. will be held at Narragansett Park, Providence, Tuesday, September 20, the first racing day of the State Fair, racing being called at 1.30 P. M. There will be prizes to the value of $350, and a good programme of events is now being perfected by the committee. Mr. George B. McAuslan is chairman of the Racing Committee.

THE members of the Maverick Wheel Club of East Boston have arranged for a race in Winthrop on September 5, Labor Day. The ten-mile race, open to members of the club, will be run on the morning of the above date, the course being as follows: — Start foot of hill on other side of Junction, over bridge, and turn into Pleasant Street, continue round to Great Head bridge, then turn sharp to left on Shirley Street, continue round the corner of Pleasant and Main Streets, round this circuit twice, and finish there at tape.

H. O. DUNCAN, Paul Medinger, and Jules Dubois of the European team, met W. J. Morgan in London by appointment, on Wednesday July 27. Foreign engagements were talked of, but the ultimate result was a resolve not to patronize the Fatherland and France this year, as Mr. Duncan informed Morgan that gates are hard to get now in Germany, and Morgan therefore announced his intention of postponing his team's intended continental trip, as they can have more engagements than they can fill up to October in Great Britain and Ireland. Morgan renewed his offer to match his team against Duncan's, however, but the event hangs fire. — Wheeling.

ON Sunday August 7, the Missouri Bicycle Club made a twelve mile run to camp meeting at Camp Marvin. After dinner some returned to the city, but the others remained and held a song service under a big tree. It was quite a surprise to the deacons and elders to see the athletic young fellows in shorts and flannel shirts singing one hymn after another with great effect. "Well, well," said a good sister, "who would have believed it? We thought you came out to satisfy your curiosity, and here you are running opposition to our choir. We would like you to come up on the platform and sing with us, only we're a little afraid your knickerbockers might disturb the peace of the meeting."

IT seems that Howell was due at a race meeting in Birmingham, July 16, but did not turn up. The Mail of that city explains the cause of Dick's absence as follows: "All sorts of rumors have been circulated about Howell's absence, but we have it on the best authority, that Howell was not set upon by a crowd. Our informant, who hails from the scene of the encounter, says the champion was out driving, and meeting a milk cart on the road, pulled up and roundly abused it's occupant because he impeded his progress. It seems a mutual agreement was arrived at, and the pair turned into an adjoining field, where the milkman triumphed over his opponent, gaining a complete victory. A well-known Leicester sportsman has deposited £25 on the milkman's behalf for a genuine encounter, and it is not at all unlikely that the champion wheelman of the world will be turning his attention to pugilistic matters.

A CORRESPONDENT from Phœnix, Arizona, writes: "In Phœnix, as in many other Western towns, cycling when introduced was objectionable to a few. At once a petition was gotten up which read, 'As the lives and property of the citizens of Phœnix are in danger,' etc., — too long to give details. One hundred and twenty-five names were signed, twenty-five of which own or drive horses —this was found to be a fact on investigation — the remaining hundred had nothing to do with either vehicles or horses. When this petition was handed to the city consul it was submitted to the prosecuting attorney. The end of it is that nothing was done, and the two Arizona members of the L. A. W. enjoy the rights which belong to every wheelman."

THE new clubhouse of the Toledo (Ohio) Cycling Club is nearing completion. The house will cost $3,500, and the furnishings and interior decorations will bring the total cost perhaps as much higher. The frontage is thirty feet on Ontario Street, and runs back some sixty-six feet. The building is ornamented with terra cotta and marble trimmings, with the best cathedral and polished double thick French sheet first quality glass. The entrance will be through a broad portico direct to the wheel room, and back of it a first-class gymnasium furnished with apparatus complete for such exercise as the gymnast requires. This constitutes the main or ground floor. The floor beneath contains a bathroom about twelve feet square, with cement floor and attachments for shower baths. Leading off it is a dressing room, with a locker for each member of the club, having his name burned in gilt on a China plate on the door. A furnace will be on this floor, which is being constructed with a view to heating with natural gas, and providing hot water the entire year. On the second floor are the parlors, music-room, and secretary's office, to which access will be had from a fine staircase off the right of the wheelroom. The parlors are to be finished in antique oak; the upholstering in leather. Velvet carpets and rich portières, together with the latest and costliest designs of furniture, will make this a pretty and luxurious clubhouse.

THE wheelmen of St. Louis are particularly fortunate just now, in having such a person as W. M. Brewster around. If they want to know anything about the national affairs of the League of American Wheelmen they go to W. M. Brewster, Treasurer of the L. A. W. If they want to know anything about Missouri Division they take W. M. Brewster, Chief-Consul, over on the other side where the treasurer can't hear him. If they want to know anything about racing they bar the other two, and call on just W. M. Brewster, member of the Racing Board. If they want any information about the big Missouri Club, they visit W. M. Brewster, captain of the Missouri Club. As he has not yet indicated which title he prefers, some of his sportive club members have compromised by calling him "papa," which is supposed to be a corruption of Pooh-Bah. — Post-Dispatch.

MR. H. S. STEVENSON, a Pittsburg, Pa., artist, makes a practical use of his wheel in his sketching tours. To transport a sketching outfit upon the bicycle calls for more compactness in packing the requisites. Umbrella and easel can be strapped to the handle-bar of the machine, while stretchers, etc., can be fastened back of and below the saddle. The colors, brushes, etc., should be placed in a leather satchel for water, or sketch box for oil colors, fashioned like a knapsack, and so worn by the rider, leaving his hands free. So equipped, the bicycling artist is completely independent, and roam about at his own sweet will in search of subjects. Having selected a boarding-house, he is not "cribbed, cabined, and confined" like his brother, the pedestrian, who cannot hope to sketch farther from his bed and board than one or two miles, no matter how alluring the subject. The cycling artist can mount his ever-ready wheel, and speed to a sketching ground ten miles away, if need be, and yet return for dinner and supper. It is easy to see that the wheelman's advantage over the pedestrian artist is as two to ten, and that, while a circle of four miles in diameter only is available for the artist that walks, one of twenty miles in diameter is opened to the artist that rides a wheel.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

THE indications are that the third Annual Race Meet of the Williamsport Wheel Club, held Aug. 27, will be a grand success. No trouble nor expense has been spared by the club in endeavoring to make this Meet the leading cycling event of the State. The programme has been carefully arranged and handsome prizes selected for each event. The half-mile national L. A. W. championship will be contested, and three elegant medals—gold, silver and bronze—selected by the L. A. W. Racing Board, await the flyers. The track was pronounced by racing men, who attended the meet last year, to be the finest in the State, and in fact, to have but few equals outside of Springfield and Lynn. Slager, of Scranton, Pa., broke the State record for one mile in 2.47. The club promises to have the track in better condition than ever, and fast time may be expected. The boys have arranged for some fine runs Sunday, and wish as many of their friends as can to remain with them over that day. Go to Williamsport, Aug 27! Honor and valuable prizes await the racers, and a good time for all.

IN order to give every racing man an opportunity to own a racing machine, Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering & Co. would call attention to their advertisement on inside of the front cover.

THE PATH.

THE CLEVELAND TOURNAMENT.

THE Cleveland tournament, held under the auspices of the Cleveland Bi. Club, was a grand success. Here is what the Leader says of the results of the first day:—

There were thirteen events, and with few exceptions, they resulted in something never before accomplished. W. A. Rowe, the fastest rider of the world, made the fastest mile ever ridden at a race meeting in this country. His mile was also the fastest ever ridden on a quarter mile track or any other track in America except that at Springfield. Only one other rider in the world has made the mile in the same time, and that was Furnivall, an English amateur, who turned the mile in 2.30 last year. Rowe's time at the track yesterday, 2.30 1-4, was the fastest mile of the year anywhere, under any conditions. His record mile, 2.29 4-5, was not made at a race meeting. This was one performance which distinguishes the day. The average time of the races was faster than that of any race meeting in America heretofore, and nearly every State record was broken. Foster's mile in the last handicap of the day, which was made in 2.46, was the greatest ride of any wheelman starting at the scratch, handicapped by as large a field of fast riders. Crist made the fastest quarter ever ridden by an amateur in this country in the ninth race of the day, and again there never was a race meeting in America where the slow classes and the novice race were won in such fast time.

Huntington broke the State tricycle record, 3.14, made by A. B. Rich in this city last year. With all these honors crowded into the first day of the tournament the Cleveland Club may well feel proud of its meeting.

Here is a summary of the events:

FIRST DAY, AUG. 11.

One-mile novice, — A. M. Cushing (1), 2.51 3-4; C. E. Vaupel (2); Russell Fitch (3); A. R. Scott (4); Frank C. Lowrey (5).

W. A. Rowe, of Lynn, made an attempt to beat the mile record of 2.30, — First quarter, 37 1-4; second, 1.1-4; third, 1.50 1-4; mile, 2.30 1-4. Pacemakers, Neilson and Crocker.

One-mile tricycle State championship, — John T. Huntington (1), 3.09 3-4; E. J. Douhet (2).

Half-mile (open), — W. E. Crist (1), 1.19 3-4; A. B. Rich (2); C. A. Stenken (3); W. I. Wilhelm (4).

Two-mile 6.30 class, — A. M. Cushing (1), 6 2 3-4; A. B. Childs (2); A. C. Banker (3).

One-mile tandem tricycle handicap, — F. W. Palmer and E. J. Douhet, 35 yards (1), 3 17 1-2; E. E. Stoddard and John Sherwin, 100 yards (2); Huntington and Upson were on scratch but met with an accident and withdrew; Peirce and Martin, 60 yards, ran into the fence.

Quarter-mile handicap, — F. C. Lowey, 40 yards (1), 38 1-4; W. S. Upson, 15 yards (2); C. C. Peabody, 35 yards (3). No scratch man.

Half mile, 1.30 class, — A. M. Cushing (1), 1.22 1-4; M. F. Johnson (2).

One-mile professional handicap, — R. A. Neilson, 35 yards (1), 2.38 4-5; H. G. Crocker 45 yards (2); W. A. Rowe, scratch (3); Percy Stone, 75 yards (4); C. W. Ashinger, 75 yards (5).

Rowe showed his wonderful speed by catching up to all who were ahead of him, and when the five great riders came toward the scratch at the finish there was a pretty sight. Rowe pushed hard to win the race, but he got into a pocket at the finish, and Neilson's wheel crossed the scratch a few inches ahead of Crocker, who finished second, and Rowe was held immediately back of the two leaders.

SECOND DAY, AUG. 12.

One-mile 3.20 class, — A. B. Childs (1), 2.53 1-4; M. F. Johnson (2); A. R. Scott (3); F. C. Lowey (4).

One-mile tricycle L. A. W. championship, — A. B. Rich (1), 3.27; W. E. Crist (2). A slow and unsatisfactory race.

Two-mile State championship, — Byron Burroughs (1), 6.10 1-5; J. T. Huntington (2)

Half-mile handicap, — W. E. Crist, scratch (1), 1.17 2-5; M. F. Johnson, 60 yards (2); F. C. Lowey, 75 yards (3); R. H. Ehlert, 10 yards (4).

Two-mile tandem handicap, — Palmer and Douhet (1), 6 47; Huntington and Cushman, scratch (0).

One-mile team, — W. I. Wilhelm and C. A. Stenken, Hudson County Wheelmen (1), 23 points; W. E. Crist and P. S. Brown, Capital Bi. Club (2), 4 points.

Quarter-mile, 45-second class, — C. E. Vaupel (1), 42 1-2; B. Burroughs (2); A. B. Childs (3).

One-mile professional handicap, — W. A. Rowe, scratch (1), 2.36; H. G. Crocker, 45 yards (2); Percy Stone, 90 yards (3); C. W. Ashinger, 100 yards (4); R. A. Neilson, scratch (5).

Two-mile lap, — A. B. Rich (1), 10 points; R. H. Ehlert (2), 17 points; Fred Foster (3), 9 points; W. S. Campbell (4), 4 points; Ehlert finished first in 5.59 1-2.

A hundred-yard foot race was introduced. Won by J. H. Metcalf in 10 3-4 seconds.

Half-mile, — Fred Foster (1), 1.25; W. I. Wilhelm (2); W. E. Crist (3).

One-mile handicap, — Byron Burroughs, 50 yards (1) 2.41 1-2; W. S. Upson, 40 yards (2); P. S. Brown, 35 yards (3); W. I. Wilhelm, 20 yards (4).

THIRD DAY, AUG. 13.

One-mile 3.10 class, — A. M. Cushing (1). 2.58 3-4; M. F. Johnson (2); A. B. Childs (3); A. C. Banker (4).

One-mile State championship, — Byron Burroughs, Cincinnati (1), 2.55 1-2; W. S. Upson, Cleveland (2); J. T. Huntington, Cleveland (3); A. C. Banker, Pittsburg, Pa. (4).

Two-mile handicap, — C. E. Vaupel, 200 yards (1); 5.45 1-2; R. Fitch, 2.25 yards (2); F. X. Spranger, 90 yards (3); P. S. Brown, 75 yards (4).

Half-mile, — Fred Foster (1), 1.24 1-2; W. I. Wilhelm (2).

One-mile 3-minute class, — A. M. Cushing (1), 3 9 1-2; M. F. Johnson (2); C. C. Peabody (3).

Five-mile lap, — B. Burroughs (1), 42 points; R. H. Ehlert (2), 42 points; A. B. Rich (3), 33 points. Burroughs and Ehlert tied, but the officers gave the race to Burroughs, since he finished first. Burroughs's time, 15 18 1-4.

One-mile professional handicap, — W. A. Rowe, scratch, and H. G. Crocker, 45 yards, dead heat (1). 2.42; Percy Stone, 90 yards (2); R. A. Neilson, 35 yards (3); C. W. Ashinger, 100 yards (4).

It was Crocker's race before the professionals took the track and during the racing the significant slang "chestnuts" was occasionally heard. Rowe drew up to the other riders, who were bunched, and at the finish he pushed Crocker in. He went a little farther than he expected to go and a dead heat was the result. The racing between Rowe and Crocker in the tie was a farce. Both came out and mounted their wheels in street costume. They went a slow mile. Rowe lagging behind to give the race to Crocker.

Quarter-mile handicap, — M. F. Johnson, 30 yards (1), 40 seconds; A. M. Cushing, 20 yards (2); A. C. Banker, 15 yards (3); F. C. Lowey, 30 yards (4).

Half mile tandem, — Huntington and Upson (1), 1.30; Palmer and Douhet (2); Peirce and Martin (3).

One-mile L. A. W. championship, — A. B. Rich (1), 2.47 1-5; W. E. Crist (2); W. S. Campbell (3); C. A. Stenken (4).

One-mile lap, — W. S. Campbell (1), 12 points; W. I. Wilhelm (2), 10 points; B. Burroughs (3), 5 points.

WORCESTER, MASS., Aug. 13.—Races under the auspices of the Worcester Bicycle Club (incorporated).

Half Mile Dash.—J. F. Midgeley (1), 1.41 4-5; George Booker (2).

One Mile Championship of Worcester.—J. F. Midgeley (1), 3.1 2-5. Rolstone did not start, his first objection being that he considered Midgely a professional; and second, because he not think the track in a satisfactory condition. The judges decided to refer the matter of awarding the medal to the givers of the prize.

One Mile Team Race.—Worcester Club (incorporated) (1), 17 points; Clinton Club (2), 13 points; Worcester Club (3).

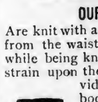
Jersey-Fitting Underwear Company.

We Call Special Attention to our



BICYCLE, TENNIS, YACHTING and ROWING JERSEYS,

In Long or One-Quarter Sleeves, or Sleeveless, High or Low Neck, Lace Front, or Standing Collar, Plain or Fancy Colors.

Every Wheelman and Sportsman will give them his approval when he examines the Shoulders, Arm Holes and Neck, as they are made to fit. These goods are PATENTED, and all infringements will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

OUR BICYCLE FULL TIGHTS

Are knit with a selvedge edge, in two separate parts from the waist to the feet, and formed while being knit to fit the limbs, so the strain upon the garment is equally divided on every part of the body. The seam, being a selvedged edge, is small and flat, and will not rip.

BICYCLE KNEE TIGHTS.

Made same as full tights, to three inches below the knee.

TRUNKS

Are a great protection to tights, receiving all the wear from the saddle, and can easily be removed, and thus save the more expensive garments.

JERSEY FITTING KNEE PANTS,

Buttoned in Front, same as Pantaloons, without Certain Objections.

We offer them to the trade and clubs as SOMETHING NEW, and invite all to examine them.

LADIES' JERSEY FITTING TRICYCLE PANTS.

A NEW THING.

These Pants are close fitting, come three inches below the knee, are very elastic, and the most comfortable garment a lady ever wore. Made in Cream-Colored Cotton, Drab, Red, or any colors in Worsteds. Racing Wheemen tell us it is a loss of fifteen seconds in a mile to have some slight irritation from a non-elastic pair of cloth pants.

CELEBRATED

KING OF THE ROAD LAMPS.

Manufactured by J. LUCAS & SONS, Birmingham, Eng.

These Lamps are unquestionably the best in the market. Made of the best tin, every part riveted (instead of soldered), they are a thorough piece of workmanship. Being of large size, they throw a very powerful light; but from their peculiar construction, being divided throughout their entire length, they can be placed within a many-spoked wheel. They are provided with red side lights and red danger light at the back. The 1885 pattern, here represented, is far superior to the old style. The improvements are: (1) Adjustable axle bearings. (2) Wind-up burner, by which the light may be regulated from the outside, thus avoiding the annoyance of opening the lamp. (3) Improved arrangement of powerful detached reflector, which prevents its getting smoked. (4) Slide at side for lighting. (5) Patent clip on front containing wick igniter, etc. Sold by

STODDARD, LOVERING & CO.,

152 Congress Street - - - - BOSTON, MASS.

To these gentlemen, in a short time, I shall send maps of the counties they represent, with full instructions regarding marking, roads, and distances. If among these gentlemen there are any who do not feel that they can undertake the work in hand, I would advise that they resign office at once, that some worker may be appointed in their place. Representatives of Districts will send to me the names of men they would like to assist them —say one to each county (a resident thereof)—and I will appoint them local consuls. As soon as the counties are all marked and reported, work on our road book will go ahead.

Respectfully,

N. H. VANSICKLEN, C. C.

The latest and one of the most desirable articles of dress ever offered to Cyclers, is the Cycle Tool Brush.

Indispensable to Wheelmen.

Until this article was put on the market, it has been difficult to properly clean around the bearings, pedals and other intricate parts of a Cycle. A moment's use of this brush will entirely remove all dirt and dust, thereby preventing grit from working into the bearings. Saves time and labor.

SOME OF THE TRADE

Delight in informing their friends that we do not sell any wheels to speak of, that the demand for them is very light in wheeling centres, where bicycle riders are posted.

WE APPEND HEREWITH

A few letters from some of our agents who had given up a well-known line of wheels rather than ours.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 18, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We have sold twenty-five Champions so far — twenty-one in the city, the balance outside, which is double the number of fine wheels ever sold in Louisville by both the agencies put together in a year, and I think we will sell not far from one hundred Champions this season. It has not been hard work to sell them, they sell themselves. If an old —— rider is skeptical, he is the man I want to get hold of, and let him first try an —— and then a Champion. In this way we have mounted seven prominent riders on full nickelled Champions. Of course, this has had an effect no choice of wheels for beginners, which we intend to keep up. In fact, the machine has the most good talking and taking points of any machine I ever saw. For instance, you can grasp the large wheel and backbone of an —— just above the step — it is not very hard work to bring the wheel and backbone together. Now try the Champion, and you will find that it don't go together worth a cent; and as the backbones on both wheels are nearly the same one must give in the head and the other doesn't. I have ridden my own mount (a Champion, of course) over 500 miles this season, and have given it a pretty thorough test on rough roads, and I certainly would not exchange it for anything in the wheel line I ever saw. I rode it April 3d (after the snowstorm), eighty miles, from Harrodsburg to Louisville in ten hours, with six inches of mud for forty miles, and not anything loosened but a spoke. I'll not say anything more about the Champions, now; you may think I'm trying to sell you one. Our successor has sold one —— so far.

HERE'S ANOTHER.

The New Orleans agent, by far the largest cycle dealer in the extreme South, says:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., April 21, 1887.

Gentlemen: — Your favor of the 15th inst., asking for a candid expression of opinion as regards the American Champion Bicycle, manufactured by Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co., has been received. In reply, I would say that in all my experience I have not found a wheel that gives such entire satisfaction and sells as readily as the "Champion." I have sold it since first introduced, and in this State it outnumbers other makes of high grade wheels about seven to one. It has proved a durable, easy running wheel, and its reputation here is fully established. You can recommend it to your customers with the utmost confidence. I could send you any number of direct testimonials, but infer you are writing for what is called a "condensed" experience.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

The Cincinnati agency is equally enthusiastic. Any one who has seen the four-horse teams of Cincinnati will understand the reference to the roads in the following.

CINCINNATI, O., April 10, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We are in receipt of yours asking information regarding the Gormully & Jeffery goods. We feel that we cannot say too much as to the good merits of their machines. We have handled the "Ideal" for four years, and the "American Champion" from its first appearance last season. In every instance they have given perfect satisfaction to the purchaser. The American Champion, for ease of running, rigidity, and general durability, is not excelled by any wheel. The American Challenge is a good staunch roadster at a moderate cost, that has proven itself by actual usage on our roads (and worse could not be found in our immediate vicinity), to be a thoroughly reliable machine, answering all the requirements of a good all 'round bicycle at a moderate cost. The Ideal is, beyond a doubt, the best boy's wheel ever produced. The success of the wheel has been phenom[enal] about Cincinnati, and it is certainly well earned. It affords us great pleasu[re] to offer these machines to the public, knowing that for thorough workmanship, reliable construction, and good quality of material employed in their manufacture, they are all that is claimed for them and sure to give satisfaction. We congratulate you on having added these wheels to your list, and wish you every success that they are bound to bring you.

There are plenty more to follow. In fact, we are prepared to satisfy an extraordinarily keen appetite for reflection. Catalog on application.

RHODE ISLAND WHEELMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 26.— The R. I. Division, L. A. W., held a 25-mile road race yesterday for three medals. There were five starters, and M. Turner, of Warren, came in first, Time, 1 hour, 42 minutes, 5 seconds. L. A. Dawson, of Pawtucket, second; C. M. Morse, of Pawtucket, third, Turner rode a Columbia, Dawes a Star, and Morse a Rudge.

THE TWENTY-FIVE MILE ROAD RACE AT HARTFORD, CONN.

The race held at Hartford, June 9th, was one of the hardest ridden in this country: it was a genuine scorcher's race over the worst, heaviest, and muddiest roads, in a pelting rain storm. . . . The men mounted at 4.10 and were pushed off a minute later in the presence of a large crowd of wheelmen and spectators. . . . Considering the conditions, the time was creditable in the extreme. The race was a great one, and all the contestants showed elements of pluck and endurance that only those who knew the condition of the roads can realize.— Bicycling World, June 17, 1887.

L. A. Miller, 54-inch Columbia Light Roadster, first; Wm. Harding, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, second; E. A. DeBlois, 52-inch Columbia Light Roadster, third; F. L. RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded September 15th.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

THERE is considerable indignation felt and expressed in New Jersey over the action of certain wheelmen who have made themselves obnoxious on the roads. A Camden paper publishes the remarks of a Burlington man on this subject, as follows:—

"One of these days some of the foreign bicycle riders that visit this county will get killed if they persist in their devil-may-care manner of riding on our roads, utterly regardless of the rights of others and in defiance of the laws of decency. There has been so much of this conduct of late that many persons have expressed their intention of taking the law into their own hands and giving some of the dude riders a clubbing. The law is said to give bicycle riders the same rights on the road that other vehicles possess, and since the former pay no toll and are used solely for pleasure, it would seem that they should give at least one half of the road to an approaching team, instead of crowding everybody off the road. A good many horses are timid about bicycles, and have to be carefully handled to avoid an upset or a runaway; but when a bicycle rider keeps right in the middle of the road, as many have done of late, it makes travelling pretty dangerous."

The above remarks have been resented by the local wheelmen, and replies have been sent to the journal which published them, in which the premises of the speaker have not been denied, but he has been condemned for his utterances. We wish to put ourselves on record with the Burlington man. If his premises are right, he has good cause to complain. Not all the road hogs drive horses, for many ride wheels. The League is pledged to secure equal rights for wheelmen on the road, but it expects its members to respect the rights of others. The League has a right to expect, also, that its members shall act the part of gentlemen, and to gracefully yield their rights on occasions when others may be seriously inconvenienced by granting all that, under the law, a wheelman may claim. We have no patience with a man who will force a heavily-loaded team to give him half the road, when he has ample room to pass. The League has had many a hard fight to secure rights for wheelmen, and it now looks as though, in certain sections of the country, it will have to deal with its own members to secure rights for horsemen. These remarks are not aimed at New Jersey alone. We have said that we were in sympathy with the Burlington man, if his premises are correct. It remains for the wheelmen thereabouts to show his statements unfounded. We have faith to believe that they can do so, but until they do this, the outside public and the better class of wheelmen will endorse all that the irate party from Burlington has said.

BOSTON wheelmen are very indignant over a paragraph in the St. Louis Spectator, which charges "conduct unbecoming a gentleman or even a decent man" upon some unknown member of their party while at Forest Park during the League Meet. The Spectator should furnish the name of the party or else apologize. The charge is false in every particular. The paper refers to Chief Consul Brewster for confirmation of its charge. We have a letter from the Chief Consul in which he denies in the most emphatic way that any member of the Boston delegation misbehaved; and he writes that the use of his name by the Spectator was wholly unauthorized.

AND now we shall have another international contest. It remains to be seen whether the American Outing will beat the English Outing. Capt. Stevens will do well if he can beat Capt. Harmsworth, better known as "Pendragon," of the English press.

PRESIDENT KIRKPATRICK is out with a circular to Chief Consuls of States, which calls for information regarding the laws relating to highways, their construction, maintenance, rights upon the same, sign-boards, legal decisions, etc. The President desires to ascertain just what the League will have to contend with in a general movement for road improvement, and wherein it will be assisted by existing laws. If the League can do anything in the direction of highway improvement it will be done, and done quickly.

VERY many clubs encourage riding by offering medals for the best mileage of the year and for the longest run. Would it not be a good idea for the League to offer a few medals for riding records. A medal awarded for the best American mileage would be a valuable possession, and would be worked for. This hint is for the benefit of officials.

RACE committees should not forget that we have a large number of professionals in the field seeking a chance to compete. In fact our fastest men are now professionals. We submit that it would be good policy to put a few professional events on the programme, for the fast men do very much to attract large audiences.

THE ROSEVILLE TOURNAMENT.

ON Saturday, August 20, a tournament was held at the Roseville track under the auspices of the New Jersey Cycling and Athletic Association. Notwithstanding the fact that the weather was dubious up to the hour of starting, there was an attendance of some 1,200 spectators, which enabled the managers to more than cover expenses, and should encourage them to further efforts in popularizing bicycle racing in the vicinity of New York. Indeed, already the announcement is made that the Orange Wanderers will probably hold a meeting the first week in September, and there is some serious talk of a tournament later in the fall, gotten up by the various bicycle dealers.

The track was in prime shape, and had there not been a strong wind down the back stretch, which slowed the time fully ten seconds to the mile, there would in all probability have been, if not a breaking, at least a crowding of the records. The management is to be congratulated on having secured such a high class of entries to the contests, which proves that, with the inducement of such a fine track, "the talent" needs no big bribe in the way of prizes to bring it to the scratch.

The audience, though there was a fair attendance of ladies, was in the main made up of representatives from the various clubs about New York, most of whom came in uniform and a-wheel.

The management was efficient, and there was no cause to complain of the track not being kept clear nor the races being run off on time. The absence of Rowe was of course regretted; but the performances of Whittaker, Crist, and the other flyers left nothing to be asked for in the way of exhibitions of speed.

One Mile Novice.—A. W. Snow, Newark, N. J., 1; R. E. Moss, Bloomfield, N. J., 2; E. P. Baggot, Jersey City, 3; T. H. Hall, Orange; B. A. Quinn, New York; A. M. Dwight, Baltimore; H. C. Stevenson, Hartford. A good race, won by a yard, with two yards separating second and third. Time, 3.11.

One Half Mile Amateur.—W. E. Crist, Washington, 1; C. A. Stenken, Jersey City, 2; J. F. Midgley, Worcester, 3; W. Lamb, Smithville; H. H. Schwartz, Reading; W. Harding, Hartford; H. J. Hall, Jr., Brooklyn; T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie; L. J. Kolb, Philadelphia. Crist won as he pleased by ten yards, though Stenken made a good fight, beating the Springfield Roadster man five yards. Time, 1.18 2-5.

One Mile Handicap, Bloomfield Cyclers.—W. Van Wagner, the scratch man, beat the rivals in 2.58.

Two Mile Amateur Handicap.—W. E. Crist, Washington (scratch), 1; H. B. Schwartz, Reading, Pa. (60 yds.), 2; T. H. White, New York (100 yds.), 3; J. F. Midgley, Worcester (40 yds.); Wm. Van Wagner, Burlington, N. J. (125 yds.); Wm. Harding Hartford (100 yds); T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie (100 yds.); L. J. Kolb, Philadelphia (100 yds.); Wm. Lahert, Smithville (30 yds.) Crist again won, hands down, by 25 yards. The field had a fine fight of it, Lamb beating White by a yard. Time, 5.42.

One mile professional handicap.—S. G. Whittaker, Chicago, (scratch) 1; W. F. Knapp, Denver, (50 yds.) 2; C. H. Frazier, Smithville, (25 yds.) 3; H. D. Cornish, Hartford, (100 yds.); A. A. McCurdy, Lynn, (25 yds.); The Gormully & Jeffrey pair were a little too good for the Star team, and the compromise machine man, Whittaker, did not have much to spare from Knapp. Time 2.41 4-5—a beat, considering the wind, not far from a record performance. Knowing ones who had watched the men in training, said that under favorable conditions "Whit" would have made the record weary, as he had run a lap in practice in 48 or at a 2.24 clip.

One mile tandem.—W. E. Crist, and H. J. Hull, Jr., caught E. D. Dayton and G. A. French, of Fairhaven, Conn., napping at a loafing pace, and got 50 yards ahead of them before they "came to," winning as they pleased in 3.17 1-5.

One mile handicap, amateur.—Wm. Harding, Hartford, (50 yds.) 1; C. A. Stenken, Jersey City, (scratch) 2; Wm. Lamb, Smithville, (10 yds.) 3; T. H. White, New York, (60 yds.); E. N. Collins, Westfield, N. J. (100 yds.); J. W. Whitson, Flushing, L. I., (100 yds.); H. B. Schwartz, Reading, Pa. (25 yds.); T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie, (50 yds.) This was a beautiful race, as fine a one as was ever run on any track. After two laps, a blanket would have covered the field. The three leaders dashed over the line abreast, and it required the judges to place them as above. Time, 2.49 2-5.

Two mile handicap, Passaic County wheelmen.—D. W. Romaine, (scratch) 1; C. Blizard, (200 yds.) 2;

W. Abbott, Jr., (20 yds.); R. H. Blake, (40 yds.); Fred Shuit, (50 yds.); Bud Spinner, (120 yds.); G. Wrystaed, (200 yds.); James Chase, (250 yds.); C. Blizard did not belie his name and swept the track like an unchained cold wave, until, in the last lap, Romaine passed him in his wild flight, and forced him to take second prize; time, 6.34 3-5. The rest, though badly beaten, struggled pluckily on to the finish.

One mile lap.— W. E. Crist, Washington, 1; H. J. Hall, Jr., Brooklyn, 2; L. J. Kolb, Philadelphia; Kolb gave up after a lap of it. The Kings County flyer spurted gallantly, but was overmatched by Crist, who won as he liked, in 3.01.

Two mile professional handicap.— S. G. Whittaker, Chicago, (Scratch) 1; W. F. Knapp, Denver, (100 yds.) 2; "Whit" had a hard chase, and took a mile and a half in which to catch the Denver man. The latter was game, and gave the Chicago champion all he wanted to do to beat him in 5.56 3-5.

One mile consolation.— W. Lamb, Smithville, 1; T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie, 2; T. H. White, New York; H. C. Stevenson, Hartford. The Smithville boy was a little too much for the rest; time, 2.55 2-5.

Dr. F. A. Kinch, of the Union County Wheelmen, filled the position of referee.

George Hendee was on hand, looking after the interest of the Springfield roadster men.

JER C.

August 22, 1887.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

"YOU'RE just like all the women, for you can talk of nothing but dress." This came gruffly to me last year from a friendly critic who was not a little interested in the ladies' column, but who failed to find in discussions on dress the mental pabulum he was in search of. And yet the press must give what is demanded by readers. "What to wear?" is the problem that confronts every lady beginner, and it cannot be solved as the more fortunately circumstanced men unravel it, by a brief conference with the tailor, who is ordered to forthwith make certain garments after the prevailing style. Neither have the ladies a special committee appointed to design the style of apparel and make arrangements for its cheap production. I think my readers would be surprised to see the number of letters I get from ladies asking the important question, to them, of how to dress on the wheel. These are answered by personal letters, or sending a back number of the BULLETIN.

I HURRIED off to the country last week and bade adieu to cycles and cycling for a brief season, but there are mails which follow one even to the most remote places of the earth. My pursuer brought me a bundle of letters on the dress question which seem to call for a word from me, and so I beg the gentlemen will excuse me if I talk of nothing else this week. I promise to use back numbers for a long while to come. Those who have written me will find answers to their questions in what shall follow:

FOR the gown select some material medium in weight, and inconspicuous in color. I am wearing a light weight homespun cloth, and have found it very serviceable. I have seen a costume made from French flannel, and the wearer was loud in its praises. My friend Mrs. H——, of Wellington, claims to have found the one thing suitable for a tricycle dress. It is alpaca. She tells me that she has tried about everything and her verdict is given only after a very long experience with cloths. Her recommendation is well worth receiving and I give it to the ladies with my endorsement. I shall try alpaca when next I need a riding suit. It is very light and the dust does not adhere to it as it does to woolen, and besides a brush broom will easily remove all dust and mud that does fix itself upon the cloth.

HERE is what I said last spring regarding the skirt. I was criticised for this by my friend Violet Lorne, but I adhere to all that I then said: "The skirt should be without back drapery, and each one can suit her taste and pleasure about the front. A little drapery in front can do no harm in riding, and is of decided advantage in relieving the plainness of the skirt when one is away from the wheel; make the skirt of ordinary walking length in front, with a slope of three inches at the back."— BULLETIN, April 1.

MRS. H——, who recommends the alpaca, has her skirt made perfectly plain. This saves in weight, and on the wheel does not look badly. When she leaves the machine, she puts on a small overskirt which ties around the waist, and then she is ready to walk about or to enter a public dining hall without fear of attracting undue attention. The overskirt is carried in a satchel hung behind the tricycle.

WAIST and skirt should be of the same color. If you can get a good jersey to match the skirt you will have a comfortable garment, but if you want the costume alike throughout, make the waist of the loose blouse pattern, but do not belt it tight. If you want to avoid too great a degree of plainness make the waist with revers and vest front, always remembering that a dress will catch and hold dust in inverse ratio to its simplicity.

UNDERNEATH, wear flannel next to the skin, dispense with both crinoline and corsets and have but one skirt. Many riders use no skirt at all.

THE ideal underdress approaches in style that of the gentlemen. I suppose the most comfortable garment is the woven combination, which reaches from the neck to wrist and ankles. This is the least clumsy method of being entirely clothed with flannel; there is absolutely nothing that can become disarranged; and it affords equal protection and warmth to all parts of the body. Holmes & Company, of Boston, are making undergarments for ladies, with a special view to their use on the tricycle. I am now wearing these, and I find them very comfortable. I will advise lady riders to use garments of this kind and to try the jersey knickerbockers if they do not care to adopt the entire combination garment.

FOR stockings, wear all-wool knitted or woven stockings. Holmes & Co. are now making for ladies the long stocking which ties around the waist. Do not wear cotton on the feet if you would avoid soreness and blisters.

THE headwear is a vexed question. Mrs. H—— writes: "An ordinary hat or bonnet is apt to give the wearer the look of a novice, while on the other hand a regulation jockey cap is too 'horsey;' but a cap of modified jockey shape, higher in the crown and broader visor, with a little feminine touch in the shape of a feather tip or bow, is both stylish and suitable for the purpose." Maud has been wearing a white tennis cap, and this she pronounces to be the true thing for head wear. I have been trying one of the white felt hats so generally worn at the seashore. I find it very light, and the rim can be knocked into almost any shape, so that it can be arranged to avoid taking the wind, or it can be made to furnish a grateful shade to the eyes.

ON the hands wear the light silk gloves. Cut off the fingers down to the second knuckle. Other writers will advise dogskin or kid gloves. I will say, "Don't." They are too warm, and soon get wet with perspiration, and then they become hard and uncomfortable.

DO not go out for a long ride without an extra wrap. You will need it when you stop.

WEAR a shoe. Have it made light and easy fitting. The gentleman's shoe which opens down to the toes and laces is the most comfortable of all riding shoes. By no means wear a boot. You will find that it cramps the foot, and is unduly warm. The ankle needs no support in tricycle riding.

THAT I may make this letter as complete as possible, I will give the costume recommended by a committee of ladies appointed by the C. T. C. of England, to design and recommend a costume for ladies' use.

1. A pair of dark grey woollen or merino stockings.

2. A pair of loose knickerbockers, of the club cloth, fastened with elastic, or by a cloth strap and buckle, under the knee, to be suspended from the hips or the shoulders, at the option of the wearer; or

3. A pair of trousers cut loose to just below the knee, and thence tighter down to the foot; to be suspended from the hips or shoulders at the option of the wearer.

4. A plain skirt, of the club cloth, without kilting, and of sufficient fulness to admit of absolute freedom of movement without undue bulk.

5. A bodice or jacket, at option of wearer, cut either to fit the figure or of "Norfolk" shape, lined throughout (including sleeves) with the club flannel, and provided with an adjustable belt if so desired.

6. A helmet or hat of the club cloth, or of straw, with a special and registered ribbon, in any of the shapes that may be provided by the club from time to time.

7. A pair of soft "Tilbury'd" doeskin gloves.

I OBJECT to the cloth knickerbockers and the doe skin gloves. The jersey garments and the silk gloves are an improvement. Notice that the C. T. C. ladies wear a registered ribbon. Our ladies who wish to denote that they belong to the League can do so by wearing a lutestring ribbon of purple (the League color) in the buttonhole, or attached in some inconspicuous way to the hatband.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE Tioga Cycling Club, at a special meeting on the 16th of August, decided to give a "1,000 mile medal" to each member riding and reporting 1,000 miles or upwards in one year, whether or not he has also won any of the prizes offered for the other distances. Considerable opposition has all along been felt toward the award of a "last man's prize," or "Booby prize," and at this meeting it was decided to entirely do way with it.

Ex-Secretary Treasurer T. H. Wright, of the Division, has returned from his vacation, but has done little or no riding this year. Ex-Consul Jno. Wells is riding a great deal, and riding fast, too, so that those who meet him in the road race may expect to do some tall pushing if they mean to stay up with the procession. Kolb, of the University is reported as having a team from the South End Wheelmen in training for the event, and Suplee of the Pennsylvanias is also riding well. Kolb, however, may not be able to ride in the road race as he is the University's principal stand-by for the Inter-Collegiate races which come off about the same time as the road race, and he can't well train for both. Whitaker, of the University is away, but despite these straws in the opposite direction, the members of the University Athletic Club talk confidently of the good team they expect to have in the race. The Millville Bicycle Club, of New Jersey, has challenged the University to a team race on the track. The Milville team would be Pearson, Stevens, and Howell, and the University ought to be Kolb, Keen and Geary. The Milvillians will give a race meeting August 30, which ought to attract a number from Philadelphia.

The course for the Tioga Cup Race as laid out on the Lancaster Pike, really presents as fine a course as could be had anywhere nearer than Orange, N. J. It is precisely twenty miles in length, starting from Bryn Maur, coming east to a lane about two hundred yards below the City Line Road at Overbrook, then turning back, west to the deserted blacksmith shop, about one hundred yards west of the toll gate at Eagle, and then back to starting point. This avoids all the really dangerous places on the Pike and gives the riders the benefit of the best surfaced part of the road. But, oh ye gods! the hills!

The Tioga Club at a special meeting on the 16th voted to place the management and selection of their team in the hands of Geo. D. Gideon of that club.

PHACTO.

Outing will have an English edition. Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Carr & Co., of London, for the publication of an English edition of the magazine. Mr. Alfred C. Harmsworth, associate editor with Mr. Hillier of the Bicycling News, will be the editor of the magazine; and among the contributors are Dr. W. G. Grace, Mr. James Dalziel Dougall (author of the article on Shooting in the Encyclopædia Britannica), "Rockwell," General Marcy, Mr. Methven Brownlee, Dr. Darbishire, and many other well-known writers. The illustrations will be by R. H. and G. Moore, J. and G. Temple, Messrs. Cozzens, Burns, Cyril Hallward, Peter M'Nab, and others. The first number appears on Oct. 1. An Australian edition is also arranged for.

ST. LOUIS.

J. A. LEWIS, secretary-treasurer of the Missouri Division returned home from his European tour Wednesday. He was absent four months and nine days. Ab. is possibly the best liked cycler in St. Louis, and the boys are making him feel at home as rapidly as possible. Had they known of the exact date of his coming, a delegation would have gone to Indianapolis, and made the latter part of his journey particularly lively.

LEWIS visited nearly all the cycling haunts on the continent, and while in London was the protege of "The Welsher" (Lloyd), a prominent writer for Sporting Life. Lloyd had him in tow for two weeks, and the couple visited a number of events together on a tandem. The monster meet of the Blackheath Harriers at Catford Bridge eclipsed anything of its kind, a 100-yard sprint requiring seventeen heats to decide it. "At the office of Wheeling," said he, "I met McCandlish, Percy Low, and Harry Etherington —all the finest kind of fellows. Etherington is rather partial to swallow-tails and ultra-fashionable ways, but generally prominent cyclists over there will be found in wheeling costume. The editors of Wheeling are badly mashed on the Wheelmen's Record cartoons. They rank Darrow's work higher than Moore's, and the offices are decorated with the former's pictures. 'The Welsher' was much amused at my American style of talking, particularly the cycling terms. 'Road hog' is a term they are gradually adopting over there. On our tandem, the 'Welsher' and I rode out on the famous Ripley Road. I should say it greatly resembled our Manchester Pike. It is about as long—twenty-one miles from London to Ripley—with some moderately stiff grades and a fine macadam surface. One portion of it, called the Common, is smooth as a track for, say, a quarter of a mile, and is taken at a spurt. The road had not felt rain for two months, but I found it still good. It was noised about that I would accompany Lloyd, and members of the Ripley Road Club and others flocked out to see the American ride. I met the well-known Dr. Turner on the road. He is about thirty-five years old, and is conceded to be the best trike rider frequenting the Ripley, besides being an authority on cycling matters generally. Lloyd and I gave him a brush, and he passed us after quite a run by spurting. I also ran across Lacy Hillier, and found him meek as a lamb. He said not a word against American times or ways, but seemed rather inclined to come over and have a look at us. He doubts if he can do so, however. We met two Connecticut gentlemen on the Ripley Road—Mr. Hulbert and a companion who was mounted on a Star. You should have seen the Englishmen stare at that Star. I found excellent roads in France and Germany, while those of Austria and Italy were fair. At Vienna I met our exchief consul, now Dr. Senseney. A League meet programme was fixed to his office wall. Senseney has been trying to explain the workings of the Star to the Viennese cyclists, but they won't catch on. At Interlaken, Switzerland, we discovered two wheels, an English one, and the other built by the owner. We rented them, and spent two days riding along the road, which is cut under the mountains on one side of the lake—a sort of tunnel—and back on the other side. And still we grew homesick."

THE Spectator and Bi. World are having a soul harrowing argument over Boston salt air, and are getting sadly excited about the matter. The World calls the Spectator man an addle-brained youth, and the latter reciprocated to-day by devoting nearly a column to the windy subject; and even the Boston contingent to the Meet is now drawn into the dizzy whirlpool of wrath. Gentlemen, I should like to bump your heads.

THE P. D., which always steers for the safe side, prints a squib which shows there is a little doubt as to the "general Club," which is proposed, being a success. E. A. Smith, however, is doing the best he can for the project. A meeting of interested cyclists was held on Thursday, and another will be called about the 1st proximo, when all the clubs interested will be represented. As St. John is favorable to the scheme, and as a splendidly located tract of ground seems available for the purpose, St. Louis may yet make the Manhattan Club look to its laurels as the banner athletic club.

IT is unfortunate that Missouri cyclists do not pay more attention to the matter of road reports. Mr. Wolzendorf, of St. Louis, recently made a circuit of the towns in the centre of the state, and afterward made a brief report for future use. Others might do likewise. Representative Stuart, of Kansas City, after vain efforts to get reports, now devotes two days of each week to riding over his district and reporting it.

A RECENT editorial, by the Record, commenting on Kirkpatrick's thorough business methods, is complimented here as being the "snappiest" we have seen for some time.

THE "Clarksville girls" have returned home. Every lady in the party gained several pounds in weight. At a reunion, held Friday night, reminiscence ran rife, and the "official journal" was read.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

I AM in receipt of a letter from our worthy Chief Consul, in which he says:—

"I have just returned from Cooperstown, where I have been making arrangements for the annual meeting of the Division. While there, I took occasion to drive about the village, and over a number of the drives into the adjacent country. I do not think that we could have selected a better place for our meeting. One can enjoy the entire two days on his wheel.

"The scenery about Cooperstown and along the shores of the lake is certainly grand, and some of the drives are beyond description. The hotels are all of them good, and the proprietors seem anxious to make it pleasant for the wheelmen while there.

"Since visiting Cooperstown, I am more enthusiastic than ever, and I will guarantee that any one who attends this meeting will feel amply repaid for the time and trouble. The only thing that can mar the pleasure of the trip would be rain, but if we are favored with clear weather, the country will be at its best, and the roads excellent."

Quite right, Mr. B.; we all agree with you that Cooperstown is just the place, and we expect to be there, and also to have a jolly time. Parties are organizing in all the clubs in this quiet little town, and I think we will be heard from when the time comes.

I wonder if the boys have forgotten that, by recent act of the Legislature of this State, the coming first Monday in September is a legal holiday, known as "Labor Day." I hear of but one club that is making any preparations to celebrate the event, and that is the Brooklyns, who propose having a run and five-mile road-race, somewhere down Long Island.

Four members of the Huntington Club, Messrs. Scudder, Grumman, Irwin, and Lockwood, were in town Saturday, returning home from their week's tour up the Hudson. The Monday previous, they were escorted around the Oranges by Messrs. Hall and Barkman, of the Brooklyn Club, and left at Montclair, from whence they started Tuesday morning, wheeling up the beautiful Wanaque and Ramapo Valleys to Newburgh, at which place they crossed the Hudson, and continued up the east side of the river to Albany. This route is becoming a favorite with tourists of the present season, and it certainly has many advantages over the old and more direct river route. The start from New York may be made in two directions; either via Orange and Montclair, or via Tarrytown and Nyack to Suffern, where a junction is made with route from Orange.

The tourists express themselves as highly pleased with the many courtesies shown them while en route, particularly at Brooklyn, Poughkeepsie and Albany, and are only waiting an opportunity reciprocate. On Sunday last, at 8.30, a start was made for the home run to Huntington, accompanied by three members of the Brooklyn Club. The forty miles were covered by one o'clock, and at 3.30 the Brooklyn delegation started a-wheel for home. Daylight deserted them when in that "Wheelman's Paradise," East New York, compelling a two-mile walk in the dark amid its labyrinth of gullies, sand holes, and water jumps. When, at last, the Park way was reached, the three miles or so intervening were quickly covered, and the clubhouse reached at 8.30.

The riding between this city and Jamaica has never, within the recollection of the writer, been as a whole good, although I can recall frequent trips that have been accomplished without a dismount. Never has it been poorer than during the present season, and from frequent observation I can assert that it is growing worse daily. The direct cause of this is perhaps the recent extension of the city limits, and the consequent introduction of water and gas pipes, to say nothing of the increased building operations, all of which help tear up and litter the former good sidepaths. On what is known as the "combination" route there are at present but three unridable stretches, and around these a suitable path could be made with very little outlay. Why some united action has not been taken in this direction long is beyond comprehension.

THE members of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club recently subscribed $30 towards the Beecher Statue Fund. Mr. W. E. Fuller, as treasurer of the fund, sent in his check for that amount. The following day the local papers announced that W. E. Fuller had subscribed $20 to the Statue Fund. Fuller has consequently postponed his bugle rehearsals on the clubhouse roof, and is rusticating until the boys get cooled down.

ROAD RACING.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Note the talk of a path across New Jersey, and the opposition of residents. We have not yet obtained universally our rights on the road. Let wheelmen, through the League and otherwise, favor a great highway for all carriages including cycles. This would enlist support deservedly, and be working for what must come, even if not in this generation. And again, the League rightly discountenances road racing. Let racing be done on the racing path only. The roads for travel. The "path" for racing.

THE ROAD TO ORKNEY SPRINGS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: On the 8th inst. Rev. S. Stall, of Lancaster, Pa., Guyon H. Buehler, of Gettysburg, Pa., and Wm. L. Seabrook, of Westminster, Md., started from Gettysburg for a weeks' tour to Staunton, Va., and return. This route has been so often described that I do not wish to trespass upon your space with any account of our ride. This communication is written with the desire of protecting members of the L. A. W., who may go up the valley, from the gross deception which was practised upon us. At Woodstock we met a man, who advised a visit to Orkney Springs, even though it were necessary to abandon the Staunton trip by going. He represented the road to Orkney as a graded road, slate bed, smooth and hard, easy grades, all ridable, through shady woods and orchards; and further said, that a wheelman boarding at the Springs had made the wonderful record of fifty-eight minutes for the thirteen miles from Orkney to Mt. Jackson. Reaching Mt. Jackson for breakfast on the morning of the 10th, we again heard of the record of the ride from Orkney in fifty-eight minutes, and were told the young man's time was taken when he left the hotel, and that he telegraphed his arrival as soon as he reached Mt. Jackson. Knowing that with such a road as described, it would be easy to visit Orkney and return the same day, we started up the grade. Instead of a hard slate bed, the road is a common dirt road, with many grades up and down, which were so rough, steep and rocky as to be absolutely unridable. Of the thirteen miles we were compelled to walk at least seven. We were on the road over three hours, and were so much exhausted by the walk through the sun, for there was very little shade, that we were compelled to remain at the Springs over night. We found that the man who was said to have made the fifty-eight minute record is at the hotel, a member of the band there employed; that the party who first suggested Orkney, and told us of the beautiful road and the quick time that had been made over it, is the brother-in-law of the proprietor of the hotel, and were convinced that the record had been fixed up as a means of enticing wheelmen to the Springs. In conversation with the fast man, we found that he had walked part of the distance, and admitted that it took him eleven minutes to walk a grade about one mile long, thus reducing the distance ridden to twelve miles, and his time to forty-seven minutes. He further admitted that he was compelled to walk up the Mt. Clifton grade, which must have taken at least three minutes, bringing down his time to about forty-four minutes for nearly twelve miles. This man is from Washington, and a member of the League. With the road at its best, by reckless riding, the distance from Orkney to Mt.

HARTFORD RACES.

ONE of the principal cycle tournaments of this fall will be that at Charter Oak Park, Hartford, on Sept. 7, under the auspices of the Hartford Wheel Club. The programme of events will be as follows:

One-mile novice.
Hartford Wheel Club, one-mile handicap.
One-mile professional handicap.
One-mile amateur, open.
One-mile amateur, three-minute class.
Five-mile amateur, lap race.
One-mile amateur, State championship.
One-mile professional, championship of America.
One-mile amateur handicap.
One-mile amateur team race.
One-mile amateur consolation.

The races with the exception of the handicaps, will all have a time limit. There are but two professional races, but these will be real contests, and probably show great speed. Rowe and all the fastest professionals are to enter. For the amateur open races all the fastest amateurs of the country are to enter, most of them having already informed the managers of the tournament of their intention.

The entries, one dollar each, close with H. H. Smith, secretary of the racing board, drawer C, Hartford, on Sept. 3. The prizes aggregate one thousand dollars, of which one hundred and fifty dollars is hung up for the two professional races.

MACADAM ROADS

HOW TO MAKE AND KEEP THEM.

Compiled by L. H. Porter, of the Orange Wanderers, with a view to publication in convenient form for general circulation.

MACADAM'S SYSTEM.

McADAM'S plan was to thoroughly drain the road bed; properly shape it, sloping it each way from the centre, so as to discharge water, and not crowning it by a greater thickness of stone in the middle.

On this bed is placed, on a dry day, a coating of three inches of clean broken stone. A roller is then used, or traffic allowed upon it, until well packed. If traffic is admitted, men must be on hand to rake in all ruts as soon as formed. The second coating of three inches is added at a wet time, as moisture helps the consolidation. This coating is treated as before, and a third coating is then added, and finally a fourth, if necessary.

The stone is to be clean, nothing being laid on for so-called "binding." Clean, broken stone will combine by its own angles into a solid surface.

A heavy roller will help the consolidation. One made of a hollow cylinder, with several chambers, which can be filled with sand, and so increase its weight as the road becomes packed, is most excellent.

A road just completed requires careful attention for some time, and all ruts and ridges must be removed as soon as formed, until the materials become thoroughly consolidated.

All the stone used must be small enough to pass through a ring two inches in diameter.

TELFORD'S SYSTEM.

Telford's plan differed somewhat from McAdam's, and was as follows:—

He prepared a level bed, and set in it a layer of medium-sized stones. These rested on their broadest edges, and lay lengthwise across the road. They were to be seven inches high in the centre, and to slope off to three inches at the sides. The interstices were to be firmly packed by a light hammer by hand with stone chips.

Four inches of small broken stone, like McAdam's, were then to be put on, and be worked in by traffic, care being taken to keep men removing ruts, and to keep the surface smooth. Then, a final coating of two inches of the same stone was to be put on and treated in the same way. Care, however, was to be exercised not to make these last coatings as thick at the edges as in the centre, so that the final convexity of the road would be six inches. The whole was to be covered with an inch and a half of clean gravel.

Neither one of these systems is literally followed in this country, but the principal features of Telford's are generally adopted.

KEEP, OR REPAIR OF THE ROAD.

A ROAD which is kept in proper condition by means of constant little attentions seldom requires elaborate repairs; but this system is almost never followed. The almost universal method is to leave a road alone until the surface is covered with holes and ruts, and then cover it for a long distance with several inches of stone, coated with earth.

To keep roads in repair requires a permanent corps of men, working under competent orders. One man can keep in repair from three to four miles of well made and well drained road. The roads once being in good shape, it is the duty of this corps to keep them so. To accomplish this, it is necessary:—

I. To have in progress a daily removal of the dust, mud, and other wear and accumulations from the surface. This can be best done by means of wooden hoes and birch brooms.

II. The application of new materials, which must be kept in depots, not far apart, so that they can be conveniently brought to any required spot in wheelbarrows. They will unite most readily when applied after a rain. This division of the subject will now be examined more in detail.

The proper system of repair is this:

I. Put down where wanted, and not elsewhere, hard stones broken as nearly as possible to an even size of one and a half inches in the largest dimensions.

II. Mix no earth or sand with them, but let them be worked in by pressure, so that they fit together by their own angles into a solid mass, like the pieces of a puzzle or mosaic.

McAdam always attached the greatest importance to the small size of stones which he used, and made his surveyors use a two-inch iron ring, with which to try the largest stones in a heap, to see that they would go through the ring in any direction, so that the largest stones in a heap would be less than two inches in their greatest dimensions. He also made the stone-breakers test the size of the stones by putting them into their mouths: any stone that would not go into a man's mouth, or would not go through the two-inch ring every way, was to be broken again. All the authorities agree with McAdam in recommending this small size of stone, and McAdam himself, though he allowed the use of a two-inch ring to save the expense of breaking the stone smaller, yet says, "Every piece of stone put into a road, which exceeds an inch in any of its dimensions is mischievous." Telford agreed with McAdam as to the size of stones to be used for surface repair, however much he may have differed from him about the foundations of a new road.

The neglect of this principle is the main cause of the badness and costliness of most of the macadamized roads of the present day. Small stones, broken to the proper size, viz, one and a half inches in their largest dimensions, fit much tighter together, work in much quicker, make a much smoother road, and wear much better than the stones such as are usually put down.

It is easy to see that a large stone working in among smaller ones, will project and cause a roughness of the road, and also that the interstices between stones of one and a half inch will be less than between those of three or four inches. Stones of this large size, besides making a rough road and greatly increasing the labor of the horses, are very slow to work in, and either involve the expense of a steam roller, or remain on the surface, to the great annoyance of all who use the road. Moreover, a cubic yard of stone broken to an inch and a half gauge will cover six or seven times as much surface of road as it would if only broken to four inches; and as three-quarters of an inch of consolidated road is admitted to be as much as a highway usually loses in thickness in a year, even under heavy traffic, it is evident that to put down a greater thickness of stone is mere waste of material. All the authorities agree that the slight extra cost of breaking the stones to the proper size is repaid many times over by the amount of material saved, and by the superior smoothness and consequent reduction in the wear of the roads. Macadam roads are very frequently "repaired" by covering the surface with about an inch of screenings. This material is completely pulverized by the passing vehicles, and becomes, in a week or two, a fine powder, very disagreeable to ride over, easily removed by wind or rain, and of no value for repairs. The alleged object of "protecting the surface" is, of course, not secured.

McAdam's next point is that the stones are to unite by their own angles into a solid mass, and that no earth, screenings, or other so-called "binding material" should be mixed with them. Cohesion is the first thing to be aimed at in a road. If the stones unite properly by their own angles, the result will always be a smooth, economical road, with but little need of repair. The traffic will always provide more mud and dust than will be sufficient to cover the surface of the stones, and to fill up the very small interstices which will be left when they have been properly bound together. Yet there is no point on which greater wastefulness is exhibited in the repair of roads. Large sums are used in providing earth to throw over the newly-laid stones. The authorities seem to think that all this is necessary to "bind the stones together," ignoring the cardinal principle that the stones must unite by their own angles, and being unable to see that if earth is placed on a road it becomes muddy, or if screenings, then dusty; or to understand that the public does not desire to pay for either of these luxuries.

Stones are frequently laid down three or even four thick, and over the whole surface of the roads for hundreds of yards at a time, to the extreme discomfort of all travellers. And this is done where the roads, though full probably of holes, puddles, and ruts, have ample strength and thickness, and only need to have the surface rendered smooth. All that is needed in such a case is simply to fill up the ruts and puddles with properly broken stone, and if this be enough, it will obviously save a great deal of cost in material and labor, to say nothing of the great convenience to the users of the road in having fewer stones to go over. If the middle of the road really requires to be raised, the puddles and ruts should still be filled up a week or two before the stone is spread over all the middle of the road, otherwise the new stones will sink more quickly into the ruts and puddles than elsewhere, and the same holes will reappear just where they were before. Stones should never be laid down more than one deep, otherwise, they are much slower about working in, and great waste of material ensues from the grinding of one loose stone against another. Yet it is the rule rather than the exception to put down stones two or three deep. Three quarters of an inch of wear is quite as much as usually takes place in a year, even on a much-frequented road; the wastefulness, therefore, of putting down two or three inches of stone is self-evident; the annoyance to travellers is also extreme.

The proper drainage of roads is also of the greatest importance for their maintenance in good condition, and a road cannot be properly drained unless it preserves a smooth and slightly convex surface. Water should never be allowed to stand in ruts and puddles, and a road should always be patched up as soon as the puddle appears. "The stone in time saves nine" in road repairing as much as the proverbial stitch; but repairers usually wait till the state of things has become intolerable, and then spread four or five inches of stone over the whole road. Long wide patches of stones should never be put down; vehicles will avoid them, and will go on the path or by a longer road to do so; or, if they cannot be avoided, the ruts will very soon appear in the middle of the road, which will become concave instead of convex. A rake should be constantly used to fill up ruts and bring scattered stones back to their places. Patches should seldom be more than from two to four yards long. A patch of stones twenty or thirty yards long on a country road, where there is no steam roller to work it in, is an expensive mistake. Patches should not be square, but should vary according to the shape of the hollow they are intended to fill, i. e., usually round or oval, and should be so arranged that vehicles can go by with only one wheel on the stone.

Mud should always be removed entirely before put down the stone; it is not wanted on roads, and it means extra labor to horses and increased wear of the road. Yet this is very generally lost sight of, and most repairers actually spread earth on the top of the stones.

The importance of using a good hard material which will wear well is very great. Flint, granite, and the igneous rocks generally, and some few of the harder sandstones, will make an excellent road, if properly broken and spread; but oolites, limestones, and the softer sandstones will never make a good road, for the simple reason that they are not hard enough, and that they wear quickly into ruts. Besides, they suffer far more from frost than harder stones. Granite will, if properly broken and spread, pay very well in spite of its extra first cost. But flint has no superior except for roads where the traffic is excessive.

To sum up the matter in a few words, the points to be insisted on are these: —

I. The stones broken must be small; i. e., one and a half inches in their largest dimensions.

II. Hard material, flint where obtainable, or granite should be employed.

III. No earth, screenings, sand, or so-called "binding material" must be used, but the stones must unite by their own angles into a solid mass.

IV. Economy of material must be promoted by filling up holes at once, and by never putting down stones more than one thick; also by spreading small patches of stones where wanted, instead of large ones whether wanted or not.

V. All mud must be removed.

VI. Attention must be paid to drainage, especially by filling up puddles at once, and keeping them so filled by the use of the rake.

The adoption of this, the only proper system of repair, will diminish the road rates and will conduce to the comfort of every one. In short, much less should be spent on materials, and rather more on skilled labor and superintendence. The majority of the present road repairers and highway authorities must alter their system, or they will assuredly have to give way to more competent men.

NATURAL BRIDGE.

HAVING just returned from a trip to the Natural Bridge, made in company with Mr. C. L. Kneisley of this place, I thought I would give a short account of it, as I might thereby disabuse some ideas of the roads gained by the perusal of K. Kron's chapter on this same route. The valley pike from Woodstock to Staunton needs no description, except to remark that for about eight miles north of Harrisonburg there is new metal, and that portion of the six miles between Mt. Crawford and Mt. Sidney, never very good, is now quite bad on account of recent storms. New metal has been placed on the road one mile or more north of Staunton.

Leaving Staunton and passing the Lunatic Asylum, the road is rough until the outskirts are reached, when it passes into a hard clay road. Guide-posts show the correct road for four miles out, and thence there is no uncertainty, save four miles further, where we turn left. This road is all ridable, with probably the exception of a hill or two, and these not on account of roughness or steepness but from the fact that they are clay and not macadam, for on the whole the hills are not as great as those on the pike. At ten and a half miles out, after crossing the railroad twice, a dismount must be made for a rocky stretch of twenty feet. Thence two miles to Greenville is fine, in places as level and smooth as any macadam. Greenville is entered on an upgrade, as are all the towns on the route. From Greenville to Midway, six miles, the road is nearly level, but somewhat rougher than the preceding; but by choosing the ground the distance can be ridden nicely in fifty minutes. At Midway, we leave Augusta County and pass into Rockbridge, where the roads are not so good. From Midway to Fairfield, six miles, continues nearly level and can all be ridden. After leaving Fairfield, there are more hills than usual for about three miles. Then begins a series of down-grades and levels, continuing for about five miles, passing the oldest Presbyterian Church in Virginia, built in 1756. About three miles from Lexington, a long hill is reached, passing under the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. From the top of this hill, it is almost a continual down-grade into East Lexington, on across a bridge, after which comes a good stout pull into Lexington proper, and a hearty welcome at Irvine's Hotel. Going to the Bridge, we continue out the same street, passing on the left the cemetery where is buried Stonewall Jackson, and, at two miles out, turn left. This much-abused road was to us, not by any means tough riders, ridable for six and a half miles, where two streams have to be crossed; one with ease on an old bridge, the other with more difficulty on a log six feet in the air. In this distance there are several bad stretches of not more than ten to fifteen feet each, for which dismounts are not actually necessary, though advisable. After crossing these streams, the road is more hilly, but I do not think more than one mile need be walked out of the eight and a half miles. The last mile or so to the Bridge is a continuous down-grade, and must be partly walked returning. Our cyclometers indicated thirty-seven miles from Staunton to Lexington, and fifteen miles more thence to the Bridge.

The grades are no worse returning than going, — in fact, I think they are more in the rider's favor, for from Lexington to Staunton we walked half a mile before reaching Fairfield, and none from thence to Staunton. It is true we traversed the road at its best condition, and one should always select a dry season for this trip. Apples and water were plentiful en route, horses quite scary, and people much interested by the bicycles and full of questions, showing that few have ever ridden all the way to the Bridge and back. BAY CITY.— THE party that were to make two weeks tour of Canada finally dwindled down to four when it came to time to start. Those forming the party are D. G. Jackson, Wm. A. Welles, Geo. R. Babcock, N. J. Cusson. Original plan was to wheel to Detroit, but train was taken to that city. The tourists will take the Lake Shore route, touching St. Thomas, London, Hamilton, Niagara Falls. The Bay City club are to have their annual race meet on September 15.

DETROIT.—THIS has been a week of tourists passing through the city, most of them going into or coming from Canada. The touring bicyclist is one of the few articles that the high protective tariff of Canada has not yet fixed a duty on.

THE much-talked of base-ball match between the Detroit Bicycle Club and Star Bicycle Club has not yet taken place. Some of the enthusiasts have injured themselves in practice, Capt. Ives of the Star Club spraining a finger, so that they could not play at time set. The giant struggle will take place, however, in the near future.

A. C. VAN GILDER, of Point Pleasant, Va., and Prof. George Makuen, of Philadelphia, have been with us this week. Prof. Makuen expressed himself well pleased with our Grosse Pointe run, although he did not see it at its best, it having rained early in the day he took a run out there.

THE decision of the Racing Board in regard to the State championship race was against Spranger, and the decision of the judges, declaring the race "off," was sustained. The race for the State championship will, therefore, have to be run over again.

THE Detroit Bicycle Club are figuring on giving a race meet the first week of October. This would be a good time to have the State championship race again. MICH.

THE Meriden Wheel Club will have races September 3. F. F. Ives is to race five miles against a horse on that day.

THE number of ladies in the League is materially increased this week. New Jersey is the banner State in this respect.

THE N. C. U. failed to see the necessity for special sanction for W. A. Illston, an amateur, to race Ralph Temple, a professional.

E. L. NORTON and Geo. D. Lockwood, of the New Haven Bi. Club, have been touring about Boston, and made us a call.

"SENATOR" MORGAN'S picture looks at the readers of the Clipper of last week. It does n't look right. He is n't talking.

HILLIER says he will read and review Karl Kron's book if he has to wear glasses all the rest of his life to pay for it.

ROBERT TODD, secretary of the N. C. U., has resigned. To find a successor who will fill the place of Mr. Todd, will be no easy task for the Union.

PROVIDENCE wheelmen are noted for their generous hospitality. Boston wheelmen who go to their tournament will not regret the trip. We have been there.

KLIPSTEIN wanted to carry home in his pocket a Corey-Hill record. But the way was too rough and the hill was too long, and poor little Klipstein could not go along.

COREY-HILL records are too many to be of consequence now, and it would appear from the reception that Nellis got, that across the-continent trips are no longer wonderful.

How it must harrow up the soul of London W. and Jack Easy to see the Bicycling World persist in putting a "w" into Harrogate. Such a thing used to double you up in the early days, Jack.

EUROPEAN pilgrims are returning. We note this week the return of George H. Day, of the Pope Manufacturing Company; John Read, of William Read & Sons; and F. S. Coffin, of Stoddard, Lovering & Co.

IT has been remarked that the cycling papers said very little about the ball match at Cottage City. There was no need to say much. The score, 23 to 2 in five innings, told its story in a very convincing way.

SEPTEMBER 5, "Labor Day," will be generally observed as a holiday in Massachusetts, and the cycle clubs are arranging for runs and meets to occur on that date. There will be races at Lynn during the afternoon.

AT Bridlington Quay, August 1, Woodside tried to ride twenty-one miles in the hour. He missed it by two hundred and seventy-nine yards only, the distance covered being 20 miles, 1,418 yards. The twenty miles were made in 58.15 1-2.

THE Albany Wheelmen will hold a race meeting September 21. See programme in the advertising columns. Several championships are on the list of events. The Albany boys never do things by halves, and a first-class meeting may be expected.

THE Rhode Island Wheelmen will hold a grand race meeting at Providence, on September 20th, the opening day of the State Fair. Eleven events will be on the programme, for which good prizes are offered. See advertisement for full particulars.

STERLING ELLIOT, of Newton, secured some very fine photos at Cottage City, including two instantaneous views of the parade, several bathing scenes, the yachts, the racing tricycles, and a number of groups, including one of the editor and "Daisie."

AFTER the season for track racing and record breaking is ended, it is more than probable that Rowe and Crocker will challenge Rhodes and Neilson (this year's Victor team) for a 100-mile road race for $1,000 a side, points to count. — Springfield Union.

THE third annual fall race meeting of the East Hartford Wheel Club takes place September 17. An excellent programme of ten events has been prepared, including the half-mile handicap in heats, which proved such an attractive feature at the spring meetings.

THE arrival of a bicyclist claiming to have ridden across the continent, has failed to excite the slightest interest among the local wheelmen. Exploits of this nature have become too frequent of late. Stevens, Thayer, Van Meerbeke and Spiers rather dispelled the novelty of the achievement. — San Francisco Chronicle.

THE Wheelmen's Record says Rowe will make a Western tour this fall. He is riding the wrong sort of wheel to give Editor Bassett a chance to say he will make a starring tour. — Post-Dispatch. So he is. We always considered a tandem the best thing for a two-er.

EBEN T. BIXBY, janitor of the building in which the Pope Manufacturing Company were formerly located, has been arrested for pilfering goods from the firms in that building. A very large lot of miscellaneous goods was found at his house. He denies that he came by them dishonestly.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4.— An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by:—

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, roller, and ice skating."

Institute, has turned up at Honolulu, where he has been appointed superintendent of the electric lighting system by the government.

ROSS, HOSMER, and McKAY raced at the Casino, Cottage City, on Aug. 17, on the racing tricycles. The distance was ten miles, the track was thirteen laps to the mile and the corners were too sharp for good time. The times were, one-mile, 3.30; five-miles, 20; ten-miles, 39; Hosmer 1, Ross 2, McKay 3.

EDGAR L. DAVENPORT, an actor by profession and a wheelman from choice has joined the stock company at the Boston Museum, and we hope to give good report of him in wheeling circles. Davenport was quite a racing man in former years, and can show many trophies of his speed and endurance on the path. His home is in Canton, Pa.

OMAHA claims two hundred wheelmen and twenty miles of asphalt pavement. It is now the home of John Shillington Prince, who has built a track on the ball grounds, and is training the boys. Very soon we shall have wheelmen from all parts of the country claiming to be pupils of Prince, for he has been about everywhere. We are one of his pupils.

A NOVEL and useful article, just got out by a Birmingham firm, is a cyclist's companion in the shape of a watch case, with a place in front for the club ticket, and a set of dials to record the distance made, backed by a purse to contain the necessary cash for touring purposes; it will be in the market shortly. The dials may also be used as a whist-marker. — Invention.

EUGENE SANGER and Carle P. Cubberly, of the Somerville Club, have just returned from a tour up the Hudson River to Albany, and from Albany to Boston. The first stage of their tour was to Cottage City, where they spent the week with the Massachusetts Division. From there they took the boat to New York, and from New York they went northward as described.

JOPLIN, MO., wheelmen want a meet of some kind. They have a League club of thirty members, the best of roads, and the desire to entertain. We will suggest that they be taken at their word, and that neighboring cities organize, and descend upon Joplin. We have received a letter which testifies to the fine runs the club makes, and, if it were not so far, we should be tempted to ride over to Joplin just to see the boys.

A RACE meeting will be held at Millville, N. J., on Aug. 30. There are ten events in the programme, and all are short races. The prizes are liberal, and the entrance fee of fifty cents is returnable to starters. Entries, to C. S. Stevens, close Aug. 27. Millville has given us a number of fast racing men, and now her wheelmen hold open house and will entertain all who enter.

ON Thursday Aug. 18, a twenty-five-mile road race was run around Lake Harriet for the championship of Minnesota and the Minneapolis Bicycling Club. To finish twenty-five miles required a circuit of the lake nine times. There were thirteen starters, but only four finished, as follows: Charles Barwick (1), 1.50; James Purvis Bruce (2), 1.53; J. R. Stockdale (3), 1.54; W. C. Cutler (4), 1.58. E. A. Savage, who was set down as winner, was taken with cramps and retired on the eighth lap.

J. C. CARROLL, of Norfolk, Chief Consul of Virginia, with John J. Wales and C. A. Field, of the Seaside Club, of Norfolk, have been touring about Boston. Mr. Carroll tells us that our roads are unequalled, but he is unused to hills. In Virginia the riding is done on the pikes, which are on a dead level. The Seaside Club is one of the oldest in the country. It was organized in May of 1880, and was a potent factor in convincing the road hogs of Virginia that wheelmen have rights.

IN the safety bicycle race at the Shields Sports, a condition of the race was that machines weighing less than forty pounds were ineligible. In spite of this Tom English insisted on riding his racer safety, which weighs little more than thirty pounds actual weight, his mode of making it scale forty pounds being to strap a bag of lead behind the saddle. Of course, this unfair proceeding was objected to, and the case has been referred to the N. C. U. authorities for settlement. When their reply arrives, it will doubtless be of great interest to "pot-hunters." — Cyclist.

AT Coventry, England, Aug. 4, Duncan's European team claim to have lowered several records, Dubois well beating Woodside's record made at Bridlington. Duncan succeeded in beating his previous quarter record, doing 38 4-5s. Dubois' times were: One mile, 2.46 4-5; two mile, 5.34 2-5; three mile, 8.20 1-5; four mile, 11.14; five mile, 14.42 4-5. He then commenced cutting record time each quarter. The evening was perfect for record breaking. The pacemakers were Duncan, Medinger, and Eole. Henry Sturmey was timekeeper, and S. Golder laptaker.

A TWO days' bicycle tournament at Worcester will occur on Thursday and Friday of this week. The races will be run on the Agricultural Park horse track, which is a mile in circuit, and said to be in fairly good condition. There will be eight events each day. What promises to be the most exciting event of the tournament is the one-mile professional heat race, two heats of which will be run on the first day and the final on the second day. Rhodes, Crocker, Rowe, and Neilson are entered for this event.

HERE is what California tourists have to undergo. we take the item from a San Francisco paper: "From San José to the Junction House were five miles of splendid riding. Then for thirteen miles to Smith's Creek the tourists had abundant opportunity to "cultivate good nature" by taking the long up grades. While gayly riding down the long grade into Smith's Creek a large band of cattle was met. There was no disputing the right of way. The wheelmen simply took to the bushes and tried to attract as little attention as possible from the passing steers. The road was narrow, with the steep bluffs on one side and the canyon on the other. A stampede of the cattle would have been disastrous to all concerned. At Smith's Creek a delightful swim was had in a deep clear pool, where lots of trout could be seen."

ONE of the Pawtuxet wheelmen is evidently a disgusted young man. He met with an accident a few evenings ago which will deprive the organization of one of its active members. He was riding along the road leading to the Pawtuxet station when he met a team coming at a racing speed. He turned on to the side of the road, but was unable to avoid a collision. The hub of the carriage wheel struck the spokes of the large wheel

KING OF THE ROAD LAMPS.

Manufactured by J. LUCAS & SONS, Birmingham, Eng.

These Lamps are unquestionably the best in the market. Made of the best tin, every part riveted (instead of soldered), they are a thorough piece of workmanship. Being of large size, they throw a very powerful light; but from their peculiar construction, being divided throughout their entire length, they can be placed within a many-spoked wheel. They are provided with red side lights and red danger light at the back. The 1885 pattern, here represented, is far superior to the old style. The improvements are: (1) Adjustable axle bearings. (2) Wind-up burner, by which the light may be regulated from the outside, thus avoiding the annoyance of opening the lamp. (3) Improved arrangement of powerful detached reflector, which prevents its getting smoked. (4) Slide at side for lighting. (5) Patent clip on front containing wick igniter, etc. Sold by and broke them all on one side, causing the wheel to buckle and throwing the rider to the ground. The fall was a severe one, but except depriving him of his senses for a few moments, he received no injury. He was so disgusted, however, that he offered his wheel for sale cheap, but feeling indignant at an offer of fifteen dollars, he brought out an axe and soon completed the wreck. Some day he will grow older, probably wiser, and perhaps buy another machine.—Providence Journal.

AMERICA has the roller coaster and the toboggan slide, but she hasn't yet come to the fun of amusement that the editor of the Cyclist tells about as one of the diversions of those who go to the show at Agricultural Hall. It is called a Topsey Turvey railway. An immense cask about seven feet in diameter, with the ends knocked out, and a hlatform laid on one bilge, with seats for six — three face to face — just above such platform, is run backwards and forwards on wide wooden rails. When the six adventurous ones enter, they insert their feet in straps attached to the plaiform, and are then buckled round the thighs and waist to the sides of the tub. Then, if the followers of Diogenes be ladies, an additional strap is placed round the lower part of their skirts, and "Topsy Turvey" is ready to go all over tip. And they call this fun.

ERNST C. KLIPSTEIN, of St. Louis, has been visiting Boston, as a guest of Dr. Emery. On Wednesday evening last week the Roxbury Club, of which the doctor is president, gave a banquet in Mr. Klipstein's honor at the Revere House. Besides Mr. Klipstein, there were present as guests Chief Consul Hayes, Capt. E. G. Whitney, of the Boston Club, C. S. Howard, of the Globe, and our own representative, Dr. Emery, presided, and in his opening remarks, after the clearing of the board, he cordially welcomed the guest of the evening to Boston, and extended to him the freedom of the city by day and by night. "Klip" responded briefly, and speeches were made by Messrs. Hayes, Whitney, Howard and members of the club. Dr. Emery has been piloting his guest in and about Boston, and has shown him the Reservoir, Bailey's, Portland, the Point of Pines, and has not forgotten to take him to see Billy Rice, at the Museum.

HINTS from Bicycling News: Those who ride in the glare of the sun should remember that it is the back of the neck that requires most protection. It is from riding with this most important portion of the spine unprotected that so many cyclists have suffered from sunstroke. A handkerchief hitched under the cap, and left hanging behind, looks unsightly but it is greatly conducive to a cool cranium. If occasionally damped, it is remarkably pleasant. The wise man tours from 8 A. M. till eleven, rests till three, rides till five, rests till six, rides till nine in the hot weather. "However thirsty you may be,a void drinking water unless you know it is absolutely pure," said one of our medical men last week.

A WHEELMAN remarked yesterday, that he did not believe that the people who abstained altogether from active exertion, got along as well during the intense heat of the week as those who kept up their regular habits of exercise. "My leisure," said he, "comes in almost the hottest part of the day, but I take a spin of eight miles or so almost every day and get up a glorious perspiration. When one is dressed for it, a few degrees of additional heat don't make much difference, and on a wheel one nearly always gets a breeze. After a bath in water just from the hydrant, a rub-down, and the assumption of dry clothing I come down stairs feeling, like one of the neighbors, fifty per cent better than if I had been sitting in the shade fanning myself all of that time. It seems to me that my plan is better than that of the fellows who choose the cool of the evening for their exercises and then without a change of clothing, sit upon a piazza until they get chilled. Moreover, the plunge into cold water is as much fun as the spin. It is never too hot to take one's daily exercise, in this climate at any rate."—Buffalo Courier.

STYLUS urges the members of the new Massachusetts Club to look to it that their road record does not suffer in comparison with the old club. We believe in constant road riding, and to-day we are a living example of the benefits derived therefrom. Our enthusiasm and enjoyment in the indulgence of cycling is as keen to-day as it was in 1879. We think this long-continued interest is much due to the fact that we never rode to see how many inches we cover in a given number of seconds. From what we have seen during our experience, we are satisfied that seventy-five per cent of the men who have given up cycling have been scorchers and record-breakers. We warn all who may now happen to have the record craze on them at this time, that they are drawing so heavily on their future stock of pleasure by overdoing in the present, that the result must inevitably be reaction, disgust, and a final abandonment of cycling. An over-working of the physique is bound to be followed by a distaste for riding. Let us ride for pleasure, never mind the miles. Some cyclist's limit is twenty miles and some one hundred; let us look to it that we do not overshoot the mark.—Bicycling World.

THIS year sees the rise of the flannel shirt. There is no more uncomfortable garment in hot weather, than the stiff, white shirt, though convention for years would not permit a gentleman to discard it for a more comfortable garment. Several summers ago there was an innovation, the plaited shirt which good dressers sanctioned; but its popularity was limited after all. Almost contemporaneous with it was the introduction of the flannel shirt, thick, rough, and hideous. The growth of summer out-of door sports, lawn tennis, bicycling, boating, etc., caused a demand to arise for something better, and the present season sees the result. Haberdashers hung in their windows light, soft, delicately colored flannels at the beginning of summer. Men who dress for comfort bought them, and their example led others in the same path, until a rage arose that has put every man who can afford it in a flannel shirt, except those who are too conservative or dignified to follow rages. No vest is worn with the flannel shirt and suspenders are also given up. A tie of pongee silk, ganze, or other light material to harmonize with the color of the shirt should be worn. Thus fitted out a man can be happy with the mercury in the nineties.

YOU remember what a breeze was raised in the Legislature last spring, over the town guide-post bill, which Mr. Howe, of Shrewsbury, fathered and finally carried through triumphantly. It was popularly supposed at the time, that the bill originated with the farmers of the State, and, certainly, it was passed largely to please them. There is another story of its origin, however, which I do not remember to have heard before yesterday, when a well-known bicyclist "let it out" at Parker's. It seemed that the bicycle riders have long been annoyed at the lack of guide-posts along the country roads which they frequent, and a movement was quietly set on foot, to elect one of their number to the Legislature for the purpose of securing this much-needed reform. Lawyer Perkins of Cambridge was selected as the man to be put forward, and certainly he owed his election more to the bicycle club, of which he is a member, than to any political organization. So far, the story has every element of plausibility. Well, after he took his seat on Beacon Hill he prepared such a bill as his bicycle friends wanted enacted. Mr. Perkins, however, thought he should meet a good deal of unnecessary opposition if the bill was presented and pushed by a lawyer, and possibly its real intent might be discovered, which would probably have proved fatal. So he looked about for some country member who would carry weight and avert suspicion. Mr. Howe, of Shrewsbury, a new member, was fixed upon and his acquaintance cultivated. Mr. Howe caught at the bait held out, sprang into notoriety, and the bicyclists have what they desired. However, it was a good investment for Mr. Howe. He is the only man elected from that district who was ever heard of after he landed in Boston.—Springfield Republican.

"IT makes me mad," said an old horseman, who runs a prominent trading, training, and boarding stable in the city, "to see a horse nowadays shy at a bicycle. I would n't have such a horse in my stables. Of course, you can't expect a green horse to let one go shooting by him without kicking up some, just as he would at a woman with a parasol that got in front of him, or a horse car that rattled past, or any other unusual object; but I refer to city-trained horses, and nobody has any business to drive one unless he is properly trained. Of course it is startling to have one of the things slide swiftly by you from behind, just as it is when you are walking to have somebody unexpectedly shoot past; but I find that most bicycle riders slow down when approaching from behind; they pass on the left, according to the road rules, and take the precaution to make the presence of their silent horse known. When I get a green horse down from Vermont I break him into city driving, and among other things I train him to know a bicycle. If I am on the road, and see a rider who does n't appear to be in a hurry, I get him to give me a little of his time, and they are always obliging enough to do it. I get the bicycle man to approach my horse from in front two or three times until he gets used to it, and then I get him to come up from behind, and in about ten minutes the animal won't care anything more for that bicycle than he will for any other road vehicle. I think most horses regard a bicycle as something curious, and they look at them that way; but a level-headed animal ought never to think of shying at them." In approaching a horse that acts as if he were going to back and shy, it is a very good plan for the bicycle rider, as he slows down, to bend over and speak to the animal. Just as soon as the horse discovers that it is nothing more than a man that is passing him and not an infernal machine, he will in most cases cool down.—Providence Journal.

THE Williamsport (Penn.) Wheel Club issues a very tasty programme of the race meeting, which occurs on Saturday next. A notice of the tour, a history of the club, and a description of runs about the place, form the contents of the little book. Wheelmen are invited to participate in the festivities, but are cautioned not to speak of "Billtown," for no Williamsporter can stand that.

ON the afternoon of Saturday, Aug. 13, Alphonse King, of New York, accomplished the feat of crossing the Niagara River, below the Falls, on a so-called water bicycle. One trip was made from the American to the Canadian shore in 4.30, and contrary to expectation, the Rapids did not capsize the novel craft. The apparatus consisted of two long zinc cylinders for buoyancy, and the propelling power was a wheel with small paddles attached. When mounted on the machine the tubes sank so low in the water that King appeared to be riding a regular wheel across the gorge. He wore a high hat, a Prince Albert coat, and rubber leggings, the latter being the only protection from the water. A boatload of reporters went along to rescue King in case he capsized. The current carried him diagonally in the direction of the Whirlpool Rapids, but he had sufficient control of the bicycle to succeed in the performance. Several thousand persons, including Prince Devanwongse, and the other Siamese visitors, saw the feat. Dr. John A. Lanigan, on behalf of Buffalo admirers, presented King with a costly gold medal.

THE Kingston Knitting Company is making a complete League suit of Jersey cloth. The color follows very nearly that of the uniform, and the cut of the garment is exactly the same. The seams are all covered, and in every respect the uniform is well made. No more comfortable garments can be had than the Jerseys, and when a wheelman rigs himself in a suit of this kind he must be supremely happy. Coat and pants sell for $10, and the stockings, which match, cost extra. Besides the League suit, the Company makes everything in the way of Serseys. See their advertisement.

SOME OF THE TRADE

Delight in informing their friends that we do not sell any wheels to speak of, that the demand for them is very light in wheeling centres, where bicycle riders are posted.

WE APPEND HEREWITH

A few letters from some of our agents who had given up a well-known line of wheels rather than ours.

LOUISVILLE, KY., April 18, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We have sold twenty-five Champions so far — twenty-one in the city, the balance outside, which is double the number of fine wheels ever sold in Louisville by both the agencies put together in a year, and I think we will sell not far from one hundred Champions this season. It has not been hard work to sell them, they sell themselves. If an old —— rider is skeptical, he is the man I want to get hold of, and let him first try an —— and then a Champion. In this way we have mounted seven prominent riders on full nickelled Champions. Of course, this has had an effect no choice of wheels for beginners, which we intend to keep up. In fact, the machine has the most good talking and taking points of any machine I ever saw. For instance, you can grasp the large wheel and backbone of an —— just above the step — it is not very hard work to bring the wheel and backbone together. Now try the Champion, and you will find that it don't go t gether worth a cent; and as the backbones on both wheels are nearly thesame, one must give in the head and the other does n't. I have ridden my own mount (a Champion, of course) over 500 miles this season, and have given it a pretty thorough test on rough roads, and I certainly would not exchange it for anything in the wheel line I ever saw. I rode it April 3d (after the snowstorm), eighty miles, from Harrodsburg to Louisville in ten hours, with six inches of mud for forty miles, and not anything loosened but a spoke. I 'll not say anything more about the Champions, now; you may think I 'm trying to sell you one. Our successor has sold one —— so far.

HERE'S ANOTHER.

The New Orleans agent, by far the largest cycle dealer in the extreme South, says:

NEW ORLEANS, LA., April 21, 1887.

Gentlemen: — Your favor of the 15th inst., asking for a candid expression of opinion as regards the American Champion Bicycle, manufactured by Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co., has been received. In reply, I would say that in all my experience I have not found a wheel that gives such entire satisfaction and sells as readily as the "Champion." I have sold it since first introduced, and in this State it outnumbers other makes of high grade wheels about seven to one. It has proved a durable, easy running wheel, and its reputation here is fully established. You can recommend it to your customers with the utmost confidence. I could send you any number of direct testimonials, but infer you are writing for what is called a "condensed" experience.

AND STILL ANOTHER.

The Cincinnati agency is equally enthusiastic. Any one who has seen the four-horse teams of Cincinnati will understand the reference to the roads in the following.

CINCINNATI, O., April 10, 1887.

Dear Sirs: — We are in receipt of yours asking information regarding the Gormully & Jeffery goods. We feel that we cannot say too much as to the good merits of their machines. We have handled the "Ideal" for four years, and the "American Champion" from its first appearance last season. In every instance they have given perfect satisfaction to the purchaser. The American Champion, for ease of running, rigidity, and general durability, is not excelled by any wheel. The American Challenge is a good staunch roadster at a moderate cost, that has proven itself by actual usage on our roads (and worse could not be found in our immediate vicinity), to be a thoroughly reliable machine, answering all the requirements of a good all 'round bicycle at a mod 'e cost. The Ideal is, beyond a doubt, the best boy's wheel ever produced. e success of the wheel has been phenomenal about Cincinnati, and it is certainly well earned. It affords us great pleasure to offer these machines to the public, knowing that for thorough workmanship, reliable construction, and good quality of material employed in their manufacture, they are all that is claimed for them and sure to give satisfaction. We congratulate you on having added these wheels to your list, and wish you every success that they are bound to bring you.

There are plenty more to follow. In fact, we are prepared to satisfy an extraordinarily keen appetite for reflection. Catalog on application.

Miss Pope Mfg Co

Gentlemen. The record of my Expert Columbia is so good that I feel that you will be interested to learn about it I bought it in the spring of 1883, so that it is now in its fourth season. I took it to the City of Mexico and brought it back with me. I used it there over a year and have ridden it regularly ever since returning It has not yet cost me even a single cent for repairs and is still a staunch machine in first class running order.

Yours sincerely

Sylvester Baxter.

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

THE town authorities of Beatrice, Neb., have repealed the objectionable ordinance prohibiting the riding of bicycles on the highway. Judge Broady ruled that the ordinance was unconstitutional and unreasonable and the suit against a wheelman who was arrested for riding a bicycle was dismissed. The "City Fathers" were indignant at the dismissal and immediately appealed the case to the Supreme Court. The League was called upon for assistance and the wheelmen of the State were promised all the help and advice needed. And now the authorities have come to the conclusion that discretion is the better part of valor.

THE fact that a cycle tournament is given at Worcester, and that only five hundred people attend each day causes us to ask, what is the matter with racing? The management ignored the cycle press in their advertising and perhaps this is a factor in their failure

IN our issue of last week we published a very concise and well-written article on "Macadam Roads," by L. H. Porter. Consuls of the League would help the cause if they would persuade their local papers to reproduce the article. The appearance of such article in the non-cycling press not only calls attention to defects in the system of road building, but it disseminates information not always easily obtained.

THE Darrow Bros. have issued the first number of the transformed Wheelmen's Gazette. The policy which they have adopted has a good deal of robust common sense. It is idle to think of making a monthly periodical a vehicle of news and this will not be attempted. There is room for a paper devoted to the polite literature of the wheel and in this vein will the Gazette be run. The paper starts out well and we wish it every success.

THE cycling press has lately had a good deal to say about the manner in which the uniform contractors are living up to their contract. Very few complaints have been received at headquarters and the uniform committee is not aware that the contractor is seriously at fault. Those who have a grievance, who are dissatisfied with what they get from the contractor, and who have reason to believe that they have been unfairly treated, should write at once to the uniform committee and state their cases. In this way the committee can know how the work is being done and can take measures to secure full value to members who send their money to the contractor. Address "Uniform Committee," G. R. Bidwell, 313 W. 58 Street, New York.

HILLIER has been dipping his pen in gall once more and saying a word against the American cycling press. He uses such strong language that it loses its effect, and those against whom the utterances are delivered can well afford to ignore them. He says:—

"Those who have ever seen an American journal of the sport will agree with us that, if the American 'wheelman' is at all like his Press, his cerebral development must be lax indeed. With the exception of the LEAGUE OF AMERICAN WHEELMEN'S BULLETIN and the Wheelman's Gazette, American cycling papers are just about where we were in the year of grace 1879. They are full of references to "Tuxed Jim" and "New Jersey Jake," and all manner of unknown readers, and the grammar and general "get up" are singularly suggestive of the Cycling Times and, alas! Bicycling News nine or ten years ago. "Cycling politics" are their chief subjects of discourse, and the manner in which the manufacturers (such as advertise, of course) are puffed is disgusting. A prominent American gentleman and journalist recently gave us his estimate of the circulation of the American papers:—

L. A. W. BULLETIN, 11,000.
Wheelman's Gazette, 2,000.
Bicycling World, 1,500.
Wheel, 1,000.
Wheelmen's Record, 500 (perhaps)."

The criticism is harsh and unmerited, American cycling papers are as well edited and conducted as is the News or any of the English wheel papers and they are much better printed. Moreover, we believe that the circulations of our papers are proportionately larger than those of England when we consider the much larger number of riders they have on the other side. The Wheel is much incensed at Hilliers's attack, and says:—

"We beg to assure the Hon. G. L. H that we desire no further correspondence with him, and we shall esteem it an especial mark of respect and honor if he will kindly omit to call upon us, should his present intention of visiting this country be carried out."

IF the Wheel should put in evidence a copy of any late issue it would be a most effective answer to Mr. Hillier.

HOWELL is coming to race Rowe. The last advices say Howell is going to Germany. Howell will not come over to race Rowe. Harry Corey says Howell is coming. Daniels has direct advices that Howell is coming over. Howell says he won't come this year. Morgan says Howell declines to come. Kennedy Child has a special cablegram from Howell saying he is on the way. There they are. Take your choice.

THE Outing Cycling Club was organized at San Francisco, August 19, with seventeen charter members. It has made application to the League as a League club, and been duly entered. Officers: President, W. B. Mier; vice-president, W. B. Bartlett; secretary, J. M. Brewer; treasurer, R. J. Mier; captain, C. R. Biederman; lieutenant, J. Hood.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

A CORRESPONDENT writes: "Harper's Young People, under date of August 2, has an article on 'The Tricycle for Girls,' by S. M. Johnson. Describing the proper way for girls, and, I presume, ladies, to mount a Cripper tricycle the writer says: 'Going behind your tricycle, you grasp the handle-bar with both hands, and, with one foot upon the axle, lift yourself from the ground; the other foot then finds the foot-rest, and you slip quickly into the saddle. Now, this may do for a gentleman; but is it the proper way for a lady to mount?'"

I CAN imagine that the writer does not question the detail of the mount, but is curious to know if it is proper for a lady to mount from behind. It must be confessed that it is very awkward for a lady to mount in this way, but it is decidedly the best way to get upon a bar-steering machine. The awkwardness is magnified tenfold if a lady attempts to get around the bar and mount from the front. I do not find the foot-rest before taking my seat, as Mrs. Johnson advises, for it would certainly be awkward on many of the machines that have rests a good distance away; but, placing my right foot on the axle, I raise myself, and take a side-saddle position, from which I can easily turn around into the riding position; then, standing on the pedals, I adjust skirts, etc.

AT Cottage City, Mr. Hutchinson, of New York, showed me a device for a Cunard tricycle, which allowed of turning one arm of the bar aside, giving ample room for a lady to mount from the front. The bar did not seem to suffer in strength by the addition of this feature.

MY correspondent further says: "The same writer also says: 'A light machine is one weighing between sixty and seventy pounds.' How is that?" I can't tell, if he thinks such a machine is not a light one, or if he thinks there are none as light. Mrs. Stall rides a wheel which weighs less than fifty pounds, and I have been riding one which has wooden wheels, and weighs but sixty pounds. Miss G——, of Newton, has a Humber which weighs less than seventy pounds. The great majority of wheels, however, weigh not far from eighty-five pounds. I am promised a wheel which will weigh fifty pounds, have rotary action of a new kind, and be capable of a change in the gearing. It will have wooden wheels.

THE ladies of England are to have a tour organized by the C. T. C., and personally conducted by Mr. G. D. Ingall of the club, who is described as "a married man and a good tourmaster." The notice is issued by Mr. Ingall is as follows: Members of the C. T. C. may remember that in the early part of the year the lady who caters for her sister cyclists in our columns demanded that the big club should endeavor to do more for its lady members in the matter of smoothing the way to the enjoyment of touring, a pleasure which is at present monopolized almost entirely by the sterner sex. The result of this action on her part was that a committee was appointed to consider the matter, and, more in the interest of the ladies than others, it was declared advisable to start organized tours, the principal features of which should be that the distances should be short, the numbers limited — at any rate, at first — preference should be given to those who, in our hours of woe, are ministering angels, and, in order to get over social prejudices, their official character should be well marked by making one of the Council the tourmaster. The outcome of all this action is that two tours have been organized, as set forth in the last Gazette — one abroad in the district of the Ardennes, the other at home, and under the guidance of Mr. G. D. Ingall, R. C. C. T. C., our "Anglo-Dutchman."

VIOLET LORNE says: "The initial venture of this nature is to take place August 20, when a party starts for the Ardennes, and it is to be followed up, on September 5, by a five days' tour through the South-Eastern counties, when all arrangements are framed with a special view to the comfort and convenience of the lady members, who are cordially invited to join. I have little doubt that the number of applicants for place among the favored fifteen or twenty will amply prove that organized mixed tours will supply a want in the cycling world."

THE annual trip of the ladies to the North Shore will occur this year late in September or early in October. I understand that a committee is already at work, and that a prospectus may soon be expected. It is proposed to take an ambulance along for disabled machines and their riders, and to make arrangements for the accommodation and entertainment of the tourists on a much more elaborate scale than has been attempted in previous years.

A BROOKLYN paper has the following item regarding a tandem trip. This kind of thing will be very common in a few years. "There is an artist couple in this city who have a pretty, disorderly apartment in one of the studio buildings, who have gone housekeeping for the summer in one of those double tricycles. There is a big red umbrella in the middle, which shades both, a satchel strapped underneath her seat, and an easel and drawing materials under his. They have started off in this light marching order for a month's sketching tour along the Sound, and stop once in a while for two days in a village to have the week's washing done, when they go on again. They are to avoid the towns, and put up at farmhouses and in villages, because of their desire for sketches of rustic life, and because of the saving in expense. They hire the month's use of the tricycle for $15, and are responsible for damages to it, and for the wear on the rubber tires; but they calculate to run but little over $35 more for living expenses during the month, and find $25 apiece for a month's existence very reasonable. They claim that they will have all the advantages of camping out with none of its discomforts, and will spend an average of twenty five days out of doors, moving their scenery and avoiding monotony, and will be able to sleep comfortably and eat conveniently, which campers out know is not to be obtained under canvas with any degree of certainty."

DAISIE.

ST. LOUIS.

THE bicycle thief is rapidly looming up as part and parcel of St. Louis cycledom, and this particular feature, if not carefully watched, will improve into a regular industry. Charlie Andrews, with several others, were sipping lemonade at a resort near the club one evening this week; Andrews leaving his wheel in the area, When he looked for it again, it had disappeared. A similar disappearance occurred some time ago, but proved to be the work of a practical joker, but Andrews declares that in this case, if the funny man is found, it will be a very practical joke indeed for him. A novel plan for finding the wheel has been devised. The machine was a Victor No. 5,333, and Andrews has mailed a circular letter to every Victor rider in the city, enclosing a red silk ribbon, with a request that it be attached to the brake-spoon shank of each rider's wheel. The boys are co-operating heartily, and should a Victor without this badge be discovered, it will probably be the stolen one.

OUR streets are now being sprinkled by the city. The result of the first day's work was quite different from what the wheelmen anticipated. They looked for constantly swamped streets and an increase in the number of ruts and mud holes, but on the contrary, the sprinkling is done lightly and frequently, and the roads are packing in magnificent style in every quarter. The authorities in charge of the asphaltum, might find a lesson in this. It is known that water wears and rots asphalt, but this does not prevent Pine and Locust Streets from being transformed each day from handsome thoroughfares to stretches of slime, dangerous to both cycler and horse. Ruts and holes, too, are the result of this swamping process.

SECRETARY-TREASURER Lewis has improved rather than depreciated in riding qualities. His first prank, on returning home, was to take a spin by night out on the old Manchester Pike, and to coast down Solomon's on the fly. "I was n't in the saddle much," said Ab, "but I tell you it was fun and seemed decidedly like home." The curve of the big hill is washing the wrong way more and more, and but few of the veterans now coast it without brakes.

DR. HENDERSON, Captain of the Kansas City Wheelmen, is working up riding enthusiasm by means of unique runs into the country. His latest is a trip to Independence, the cyclers arranging to escort Independence young ladies to church on arrival there. Kansas City will probably include a bicycle parade and races as a feature of its festival season and fair. The road race to Paola causes increased interest, and it is understood that among the flyers, Frank Ray, Dr. Tar, Haynes, Ashcroft, and Stewart will figure.

BICYCLE gloves are sensible for veteran and novice alike, yet in how few cases their use is continued longer than a few days. I know one rider who swears by gloves, and advises their use, yet the right hand palm of this same rider has been lacerated just ten times. Walter Wylie recently fell and scraped his knuckles — result, the tendon of his third finger is so contracted that he cannot close his hand. "Don't think I will need them this trip," is poor policy.

SMITH'S athletic club scheme comes up for final discussion September 5. Delegations of five from the Division, each cycle and other club, Y. M. C. A. and Missouri Gymnasium will attend a meeting called for that date by W. M. Brewster, who is thoroughly enthused and believes the plan is practical. J. A. St. John and other "foundation stones" will also attend.

PERCY STONE, having entered the Cleveland tournament for money stakes, blossoms out a full-blown professional. Percy is not at all partial to "blowing," but somehow that term strikes me as appropriate.

KLIPSTEIN, Dr. Emery's lively protegé, writes home great yarns about his Boston experiences, and alludes gratefully to the banquet tendered him by the Roxbury Club. He tackled Corey Hill, but says short cranks, straight wheel and "buckled handle-bar" stopped him near the top.

MR. CLARK, a prominent cycler of Omaha, has been in the city. He was the guest of the Missouri Club. PHŒNIX.

CHICAGO.

THE Illinois Cycling Club, having reached the mature age of one year, celebrated its first anniversary in the form of a "smoker," lantern parade, etc., at their club rooms last week Wednesday evening. About two hundred wheelmen were present. It was by far the greatest success of anything ever attempted by the wheelmen of this vicinity. In addition to the usual "smoker," there was quite a musical programme, which was participated in, by some of the best talent of Chicago.

THE lantern parade, which occurred early in the evening, brought out the fair sex in large numbers. They flocked every corner, and in many places it was difficult to pass. There were decorations of all kinds, and lanterns used without number. A. J. Street received the first prize — a Lakin Cyclometer — for the best illuminated wheel. W. A. Davis, mounted on a three-wheeler, took the second prize. Burley Ayers was presented a stick of candy for exhibiting the most shapely pair of calves. The boys did remarkably well, considering this was their first attempt at anything of this kind. A stiff breeze was blowing during the parade, which caused many of the smaller lanterns to burn out before the entire route had been covered.

TOM ROE was sadly missed on this occasion. He is one of the kind that will never be outdone, and always has an original idea when it comes to wheel decorating. By the way, we had a letter from him written at Kansas City a few days since, and he says that he has not given up the wheel, as was reported, nor does he intend to resign from the club. I understand that the racing fever has struck Kansas City. Doubtless, Tom is a dark horse for the next half-mile dash.

I HAVE learned that the new cycling club, that is being formed in the vicinity of Humboldt Park, is the "Æolus Bicycle Club." It is quite evident that none of its members are superstitious or they would never have christened it as above. Another chance for Burley Ayers.

AND still another on the North side of town. I believe this is to be called "The Eagles" and is being organized by Pierce and Spooner and other North side wheelmen who have recently resigned from the Owls, as it is a South side club and has its headquarters several miles from the North side, which makes it very difficult to be reached, especially in the evening.

THE dues of the Chicago Bicycle Club have been increased to thirty dollars per year, and hereafter no application will be accepted for membership unless said applicant is at least twenty-one years of age. The club is still without a clubhouse, but expects to be in one at an early day. SPECTATOR.

MICHIGAN.

BAY CITY. — The tourists from the Bay City Club, who started from Windsor, last week Monday, for a tour through Canada, were most unfortunate in meeting with bad weather. Mr. Babcock remained with the party until near St. Thomas, when, deciding that pushing through the muddy roads was more like labor than pleasure, he returned home. Balance of party continued the tour, but were making slow progress.

DETROIT. — The racing fever has again broken out among the members of the Detroit Bicycle Club, and in a much more aggravated form than the last attack. They intend to hold a two days' race meet on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1. This meet is to be on a grander scale than any yet attempted by the cl[ub]. The Detroit wheelmen have not had a fair c[hance] so far to find out how popular their sport [is] city, as each race meet has been spoil[ed] weather. The race meets held in Det[roit] called "international," there being [a] dian flyers in attendance as American [riders] were too many Canadian representative[s] the last meet, for between Messrs. Davis, [Toronto], and Lamont, of Chatham, the medals for the open events went to Canada.

THE Star Club is determined to have its wheel well represented, and intends bringing the best Star talent, amateur (and professional if required), for the occasion.

THE State championship race will take place again at this meet, and the former competitors will have a chance to try again.

THE wheelmen are very much excited over the prospect of having asphalt on Cass Avenue. What a change this would be from the wretched cedar block with which it is now paved.

A SHOT-GUN and a charge of cold lead awaits Editor Darrow on his next appearance in Detroit, to repay him for the cartoon in his last issue, in which he describes Farmer Flapjack as beating our crack flyers. George D., should the shot-gun fail, remember the Mt. Clemens plank, which was such a novelty to you; it is there still, and growing worse each day. One more cartoon, and your life will not be safe in the "City of the Straits." MICH.

THE HARTFORD TOURNAMENT.

A BIG annual cycle race meeting seems to have become a fixed institution at Hartford. An excellent track, enthusiastic local wheelmen, and above all a thoroughly appreciative public have combined to make the past Hartford tournaments second to none, unless possibly those of Springfield. When it was announced early this season that the Connecticut Club would not go into the tournament business again, expressions of regret were heard on all sides. The fact seems to be, that while the members of this old line club are as enthusiastic as ever concerning all things a-wheel, they hardly consider it worth their while to take the exertion necessary to conducting another race meeting. Their past ventures of the kind have been very successful financially, the large profits realized being well attested by luxuriously furnished parlors and permanently invested funds. The Connecticut seems to be one of the very few clubs in the country which has grown rich enough for all practical purposes.

When the Connecticut Club decided upon no meeting this year, the Hartford Wheel Club, a comparatively new, but very strong organization of one hundred active members, determined, greatly to the satisfaction of all Hartford wheelmen and the local public as well, to assume the responsibility of conducting the regulation "Hartford tournament" for 1887; and from present indications the coming event will, in all things, be fully equal to any of its predecessors. The programme has been carefully arranged, and the prize list is very attractive, including, among other things of value, Columbia and Victor light roadster bicycles. The entry list is already large enough to insure a fine field of starters and spirited racing. For the one-mile professional championship ten names are down, among them Rowe, Crocker, Neilson, Rhodes. Among the amateurs are Rich, Crist, Stenken, Midgley, DeBlois, Hart, Miller, Harding. The one-mile State championship is attracting unusual attention this year, and it will be hotly contested by DeBlois, Hart, and others. The two named are among the noted fast amateurs of the country, very evenly matched, and each the favorite of hosts of friends.

On the day of the races, Sept. 7, extra trains will run to Charter Oak Park from all immediate points, and with good weather the attendance will be immense. Racing will begin promptly at three o'clock; concert by Weed's full military band at two o'clock.

NEW YORK DIVISION.

THE annual meeting of the New York State Division to be held at Cooperstown, Sept. 23d and 24th, is already an assured success. Members of the Division from all sections of the State are making their arrangements to attend. All the large clubs will send delegations, and altogether, this meeting will probably be the most enjoyable ever held. We had hoped to publish this week the arrangements and details as to transportation, hotels, etc., but this must be deferred until our next issue, as the committee have been unable to complete all transportation arrangements. This much may be said, the round trip from New York City will not be over $10.00, which will include sleeping car both ways. Round trip only $7.00, proportionate rates will be granted from all sections of the State.

Members desiring rates will apply to Chief Consul Bidwell, 313 West 58th Street, New York. The hotel rates at Cooperstown will be from $1.50 to $3.00 per day. The next issue of the Wheel will contain arrangements in full, time table of train, rates of fare, etc., and will be mailed to each member of the Division.

LOUISIANA DIVISION.

As our Division is entitled to a representative, I take pleasure in announcing that I have this day appointed Mr. S. M. Patton, of New Orleans, as the representative of the Louisiana Division.

I have also this day appointed O. H. Terwilliger, Local Consul at Opelousas, La.

The following are the League officials for this Division: —

Harry H. Hodgson, Chief Consul, 13 Carondelet Street, New Orleans.

Ritchie G. Betts, Secretary-Treasurer, New Orleans, La.

S. M. Patton, Representative, New Orleans, La.

Harry W. Fairfax, Local Consul, New Orleans.

J. B. Walters, Local Consul, Shreveport, La.

O. H. Terwilliger, Opelousas, La., Local Consul.

HOTELS.

Hotel Vonderbank, New Orleans; City Hotel, Shreveport.

There is a better feeling now towards wheelmen than ever before in this city and State, citizens who formerly regarded the wheel as a toy, or child's sport, have accepted positions as committee men for our annual races in September, and have begun to realize that the wheel as practical mode of travelling is a fixed fact.

Our League membership is ahead of last year, and hope to send a full list of renewals next year.

We are winning favor on all sides, and in the few troubles we have had with the "Road Hog," Judge Davey, of this city, has on each occasion stood by the wheelmen nobly, and gave them a fair and impartial show, and we have won every time.

On September 15 our annual races will be held, and we will invite six thousand people, — this to make the sport popular.

H. H. HODGSON,
Chief Consul Louisiana Division.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 24, 1887.

NOW that the weather is getting cooler there will be a great deal more night riding than during the hot summer months. It is always safer to carry a lamp. The Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company, of Chicago, manufacture a complete line, and will be pleased to send their catalog on application.

WHY do you allow your machine to remain rusty when you can with one bottle of the G. & J. Retouching Enamel make it look almost new? It costs only seventy-five cents and does the work. The Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Co., of Chicago, will be pleased to send their catalog on application.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

ONE of your correspondents, Mr. Editor, forgetting that a reporter must furnish all kinds of news, regardless of his own opinion, last week, seemed to take me to task for giving, in connection with a summary of the false arrest of two of our cyclers, a detailed mention of the proposed race on the Lancaster pike, for the Tryon cup. I do not hesitate to say to him and to any one else who cares to hear it, that I am as much opposed to road racing as he can possibly be. I don't believe in it, I know it is dangerous, and I wish that the projectors would either withdraw the race altogether, or else give it on a track where the danger would be reduced to as near the minimum as possible with bicycle contests. Just the same, however, if it should come off, and my club were to have a team, and I, good enough rider to secure a place on that team, I should be very likely to ride. From the latest reports, however, it looks much as if the Pennsylvania Club would not have anything to do with it officially; both the Pennsylvania and Philadelphia clubs have declined to be responsible for possible accidents and it is hardly likely that Tryon & Co. will agree to shoulder the bond which the Pike authorities have deemed necessary. There is no denying, though, that a great deal of interest has been centred in the race, and it will be a big disappointment to many if it is to fall through. The Tioga team is doing it's little best to keep to the four minute gait up all the hills, and occasionally University men may be seen hard at it. Suplee, one of the best-known of Penna.'s good-looking members, is doing good work on his new Victor; John Wells is a regular "hustler," and Richwine divides the good opinion of his club with a new rider whose name is not yet out. The Century could get but one member to signify his willingness to ride, and, as a consequence, will have no team. The Pennsylvania team will not, however, have quite the "snap" they may have expected in the road race. The Tioga boys are doing extremely well, and two of them, last week, broke the elder Gideon all up in a trial trip over the course. He was three minutes behind the first one, one behind the second, and the fourth member of the team was only two minutes further back, while all four were well inside of a four-minute gait, the last ten miles occupying less than 38 minutes. The course is very rough and lumpy, nearly every last stone on the pike having washed bare in the recent rains. Add to this the fact of a strong head wind for two-thirds of the way out, and no wind at all to help in, and it will be seen that there is good material in the new representation.

THE athletic sports at the Gentlemen's Driving Course, Saturday, Aug. 27, were well attended. The track, owing to the short notice given, was, as usual, not in very good condition. The first event, a one-mile bicycle race for novices, was won by H. Harding in 3.20; George Bowman second.

The half-mile bicycle race for boys under 16 years of age was won by Robert Coningsby, in 1.49 1-2; Ed Crawford second.

The two-mile bicycle lap race was won by Louis Kolb. The first lap of half a mile was made in 1.31 1-2; the first mile in 3.21. M. J. Bailey and Bart Keen, the other contestants, dropped out of the race at the third lap. Kolb made the two miles in 8.17.

The one-mile bicycle race was won by M. J. Bailey in 3.15; L. Kolb, second, his exertions in the last race having told heavily on him.

The sixty yards slow bicycle race was won by Robert Coningsby, who took 1.12 to cover the ground; Ed. Crawford, second.

The half-mile bicycle race without using the hands after the first ten seconds was won by S. H. Crawford in 1.46; L. Kolb, second. Crawford is one of the veterans of Phila. cycling.

The consolation one-mile bicycle race for those who had not won an event was won by Bart Keen in 3.46; R. C. Schaffer, second.

The last and most interesting event was the race between Mr. Le Roy's horse Boston and five bicyclers for five miles. The bicyclists followed each other in regular order, taking one lap at a time of a half mile each. Boston won the contest in 15.9 1-2, although Le Roy, his rider, stopped twice, once to fix the stirrups and again for a saddle. The time of the bicyclists was 16.4 1-2.

HERE is a question which "Chris. Wheeler" in the "nonsense column" of the Item agitates, and it is well worthy of careful consideration: "How about the question of securing for Pennsylvania something after the order of that Liberty Bill which is now the boast of wheelmen of New York State? True, the wheel has full liberty in Pennsylvania, but still its standing is not defined by law, and until it is there will always be a chance for misunderstandings and failures of justice. I understand that as soon as the State Legislature reconvenes, an effort will be made to have such a bill passed. Why not push it in Jersey, too?

THE Burlington county farmers say they do not intend giving any of the road to cyclers when passing. The "hayseeds" should emigrate to Pennsylvania and see how the "road hogs" are served there. Perhaps a few such lessons would change their ideas, and do much to preserve the general peace in New Spain.

IT is reported that Mr. John Green, of the firm of Strong & Green, on a Star bicycle, recently made three miles on the road inside of eleven minutes.

THE Camden wheelmen will probably hold a club race meet on their new track September 3, depending on the condition of the track. The track has been placed in charge of A. Coningsby, of West Philadelphia, and it is to be hoped that Camden will be more successful under his management than has West Philadelphia so far.

YOUR compositor made me speak of the "Tioga" cup last week, when I tried so very hard by plain writing to say Tryon. Such a blunder as that he'd better not again try on.

PHACTO

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THERE are rumors floating about of a scheme being on foot to dispense with the office of secretary-treasurer, consolidating it with the office of chief consul, giving that officer sole power over all the financial as well as consular work of the Division. Now, this seems to me, very bad policy for many reasons, which will be apparent to any one who will carefully consider the matter; principal of which is the power given to one man, and the disastrous results that might follow if that man were unfitted for the position. Under the present chief consul, such an arrangement might work well; but a move of this sort is not a personal matter, but one involving, not only a question of principle, but grave responsibilities and consequences. "Power will intoxicate the best of hearts, as wine the strongest heads. No man is wise enough, nor good enough to be trusted with unlimited power; for, whatever qualifications he may have evinced to entitle him to the possession of so dangerous a privilege, yet, when possessed, others can no longer answer for him, because he can no longer answer for himself."

The question of Road Racing is agitating the cycling minds of this vicinity to a considerable extent, the recent action of Mr. Luscomb and the letter from Mr. Shriver as printed in the Wheel of last week, exciting considerable comment pro and con. Personally, I am not opposed to Road Racing, but on principle, I am decidedly so, and am of the opinion that it must be sooner or later abolished. Mr. Shriver asserts that the Irvington-Milburn races "have certainly been in no way a public nuisance" and also that "no interference with public rights has been caused," in both of which, I beg to differ with him. The statute law informs us that any crowd assembling upon a public highway are trespassers, and may be arrested by an officer or the owner of the adjoining property, and it further stipulates that persons have no right on a public highway except for the purpose of passing over it. Such crowds as congregated on the Irvington-Milburn course last May were a "public nuisance" and interfered with public and private rights in a most arbitrary manner. The highway was almost blockaded for a distance of two or three hundred yards in the vicinity of the starting point. Horses were seized by the bridle and summarily forced off the roadway in spite of protest or warning from their drivers, which act constituted an assault, which drivers of vehicles had a right to resist by force, or resent by criminal procedure. Although a wheelman, I am free to admit, that if I, as a driver of a horse, had been treated as were drivers of horses at the May road race, I should have felt justified in resisting the assaults there made, by force, and arms if necessary.

Mr. Shriver further remarks: "The League has quite enough work in its legitimate sphere without indulgence in meddlesome interference with private rights." Here again Mr. Shriver is wrong, for there are no "private rights" involved. Road Racing is illegal, and therefore you have no "private" nor public right to use the highways for that purpose.

He also says: "We belong to the League to aid each other — not to regulate each other." The League is an association to promote cycling; to ascertain, defend and protect the rights of wheelmen; and to regulate the government of all amateur sports connected with the use of the wheel. If we join the League, we do so presumably, to partake of its benefits, and to assist in maintaining our rights. If the League, therefore, considers that as Road Racing is illegal, and its indulgence intrudes upon the rights of others, and will ultimately result in the curtailment of our own, by restrictive legislation or other official enactment odious to our comfort, are we not bound as faithful members of her body, to respect her rulings, and endeavor to further her best intercsts? And if the League has power to regulate the government of all amateur sports connected with the use of the wheel, has she not power to forbid such sports as are illegal, or damaging to her interests?

Club life at present is quiet, many of our prominent cycling lights being out of town. The delightful weather of the past week has witnessed an increase in the number of riders taking their afternoon spin. Saturday brought out the largest number seen since the heated term began, and each week will see the number swell. The new clubhouses of the Long Island and Kings County wheelmen are not progressing as rapidly as the members of those respective organizations would wish for. The Long Islands will probably get in some time during October, but the Kings County wheelmen not for some time later. The Ilderans are making improvements in their present quarters, and preparing for an active social season during the winter.

TOURING.

THE rider having developed his powers by careful practice, it will next be for him to consider what are the necessaries to be carried for his comfort, or sent to various places where he may stop en route, and here again great latitude must be allowed, as tastes differ most notably, one rider regarding a tooth brush and a piece of soap ample equipment for a week's journey, while another will be loaded down with packages and needless impediments, which contain necessaries from his standpoint. In the matter of carrying luggage, the bicycler is obviously less favored than the tricycler, though he has the great advantage in travelling over the generality of our country highways, but to return to the question of luggage, the rider of the bicycle will learn with experience how to carry sufficient for comfort, which is a happy medium, consisting of not too much, nor yet too little, but just enough for all reasonable requirements; and such an equipment can readily be carried on a bicycle, and renders the tourist independent of the troubles and annoyances always incidental to the sending of clothing by express, owing to frequent mistakes, delays, or miscarriage, most vexatious drawbacks which every tourist has experienced.

Some bicyclers fly light in the matter of luggage, trusting to chance for such changes as may be necessary, while they have always the option of going to bed if unable to obtain dry garments in which to sit up. But the prudent rider, or one who has once suffered from the inconvenience and discomfort of being without, will take care to provide himself with at least one complete change of under-garments; one of the best and most convenient forms of which will be found in the full jersey suits, of not too thin texture, sold by all dealers in cycling and athletic goods, or those manufactured by Messrs. Holmes & Co., No. 17 Kingston Street, Boston, which have proved to be serviceable as well as reasonable in price.

A jersey suit will roll up into a very small compass, and when put on it completely clothes the body from neck to feet in dry woollen attire, which may be worn alone if necessary, and is by all odds, when so worn, the most comfortable and serviceable riding suit, and over which damp outer garments may be put on again without danger from cold, if not without some little discomfort. It can also be used to sleep in at night, instead of using an ordinary night shirt, always a bulky matter when space is limited, and the fact that woollen underclothing is a protection in case of damp sheets is another argument recommending its adoption by the tourist. The kit is thus reduced by making one garment serve the place of two or more, and at the same time the weight to be carried is lessened, an important factor to be considered in studying the convenience of the rider, for even the strongest and most sturdy of cyclers will do well not to overweight himself in this direction.

From my experience the following is ample for a tour of two weeks, or even longer, and can be readily carried on a bicycle: The rider, when in the saddle, should wear a thin or medium weight merino undershirt without sleeves; a pair of thin cotton socks, which not only keep the feet clean, but also prevent chafing and soreness; a complete jersey suit, consisting of a high neck, long sleeve jersey, and a pair of full tights; low shoes with stout soles, and a cap or other suitable headgear at the option of the wearer. For riding, the jersey suit has many advantages and no equal for comfort, being easy, giving full and unrestricted freedom to all the limbs and muscles, warm in cool weather, cool in hot weather, and drying very quickly if the wearer chances to be caught in rain. I have seen fellow tourists on a warm summer day, plunge into a cooling stream, jersey suit and all, and dry quickly after resuming the saddle. This practice is not to be recommended, for while it may be extremely convenient and refreshing for the time being, it is conducive to colds and rheumatism. Stout soles to a tourist's shoes are essential to comfort when an occasional bit of walking is necessary, thin soles not only hurting the feet, but occasionally producing such soreness as will temporarily lame the wearer.

In addition to what the tourist has on, when clothed as above, he should also carry the following outfit: Uniform, or cycling coat and pants; extra jersey suit; two pair of socks; one undershirt; from three to six handkerchiefs; one neck handkerchief or scarf; comb; tooth brush; razor, etc., if necessary; a small sponge and a small chamois or soft leather bag with a stout drawing string made like a tobacco pouch.

If preferred, the extra jersey suit may be omitted and a flannel riding shirt and pair of long woollen stockings substituted, in which case attention is called to the new self-supporting stockings now generally sold by dealers, and which are most comfortable, answering the purpose of drawers as well as doing away with any garter encumbrances.

Having purchased two pieces of rubber cloth, of the quality known as Derby cloth, each about one yard square, proceed to roll the things up tightly in two packages, about twenty inches long and as small in circumference as it is possible to get them, placing the coat and pants in one and the extra jersey suit and underclothing in the other, the other articles being conveniently divided between the two. Roll as tightly as possible, they cannot be too tight or snug, and wrap up securely, each in a piece of the rubber cloth, commencing at one corner that the ends may be more firmly tucked in and made watertight and two sausage-shaped parcels are the result which should be fastened with stout rubber bands or, straps to prevent unrolling. The tourist thus equipped, if overtaken by rain, may regard a wetting as a matter of no serious consequence, he being clad in woollen garments and his luggage protected by its rubber coveaing. But to proceed; one of these packages, and it should be that which contains the coat and pants, is attached in front of the handlebar by means of the ordinary Lamson luggage carrier, which is the best made, care being taken that the action of the break is not interfered with.

Arriving at the noon-day resting place, if it is necessary or desirable to appear in full regalia, the coat and pants are easily got at and slipped on over the jersey riding suit, the neck-handkerchief, which should be in the same package, being neatly adjusted, the tourist is presentable to appear in any dining room. The other package, which should contain such things as will not be required until the day's journey is finished, is attached to the backbone of the machine, not too far below the saddle, by means of a Zachariah and Smith luggage carrier, and this method will be found to be far superior to the old and clumsy M. I. P. bag, which is not only more awkward to get over in mounting the machine, but more unhandy to pack, unpack, or to get at it's contents when en route.

The chamois bag before mentioned, is to contain smoking materials, odds and ends, not forgetting a needle and thread, frequently most useful; and such an amount of ready change as the tourist requires for incidentals during the day, the bulk of his finances being securely fastened in the pocket of his coat and wrapped with it in the bundle. This bag is safely fastened at the end of one of the handles, preferably the left, as most riders dismount and stand on that side; it is handily gotten at, and is most useful in many ways. To the other handle many fasten a handkerchief, but if a loop of twine be fixed to the sponge, just large enough to easily pass over the handle, and the sponge be kept clean and moist by frequent washings at the springs and wells en-route, this will be found most refreshing and more satisfactory on a hot day, besides being a great economy in handkerchiefs.

There is considerable knack, if not skill, in doing up the parcels nicely, which can only be acquired by experience or by being taught by the experienced. An old hand will put a great deal into a very small compass, but the novice will generally make a great deal, in the way of a package, out of a very little, and the reason usually is that the articles are not folded properly before rolling.

For those who, when touring, will insist upon carrying an immense amount of luggage, there is no excuse, as baggage can be sent to the various points through the usual channels, if one will insist in having an elaborate wardrobe. A rider is not supposed, even by the most punctilious host, to carry a wardrobe of this description; and if a host really does expect this, the guest had better go himself by train, or forward his portmanteau on before him. On the other hand, it is not necessary for the cycling tourist to be always in deshabille: a very small amount of care and forethought will enable him to appear carefully and appropriately dressed, if nothing more.

The tourist, before he gets away from home, will do well to look over his machine, which should be done a sufficient time before the day of departure to allow for the repair of any break or damage which may be discovered. Every part should be carefully and thoroughly overhauled, the head adjusted, each nut and spoke critically examined, the brake particularly being looked to and strict search made for any flaw or crack or unexpected wear, as the slightest weakness in this important point may endanger the life or limb of the rider. The bearings should be carefully adjusted, if any looseness is apparent; but they should never be screwed up so that there is no side shake at all, as the balls are thus liable to be broken. If the bearings are dirty or gritty, they should be dosed with kerosene, which should be put in with an ordinary oil can and the wheels rotated rapidly, when the coagulated oil will be liquified and the grit be brought out with it. After the exudations from the bearings have been wiped off, they should be carefully oiled up anew with good oil and all the kerosene worked out. The tool bag should be looked over, and contain an adjustable wrench, an oil can, carefully filled with good oil, a piece of adhesive tire tape, a yard or two of stout string, and some cloth in which to wrap tools to prevent their rattling. If the machine be one of the kind that requires constant attention with a spoke tightener, it would be well to dispose of it at the first opportunity, or give it away and get another. Last, but not least, the tires should be examined all around, and should any portion, no matter how small, be loose, it should be at once attended to and made sound to undergo with safety the work before it.

YESTERDAY'S Journal contained a special despatch from Sedalia, stating that Harry Gordon, of St. Louis, ran a race against a horse for $50 a side and was beaten. This act of Mr. Gordon makes him a blooming professional, He evidently thought Sedalia was an out-of-the-way place, and that his movements would not be chronicled. Competing against horses or running for a money prize is the grossest kind of professionalism, of which he, no doubt, is fully cognizant. It may be that he left the amateur ranks intentionally, and could not, therefore, plead ignorance of the existence of the amateur rule. — Kansas City Journal.

H. A. CLARKE and W. A. Key won a mile tandem handicap at Coventry, Eng., Aug. 13. Singer's Victoria, manned by F. Sidwell, O. M. Flinn, J. H. Ball, and H. W. Robinson, started from the hundred yards mark, and won the event by twenty yards, but were objected to on the ground of their mount not being a tandem according to the Union definition, and the objection was allowed to stand. The time was 3.13 3-5 for the Victoria, 3.15 2-5 for the tandem.

NEW ORLEANS.

WHEW! but how that Chief Consul and Division Racing Board of ours can work: In a little over three weeks they have completed arrangements for what is destined to be a treat for the public, and a big boom for the wheel. Cleveland can string out her tournament for three days, but New Orleans will crowd her's into one, and although we lack Rowe, Crocker and other adepts at dead heat riding, we will get there just the same, and if the weather is but favorable, a fine, large time will result. If you do not think we know how to do things up brown, just notice the following pointed clipping from a recent issue of the Daily Picayune:

"The entries for the different bicycle races to take place on 15th September at Audubon Park are coming in rapidly, and there will be gathered there the largest crowd seen on a Southern race course in many years, fully six thousand persons are expected. Admittance by invitation only. Souvenir programmes, Continental Guards Band, and eleven races, will make this the racing event of the year.

The colors of the New Orleans Bicycle Club are blue and white; of the Louisiana Cycle Club, purple and old gold. The friends of the different clubs will wear their favorites' colors.

The badges for the reception committee are very handsome, and consist of an oxidized silver disk with the badge of the League of American Wheelmen, held by a purple ribbon, the League color, fastened by a gold arrow. They were made in St. Louis for this occasion. The reception committee will consist of prominent gentlemen in society and business circles

The programme will consist of eight pages, printed on tinted paper, handsomely embellished with woodcuts, and the neatest that has been issued.

The prizes will consist of gold and silver medals and bicycle appurtenances, and will be on exhibition next week.

The races will commence promptly at 3.30 P. M., and the last race started so as to finish about 5.45 or 6 P. M.

Each entry will wear a large number fastened on the breast and back, to correspond with name on programme, so the invited guests will have no trouble in placing the entries."

ON August 13, 14, R. G. Betts, captain of the Louisiana Cycling Club, raised the Southern 24-hour records to 166 miles, cyclometer measurement. The best previous record was 159 miles. W. W. Crane paced Betts for 54 miles of his ride and after a rest went at it again and completed a century run of 102 miles, making the seventh New Orleans man to accomplish that distance.

R. LEE COUNTY, a former member of the New Orleans Bicycle Club, but now of the Atlanta (Ga.) wheelmen, has been spending several days with the boys, indulging in several scorching excursions, telling us of our Georgia brethrens' doings and all sich.

LITTLE of interest, other than talk and preparation for the approaching races, is now transpiring in the local wheel world, and if only certain members of the New Orleans Bicycle Club would cease their endeavors to provoke dissension and unfraternal feeling between the two clubs, and strive more to infuse a little new life in their club; and if a certain member of the Louisiana Club would but do less talking, peace and contentment would reign supreme, and every one be the happier for it.

H. W. FAIRFAX, of the New Orleans Bicycle Club, the other day, made a practice mile in 3.31. Harry is getting there.

THE State championship mile handicap and team races promise to be red-hot scorches, and are looked forward to with great interest.

TALKING about scorches, reminds me that the Louisiana's club run to Kennerville (ten and a half miles), last Sunday, Aug. 21, was a scorch of the worst sort the entire distance. Cooney, of Atlanta, and Abbott and Guedory, of the New Orleans Bicycle Club, were the guests (?) of the occasion, and with Fairchild, of the Louisiana Cycle Club, the four formed a scorching party, and the way they pulled through the dust and sand, and flew over the bumpy stretches, was a caution. Fairchild reached there first in fifty-five minutes, the other three well up; the last man strolling in nearly three quarters of an hour later.

ORANGE WANDERERS ON ROAD RACING.

AT the last monthly meeting of the Orange Wanderers the following resolution was unanimously passed:

A. E. COWDREY,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Whereas, in the opinion of this club, road racing is an illegal use and monopoly of the public highway, besides rendering travel thereon dangerous, and believing the use of Springfield Avenue or any other public thoroughfare, by the N. Y. and N. J. T. R. R. A. and any other club, an abuse of our rights as wheelmen which will result sooner or later disastrously to the good of the cause.

Therefore, resolved that this club withdraw from the said Road Racing Association from and after this date, and that the Secretary be instructed to notify the Secretary of the Association of this action, and forward a copy of these resolutions.

THE above was sent to us for publication last week, but it was withheld at the request of members of the club who stated that the action would be reconsidered at a special meeting August 24. The special meeting was held, and the resolution was by a large vote allowed to stand. A very stormy meeting, and the passage of sharp words between debaters, led to the resignations of Vice-President H. B. Thomas, Captain L. H. Porter and Mrs. Porter, and Dr. T. N. Gray, all of whom favored the resolution.

FRACTURES.

WHEN a bone is broken completely across it is called a complete fracture; when only partially, incomplete, fissured or split.

If the bone alone is injured it is a simple fracture, and, if a wound communicates with the fracture, compound. Such a wound may be due to the same force which breaks the bone or to the broken ends protruding through the skin.

When some important organ or joint is also injured it is a complicated fracture. An impacted fracture is one in which the broken ends are firmly wedged together.

If the bone is broken into a number of pieces it is a comminuted fracture, and, if more than one bone is broken, multiple.

Fractures are also divided, from their direction, into transverse, longitudinal, and oblique.

Cause. — This may be divided into predisposing and exciting. The exciting are external violence and muscular action. External violence may be direct or indirect. In direct external violence the force which breaks the bone is applied directly to it, and in the indirect form the bone is broken by being compressed between the weight of the body and some external object. Muscular action, when violent, is not an uncommon cause of fracture, especially of the knee-cap. The predisposing causes are age, shape, and position.

As age advances the bones become more rompant, hard, and brittle, and their liability to fracture increased.

The long bones, from their shape, are more liable to break than the short, and certain bones, from their acting as points of support, or from their unusual prominence, are also more often broken.

Symptoms. — The signs of fracture are general immobility, local mobility, deformity, and crepitus.

General Immobility. — The patient cannot move the injured limb, partially on account of the pain, and partially because the muscles have lost the fixed point upon which to act.

Local Mobility. — By this is meant the movements which can be produced between the different fragments. In fractures near a joint this point of motion may be lost in that of the joint, but by fixing the joint end of the bone firmly one can often distinguish it. It is absent in impacted fractures.

Deformity. — This is due to the muscles drawing the fragments of the broken bone out of place, and usually produces shortening, rotation, and bending of the limb.

When but one of two contiguous bones, as in the forearm or leg, is broken, the deformity is not marked, and this is also apt to be the case in impacted fracture. Always compare the sound with the injured limb, and by carefully examining the corresponding bony points we can determine the existence and amount of deformity.

Crepitus is the production of a grating sound by rubbing the broken ends together. When these are widely separated it is necessary to draw them into place to produce it, and it is absent in impacted fracture.

Healing. — For the first two weeks the broken ends lie free, bathed in the blood which has been poured out around them. By the end of this time this blood is gradually reabsorbed and its place taken by a reddish gelatinous mass which is formed from the curve in the broken bone, and by the surrounding tissues. The wider the separation of the fragments are when motion occurs between them the greater the amount produced. By the end of the sixth or eighth week this has become quite firm, and binds the broken ends together, and at the end of six or eight months it has been transformed into a bony mass.

During the next year or two that part which has been formed outside and around the broken ends, and also within the medullary cavity, disappears, leaving the bone as it was before the accident. Sometimes this mass, which should be thrown out between the fragments, is not formed, and of course no union takes place, and at others, instead of being turned into bone, it is turned into fibrous tissue, leaving a false joint. Compound fractures heal by granulation as in the open wound. The granulations which spring from the fragments unite, and are transformed into bone. This is a very slow process, requiring often many months.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

A LADY'S BICYCLE.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — In the issue of August 19, 1887, "Daisie" quotes a sketch of a ladies' bicycle and then says, "The ladies do not want bicycles."

I have great respect for "Daisie's" opinions, and fully agree with her ideas regarding tricycle construction in the same letter, but she is decidedly wrong regarding bicycles for ladies.

I have heard hundreds of ladies wish they could ride the bicycle. Many were tricycle riders, but more were not. The non-riders claimed that the tricycle had no attractions for them because it seemed graceless, unwieldy, and hard to push. And they were right. The bicycle is not only more graceful, but it has a graceful gliding motion that is very attractive, and not found on any other vehicle. Surely the ladies would appreciate this "poetry of motion" as much as any one.

The bicycle weighs forty pounds more or less; its rider four times as much; while it is a common occurrence to see a lady using a tricycle that weighs as much as she does, and few ladies are so favored as to have tricycles that are not half as heavy as the riders. This question of weight is very important to bicyclers who usually have more than the average supply of muscle. Surely it is more important to the ladies. Further, a tricycle requires a road; a bicycle only a path. This difference makes a limited amount of territory accessible by tricycle, whereas the bicycle goes nearly everywhere. A fault of this kind can never be eliminated by improvement. It is necessary to balance the bicycle, but this is not a fault. It is only in bad places that the hands are really necessary to effect this, and there is no disagreeable sidewise joltings as in a tricycle. There is not an increased vibration because the side jolt is absent, the path can be chosen, and all vibration can be received through the feet, which are formed to meet shocks.

There is no other side. Ladies want and will accept a bicycle that does not interfere with the present mode of dress more than a tricycle, and that does not subject the rider to continual danger of ungraceful falls. Such a bicycle can undoubtedly be made. There are several forms possible, of which one is described in the article quoted. In justice to that form, which I think is not the best, let me say that a standstill pedal mount à la tricycle can be effected by a lady with certainty, and without assistance.

IT'S just three miles and an eighth. There are seven houses on the left and six on the right. That makes it the fourteenth. Go straight ahead.

IT is about two looks from here. Go to the top of that hill and take a look. Then go as far as you saw; take another look. When you get there, you'll see it.

TURN round the little church to the right. Keep the ridge on your left. Go half a mile, three quarters, perhaps a mile. If you know the man you're after, you'll find him along there.

TAKE your second right hand road; cross two left hand roads and take your third. Don't go up the first right hand road, but take the second. There's a well-sweep in the front yard, and a wheel pump in the barnyard. — N. Y. Mail and Express.

OF INTEREST TO PHILADELPHIA WHEELMEN.

AN organization known as the Merryvale Athletic Association, has recently been formed by residents along the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The headquarters of the association are at Wayne Station, where it is proposed to purchase grounds and erect a clubhouse. Its object is to provide for its members opportunity for physical exercise under the most favorable social conditions. It is in contemplation to prepare suitable grounds and obtain the necessary paraphernalia for cricket, baseball, lawn tennis, archery, hurdle riding, etc.; to equip a gymnasium; and to make a half-mile bicycle track if the membership includes a sufficient number of wheelmen to warrant the outlay necessary for that purpose.

My object in writing to you is to invite all L. A. W. members, who may be interested in such a project, to write me their views upon the subject, or if desirous of further information to made such inquiries as occur to them.

I think it is hardly necessary for me to point out the benefits which Philadelphia wheelmen might enjoy by membership in such an organization, possessing grounds on the most popular wheeling road in this locality, at a distance from the city (ten miles) sufficient to afford a pleasant afternoon run "out the pike," and permit of some cricket, tennis, or ball practice before returning.

I trust I may be favored with letters on this subject from most, if not all, wheelmen residing in or near Philadelphia. L. A. W. No. 4658,

HOWELL WILL COME.

LATE advices make it positive that Howell will come over to race Rowe. Early this week Stoddard, Lovering & Go. received a letter in which Howell said he would come if they would guarantee him £50. This they declined to do, since the season was so far gone. They, however, submitted the proposition to the Lynn Cycle Track Association, and they decided to make the guarantee. Mr. Corey was instructed to cable Howell to-day to come over, providing, he can start this week. The stipulations cover but one race for the world's championship, to take place in Lynn, the distance to be determined later on. This seems to settle the question.

THE Lynn Cycle Club Track Association is finan cially embarrassed and will call a meeting of the creditors some day the latter part of this week. Scott Tuttle, the contractor, placed an attachment on the funds and other personal property belonging to the association, Monday, which brought matters to a crisis. The association has been to considerable expense in further fitting up and improving its grounds the present season, and the net receipts from tournaments given under its auspices have not been sufficient to liquidate the indebtedness incurred, capping which was a loss of about $5000 in the firemen's tournament last week. The association will probably ask for an extension of time with a view to meeting its liabilities in full. If the request is not granted an offer will be made the creditors, and if that is not accepted, insolvency is the only door left open, which would involve the sale of the association's property at the bicycle park, the land occupied being leased. The liabilities of the association have not been announced, but are probably inside of $2,000.

The present complication is not likely to interfere with the tournament announced for Monday next, as interested private individuals will undoubtedly see that through, regardless of the association, rather than have it flunk and damage the reputation of the association and park.

THE celebrated Duryea racing saddle, which has been used for some years past by all the well-known racing cracks, is now being delivered by the Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company, Chicago, sole manufacturers. Price, four dollars.

A BOSTON wheelman, who read what the Providence Journal said about steamed v. baked clams, went down to Rocky Point last week to test a Rhode Island bake. He writes a very thrilling account of his painful experiences, and wishes us to advise Boston wheelmen to stick to steaming. Perhaps the Providence stomach is tougher than that of Boston.

THE longest line of sundries offered in this marked is that of the Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company, of Chicago. If you are interested sent for their catalog.

THE second annual fair of the Shenandoah County Agricultural Society will be held at Woodstock, Va., Oct. 4, 5, 6, and 7. There will be bicycle races on the two first days. First day, Oct. 4: One-mile race; slow race; three-mile lap. Second day, Oct. 5: One-half-mile novice; one-half-mile hands off; one-mile handicap. Entry fee, fifty cents each race, to N. B. Schmitt, Woodstock, Va. Good prizes will be offered.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

CYCLETS.

FALL,

AND the yellow leaf,

AND the best of roads.

MAKE the wheelmen to rejoice.

IT also filleth with shekels the coffers of the dealers.

FOR many men put off till fall the purchase they should make in the spring.

VERY few riders get along without a fall, and only the racers ride without a spring.

L. D. MUNGER becomes a professional.

LOUISE ARMAINDO is now Mrs. Burnett, of Eau Claire, Wis.

SIXTY-FIVE applications this week, and a total membership of 11,204.

IN riding across the continent, Nellis made 3,405 miles in seventy-two days.

HICKS and Greenwood, of St. Louis, have started for Mammoth Cave, Ky.

"SAY! pick me down a star, will you?" is what a tall wheelman on a 62-inch wheel heard the other day.

A WHEELMAN recently returned from England says that fully half the wheels ridden over there are safeties. And such good roads, too.

THE New York Division is now making a grand move all along the line to see that the guide-board law is enforced. The law makes obligatory the erection of direction boards at every cross road.

MR. E. C. ADAMS, of Battle Creek, Mich., arrived in Boston last week, having ridden 925 miles in sixteen days actual riding time. He says that the best roads that he struck were in Michigan and the worst in New York and Massachusetts, owing to recent rains.

WHILE the Eastern cities have many "road-hog" incidents, St. Louis gets along without any, showing that all intelligence is not in the East.—Post-Dispatch. And yet it was a road hog that was responsible for our rapid descent from the Victoria at St. Louis.

THE Butcher cyclometer is illustrated and described in the Scientific American of Aug. 27.

FRANK W. WESTON has been called the father of cycling in America, and duly christened "Papa." Who will say that Kirk Munroe is not "Papa" of the League? It is an honorable title.

THE Racing Board has decided that a referee has authority to declare a race "no race," when the parties are guilty of intentional slow riding.

HOWARD P. MERRILL, cycling editor of the Springfield Union, will go to Los Angeles (Cal.) to become proofreader on the Times-Mirror of that city. He will be a loss to the cycling interests of that city, for he did much with his pen to keep them lively. He was Ducker's right hand man in the flush days of Springfield. Ducker has gone, Merrill is going, and both Lawton and Marsh have left the Springfield Club. Alas, poor Springfield!

THE Central Wheelmen, of Cincinnati, will celebrate their first anniversary, Sept. 10, with races, a lantern parade, and banquet.

MR. E. J. SHRIVER, of New York, is out with a letter in favor of road racing. He says: "We belong to the League to help each other, not to regulate each other; and according perfect freedom of opinion to any other member, we claim the same right of opinion for ourselves.

THE following novel match is to take place in England, the exact date not being fixed: John Keen has to ride a bicycle from the Brighton Aquarium to his works at Long Ditton, a distance of about forty-eight miles, against a gentleman well known in sporting circles, who has to start from the same place and walk to the railway station, take train to Clapham Junction, from there to Surbiton, and walk to Keen's works.

SEPTEMBER 22 is the date fixed upon for the races at Binghamton, New York, on the five-lap bicycle track at Riverside Park. A full programme of events will be found in the advertising columns. There will be a parade of visiting wheelmen at 11 o'clock, A. M., and a first-class entertainment in the evening at the Binghamton Opera House, under the auspices of the club. An elegant piece of statuary will be presented to the largest and best appearing visiting club in the parade.

CHARLEY DANIELLS has made two statements. He says that Rowe and Crocker "rode for all they were worth," when they made a dead heat at Cleveland, and Rowe made 2.42 from scratch. He also says that Rowe "didn't particularly exert himself," when he made a mile in 2.30¼ the day before. The harmony of these statements is overpowering.

A CORRESPONDENT writes that he left Havre de Grace, Md., on Aug. 3, en route for Detroit. He reached the latter city Aug. 20, having made 653 miles in thirteen and a half days, and lost ten pounds from the hard work over the mountains. He asks us to announce his arrival in Detroit, in order to let friends whom he met on the way, know of his whereabouts. He does not sign his letter, and we have no means of knowing his name.

ON Monday, Sept. 5, the second annual excursion and run of the Rhode Island Division, L. A. W., will be made to Boston; and thence, starting from Copley Square, wheel out through Brighton, Newton, Newtonville, West Newton, Auburndale, Newton Lower Falls, Wellesley, to South Natick, and return through Wellesley, Lower Falls, Newton Centre, Chestnut Hill Reservoir, Brookline, through Longwood, to Copley Square. The start will be made from Copley Square as near eight o'clock in the morning as practicable. Breakfast will be taken at Hotel Brighton, at 8.30 o'clock; lunch at the Woodland Park Hotel; dinner at Bailey's Hotel, South Natick. Supper will be enjoyed on return to Boston. The return will be made in time to pass the evening at Point of Pines, Nantasket, or about the city and suburbs.

THE following are the conditions of the thousand-mile race: Each manufacturer will be allowed to enter as many men as he wishes. The machines to be used are to be taken from the regular stock, and only one wheel is to be allowed to each man on the journey. He is to keep it in repair, and if it goes under he is not to be allowed a new wheel. The entrance fee is to be $50 per man. The employer of any man who uses other means than his wheel to cover ground is to be fined $1,000. At present it is proposed that the men shall ride from 6 A. M. to 9 P. M., but this has not yet been finally decided upon, and the conditions may be changed to allow the men to ride straight away at their own convenience. The prizes will be three gold medals valued at $100.

AT Grimsby, on Tuesday and Wednesay last, Ralph Temple conclusively proved himself to be at least the second fastest sprinter in the professional ranks. He simply made rings round Lees at the quarter, half, and mile, and the Americans will now feel at ease over the attempt of the latter to make a laughing stock of Woodside in Scotland. Lees ranks next to Howell among the English professionals this year, but he was never in it when sprinting with the popular Yankee.—Wheeling.

THE Pope calendar for 1888 will be an improvement on all of its predecessors. Besides the selections, records, and quotations, it will have a blank space for memoranda, and will be on a stand for desk use.

NEW YORK wheelmen are still sending in their checks to pay for the liberty bill.

OCT. 5 is now set down as the probable date of the road race from Chicago to Boston.

C. H. ROSS & CO., have sent to us one of their luggage carriers. We find it very light, neat, and well adapted to its purpose. A nickel-plated clip is screwed to the head under the set nut, and to this can be fastened the carrier by the mere turn of a screw. The carrier is nickelled and furnished with straps for holding bundles. Equipped with this carrier a wheelman may convey his bundle safely, and be able to take it from the machine with perfect ease. A cut of the carrier will be found in our advertising columns.

THE Toledo, Ohio, Cycling Club will dedicate and open its new club house September 3. There will be an address by President A. H. Brown, music and a lantern parade.

THE Chelsea Club partake of a dinner of clams at the Putnam House, Revere Beach, this Friday evening.

MEMBERS who desire the New York Road Book, should send to A. B. Barkman, not to this office. Address him at 608 Fourth Ave., Brooklyn.

To the Board of Officers, League of American Wheelmen:

ACCORDING to duty laid upon and power invested in the president by ART. II., SEC. IV., of our by-laws, I wish hereby to announce that the fall meeting of the board will be held in New York City, Oct. 17, 1887, at the Grand Union Hotel. The meeting will be called to order exactly at 10 o'clock, A. M., if there be a quorum present. Several matters of great importance, chief among which is, our present financial condition demand your attention, and I hope to see a large representation of the board present in person. I had hoped to call this meeting at some point in the West, but for certain economic reasons, New York City seemed preferable.

In accepting his resignation, I wish to express the thanks of the Division for his faithful services. I have this day appointed Mr. N. H. Gibbs, of Providence, secretary-treasurer for the unexpired term. Mr. Gibbs has the recommendation of the entire executive committee, and will, undoubtedly, prove a competent official.

Our Division is entitled to an additional representative, and it gives me much pleasure to appoint Mr. Howard L. Perkins to that office.

J. A. CHASE, C. C.

CALIFORNIA REPRESENTATIVE.

EDITOR BULLETIN,—You will please take notice that California's increased membership, entitling the Division to another representative, the Chief Consul has appointed Mr. Benjamin H. Patrick, of this city.

N. A. ROBINSON, Sec.-Treas.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20, 1887.

L. D. MUNGER.

L. D. MUNGER, of Chicago, has handed in his resignation to the L. A. W., to take effect Sept. 1, 1887, as, at that time, he joins the professional ranks, and all amateurs are warned against entering races with him.

J. H. COOLEY, Chairman Racing Board.

LAST CALL.

IN our issue for Sept. 16, we shall publish a full list of League clubs, numbered in the order which they joined the League. We are satisfied that not all the clubs are on the list, but we have been calling for certificates for the last six months without getting a response, and we can no longer hold the list open. This call is made for the benefit of the clubs that have qualified during 1887, but have filed no certificate in this office. To become a League club, a clause must be inserted in the by-laws, obliging each and every member to be a member of the L. A. W., and the secretary must file with us a certificate to this effect, giving the date of organization of the club and the date when it qualified for League membership.

The following clubs have joined the League in 1887, and besides these, there are none on the list under date of this year: —

San Francisco,
Pitston,
Bay State,
Leavenworth County,
Echo,
Council Bluffs,
Dallas,
Exeter,
York County, Me.,
St. Louis,
Young America.
Rhode Island Wheelmen.
Harrison, Cynthiana.
Lockport.
Ramblers, Baltimore.
New Bedford.
Sewickley.
Belt Road.
Pawtucket.
Humboldt.
Alameda Scorchers.
Joplin.
Outing Cycling Club.

LEAGUE CLUBS.

THE following suggestions regarding League clubs are respectfully offered: —

BY-LAWS, Art. V., Sect. 9.—Any cycle club in the United States that shall have in its by-laws a provision requiring every active member to join the League of American Wheelmen, shall become a League club, and entitled to all the privileges accorded League clubs under these by-laws. The number of votes that any League club shall be entitled to cast through its delegates at the annual meeting, or at any constitutional convention, shall be one vote for every member of said club, in good standing, upon the rolls of the League.

The following is a common form of by-law: This club shall be a League club, under the rules of the League of American Wheelmen, and each member shall become also a member of the League. The initiation fee and dues of the L. A. W. shall be paid out of the club treasury, and each member of the club shall pay his share of these dues to the treasurer. New members, not already connected with the League, shall be proposed for membership by the secretary.

After qualifying as a League Club, the secretary must file at this office a certificate giving the name of the club, date of organization, date of qualifying, name, and address of secretary, list of officers, and give address to which the club copy of BULLETIN shall be sent.

The secretary will enter the club upon his books, giving it a number, and will publish application in the BULLETIN.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

Gentlemen,—Now, I want to stand up and "speak my piece" about the Light Champion. A certain firm, who turn out better advertisements than wheels, have been groaning much of late over the popularity of the Champion Cycles, and telling a credulous public that a good wheel cannot be sold under their prices; that a ball head has not been proven (!) better than a globe head, and other such stuff, always winding up with the phrase, "Let others try the experiment." Now I want to tell you that I have tried the experiment. I have tested it severely and I am more than satisfied. I emphatically echo the words and urge all who want a good wheel to "try the experiment." The Light Champion has now ceased to be an experiment with me, and is a settled fact. I had occasion to test its hill-climbing powers against a wheel sent out by the firm referred to above, and tho' I am not a strong rider, and the other man was, I ran right away from him. For ease of adjustment and for running qualities the Light Champion is unsurpassed and unequalled. Every man I have mounted on my 53-inch wheel has envied me the rams-horn handle-bars and the Cobblestone saddle, and has wondered at the marvellous lightness of the running qualities. As I wrote you once before, I used to ride an —— ——, but I have followed their advice and "tried the experiment," and am so well satisfied that I propose to keep on "trying the experiment." Tell Mr. Jeffery to stop inventing improvements, or he'll have a damage suit some day for inventing and selling a wheel that runs away with the rider.

Yours most sincerely,

BURT E HOWARD.

Miss Pope Mfg Co

Gentlemen. The record of my Expert Columbia is so good that I feel that you will be interested to learn about it I bought it in the spring of 1883, so that it is now in its fourth season. I took it to the City of Mexico and brought it back with me. I used it there over a year and have ridden it regularly ever since returning It has not yet cost me even a single cent for repairs and is still a staunch machine in first class running order.

Yours sincerely

Sylvester Baxter.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by :—

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded September 15th.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

LABOR day is what we have wanted for a long while. It gives us a holiday where it is very much needed. Wheelmen used the day to the very best advantage.

LEAGUE members should not forget that the patronage of advertisers makes it possible for them to get the BULLETIN, and as one good turn deserves another, they should remember this in patronizing cycling firms, and give their business to those who advertise with us. We say us, for every League member is part proprietor of the BULLETIN.

HOSPITABLE wheelmen have been taken in by shrewd users of their bounty in a great many instances of late, and it may be that new faces will be scrutinized closely, and references be demanded if this sort of thing is to continue. One of the best letters of credit is a League ticket, and if a man be without this, and without credentials from a club, he should be made to prove himself worthy in other ways before courtesies are extended. The Troy Club is the latest victim of a sharper.

MR. SHRIVER puts his foot down very squarely in asserting the position that he will not let his private actions be dictated by the League. We do not believe the League will attempt to do this. Its present attitude, which closes the eyes of the League to everything in the way of road racing, seems to us to be the best one, after all. The League cannot well encourage it, for if this were done the practice would grow to such proportions that the civil authorities would have to step in and put a stop to it, and we should find ourselves in a very embarrassing position. This kind of racing is clearly in defiance of law, but the law provides a remedy and can be trusted to correct the thing when it becomes an abuse. Meantime, the League should have nothing to do with it, and to our minds those who by their official positions stand as representatives of the League under certain conditions should not actively engage in road racing, lest their motives be misunderstood and their position be mistaken.

Is Outing altogether lost to cycling? This is a question that many cyclers are now asking. For many months Thomas Stevens's articles are the only ones relating to the wheel which have been found in a magazine that was once altogether given to it. The prospectus for the future makes no mention of the Stevens articles, and we should conclude that they were to be omitted, did we not have a personal letter from the author, saying that they would continue. When Mr. Stevens was added to the staff, it was announced that more attention would be given to cycling, but beyond the promise we have seen nothing. One other thing has struck us very forcibly, and that is the deterioration in the quality of illustrations. It was the proud boast of the magazine, when its home was in Boston, that the cuts, though not so profuse, were of as good quality as those in the Century. This can no longer be said. These words are in the interest of wheelmen, who have subscribed for a magazine with the hope of getting something which has not been given them.

IT is easier to pull down than to build. It is easier to criticise than to act. It is with these thoughts in mind that we say we think restrictions as to time of riding in the Boston-to-Chicago road race are a mistake. The managers have set forth the disadvantages regarding checking contestants who ride at night, but these are inconsequential when we consider those to the riders who may be ten miles from a hotel when the time for riding comes to an end. Moreover, how can it be arranged to watch the riders to see if they stop. Another consideration, — the arrangement to ride from 6. A. M. to 9 P. M. takes from the riders the early morning hours and gives them the heat of the day.

WE tried to join the Providence party on Monday, and we had an engagement to referee the Lynn races; but a very heavy mail of that day, and other demands of this office, kept us at work nearly all of the day. It was Labor Day, indeed, for us, and the expected holiday had to be given up.

CHIEF CONSUL VAN SICKLEN, of California, has caused to be printed, in large type on a broadside, a digest of the laws which relate to the rights of wheelmen on the highways. These he will have posted in hotels, in the post offices, and places where they will come to the notices of drivers and others. The sheets will be sold at cost to any parties outside the State who may desire to make use of them.

A REPRESENTATIVE in a neighboring State was laboring with a wheelman to get him upon the rolls of the League, and he instanced, among other benefits, the fact that he could get a discount of twenty-five cents on every dinner that he should eat at a hotel where the local wheelmen were accustomed to stop every Sunday. "Why, I get that now!" said the wheelman. "If that is so," said our representative, "I don't believe we want you. A man that is so mean that he won't come down with a dollar to support an institution that gives such privileges as this, but will crib the benefits, is not the kind of a man we want." And then the representative rode over to the hotel and arranged with the landlord to compel men to show a ticket before giving them the discount. There are several morals in this little story, and we leave our reader to pick them out.

A CLUB in New Jersey has just expelled certain members for non-payment of club and League dues, and they will ask that these parties be also expelled from the League. The League officers have always held that an offence against a club was not necessarily an offence against the League, and so a saving clause was put into the rule which provides that expulsion from the League shall follow expulsion from a League club. This clause calls for the endorsement of the Executive Committee, and this endorsement must be had in each case. The New Jersey club seems to have a very strong case. The League dues of these men have been paid from the club treasury, and the individuals have not made the club whole. They are getting League benefits for which they have not paid. They ought not to have them.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

VIOLET LORNE has been telling a story of an experience with some of our countrymen on the other side.

This rather reminds me of a party of American officers from a man-of-war lying in Southampton Water a year or two ago, whom I met at a garden party in the neighborhood. They had never seen a tricycle at close quarters, so the pretty daughter of the house insisted on bringing out her own "Premier," and giving them a lesson there and then, on a secluded bit of carriage drive down by the stables. Great was the astonishment and delight of the officers, who took so kindly to their new pastime, that they would altogether have ignored the claims of tennis, if we had allowed them. One young lieutenant, indeed, was so taken with the novel exercise, that he wildly declared his intention of buying a tricycle, and riding about the decks in the intervals of duty. I never saw him again after that tennis party, so that I can't say whether he madly attempted to put his threat into execution, or what the effect was upon the scandalized ward-room of U. S. S. "Lancaster."

THE presence of young ladies before the nets draws many a young man to tennis, but the masculine part of humanity is not often drawn to the wheel by the feminine portion. In the present state of the art in America, Hector rides and persuades Josephine to accompany him, but I can imagine a state of things in the not-distant future when Josephine and her mates are so wedded to the sport that wheel-less Hector will find he must ride if he would have their society.

THE following suggestions regarding the ideal ladies' tricycle are taken from an Irish paper. The writer has such good ideas that I am impelled to reproduce them. "Driving wheels should average between 34-inch and 40-inch, and steering wheel 24-inch and 28-inch. The brake is the most important point. Ladies' arms are not very strong, and they cannot dismount quickly, therefore the brake must be capable of holding in the machine on the steepest hill, and for this purpose should have a long lever with a broad band acting on a broad drum. An auxiliary foot brake would be found an improvement." (Aching hands that have held on to a weak hand brake down a long hill, testify to the truth of the foregoing.) "The dress guards should be thoroughly efficient, and should be made of leather or papier maché, and there should be no projecting nuts to catch in the dress. The nose of the saddle should be short, and, if possible, be continued round underneath, so as to prevent its being caught and ripped upward by the dress in mounting. Great care should be taken that the handles are within reach, so that the rider need not lean forward." (Very good. I have found that I can do better work on a bar steerer, but I cannot sit erect on any machine of the kind that I have ridden. The upright position one can assume when the handles are at the sides is both graceful and restful. Give us side handles in place of the bar, but put them in another place so that we can be graceful in our seats and have good command of the machine.) "In the case of folding handle-bars, for mounting in front, the steering-post should be well forward, so as to leave extra space, but the ends of the handle-bar should be bent round in a graceful curve into the correct position. The throw of the crank should be adjustable from five to six inches, and the gear should range between forty-six and fifty-two inches, according to the strength of the rider. fifty inches will be found a fair average, except in hilly districts. The Cryptogear will be found a valuable adjunct. Balls should be fitted to all parts; in the pedals they will be found much cleaner than cone."

ONE point should be urged with great force to the makers. Don't put new riders, I refer to ladies especially, on machines that are geared up. It means hard work, and in many cases discouragement. Let the beginner have a wheel well geared down. She will get along slowly, but she will not have to work hard, and very soon she will be in condition to take a higher gear that will give her speed. I have seen many a lady get upon a machine loaned her by a gentleman friend and complain of the great labor involved. And with very good reason. She is riding a wheel geared to suit the well-trained muscles and giant strength of her friend, and altogether unsuited for her. DAISIE.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE prospects for the road race for the Tryon cup become more and more dubious as the day for the race rolls nearer. By the time this paper reaches your readers, Mr. Editor, we shall know all about it and probably know the winners, if it is run at all. The Committee find the Pike authorities very much in favor of the race and willing to grant the wheelmen every privilege consistent with good business management of the road, but they rightly insist on some guarantee of indemnity from damages by accidents. As the only two incorporated clubs decline positively to give such a guarantee, the committee have been obliged to scratch around for some responsible party to go on their bond and no one seems to care to accept the soft impeachment. It has even been proposed to abandon the race altogether. Rather than do this, it would be infinitely better to ask the permission of the donors of the cup to transfer the race from the road to some good rough, hilly, mile trotting track, limiting the weight of machines to 35 lbs.; quite as much interest would be taken in the race, the danger of accidents would be infinitely less and it really seems as though little objection could be made to the arrangement. Fleming, the Pennsylvania-to-Nebraska man, is expected, if he comes home in time, to race with the Century, whose only other candidate is M. J. Bailey. The confidence of the club in Fleming, however, is such that they fully anticipate a good place, with only these two men in. Richwine says he has practically stopped racing, and will not ride in the road race. Mr. John Wells, the right bower of the Pennsylvania hand, has unfortunately badly sprained his ankle by a tall —" not from the Star," he puts in — and although later reports say that he is not so much hurt as was at first thought, he is still out of the race. Mr. Wells is confident that he can cover the course in less than 1.24; but, as two of the Tioga team have already done better than that, it looks as though 1.20 would have to be beaten to win.

A WHEELMAN in the West park lost some money near the dairy, and another rider found it; the latter has left his name and address at the milkerie, and the loser can recover his property by applying and stating the amount.

W. T. FLEMING and J. Edgar Gould, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, have been touring in the West. On Aug. 20, they reached Kansas City, Mo., having come from Joplin, where Mr. Fleming had been visiting relatives. They rode from Philadelphia to Kansas City, and started Thursday, the 22d, on their return to Philadelphia. The two wheelmen were enjoying the best of health and in excellent spirits. They have enjoyed the trip hughly. When they have reached Philadelphia they will have ridden about three thousand five hundred miles. Mr. Fleming rides a Victor and Mr. Gould an Expert Columbia.

MR. FLEMING, in an interview with a local reporter stated: "We started from Philadelphia May 16. We first went to Trenton, N. J., Princeton, Franklin Park, New Brunswick, and Passaic. Leaving New Jersey, we proceeded up the Hudson to Newburgh, Poughkeepsie, Hudson, Troy. From Troy we went to Utica, Syracuse, Auburn, Cayuga, Geneva, Batavia, Buffalo, State Line into Ohio, Cleveland, Akron, Urichsville, Cadiz, Smithfield, where we made a few weeks' visit. After a ten days' rain we pushed on to Bridgeport. There we found the old National Pike Road, and a beautiful road it is, too, which we followed for a distance of 296 1-2 miles, into Indianapolis, going through Springfield, Columbus, Dayton. Our average to Indianapolis was sixty-one and one half miles a day, but after leaving Indianapolis we noticed it required a little more work to make the same number of miles, as the roads became gradually more rough. We found Terre Haute a good place to stay over night July 18, and started again on our (supposed) choice roads of Illinois, and from Edwardsville to St. Louis, a distance of twenty-one and one-half miles, we walked and pushed our machines over a narrow gauge railroad track, not mounting once until we made our appearance in St. Louis. We remained in St. Louis from Saturday until the following Wednesday, when we once more resumed our journey over the Ozark Mountains. From the beginning to the end of this portion of our trip we were misguided. We struck the mountain range at Summit and went through Union, Sullivan, Cuba, St. James, Rolla, Hancock, Richland, Lebanon, Springfield, where we were informed that the Ozarks had ended. We went to Pierce City, Neosho, where we made a two days' visit, and visited Indian Territory, taking in Wyandotte, Schenica and Shawnee school. Striking the Kansas State Line at Columbus, we found ourselves in Fort Scott, Pleasanton, and La Cygne. Then sixty-two and three-fourths miles, a day's ride, brought us to Kansas City. Last Thursday we rode seventy-four and three-fourths miles over ordinary roads."

SHORTLY after leaving Kansas City, Fleming took a header and sustained severe bruises. They are on a bee line for Philadelphia.

WHITTAKER of the University is reported doing fine work in his track practice, and one of his admirers even claims for him a quarter mile on the University, with flying start of course, to the very lively tune of 35 seconds; unless the man has improved at a most extraordinary rate, this must be an error, as last Spring he could not have done ten seconds slower on the same track.

THE quarter mile Millville race, dead-heated twice, between Schwartz, of Reading and Kolb, of the University, was one of the prettiest races ever seen in this part of the country, and there are many who believe the Reading boy would have eventually won, had not his machine given way. Star vs. Crank.

THE opening day of the Cape May City Athletic Club was a grand success.

The mile and two mile bicycle races were both won by L. J. Kolb, Manhattan Athletic Club, with C. Barton Keen, of the University of Pennsylvania, second. Time, 3.39 2-5 and 7.26 respectively.

PHACTO.

CHICAGO.

HAL GREENWOOD and W. E. Hicks, both from the city at the other end of the bridge, have been touring through Wisconsin for the past two weeks. They arrived here Saturday afternoon and participated in a run to Wheeling on Sunday morning. The day was an ill-fated one for Greenwood. He broke one side frame on his way out of the city, and the other on the return trip. A luggage carrier, a coil of wire and a few pieces of hardwood, braced up the "coffee-mill" sufficiently for him to reach his destination in safety. Burley Ayers ushered the party home over one of his "perfectly elegant" gravel roads. The greater portion of this gravel road turned out to be very bad and full of ruts and about eight miles longer than the regular wheeling road. It was afterwards discovered that Burley had never been over the road before, but was exploring it for the proposed Illinois Road Book.

A WHEELMAN of this vicinity without a record between some two points, is away behind the times. Each one has a record and every body else has one just a little better. Davis and Riggs are not satisfied with a hundred and five miles in a day, but will try to add another twenty to it on Sunday next. They will go to Aurora by way of Elgin and return over the same course.

"GIPS," in a recent number of the Record mentioned the century runs of the Owl Club and named several gentlemen who rode to Elgin and return and called it a "century run." From any portion of the city to Elgin and return is not a century run nor never will be.

MR. BASSETT'S " hint for the benefit of the officials," in regard to a medal for the best American mileage, is a wise one and I hope that the officials will "catch on" in short order. Should such a prize be offered, there would be some lively hustling among the wheelmen of Chicago.

THAT four-lap cinder track at the grounds of the Chicago Amateur Athletic Association, has been a complete failure so far as cycle racing is concerned. It is the intention of the management to use the same track for sprinting and bicycle racing, which, you all know, is absurd. A one mile race on the above mentioned track, on Saturday last, resulted in a victory for Frank Riggs, of the Illinois Club, with Winship of the Owls a good second. The time (3.20) is excellent, considering the poor condition of the track.

I DID not intend to interfere with the items of "Phoenix" by stealing his thunder on the easterners, but, like all other Chicagoans, I must keep ahead of St. Louis

THE first entertainment of the season will be given by the Illinois Cycling Club, at Martine's Dancing Academy, Thursday evening, October 20th.

SPECTATOR.

MICHIGAN.

ARMADA.— Through the energy of C. E. Lathrop, a club of seven members has been formed here, and with the fine touring country around Armada, there is every prospect of a rapid increase. Mr. Lathrop is an active member of the Detroit Bicycle Club, and a pioneer in the L. A. W., his number being 51.

DETROIT.— Work on the race meet of the Detroit Bicycle Club, which takes place on Friday and Saturday, September 30 and October 1, is being pushed by the committee in charge. This is the first two days' meet the club has attempted. Programmes and entry blanks have been issued this week. One of the events is a team race for Michigan teams of two men. This will decide the much debated point as to which club in the State can boast of the best team. Those laying principal claim to the honor at present are East Saginaw, Adrian, and Detroit. Time limits have been set on all the races.

THE Detroit Bicycle Club has one member who has won, though not a continental championship, a medal in a European race. Mr. Clarence Lightner, while touring through Germany a year ago, was requested by the Munich Bicycle Club to enter one of their races. He complied as a matter of courtesy, and for the fun of it. Though Mr. Lightner had never attempted racing before, he took fourth place, there being seven in the race, and won a bronze medal.

GRAND RAPIDS.— Messrs. Turner, Palmer, and Bennett leave Sunday, September 11, for a tour to Buffalo, returning by way of Cleveland. They expect to take abouttwo weeks in making this trip.

FRANK ESCOTT was married on Thursday evening. Mr. Escott is a very popular member of the G. R. B. C., and has the wishes of his fellow members, that his future course may be as smooth as the surface of the Plainfield road.

OVID.— Four years ago Ovid was the centre of wheeling in Michigan. This was due to the push and enterprise of the late W. C. Marvin. Now there are but a couple of bicycles and Mrs. Marvin's tricycle.

PROVIDENCE IN BOSTON.

A PARTY of about thirty members, with ladies, of the Rhode Island Division, L. A. W., from Providence and thereabouts, started from Boston, Monday morning on a run to South Natick, under direction of the Roxbury Bicycle Club. About 11.30 A. M., on the way out, and while in the act of remounting, having stopped for a short rest, a little beyond Wellesley, a very pugnacious individual named Alfred J. Allen, with a companion, drove up behind them in a light express wagon, and although having more than half the road on the left in which to pass, insisted in driving into the crowd of wheels, endangering life and limb, and causing great fright to the ladies. He finally drove up behind the cycle of Mr. George L. Cooke, a prominent member of the Providence bar, and, in outrageous language, told him if he didn't get out of the road, he would make him, which he endeavored to do by running into his machine, the front wheel of the wagon striking it, twisting it round and throwing it back against the hind wheel. Mr. Cooke had a miraculous escape from bodily harm, but had his machine badly smashed. Allen, having satisfied his belligerent propensities, lashed his horse furiously in an endeavor to escape, but the boys were so incensed at his dastardly work that they gave hot chase, following him into a rough side road, where he was on the point of escaping, when Dr. Bogman, of Providence, hauled out a nickeled pocket flask, and pointing it, threatened to shoot if he did n't stop. The runaway, not doubting but that it was a genuine shooter, weakened immediately and pulled up, calling them a lot of "Boston rummies," when he discoverd the trick that had been played on him. They at once got a constable and took him to Trial Justice Washburn's office in Wellesley, where he was tried, found guilty of malicious assault and battery, and sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs, in all, $16.79. The whole business was done inside of two hours.

The rest of the day passed off very pleasantly for all. After witnessing the opening performance of "The Corsair," and looking around Boston, the visitors took the 11 o'clock train for Providence, greatly pleased with their trip.

THE SOLITARY CLUB AT HOME.

CAPTAIN WILL HURLBUTT and the Solitary Club of Stamford, Conn., returned from their thirty-five days' cycling tour in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, on Monday of last week, and report having a very pleasant and profitable outing. Their note books are so full as to require extra rubber bands to prevent their bursting, and their memories are in a similar state. They wish to acknowledge courteous treatment at the hands of the cycling fraternity over there, and from the Bicycling News people, at Coventry, in particular.

The past summer in England has been the dryest that the eldest inhabitant has known in forty years, and we saw it at a great disadvantage, for its dried up and withered appearance contrasted strongly with the bright grass of our native land, which still holds an uppermost place in our hearts, — or so much of them as we may have left. (Beg pardon Cap!)

Very touching to the scribe, at least, was some melody from the " Arizona Quartette," on the homeward voyage, in which figured the words, " O Think of the Home Over There; for who of the returning pilgrims did not think of and look forward to the home over there?

But there is an end to all things, as there was to Custom's delay, where the fussy inspector said at first the English wheel would be duty-bound, but a paper from his "boss" convinced him of his mistake, and he chalked on the crate "Pass 93."

THE S. C.

FRACTURES II.

Treatment. — When you suspect that a limb is broken, remove the clothes with great care.

It is much better to rip up the seams than to pull them off, for by the rough movements which this necessitates the soft parts may be injured, blood vessels or nerves torn, and a simple fracture often turned into a compound one.

Now examine the injured limb to ascertain what bone is broken, where it is broken, and the nature of the displacement.

To do this properly, always compare the injured with the sound limb. Next, let one person seize the upper portion of the injured limb firmly, now slightly flex the limb so as to relax the muscles which are the chief cause of the displacement, while another gently draws the displaced fragments into place, and the limb is made to resemble its fellow in its natural shape and length.

In compound fractures, bleeding is not uncommon, and when slight, a compress and bandage will usually check it; but when the blood escapes in large quantities, or continues in spite of cold and pressure, or is arterial in character, compress the main artery of the limb.

When you have succeeded in checking the hemorrhage, clean the wound carefully. When the wound is a mere puncture, due to the protrusion of a fragment of the broken bone through the skin, place a small, wet compress over the wound after the fracture has been reduced.

The whole treatment of fracture resolves itself into first, bringing the fragments into place; and second, in keeping them perfectly at rest.

This latter object is obtained by means of splint. These may be made of thin wood, cardboard, or stiff leather or felt. These should be wide enough to extend beyond the borders of the limb, so as not to press upon it, and should also be long enough to fix the joints above and below the injured limb; for, if this be not done, the fragments cannot be kept at rest.

These splints should be well packed, and placed directly in contact with the injured limb, and no bandage should ever be placed under them. These splints are to be retained in place by bandages.

If after these have been applied, the patient complains of pain, or that they are too tight, or if the extremity of the injured limb becomes cold and blue, remove them at once, as they are exerting a dangerous amount of pressure, which may arrest the circulation in the limb and cause it to become gangrenous.

This pressure may be due to the limb being put up too tightly at first, or to subsequent swelling. The main artery may be torn, causing extravasation in the limb, forming an ill-defined swelling with an indistinct pulsation and thrill; and at the same time the arteries below the injury cease to pulsate and the extremity grows cold. When this occurs, compress the main artery.

A bone may be both broken and dislocated at the same time, and in this case treat the fracture alone, make no attempt to reduce the dislocation.

Fracture of lower jaw. This fracture usually occurs on one or both sides between the chin and the angle. The mobility of the fragments, the breaking of the line of the arch and teeth and the dribbling of bloody saliva will indicate the nature of the accident. Take a bandage about four inches wide and tear each end to within two inches of the centre, making a fan-tailed bandage. To reduce the fracture and place the teeth in contact with those of the upper jaw, place the centre piece of the bandage over the chin, and tie the two upper tails behind the neck and the two lower over the top of the head.

2. Ribs. These may be single, but are often multiple. When due to direct violence, it may occur in any part of the rib, but when due to indirect violence it most often occurs at the angle or point of greatest convexity. The lungs, pleura, liver, or diaphragm may be injured by fragments being driven into them, or be contused by the force which breaks in the chest walls.

The fourth, fifth, sixth, and seventh ribs are the ones most often injured, the upper ones being protected by the shoulder, while the lower escape from their greater mobility.

A sharp pushing pain is felt in the side on respiration, and crepitus can be heard and felt. When a number of ribs are broken, the side of the chest may be depressed. Pass a broad bandage tightly around the chest over the broken ribs, so as to restrict its movements: but if this causes great difficulty in breathing, or hiccough, remove it and keep the patient quiet in bed. OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

ROAD RACING.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — The criticism made by "Bon," in this week's BULLETIN, on road-racing, is, so far as it concerns our local association, based on a misapprehension of what occurred at the last race. He says that "horses were seized by the bridle and summarily forced off the roadway;" but I think I am right in saying that only one horse was seized by one enthusiastic, but not too discreet, wheelman. In this solitary instance, the horse was not "forced off the roadway," perhaps mainly because I, as the nearest official, gave the officious youngster who had "seized the bridle," the best tongue-lashing that the presence of ladies would permit, and he very quickly got off the road ray himself. The committee will arrange the finish hereafter so that even a solitary instance of the sort shall be impossible.

Whether or not individuals or associations have a right to use the highways for an exceptional purpose, when granted that privilege by the local authorities — as happened to be the case between Irvington and Milburn — is a question that I don't feel able to solve in its legal aspect My mind is very clear on what is the common sense of the matter. But neither the United States of America or the State of New Jersey has appointed the League its deputy to interpret and execute the law of the land; and it would be an impertinence on the part of the League to dictate to its individual members whether or not they shall take part in a sport which it does not pretend to regulate, unless such participation is detrimental to the interests of the League. That a well-conducted road race is so detrimental, may be considered by some people, just as our prohibition friends may think we do harm to the cause of cycling when we drink beer; but it is hardly worth while to discuss such a question.

On behalf of the men who approve of properly conducted road racing, I repeat that I've no more objection to having "Bon" speak of me with stern reprobation than I have to the same sort of thing from the Sabbatarian or the Prohibitionist; but I don't propose to let the League regulate my private actions as to road racing, any more than I will submit to its deciding what I shall drink, or meekly submit when it steps in to reënforce the strong hand of the law to stop me from systematically violating the penal code of New York by indulging in the sport of bicycling every Sunday that I can get out. It is a silly sort of petty socialism in the League that I intend to oppose in every way I can.

CAPTAINS.

EDITOR BULLETIN.— In a recent issue of the BULLETIN I noticed an article from the pen of a New York member in which he termed the captains the "easy stay at homes"; he probably had some particular party in view. I wish to say a word in defence of my brother officers (who hold the same thankless office that I do), as I know the captains of clubs in our vicinity to be good, tough "git-thar-Eli" fellows, and not "easy stay at homes." August 28 the Northampton Wheel Club had a hundred mile run to Hartford, Ct., and return, making one hundred and three quarter miles in the running time of nine and one quarter hours. Had our brother from the Empire State ridden side of me on that run he certainly would not have me on his list, and I would further say I have missed only one out of our last twenty-two runs.

EDITOR BULLETIN.— Does the League have a whistle code? If not, why not? A bugle call is understood by very few. A few whistle calls can easily be remembered, and everybody carries a whistle.

IT is rumored that one, if not more, American makers will put a low-priced machine in the market next year.

RACING rules should be obtained from any member of the Racing Board. We have no spare copies at this office.

THE entrance fee for professionals at the North Attleboro race meeting is $2. Our types first made it $1 and then $12.

THOSE whose wish to buy, sell, or exchange a wheel, should remember that they can advertise with us three times for $1.

WILLIAM READ & SONS offer some great bargains this week. The wheels are all good ones, and the prices are low enough to suit anybody.

CAPT. WOODMAN, of the Chelsea Club, put a century to his credit the other day in the course of his training for the race of the Eastern Road Club.

THE associated clubs of Pittsburg, Penn., will hold a race meeting Sept. 29, and it is expected that it will be the great event of the season in that locality.

SPENCER, of Providence, sat on a stone and sketched the scene with a road hog, which was a part of the experience in the Boston trip of the Rhode Island wheelmen.

AND now may there be no lack of wind. May the "Volunteer" have wind enough to run away from the "Thistle," and may Rowe have wind enough to run away from Howell.

THE meet of the Tennessee Division will take place in Memphis, on the 13th and 14th of September. There will be a large race programme, fine prizes, and the best of entertainment.

THE race meeting, to be held by the Central Wheelmen of Cincinnati, occurs to-morrow, the 10th. President Kirkpatrick, Treasurer Brewster, and other prominent wheelmen will be present.

BUFFALO wheelmen regret the loss by death of a fellow wheelmen, in the person of Charles Meyer, who died Aug. 25, at the age of twenty-six years. He has been a member of the L. A. W. for many years.

AMERICA has found out that she can make bicycles, and though there will always be a sale for imported machines, the American rider of the future will be mounted on a home-made production by a large majority.

A LARGE party will go from Boston to the races at North Attleboro on Friday. Chief Consul Hayes, of Boston, and Representative Davol, of Warren, R. I. will be judges, and Bassett, of Boston, will be referee.

THE Bicycling World staff is making all the arrangements for the road race from Boston to Chicago. The idea was suggested by Mr. A. H. Overman, and the World staff promised to see that the thing was properly carried out.

THE second annual meet of Dakota wheelmen will be held at Mitchell, Sept. 28, 29 and 30, under the auspices of the Mitchell Bicycle Club, There will be three days of racing and a parade. Dakota has twenty members in the League. Five more would give them the right to form a division.

BRER BASSETT has another bad attack of punomia. We should like to drop a safe on him just at the moment of inspiration, and gain the gratitude of a pun-sick world. — Wheel. Wonder if the readers of the Wheel prefer paragraphs of this kind to a good pun?

THE Rugby turned out in their accustomed numbers, — that is, nobody turned up at the meeting-place. So the run had to be abandoned on account of being shorthanded. The next run is to Ballyclare, which will attract even a much larger attendance of members. — Irish Cyclist.

AT the annual meet of the Tennessee Division to be held at Memphis, Sept. 13 and 14, there will be an officers' meeting at 10 A. M. the first day, races at 3 P. M., and a banquet at 9 P. M. After the banquet it is announced there will be a general good time. The second day will be given to runs about Memphis.

A NUMBER of Boston Club men are planning to spend a few weeks at Sharon. They will ride to and from Boston to attend their business each day. "Papa" Weston is working up the "Bungalow Village" scheme for the club. He already has in view an admirable tract of land easily accessible from Boston.

THE Gormully & Jeffery racing team were in Boston on Friday. It comprises S. G. Whittaker, of Chicago; Frank E. Dingley, Minneapolis, Minn.; W. F. Knapp, Denver, Col.; L. D. Munger, Detroit, Mich.; and their manager, T. W. Eck, who is accompanied by his wife. They will be quartered at Lynn, and go at once into active training for the road race.

REPRESENTATIVE DAVOL of Rhode Island, was on the road last week when he was challenged to a race by a farmer in a buck-board. It was an exciting contest but we have not heard who won. An amateur photographer happened to have his camera in position and he caught the racers "on the fly." Mr. Davol has sent us the picture and it has taken a place in our collection.

"LONDON W.," who is the son of a commissioner, is responsible for the following: "The chairman of Boston's Park Commissioners told me the other day that there is to be erected at Franklin Park a building which, among other conveniences, will have a room where wheelmen can check their machines while strolling about the unridable portions of the park"

MR. WILLIAM M. JUSTICE resigned as president of the Camden (N. J.) Wheelmen and has gone to Pittsburgh, Penn. to take a position with the Keystone Watch Club Company. We would like to recommend Mr. Justice to the Pittsburgh wheelmen as a valuable club member, and one who would do credit to any club. Mr. Harry J. Hood was elected president and Mr. A. O. Clayton vice-president of the Camden Wheelmen. J. H. Crossley, Secretary.

IN America, track-racing has been very nearly killed, if not entirely, and the whole situation should be taken to heart by the English authorities. Track proprietors here will do well to study the possibility of concerted action, and the N. C. U., whose laxity with regard to road racing has much to answer for, may well take warning by the fate of the L. A. W. in this connection, and see whether it is not possible to stem the tide which is sweeping away from the legitimate path racing to the illegal — if interesting — contests of the road. — Wheeling.

"WHERE will it end?" is the conundrum which is vexing all interested in the progress of cycle construction, as they contemplate the ever-decreasing size of tricycle driving wheels. Racing tricycles were 40 inches in the diameter of their driving-wheels, two seasons ago; thirty-six was the size last year; and thirty inches this year; and the question is whether this diminution can go any farther with advantage to the speed of the machine or its durability. — Cyclist Journal.

THE Mitchell (Dak.) Bicycle Club will hold its second semi-annual meet at Mitchell on the 28th, 29th and 30th of September, during the session of the territorial fair. Over $350 will be given as prizes in the fourteen events to be on the programme. Every indication now points to this as being the most successful meet ever held in Dakota. The meet will close with a 25 mile road race on Oct. 1. For further information, address the secretary, W. J. Healey, Mitchell, Dak.

THOMAS STEVENS writes: "Major Pond is rapidly filling up October and November dates with engagements for my lecture. The subject matter will be a considerable improvement upon last spring's lecture. I have had overtures to that end from an English managers, but my American engagements will have my first consideration."

HENRY E. DUCKER has a strike on his hands at Buffalo. The cause is thus stated by a Buffalo paper: It became known, some time ago, that Superintendent Ducker, who has been in charge for about three months, intended to employ two female compositors. They are employed to a great extent "down East," where Mr. Ducker came from, and he appears to have been so well satisfied with them there that he is desirous of introducing them here. This did not suit the printers, so they quit immediately after the first instalment of female compositors arrived.

THE Troy Bicycle Club has been sadly victimized. A man came to them and represented that he had ridden from El Paso, Texas, and had visited on the way nearly all the race meetings that have been held in the South and West. The club members entertained him in a very hospitable manner. In payment for these hospitalities, he entered the clubhouse at night, and stole a suit of clothes and a wheel belonging to Capt. Thiessen. He was traced to Saratoga, where it was found he had committed another theft and departed. The thief is a man about twenty years of age, five feet seven inches in height, weighs about one hundred and fifty or one hundred and fifty five pounds, has a sandy complexion, dark red hair curled tight to his head, freckled face and hands. He had on, when he left Saratoga, a dark gray suit with small checks, no vest, bicycle cap, light-colored bicycle shirt laced in front.

E. C. KLIPSTEIN's return from the East has shattered a local idol. It is his opinion that Corey Hill, Boston, is worse than Son of a Gun, near Manchester. Klip says that this fact has been studiously concealed. Arthur Young, he says, tried fourteen times before getting up. Klip says he went prepared to strike a bad hill, as Greenwood, who climbed Corey Hill four consecutive times, "put him on" before he left for the East. He, with the Eastern fellows, wonder how Greenwood climbed it four times. He declares it to be two or three times longer than Solomon's, and so inclined that just when you are nicely pumped, you reach the steepest grade. — Post-Despatch.

A THREE-MILE road race between Max W. Turner and Arthur Beauchene, or Warren, R. I., for a gold medal, and the championship of Bristol County, was contested at four o'clock last Saturday afternoon, from the B. C. W. Club room on Main Street, Warren, around the Maxwell's Corner Course, and was won by Beauchene in 12.41 3-4, Turner's time being 12.44.

ARRANGEMENTS have been made whereby a number of bicycle races will be given at the grounds of the Kansas Central Agricultural Society, on the 22d of September, under the auspices of the Central Cycling Club of Junction City, in connection with the horsemen's contests. The official list of events will shortly be issued, and includes half mile, one mile, and ten mile championships under varying conditions, besides novice and consolation races, for half and quarter miles respectively.

SAN FRANCISCO.

CAPITAL CITY WHEELMEN, OF SACRAMENTO, CAL., AND MR. JOHN BREUNER, JR., CONSUL L. A. W., AT SACRAMENTO, CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON RACES.

Gentlemen, — Permit me to call your attention to the following facts, to wit: —

All amateur cycle racing in this State is under the jurisdiction of the Racing Board of the California Division of the League of American Wheelmen.

Among the championships established by this Board for this year was the one-mile State championship, said championship being then reserved for the Division meeting.

On July 4th last, at Santa Cruz, (at which city the Division meeting was held) the one-mile State championship for this year was contested for and won by Mr. Davis, of San Francisco, who now holds the same.

In view of the above, you will please take notice that you are not at liberty to have a "one-mile State championship" among your events which are to be contested for in Sacramento, on Sept. 21 next. You are therefore requested to return any and all entrance fees that you may have received for the "one-mile State championship," and expunge the same from your programme thus obviating the necessity of suspending from all races, in the United States, those who may participate therein. And you are further requested to formally announce the withdrawal of the above-mentioned event.

Respectfully,

H. C. FINKLER, No. 520, L. A. W.
Chairman Racing Board, Cal. Div., L. A. W.

Those remaining over Sunday, will have suitable entertainment provided for them. At this season of the year the city is alive with attractions, the Exposition, Grand Army encampment, street illuminations, grand parades, etc., any one of which is alone worth a trip to St. Louis, and members not only of this Division, but all others are earnestly invited to make us a visit. Come as long before, and stay as long after Oct. 1, as you can. A register will be kept at the Missouri Club house, and all visitors are requested to register as soon as possible after arrival. NOTES AND QUERIES.

[Readers are requested to contribute answers to questions propounded.]

(87) If a cycler, coasting a hill with legs over handles, should collide with a vehicle and get his wheel smashed, could he, although on the right side of the road, recover damages at law? No. 6431. Ans. We think the court would decide that he was not exercising due care.

(88) CAN the police stop the use of the calliope whistle by wheelmen, on the plea that it is a police call? No. 5387. We think not. The fact that they have adopted it gives them no power to stop its use by others.

(89) DOES the rule made by railroads to carry bicycles free include tricycles? No. 3800. No; very many of the roads will not take tricycles at all. Those who get the three-wheeler taken as baggage may look upon it as a special favor.

(90) IN reply to No. 86, I find the following things sufficient for a two-weeks' tour: One extra flannel shirt, one suit of underwear, extra pair of stockings and knickerbockers, nightshirt (cut off at the knees to reduce weight), and about six extra handkerchiefs, tooth-brush, hair-brush, and comb. Would strongly recommend riding in a pair of worsted knickerbockers; and after the day's ride is ended, make a complete change, and arrange your riding things so that they will be thoroughly dry for the next day. Tools, ordinary supply, with monkey wrench (B. & S.), piece of string, and a piece of fine wire, and a full oil-can. Refreshments, ginger ale or soda. Precautions, such as common sense would suggest. 13080.

Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co., Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen,—Now, I want to stand up and "speak my piece" about the Light Champion. A certain firm, who turn out better advertisements than wheels, have been groaning much of late over the popularity of the Champion Cycles, and telling a credulous public that a good wheel cannot be sold under their prices; that a ball head has not been proven (!) better than a globe head, and other such stuff, always winding up with the phrase, "Let others try the experiment." Now I want to tell you that I have tried the experiment. I have tested it severely and I am more than satisfied. I emphatically echo the words and urge all who want a good wheel to "try the experiment." The Light Champion has now ceased to be an experiment with me, and is a settled fact. I had occasion to test its hill-climbing powers against a wheel sent out by the firm referred to above, and tho' I am not a strong rider, and the other man was, I ran right away from him. For ease of adjustment and for running qualities the Light Champion is unsurpassed and unequalled. Every man I have mounted on my 53-inch wheel has envied me the rams-horn handle-bars and the Cobblestone saddle, and has wondered at the marvellous lightness of the running qualities. As I wrote you once before, I used to ride an —— ——, but I have followed their advice and "tried the experiment," and am so well satisfied that I propose to keep on "trying the experiment." Tell Mr. Jeffery to stop inventing improvements, or he'll have a damage suit some day for inventing and selling a wheel that runs away with the rider.

Yours most sincerely,

BURT E. HOWARD.

Miss Pope Mfg Co

Gentlemen. The record of my Expert Columbia is so good that I feel that you will be interested to learn about it. I bought it in the spring of 1883, so that it is now in its fourth season. I took it to the City of Mexico and brought it back with me. I used it there over a year and have ridden it regularly ever since returning. It has not yet cost me even a single cent for repairs and is still a staunch machine in first class running order.

Yours sincerely

Sylvester Baxter.

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded September 15th.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

WHEELMEN know more about roads than the traveller by carriage or the pedestrian. There is a good deal of literature in circulation giving advice and instruction on road building. Such literature is always attractive to the wheelman, and he reads it. Hence, wheelmen are rapidly becoming qualified for places on highway committees and commissions. The road problem is reaching a solution by rapid steps.

THE Vanderbilt University has taken a new departure, and one that will result in great good. Educated road builders are needed in America; for, while we are not much behind in everything that goes to make a good and grand country, we must confess that in the matter of roads America has much to learn and much to do to stand with what we used to call "the effete despotisms of Europe."

WE publish this week a complete list of League clubs numbered in the order in which they joined the League. From this date we shall publish the names of all clubs that unite with the League, and shall give them the proper numbers.

IN a recent issue of the Spectator it was asserted that "a member of the Boston delegation that was 'on view' at St. Louis, acted in a way unbecoming a gentleman or even a decent man," and it further remarked that the offending party deserved to have been kicked off the park. These charges we emphatically denied and pronounced them to be false. The writer of the paragraph in the Spectator is much incensed at our statement to the effect that the charges are false, and he has written us a letter giving the name of the party and the source of his information. He asks us to free him from the imputation that he has made a false statement. It appears that he was informed by an official of the League, that the offending party was a Boston man, but it also appears that the man does not, and never did belong in Boston, that he was never known nor seen by the Boston party till they met him at St. Louis, and that he is not a member of the League. We are willing to give the writer the benefit of his statement that he was misinformed.

LEAGUE CLUBS.

THE following clubs have qualified as League clubs by filing certificates in this office. In presenting list we do not repeat the name of town when the club bears it. THE next race meet of the Eastern Road Club will be held Saturday, Oct. 8. The course decided upon by the executive committee is through the Newtons and Waltham. The start will be on Beacon Street at the top of the hill from the Reservoir, and the finish will be at the Nonantum Club rooms. The length of the course is twenty-five miles. At the last meeting, the Cambridgeport Cycle Club was admitted a member. The next meeting was held Sept. 15, at the Boston's club rooms.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE new holiday, though not universally observed, was none the less enjoyed by those who were fortunate enough to be connected with such houses as did observe the day. The Nassau wheelmen held a very successful race meet at the B. A. A. grounds, which was well attended, and in which many of our local embryo flyers participated; the Brooklyns had their run and road race at Garden City; and parties from the Ilderan, Long Island, and Kings County clubs, had runs to various places.

THE Brooklyn's assembled at "mine host Pettit's" at noon and after having dinner wheeled to the Garden City Boulevard, where a course one mile and a quarter in length, and nearly level and perfect in surface, had been measured for the five-mile road races of the club series. Twenty-two of the club were present which with numerous spectators from Hempstead and Garden City transformed the usually deserted highway into an animated picture. The novices were started at three o'clock precisely, the starters being Mead, who scored three points in the previous races; Kellum, who had three points; Kenmore, with four points; and Snedeker, zero. The five miles were run in 18.50, Mead first, Kenmore second, Kellum third. This resulted in a tie between Mead and Kenmore for first and second place, which was run off after the championship race. Mead winning first place.

The championships started at 3.30 with Todd and Meeteer. Todd set a hot pace, and Meeteer dropped out at two and a half miles, leaving Todd to take his time, and win in nineteen minutes, the time limit being twenty minutes. At the conclusion of the races the party returned to Jamaica, each man consuming more than his allotted peck of dirt owing to the very dusty condition of the roads caused by the long spell of dry weather. Those who rode from Jamaica to Brooklyn reported a hard time, the roads being in worse condition than ever before known, due both to the dry weather and recent so-called "improvements."

THE Brooklyns had a most unwelcome visitor a few evenings ago, in the shape of a fire, caused by some careless person lighting a match and igniting the parlor mantle lambrequin, which was destroyed, the parlor carpet being also damaged in extinguishing it. The loss is about $60, covered by insurance, so let other clubs take warning and see that they are provided with a good insurance policy. The cost is slight, but the comfort is great when the fire comes.

I DESIRE to inform my fellow tourists that at the corner of the Jericho Pike and Old Court House Cross Roads there resides a genial old farmer, Valentine by name, who if properly approached will supply the thirsty cyeler with the richest and purest of ice cold milk at the enormous sum of five cents per quart. This is getting to be a famous stopping place with those who are on to the racket and, being just about half way between Jamaica and Jericho it is reached at just about the time one has a strong desire to liquidate.

THE boys here do not seem to take the interest in the approaching meet at Cooperstown that we hoped they would. One great drawback is the late date and consequent inabilty of many to obtain leave of absence, having already had their usual vacations. Parties are being formed in the Brooklyn and Long Island clubs, but they do not boom as we should like to see them. So far as known, the K. C. W. and Ilderans have taken no steps to organize parties, but we hope to see them with a fair representation when the time comes. There is no doubt, that for comfort and enjoyment the time selected is most seasonable, and as our Chief Consul has promised all who attend one of the jolliest times they have had in their wheeling experience, it may be taken for granted that all who go will have no cause for regret.

THE new hotel at Hempstead is approaching completion, and wheelmen may soon expect to be able to obtain good meals and accommodations at this popular place. There are rumors that Pettitt, of Jamaica, has his eye on the new venture, and I am sure that all who have enjoyed his hospitality hope with me, that the rumor may prove to be a fact.

BON.

SEPT. 10, 1887.

WHEN New York wheelmen go to Jericho, they stop for a glass of milk at a farm by the roadside. "Go to Jericho" has no more terror in it for Gotham riders.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

"MEN'S eyes were made to look, and let them gaze." I thank thee, honest Mercutio, for that word, and I use it under the inspiration of a letter which I have just received from Maud. She has taken her tricycle to a town where never lady rode before, and the eyes of the rustics as well as the tongues of the gossips have been at work.

IT is a trying ordeal, or, rather, it was years ago, for nowadays the cycle has become common enough to escape the amount of attention accorded to it during the early days of the wheel. Those who go into the sport at the present day have had the way prepared for them by the pioneers.

"I have been all over it again," writes Maud. "I have had to ride under the curious inspection of every man, woman and child in the village. I have had to tell them that it is not hard work, that I can ride seven miles an hour, and to tell them the price of the machine. I have had to convince good old ladies that it was perfectly proper for me to ride, and I have had to argue with the horny-fisted sons of the soil who have compared the work of riding to that of sawing wood. I don't know that I object to this sort of thing for I am callous to it, and it seems to divert me in a not over and above exciting environment. I made a great effort to be funny the other day, but I think it failed to strike the one to whom I was talking, and so I did n't press it.

"'You can just hitch a basket on behind you and get it full of chestnuts out in the woods when you want to go for some,' said the rustic.

"'No need of a basket,' said I, 'for I get no end of chestnuts whenever I am out and the crowd gathers around.'"

I AM afraid that my little Maud has been learning some of the slang of the day.

A MERRY party of five young ladies are enjoying afternoons and evenings in Newton Centre, and they hope to have very soon a larger party. Fathers buy tricycles for evening riding, and the young ladies use them during the day. This is a good arrangement, and the Newton ladies are to be congratulated upon the opportunities so presented.

SEVERAL parties have written me, and asked of what benefit is it to a lady to join the League? It may be of great benefit, and it may be fruitless. In either event, I am proud to have my name on the roll. It matters not to me if I see no tangible return for my money. I am willing to give a yearly dollar for the cause. The organization is a worthy one, and it deserves the help of every cycler. I have no patience with the man who, on being asked to contribute to a deserving charity, looks about for a return of his money in some shape. And yet there are many such. Else the church fair and the charity ball would not exist.

I BELIEVE that certain sums of money have been saved by me at hotels and on the rail, the postman leaves a good paper at my door every week and I have made the acquaintance of many valued friends. These are worth to me more than the dollar I pay in dues. And therefore I say, let the ladies join the League.

HECTOR and I rode over to see the Duke of Wellington last Sunday and we met him piloting a party of tandemons to Marblehead Neck, where the Nanepashemet rears its walls and furnishes a good dinner at marked-down prices in these days of the declining season. We joined them. The Duke invited me to try the front seat of his new Singer tandem, and the Duchess rode with Hector. At Malden the party was augmented by another pair on a tandem, and shortly after the Misses K——, of Maplewood, were met and persuaded to turn about with us. We left them at Cliftondale. I hope they had a pleasant run and a good dinner.

HERE is a story that the Duke regaled me with while I pedaled with him on the tandem. It is at the expense of our Providence friends, but it is too good to keep. A party of eight on four tandems were riding along a country road when they came suddenly upon some cows that were taking the whole road. Three of the ladies jumped from the machines without waiting for the gentlemen to stop them, and ran for the fence at the side of the road. The cows were dumfounded and the gentlemen, — well, I will say no more than that they were surprised. The ladies and the cows are now doing well. "This incident suggests," said the Duke, "that we must have a cowboy on the North Shore trip to clear the road ahead of us from cows, for some of those same ladies are going with us." Who will be elected cowboy, I wonder.

THE plans for the North Shore trip will be made this week. I am told that the 6th, 7th and 8th of October are decided upon for the dates. A special committee will publish full details in the BULLETIN. From all that I can gather, we shall have a very large party, and certain restrictions will have to be made in order to limit the number to one that can be sure of receiving hotel accommodations.

I HAVE been told of a most interesting collection of articles relating to tricycling for ladies, which has been made by the Pope Manufacturing Company, and which will soon be issued in the form of a scrap book. The book is to be distributed gratis, as it indirectly advertises the firm's goods, and I recommend my lady friends to send for copies, and those gentlemen who have lady friends whom they would persuade to ride will find in this little book just what they want as a proselyting agent.

DAISIE.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

WELL, the race did n't come off. Died of a broken heart. The committee, after struggling with the matter for upwards of six weeks, finally voted to "declare the race off," unless the Pike Co. would remove the clause in their permission requiring security to be given them providing for damages from possible accidents. This state of affairs is, doubtless, a bitter disappointment to many of us, but it must be admitted that it was the only wise course for the committee to pursue. For the combined clubs to give a bond of indemnity would place all the responsibility practically on the shoulders of the incorporated clubs, which, with the exception of the Pennsylvania, have the least interest in the matter, and they rightly decline the compliment It is too certainly uncertain, so to speak, and the prospect of some driver, whose trotter and buggy have been equally battered up by a scare, attaching the nice, brand-new club houses to the tune of ten thousand dollars or so, is just too utterly horrible, don't you know. And it is just as well for the men themselves, as even in the training there have been accidents to some of them, the worst one occurring on Tuesday evening last, at what was to have been the final trial of the Tioga team. Some eight miles of the course were covered in twenty-seven minutes, — the worst part of the course too. The club surgeon, who was leading and making the running in beautiful style, struck an ugly ledge of rock which the authorities have allowed to remain in the roadway beyond Radnor Hill, and was thrown into some loose stuff, scraping and bruising him considerably and making a two-inch cut in his chin, straight through whiskers and all into the bone. The necessity for paying him out in his own coin, of course stopped the others of the team and the trial did not get any further, else Fuller's 1.19 must have gone, although the fastest member of the team was not along. Indeed, it is reported that one of the Tioga Club has already bettered this record, And by the way, just ask Hill and Kohler what they think of the Tioga pace.

Fleming, the all-the-way-across man of the Gentury, returned from somewhere out in the wild West just to have a go at the road race, and is euchred out of it. Kolb, of the University, who has been riding all summer in track practice and races, wants mightily to have the race run off on a track somewhere. The Pennsylvania boys do not care for this, however, as they want a road race, and nothing but a road race.

Fleming has ridden, so far this year, over five thousand seven hundred miles. Dallet, of the Tioga, has one month to his credit on the club's record books, of over six hundred miles.

"THE ROAD AND THE ROADSIDE."

WE have read with a great deal of pleasure and profit a book of 140 pages with the above title, by Burton Willis Potter. The chapters of the book relating to the laws of public and private ways were written and read as a lecture at the county meeting of the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture in December, 1885, at Framingham. The present volume is a second edition, and at the request of friends Mr. Potter has added two chapters, one on "Sidewalks and Crossings," and another on "Bicycles and Tricycles." We give the chapter headings, from which the contents of the book may be judged. "History—Importance and Significance of Roads." "Location," indicating the best locations and the advantages and disadvantages of straight and curved roads. "Construction," very full and complete. "Repairs." "Laws Relating to the Laying Out of Ways." "Laws as to Repairs." "Guide Posts, Drinking Troughs, and Fountains." "Shade Trees, Parks, and Commons." "Public Use of Highways." "Law of the Road." "Equestrians and Pedestrians" "Omnibuses, Stages, and Horse Cars." "Purposes for which Highways may be Used" "Use of Highways by adjoining Owners." "Private Ways." "Don't," a number of cautions relating to improper and dangerous practices on the road. "Footpaths." "Within and Without the Road." "Enjoyment of the Road." "Sidewalks and Crosswalks." "Bicycles and Tricycles." The author has given us a very interesting and a very instructive book, and one of great value to wheelmen, who are interested even more than horsemen in the subjects treated of. Published by Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

THE NEW MAIL!

Nashville, Tenn., July 28, 1887.

Messrs. WILLIAM READ & SONS, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen,—I mailed you an afternoon paper, to-day, announcing our return from the Canada tour. Thinking you would be interested in our trip prompts me to write this letter. We left here July 4th, and I wheeled the entire distance from here to Niagara Falls and into Canada. Went by Louisville, Frankfort, Georgetown, Ky., Cincinnati, Hamilton, Dayton, Marion, Cleveland, O., Erie, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y. to Falls. Entire distance by Butcher Cyclometer, 862 1-4 miles. Also rode 183 miles on the New Mail before, making 1,045 miles. You must know we had some terribly rough roads on our trip; over 100 miles rough dirt road in northern Ohio, rough, old worn-out pikes in Kentucky, plank roads, sand roads, tow paths, water-washed side paths, rutty hard, dried clay roads; in fact, every kind of road you could call for.

The New Mail cost me exactly five cents for one quart of benzine for cleaning. We had a little over twelve riding days, making over 70 miles average. Entire time to Falls, nineteen and one half days; stopping in all large cities. The Ball Head worked perfectly, and I consider it the greatest improvement.

Yours truly, ED. D. FISHER.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Our NEW MAIL, though its first year, has been a PERFECT SUCCESS, and has had an EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND. We have been behind orders since the opening of the season till hot weather set in. Now, as the most active bicycle season is past, though the best riding weather is in the autumn, we have decided to offer for a short time only a few of these SUPERB NEW MAILS in exchange for others. This we have persistently refused to do heretofore, as the demand was so great. Wheelmen desiring to exchange their present old mounts for a

will please give us a description of the old wheel and their estimate of value. This offer is for no length of time, as we do not care to place many in this way. Address

MEETING OF THE N. Y. & N. J. T. R. R. A.

THE regular semi-annual meeting of the New York and New Jersey Team Road Racing Association, was held at the New York Metal Exchange, on September 10th, President Shriver in the chair. The New York, Ilderan, Kings County, Elizabeth, Union County, and Harlem Clubs, were represented by delegates. The resignations of the Long Island Wheelmen and Orange Wanderers, and of C. H. Luscomb as a member of the Executive Committee, were presented. On information that that of the Orange Wanderers would be withdrawn, it was laid on the table. The other resignations were accepted. Howard Greenman of the Ilderans, was elected unanimously to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Luscomb. In accordance with the rules, Mr. Austin in behalf of the Kings County Wheelmen, announced that his club was well enough satisfied with the Irvington-Milburn course, and again named it for the next race, although a delegate laughingly suggested that another course might change the luck. A discussion followed as to the best methods for a better controlling of the spectators at the finish, and the matter was left to the executive committee for consideration, and action. Several delegates stated the result of investigations as to the feeling of the people using the Irvington-Milburn road, as to the racing thereon, and the reports were unanimous, that not only had there been no complaints, but the races were desired, and looked forward to with interest by all. It was also decided that any official declaration by the association on the subject of road racing was uncalled for, in the absence of complaint from any quarter.

JER. C.

JERSEY.

THE disagreement in the Orange Wanderers on the road race question has, I am sorry to say, found its way into the lay press. I am inclined to think that a mountain is being made out of a mole hill in this case. The outsiders had better not meddle with the business. The gentlemen of the club are well able to settle their own affairs amicably and satisfactorily, and I am sure they will allow no difference of opinion on a mere question of policy to tend to the injury of the wheel, the club, and themselves.

THE Gormully & Jeffery team,—Whittaker, Knapp, and Eck,—have left Roseville for Lynn, where they will continue their training for the path races and the great contest from Boston to Chicago. I hope that the manufacturers will be able to agree on the conditions, and that the race will come off. If it does, it will be the greatest struggle in the cycling history of the world.

EVERYTHING points to the tournament of the Orange Wanderers at the Roseville track, next Saturday, being as great a success from every standpoint as that given by the club last year. The programme has been arranged with good judgment, so as to give all hands a fair opportunity to show their paces. It is as follows:—

One-mile novice, bicycle.
Half-mile amateur, bicycle handicap.
Two-mile amateur, bicycle handicap.
One-mile amateur, tandem handicap.
Brooklyn Bicycle Club one-mile championship.
Half-mile amateur, bicycle dash.
Two-mile amateur, bicycle, 5.50 limit.
One-mile Orange Wanderers' handicap.
One-mile amateur, bicycle lap.
Elizabeth Wheelmen, one-mile tandem.
One-mile amateur, bicycle, 2.45 limit, for handsome prize.
One-mile consolation.

THE Wanderers have been fortunate in securing the entries of the fastest amateurs among them: Crist, Rich, Stenken, Hall, Powers, and Wilhelm. The racing will begin at three o'clock.

EVEN here, in slow-going Jersey, the crusade for better roads is meeting with success. In Rahway, the common council has just resolved to lay macadam on the principal streets, and in Elizabeth the rotten wooden pavement on Madison Avenue is being replaced by Telford.

THE Hudson County Wheelmen were to have had, to-day, a century club run from Jersey City, through Orange, Morristown, Westfield, Springfield, and Newark, without traversing the same road twice. It is probable, however, that the rain necessitated a postponement.

I WAS disappointed at the meeting of the Road Racing Association on Saturday evening at there being no application for membership from either of those young and lively organizations, the Plainfield Cyclers and the Passaic County Wheelmen. Secretary Bridgman stated that he had had inquiries from them, but that they had made no formal application for membership.

NOW that they have well established team road racing associations in Philadelphia and Boston, why not let their four best men have a race with our champion quartette? As I suggested last spring, such a contest would be "the event of the year." Why not discuss the matter this winter, and make the arrangements for such a struggle after the associations have held their races next spring?

PERMIT me to make another suggestion, even at the risk of being accused of a desire to meddle with other people's affairs. Like every enthusiastic wheelman, however, I do not allow my interest in the cause to be pent up within the narrow boundaries of my own State. It seems to me that there should be some formal celebration of the passage of the Liberty Bill. Now is a good time to show our strength. Nothing appears so strongly to the public as numbers, and before next winter's fight begins in the New York legislature for better roads, it would be a great help to bring ourselves before the public by an event of some magnitude. Why not have a parade in Central Park of the wheelmen of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey, and those who will come from more distant points? The great parade of 1883 was an incalculable benefit to the cause in this vicinity. You may pooh-pooh parades all you like, but if they be of sufficient magnitude they never fail to make a beneficial impression. In the League parade of 1883 there were eight hundred in line. I am sure that all the clubs would gladly coöperate, and that even Philadelphia and Boston would lend a helping hand. New York, Brooklyn, and New Jersey could certainly turn out an aggregate of nine hundred, and the men in distant districts not far from three hundred more. Twelve hundred wheelmen in line would make a display that would not fail to produce a lasting and profound impression on the public. The newspaper advertising such an event would call forth would be a rousing big "boom" for the wheel.

CHIEF CONSUL BIDWELL'S placing of application blanks for L. A. W. membership in dealer's stores and places where wheelmen most do congregate is a very excellent idea and could be imitated with profit by other chief consuls. Many wheelmen will join if they have the paraphernalia therefor shoved under their noses, who would never take the trouble to make the application otherwise.

THE howl raised by the wheelmen in the Elizabeth papers at the disgraceful condition of the boulevard has stirred up the authorities, and in their primitive way they are repairing the road by filling the ruts with broken stones. Month in and month out I preach to them the gospel of Macadam, in the hope that constant thumping may soften the hardest heads. I shall persevere in my instructions as to the one and only way a macadam road can be built. More of our clubs should follow the excellent example set by the Orange Wanderers in endeavoring to teach road masters the truths they should already know.

I HAD a long chat with Whittaker the other day, and I find that the reputation he has gained in the West, of being not only an enthusiastic, but an entertaining talker is well deserved. He and Knapp are hard at work training at Riverside for the fall meet and road campaign. The main event on which "Whit" has his eye, is the proposed race from Boston to Chicago. He laughs at the idea of limiting the riding hours. "Let the best man get there first, and may the devil take the hindmost," is about his idea of the way the race should be run.

SEPT. 12, 1887.

NEW YORK ANNUAL MEET.

IT seems unfortunate, possibly, to many members of the New York State Division, that the 1887 Annual Meeting to be held at Cooperstown, N. Y., September 23 and 24th was not called earlier in the season, as many are debarred from attending on account of having already taken their vacations.

We trust that this will not interfere to any great extent with the attendance and we would advise members to borrow from next year's outing, and be on hand at Cooperstown. Everything at Cooperstown is conducive to comfort, enjoyment, and complete rest; the scenery, the lake, the roads, and the girls, all that tend to make a wheelman's life happy; and the only thought that will mar one's pleasure, is, that we have only two days to spend in such a delightful atmosphere. D.L.E.

The New York and Brooklyn party will leave via West Shore R. R., at 9.55 A. M. Sept. 22. The day will be spent en route, arriving at Cooperstown at 7 P. M., in time for one of those old-fashioned country suppers for which the Cooper House and Hotel Fenimore are famed.

We will not dwell on the fun and frolic in store for our members who take this train, but with the musical and story-telling material of which our party will consist, the time will not be allowed to drag. This feature alone is worth a reserved seat.

The dawn of the 23rd at Cooperstown will inaugurate the opening of the '87 Annual Meeting. We do not arise with the thought that at 8.30 A. M. we form a parade; 11 A. M. attend the race meeting; 2 30 P. M., a boat race; 3 P. M., a hill-climbing contest; 8 P. M., a banquet; (we have none of this not-time schedule to run on); but that we have the entire day to spend just as our fancy dictates. It might not be out of place, however, to imagine how the day will be utilized by many of our cycling enthusiasts. First, we will say that members who attend this meeting will have their wheels with them, and in that respect differ from other meetings. We do not expect to see here, those long-trousered gentry, who bask in the rays of the hotel clerk's diamond, and make slate. After breakfast we will mount our wheels, and in parties, explore the numerous roads about Cooperstown. We may ride all of that day and the next without duplicating. Around the lake to Richfield Springs, the "Vision Road," to Phœnix Mills, around the Beaver Meadow, to Moose Hill, to Cherry Valley and almost numberless runs, which our limited space will not permit us to describe. The scenery viewed as we wheel around the lake is equalled only by that of the Highlands of the Hudson, in fact, all the runs about Cooperstown cannot fail to awaken the enthusiasm of every wheelman, and we only hope all will be there who can, and enjoy the treat, but take your wheels, as you will be unable to beg, borrow, or steal, and a wheelmen at Cooperstown without a wheel will be an object of pity.

Our first work will commence when the business meeting convenes at the Hotel Fenimore at 3 P. M. It is the duty of every member to attend this meeting and lend a voice in shaping the policy of the Division, and we hope to see every member in his seat promptly at the appointed hour. We will not be detained long, not over two hours, and the balance of our stay in Cooperstown may be given up to pleasure, unless we drop in at the officers' meeting at 8 P. M. Every member of the Division is welcome; in fact, their attendance is solicited. Saturday the 24th will be given up to general enjoyment, when the touring may be interspersed by scrub bicycle races, open only to those who have never won a prize, or in fact raced at all, a hill-climbing contest, boat race, etc. A reception in the evening at the Cooper House will wind up the Meeting, and will not be the least of the attractions judging from the appearance of the feminine residents of Cooperstown from a bird's-eye view looking from the veranda of the Hotel Fenimore.

TRANSPORTATION.

Wheelmen from the Central and Western part of the State can reach Cooperstown, via West Shore R. R. connecting at Utica with the Delaware and Lackawana and Western to Richfield Springs; from there it is a delightful run to Cooperstown. Members from New York and Brooklyn should take the 9. 55 A. M. train, Sept. 22, via West Shore R. R. Those who cannot leave until evening of 23, take 5.50 P. M. train to Albany, remain there over night at hotel Kenmore, take 8.30 A. M. train via Delaware & Hudson R. R. to Cooperstown, arriving at 12 32 P. M. on the 23d; or, take People's Line steamer, pier 41, North River, leaving 6 P. M., connecting at Albany with 8.30 A. M. train, Delaware & Hudson, Sept. 23, to Cooperstown, arriving at 12.32 P. M.

The fare by boat or rail from New York to Cooperstown and return has been fixed at $7.00, sleeping car, parlor car or state room extra. Reduced rates will be granted to parties of three or more from any point on the West Shore R. R. by applying to Geo. R. Bidwell, 313 West 58th St., New York.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

BELMONT, MASS.

STILL no response from Middlesex. Well, if I have to go it alone I can at least have my own way, which, though it may be a slight comfort at times, is a satisfaction just in proportion to one's desire to posess a Kingdom of One. But, though not heard in the BULLETIN, there are very many probably who, in a quiet way, take mental notes of the efforts of home contributors, and no doubt exercise a wholesome restraint over their tendency to onesidedness, more especially perhaps where the experiences are general, as in clubs, than where memory and imagination, aided by slight opportunities for personal observations, are called upon to fill the space better accorded to records of actual experience. However, if perchance, the substance of the following should not find entire favor with the fraternity by reason of its general inadequateness it is to be hoped they will give the BULLETIN the benefit of their perhaps greater experience, and no doubt better knowledge of the subject.

IT is a matter of some surprise to me that there are so few contributors to the BULLETIN in comparison to the number of League members. It may be said that they are not generally interested to that extent. Very likely, but an occasional letter would be a small tax upon any one when it is considered what inspiration may be gathered from a spin through the country in the cool bracing air of the last few days, with nature arrayed in almost the freshness of spring so well has the summer kept its youth, thanks to an atmosphere which has exerted an equally depressing effect on human nature, rendering life miserable and work impossible, but Dr. Johnson says "a man may write at any time if he will but set himself about it"; and it has always seemed to me that for the official organ of an association comprising eleven thousand active members the BULLETIN was all too small. It is good every bit of it as can be, the very difficulty, it is so good there should be about five times as much of it.

I AM curious to see Karl Kron's book, which called forth such wholesale condemnation from the Boston Herald, even going so far as to call the author an idiot. I cannot believe that the book is what the Herald avers as the tone of the review, even to a totally disinterested person, must seem unreasonable, unjust, and even spiteful. The writer is evidently not a wheelman, or he would understand the fellow feeling among riders which alone, I think, aside from any real literary merit, would make the volume interesting to those for whom it was written. The reviewer calls Mr. Kron bumptious because, forsooth, he chooses to write his own book after his own fashion and idea. I have not the pleasure of Mr. Kron's acquaintance and therefore cannot be thought to have any motive in writing this article, aside from the feeling that the criticism was unwarrantably severe. No doubt such a book could be made one of the most interesting volumes ever written or not, much would depend upon the author's purpose whether a book for reference, or a narrative of adventure to interest the general reader, and it is barely possible that this was one of the many things which the Herald man misunderstood.

I AM one of the many who went to Cottage City in the spirit only. The inevitable circumstance over which one has no control materialized to the extent of preventing my attendance on an occasion which was looked forward to with some little anticipation, but it was not to be, and I was obliged to content myself with the record found in the BULLETINS of succeeding dates. Any one who has experienced the delights of asphalt wheeling can appreciate the advantages which Cottage City posesses for a League Meet and for riders in general as the combination of good roads and sea shore is very unusual. Bicyclists are also prone to sociability and Cottage City is preëminently sociable. Fine roads and the prospect of a thoroughly enjoyable time make it a place peculiarly suited for even the most blasé cyclers to spend a week's outing. Another year I shall go, if wheels be wheels and the Meet is held there.

WHEELMEN about here have a treat in prospect in Massachusetts Avenue, now in process of construction between Boston and Chestnut Hill reservoir, running east from the reservoir gate. All indications point to its being the finest riding ground in the State. The portion already finished has a surface almost as hard and smooth as marble, finely curved and graded with some splendid opportunities for coasting. The mile or two at present completed seems well nigh a perfect specimen of road-building.

THE Boston Globe of 6 Sept., gives an account of an aggravated assault on a party of cyclers, near Wellesley, on the 5th., by two men, driving in a wagon. The party consisted of members of the Roxbury club, having under escort, visiting wheelmen from Rhode Island. The visitors were being shown some of the advantages of the country for wheelmen, and they were peculiarly unfortunate in meeting with such an experience at such a time, more especially as there were a number of ladies with the party. The fellow driving had, by urging his horse, caught up with the riders and persisted in forcing a passage through them, although allowed ample room to pass on the left of the road; the consequence was that one of the party was upset and several narrowly escaped serious injury. But partial retribution was speedy; the scoundrel was overtaken and brought before a justice, who fined him some seventeen dollars, a mere trifle when it is considered what the consequences might have been, for this is not the road hog, it is the road ruffian and desperado, and should be dealt with as such. It is significant of their character that this one was brought to a standstill by the flash of a nickel pocket flask, which one of the party carried, his coward conscience magnifying it into a formidable six shooter; but it accomplished its purpose, and, had the punishment fitted the crime, the satisfaction would have been greater. But this is almost always the case in an offence of this kind, the judge is too apt to look only at the result, no matter how plainly the intention was towards something more serious. In nine cases out of ten, he deals simply with the offence, without considering the aggravated circumstances connected. Perhaps he should never suppose a case, but if he is to deal simply with a bare statement of facts, and apply the literal letter of the law, making no note of his knowledge of human nature, allowing no element of ordinary judgment, or reason to enter into his decisions, why is such an extended course of legal training necessary to fit him for his position; the law is there in black and white, and children may read. The possibility of a fine of ten, fifteen or twenty dollars is a small matter compared to the devilish satisfaction the road pirate finds in wrecking an expensive machine or maiming its owner.

QUADRANT.

A WONDERFUL BICYCLE.

A LONDON despatch to the New York World says. A number of gentlemen interested in the adaptation of cycles to military purposes, assembled at Hanwell, yesterday afternoon, Sept. 9, to witness some trials and experiments with a bicycle which has been constructed by Wilkins & Co., of Holburn Viaduct. The bicycle, which in its general outward appearance resembles the machine of the familiar safety type, was put through a series of most extraodinary tests, with results which greatly astonished and amused the onlookers.

Starting from the centre of the town, a man rode over half a mile or so of road to the bank of the river Brent, where, dismounting, he proceeded to blow into a couple of small bags attached to the handles. The inflation occupied about a minute, and then the rider, having thrown his bicycle into the water, dived after it, swam across, and landed on the other side. He then rode over three or four miles of very rough and varied country, including ploughed fields and swampy meadows, and having crossed the river, regained Hanwell by some very rough lanes, lifting his machine over closed gates. Altogether, he covered a distance of about five miles, and his time was little more than 41 minutes. Subsequently, a few well-known cyclers, who were among the visitors tried the machine, and rode over the most uneven ground, up and down short and sharp hills and over bricks and other obstructions, in a manner that greatly surprised the military men and others who were present.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

A WRENCH.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—How do you carry your wrench? My wife made me a morocco case just large enough for the wrench, and this I sling on my belt. I like it much better than a tool bag. My oiler is strapped to the backbone in a small leather bag, made to just hold it. I seldom carry a tool-bag. H. N. G.

A YEAR'S FEE.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Let me second the motion of your correspondent who, in your last issue, suggested that a man's fee gives him a year's membership. This plan is pursued in every organization that I belong to, and it works well. It may take more writing, but it will add to our income. I am ready to pay $2 or $3 a year if the League wants the money. PENNSY.

WHISTLE CODE.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—A correspondent in BULLETIN of September 9th asks if the League has a whistle code. No, it has not. We have a bugle code which few use. Let me suggest the use of the following signals. Our club has adopted these and employs them to advantage.

HAND SIGNALS.

1. For extended order: Right hand held out.
2. For closing up again: Left hand held out.
3. For slackening pace, while maintaining same distance between riders: Right hand held up.
4. For sudden halt: Left hand, with cap, held up.

WHISTLE SIGNALS.

1. Prepare to mount — —
2. Mount —
3. Dismount and halt —
4. Form twos — —
5. Form fours — — — —
6. Form single file — —
7. Slacken pace — —
8. Increase speed — — — —
9. Dismount and walk — —

When the order to dismount is given, dismounting shall commence from the rear, each man passing the word forward as he dismounts, except in case of hand signal "4" and whistle signal "3," when dismounting must be done as quickly as possible.

A whistle code might be employed to advantage on the road. I break down on my wheel and need assistance, I see a party on another road and I sound a "help" signal. In the dark I am behind, and want to catch up, I call, "wait." The code could be extended indefinitely. L. I. W.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Referring to the item of "Whistle Code" in last issue of the BULLETIN; I too say, why not have a Whistle Code. When road hogs knew there was a signal which other wheelmen would answer, they would be more careful, for fear of pursuit by a brother wheelmen. Can't the League adopt a code? L. A. W. No. 16,157.

HIS NAME.

Editor Bulletin: — Last week's BULLETIN announced the arrival of a wheelman in Detroit from Havre de Grace, Md.; but was unable, it being the wheelman's omission, to give his name. As I am able to supply it, I will take the liberty of doing so, lest your readers might surmise his name to be Ten Pounds, and accept the theory that in as much as he has reported having lost that, it was his name.

The gentleman is no other than L. H. Asherfeld, League No. 13,219, a great indulger in the sport that makes us kin. He has left his pretty village for the West, to make his home, much to the regret of those members of the Centaur Cycle Club, Baltimore, who have learned to know him. C. C. G.

CYCLETS.

NEW YORK men look for barrels of fun and a staving time at Cooperstown.

HILLIER is making a continued story of his review of Karl Kron's book.

SANFORD LAWTON, of Springfield, will act as referee at the Providence races.

THE Illinois Cycling Club has sent nearly ninety applications since Aug. 1, 1886.

THE Star club, of Detroit, will entertain the Toledo Cycling Club on Sunday next.

THE ladies' trip to the North Shore is planned, and entries are already coming in.

THE Orange Wanderers hold a race meeting on the Roseville track September 17.

THE Brooklyn Bicycle Club has just had cause to appreciate a policy of insurance against fire.

"FOR sale" advertisements are inserted in the BULLETIN for fifty cents, or three times for a dollar.

NEW YORK Division members, who intend going to Cooperstown, should notify their Chief Consul at once.

THE Maryland Bicycle Club has recently put a new roof over its head, having taken a house in Eutaw Place.

THE young men of St. Louis who raced against a horse, have been suspended from the track by the Racing Board.

THOMAS ECK thinks Whittaker can give Rowe a good race, and when he makes the assertion he does n't smile.

THE Manhattan Bicycle Club is the last addition to the list of New York clubs. Like all New York clubs, it is a League club.

C. C. CANDY, of Fort Leavenworth, has been making a road record for Kansas, one hundred miles in twelve hours.

COL. ALBERT A. POPE, who has been visiting the Yellowstone National Park with a party of Eastern capitalists, arrived in Boston last Saturday.

HOWARD GREENMAN, of Brooklyn, has been elected secretary of the N. Y. & N. J. T. R. R. A. in place of C. H. Luscomb, resigned.

WOODSIDE is going to run a ten-mile lap race with Howell. We think this will be the first appearance of our favorite race on English soil.

HARRY GORDON, of St. Louis, denies that he raced with a horse for money. There was no stake at all, he says, and the race was only an exhibition one.

IT is safe to say that more horse car tracks have been laid on the good roads about Boston during the present year than in any previous year of the decade.

THE Philadelphia road race did not come off. The clubs would not give a bond to secure the pike authorities against suits for damages. No bond, no race.

WILLIAM GILLETTE, the well-known actor, while attempting to catch a train on his bicycle in Denver, took a severe header, which laid him up for a few days.

LIEUTENANT ROTHE has retired from cycling and the Boston Club. He was the number one road rider of the club for many years, a strong rider, and a thorough good fellow.

SEVENTY-NINE applications this week, and a total membership of 11,368. There are thirteen more weeks this year, and we must average 49 members per week to reach 12,000.

A CYCLING paper to be called the Pacific Coast Wheelman and Athlete will be issued bi-weekly in San Francisco and edited by Messrs. Egbert and Patrick, of the San Francisco Club.

RIDERS in the road race to Boston from Chicago will be allowed to ride to a hotel after the riding time has gone by, but they must take the overplus of time from the next day's quota.

ROWE is still champion. If any one else had won the championship at Hartford, he would hardly have been accorded the title. We like to give a title where it can be fairly and worthily worn

CROCKER is ambitious to meet Howell, and thinks he can beat him. Whittaker thinks he can beat Rowe, and Neilson is very certain that he can beat them all. Really, we must have a race to clear up these mysteries.

THERE is a bicycle boom reported in the far Northwest. A club with nineteen members and five lady riders, who are honorary members, has been organized in Portland, Ore. It is called the Northwest Cycle Club.

CHIEF CONSUL BIDWELL, of New York has had a number of boxes made just large enough to contain the League application blank. These he causes to be hung in club rooms, in hotels and other places where cyclers congregate.

GEORGE NASH, of the Cambridge Club, and a lady friend were riding a tandem last week when an unlucky upset occurred. The lady escaped uninjured, but Mr. Nash received cuts and bruises that confined him to the house for several days.

AT Coventry, Eng., Aug. 24, Jules Dubois rode 21 miles 498 yards within the hour, and broke every English professional record from two to twenty-five miles. The next day, on the same track, he rode two miles in 5.25, taking the record for that distance.

JOE PENNELL and Mrs. have been doing a pedestrian tour through Scotland, and they are thoroughly disgusted with themselves that they laid aside their tandem. Joe writes: "If ever I go on a walking tour again without some sort of cycle, write me down an ass."

IT has been decided to have the road race from Chicago to Boston, instead of from Boston to Chicago, as was originally planned. There were various reasons for the change, chiefly because the natural slope of the land is towards the coast and the prevailing winds of October are westerly.

THE Ottawa Wheelmen, of Canada, is the latest League club. The officers are as follows: President, W. C. Bradley; vice-president, H. D. Lockwood; secretary and treasurer, C. N. Brown; captain, Lee Patrick. The club is entered upon our books and given a number.

THE Vermont Wheel Club will hold a race meeting at Brattleboro, Sept. 2, on the occasion of the opening of the Valley Fair Association Park. There will be nine races, including one-half-mile and five-mile State championship. Entries to Leslie Scott, Brattleboro. Close Sept. 10.

RACES at Pittsburg, Penn., in connection with the Interstate Fair are announced for September 29. An advertisement in this week's issue gives list of races, entry fee, etc. Western Pennsylvania has given us a good many fast men, and there will be a large congregation of such at this meeting.

ROWE will not go to England nor will Howell come to America. We shall spend the winter discussing the merits of the two men. We feel very sure that Rowe could beat Howell, but then Hillier is just as sure that Howell can beat Rowe. And there you are.

THE last of a series of three road races took place at Montreal last Saturday. Distance, 15¾ miles. Mr. E. P. Baird was the scratch man and the winner, making the distance in 1h. 2m. E. W. Barlow made the best average in the series, and took first prize, and Baird took second.

ON the 21st instant the Albany Wheelmen hold their second annual race meeting at the Ridgefield grounds. Great preparations have been made for the event, and much exciting sport is promised. Numerous entries have already been received, and handsome and valuable prizes are offered for each event.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., is to be the centre of racing men's ideas on Saturday, Oct. 1. In our advertising columns will be found full particulars, list of races, entry fee, etc. A very attractive list of races and good prizes should call forth a large attendance and attract our best racing men.

THE fact that bicycles and tricycles have come so suddenly into everyday use without more acts relating to them on the statute books, or adjudicated cases in law reports, indicates that their use is not attended with much inconvenience to the public, or injury to life, or damage to property. — Road and Roadside.

MR. BUTCHER has made a new attachment for his hub cyclometer. In place of the weight which keeps the face up, he hangs an oiler. The oiler is made heavy enough to do the work of the weight, and when one wishes to oil up he has but to press a spring, and he has an oil can in his hand. A sleeve for the hub with the oiler attachment will be supplied to those who do not care for the cyclometer.

AFTER the passage of the Interstate Commerce Law, the Southern Pacific Railroad refused to carry bicycles free; but Chief Consul Welch has been laboring with the officers of the road, and has secured from them a return to the system. An official circular has been sent to agents and baggage masters of the road, instructing them to carry wheels free at owner's risk.

"HAL," who used to talk about "Men I have met,' who was our first bookmaster, and the compiler of the Pa.-N. J.-Md. road book, is going to locate in San Francisco, where he hopes to meet many more men, and form many acquaintances. 'Frisco wheelmen will do well to cultivate "Hal," for he is a good fellow, and a wheelman from t up to toe. He signs his name "H. S. Wood."

THE Brookline Cycle Club received Tuesday evening of last week at the clubhouse, the especial guests being the Waltham Cycle Club. The Waltham boys turned out twenty strong, and were met on their way to Brookline by Captain W. K. Corey, and escorted to the cycle club rooms, where music, feasting, and whist were factors in the passing of time.

THE Kansas City Wheelmen's club run, last Sunday, was to Independence. The cyclers spent the day at McCauley Park. An amusing feature of the day's enjoyment was the conveying of watermelons to the park by the boys on their wheels. The return was made to Kansas City in the cool of the evening. — Kansas City Journal.

THE Genesee Club of Rochester, N. Y., will omit the annual tournament this year. Previous tournaments have not given a financial return to compensate for the work done by members of the club, and so a "field day" will be held this week, Thursday, the 15th. A number of races will be run, and there will be sports; but there will be no admission fee, and no attempt on the part of the wheelmen to entertain anybody but themselves.

EAST HARTFORD tournament, Saturday, Sept. 17. Events: Half-mile, handicap, open in heats; one-mile, novice, open; three-mile, open 10 class; one-mile, open; one-mile, East Hartford Wheelmen, 3.20 class; two-mile, handicap, open; one-mile, lap, open; one-mile, open, 3.20 class; one-mile, handicap, open; three-mile, open; one-mile, consolation. Three prizes will be offered in each event. Entrance, fifty cents for each event; close Sept. 13, with H. E. Bidwell, P. O. Box 173, East Hartford, Conn.

A WELL-KNOWN rider across the bay, who is also a great tourist, becoming displeased with the condition of a certain piece of road, complained to the roadmaster and took him a copy of the LEAGUE BULLETIN containing an article on road construction and repairs. The roadmaster read the article with interest, and said he considered the suggestions very valuable, and would try to carry them out. This is the same officer who deferred putting fresh gravel on the San Leandro triangle until after the road race last Thanksgiving Day. — San Francisco Chronicle.

THE most interesting features of the Missouris' meeting last Tuesday, was the proposition to give the St. Louis Cycle Club, their new rival, a smoker, some time in the next week or two. Being convinced that

WRITE VERY PLAINLY.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

it would be best to have the clubs get on a friendly footing. Capt. Brewster proposed the smoker scheme, which was at once adopted. It more of such courtesies were mutually extended by bicycle clubs everywhere, bicyclists would not probably be engaged in so much internecine strife. The bitterest feeling existed between the Missouris and the old Ramblers, and now that the latter are dead, it is seen that there was really no occasion for any animosity.—Post-Dispatch.

THE Dean of the engineering department of Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., has issued circulars announcing that a class in highway construction is to be opened free of charge to one principal or deputy highway commissioner or other official from each county, the beneficiary to be appointed by the county judge. The course of instruction will extend from Feb. 1 to April 1, and will consist of lectures and work on the economical location of highways to conform to conditions to topography and traffic, principles of construction of new and reconstruction of old roads, methods of drainage, simple highway structures, retaining walls, culverts, simple bridges; also practice in field sketching, planning, draughting, and computing estimates of cost. Tuition in manual technology at the Vanderbilt is free to all students; and now the opening of the class in road engineering to public officials charged with oversight of the highways is a step that is highly to be commended. The offer is not restricted to State lines, but limited only to the capacity of the institution.

JOHN J. JENNINGS, the well known journalist, who has just returned from Denver, Colo., where he spent the summer, says Denver is a paradise for riders. To him, it seemed as if everybody rides a wheel there. He says one can stand in a store front and see more wheels in half an hour than one could see in St. Louis in a week. It is a common mode of locomotion for all classes of people. Laboring men use it to a considerable extent. The safety is very common. He has seen a plumber come out of his shop, sling his kit of tools over his shou der, mount his wheel, and start out on a job. In front of nearly every store is a wheel ridden down by some employe. He attributes the general use to the numerous places where wheels are rented. He thought about every other house was a bicycle establishment. As he saw the long procession still rolling to and fro, he says he kicked himself severely for not learning in the long ago. Post-Dispatch.

THE LADY WINS.

HICKS of the Post-Despatch and Greenwood-of-the-hill, have been touring. Here is the way Hicks works up a little story for his paper.

"About that time the riders began to get hungry, and asked at a farm-house for something to eat. They were referred to another down further, which repeated the referring, and a seach for grub then commenced, which lasted two long hours. Everybody was out of everything, was too busy or too mean. Not even would the announcement that the travelers were from distant St. Louis move them. One of the party was about to hoodoo the country by starting a discussion on the flying start, when a pretty young lady, Miss Thurstan, appeared and invited the famished party to her home. The condition of the cyclists can be imagined when it is stated that Greenwood had so far forgotten his reputation as to draw the line at the foot of every hill, saying that he could not afford to maintain his reputation when he was liable never to see another sunrise. The Thurstan place is called View Farm and luckily the party had dismounted at one of the most beautiful places in Wisconsin.

After a sumptuous dinner, specially prepared and gratuitous, the bicyclists were about to go, when Miss Emma Thurstan donned her riding habit, mounted her horse and started out to escort the wheelman down the road. For four miles the road was practically unridable, and the gold medal was tucked away out of sight as the Star was trundled up hill after hill. Finally a good stretch of road was reached and the lady said: "Let's race. I've beaten everything around here, but I never raced such horses as yours. You say you can go fast. I would like to see you."

She was a fine rider, the best in that part of the State, and she laid the whip on Curly, who bravely struggled on against his strange competitors for a mile and then fell behind. When the town of East Troy was reached the lady rode ahead, the wheelmen forming an array behind. It was about sunset and the townspeople were nearly struck dumb as the Joan of Arc came galloping down the streets leading her gallant knights. One of the party had been escorted out of towns and cities by Mayors and other dignitaries, but to be piloted through a strange country by a beautiful lady nearly upset him and the rest.

But the brightest pathways have an end
And the loveliest visions flee.

The inevitable turning back came for her, but it was on the top of a lofty hill, and as the wheelmen rode away far down the other side and across the level valley, looking back they could see her sitting immovable on her horse, rider and beast catching a crimson glory from the skies. With this novel picture still glowing in their minds, the cyclists rode on into the darkness, and after fourteen miles of delightful road reached Geneva Lake for a late supper

THIS IS REALLY VERY FUNNY.

READ * IT * AND * YOU * WILL * SMILE!

Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co., Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen,—Now, I want to stand up and "speak my piece" about the Light Champion. A certain firm, who turn out better advertisements than wheels, have been groaning much of late over the popularity of the Champion Cycles, and telling a credulous public that a good wheel cannot be sold under their prices; that a ball head has not been proven (!) better than a globe head, and other such stuff, always winding up with the phrase, "Let others try the experiment." Now I want to tell you that I have tried the experiment. I have tested it severely and I am more than satisfied. I emphatically echo the words and urge all who want a good wheel to "try the experiment." The Light Champion has now ceased to be an experiment with me, and is a settled fact. I had occasion to test its hill-climbing powers against a wheel sent out by the firm referred to above, and tho' I am not a strong rider, and the other man was, I ran right away from him. For ease of adjustment and for running qualities the Light Champion is unsurpassed and unequalled. Every man I have mounted on my 53-inch wheel has envied me the rams-horn handle-bars and the Cobblestone saddle, and has wondered at the marvellous lightness of the running qualities. As I wrote you once before, I used to ride an —— ——, but I have followed their advice and "tried the experiment," and am so well satisfied that I propose to keep on "trying the experiment." Tell Mr. Jeffery to stop inventing improvements, or he'll have a damage suit some day for inventing and selling a wheel that runs away with the rider.

Yours most sincerely,

BURT E. HOWARD.

Miss Pope Mfg Co

Gentlemen. The record of my Expert Columbia is so good that I feel that you will be interested to learn about it I bought it in the spring of 1883, so that it is now in its fourth season. I took it to the City of Mexico and brought it back with me. I used it there over a year and have ridden it regularly ever since returning It has not yet cost me even a single cent for repairs and is still a staunch machine in first class running order.

Yours sincerely

Sylvester Baxter.

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded Oct. 1, 1887.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

SYRACUSE (N. Y.) wheelmen have discovered a cyclophobist of the rankest kind in the person of John O'Sullivan, an ex-priest. "Ex" because he was removed from the priesthood for criminal proceedings which carried him into court. A party of Syracusians was assaulted by this fellow a short time since, and Mr. Ex-priest may once more appear in court.

CLEVELAND has had its race meeting, but it fails to find dollars to count as a result. One more case of hard work, and the privilege of paying for it.

THE amateur question is being discussed only by those papers that wish to do away with the rule. The supporters of the rule, recognizing that wheelmen are weary of such discussions, and, being sure that the rule is safe, they are letting it severely alone. The rule will stand a deal more hammering than it has received, and yet it will remain.

THE New York Bi. Club has given $100 to the special fund which New York wheelmen are raising to pay the expenses incurred in pushing the "Liberty Bill" through the legislature. The total amount raised is $281.50, and subscriptions are coming in so freely that there is little doubt the whole amount will soon be raised.

THE question of improved roads is being agitated with good effect in Missouri. The Crawford township has made a proposition to the Board of Trade of St. Joseph, offering to contribute $2,500, if St. Joseph will do the same, and this subscription will entitle them to draw $5,000 from the county court. This will grade the roads to the Crawford line, and that township agrees to take care of its own roads without assistance. A memorial to the Board of Trade sets forth the advantage of good roads in moving farm products and merchandise, and the two townships will undoubtedly carry out the project.

THE following paragraph is from the Sewing Machine News of London. We suggest that our readers turn it about a bit, and, making it refer to the bicycle, substitute "England" and "Englishmen" for "America" and "Americans," and put "Americans" in place of "Europeans": —

"Let me ask what chance have the inferior makes of machines in face of such excellence as is now so common in the sewing-machine? Better that their makers should call them in and remelt them. We Europeans are much obliged to the Americans for their fine devices in machine tools, by the aid of which alone such products are possible. Since the sincerest flattery is in imitation, we are following their excellent example in this country, and turning out machines in no way inferior in construction to those of America."

PROXY blanks have been sent to every member of the Board of Officers for use in connection with the meeting at New York. Members of the Board should remember that they must write in the name of principal and alternate, when making out this proxy, and that only such as are made in this way can be used.

IT is amusing to read the remarks of leading New York dailies on the new Labor day and Saturday half-holidays, which were recently legalized in that State by a bill that was generally looked upon as a sop to the laboring element. Some of the papers like the Times and Evening Post, are so rabid on the labor movement that they are devoting a good deal of space to denouncing the new holidays, as well as to praise of those business men who have refused to observe either; apparently out of what looks suspiciously like a spiteful feeling on account of their supposed origin. The truth is that these holidays, like all others, affect the real workingman very much less than they do the strictly mercantile classes.

WHEELMEN are a fair type of the people who gain most from holidays; the younger professional and business men or clerks. Of all their class, wheelmen get the most enjoyment perhaps, from a holiday, for they are never at a loss how to spend one when the weather is fine. Labor Day was quite a boon to those of our members who were so fortunate as to profit by it, and filled one of the gaps "between drinks" just where it was needed; falling, as it does, nearly half way between Independence and Election Days. Another wise appointment would be that of a holiday about the middle of April, to relieve the long stretch between Washington's Birthday and Decoration Day. But the best point of the new law was the half-holiday enactment, which resulted, by the way, in none of the saturnalia of drunkenness that was so freely predicted.

THE fact is, that with the growing intensity of civilization, we constantly need more and more holidays to relieve the strain; and nowhere to a greater extent than on Manhattan Island. Even workshops can often afford to shut down or to work shorter hours, for the sake of the increased vigor with which the producers return to their tasks. But the commercial classes do not make goods; they only exchange them. Whether they keep open their offices for a greater or less length of time makes no difference in the amount of goods to be exchanged; and no one can actually lose business by closing early when every one does the same. One of the deepest impressions on a stranger in New York, is the thoroughness with which New Yorkers have already learned this lesson, and the remarkable system by which they contrive to do three times the amount of work that is accomplished by a merchant in a smaller town in twice the time. The fact is one of which New Yorkers have always been proud; and now to see a metropolitan newspaper influenced by an absurd prejudice so far as to discuss the matter from the standpoint of a cross-roads journal, is positively melancholy, and at the same time ridiculous.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

THEY, the preliminary circulars, are on the wing. We, the expectant tourists, are up to the eyes in preparatory arrangements. It, the North Shore, awaits us and reminds us that it is time for the annual visit. The busy needle plies its way through material that will be shapen into costumes, and the unpoetic oiled rag is giving a holiday appearance to the machines. Nay, even muscles are being schooled and hardened for the effort, and more than one fireside is deserted by the Johns and Julias, who are riding to get in condition. The annual tour of the ladies to the North Shore impends.

DID you read the preliminary announcement in the BULLETIN of last week, my young lady friend? And will you not go with us to scenes that will delight you, over roads that do not call for great exertion? We want all the ladies to go this year, and the welcome we will give them will be in proportion to the distance which they come.

I AM talking to the ladies, be it understood, for this is a ladies' tour. The gentlemen are wanted too, but they must come as escorts. The company will be very large, and we must draw the line somewhere or endanger our satisfactory entertainment at the hotels. The committee will not object to the company of solitary gentlemen for short stages of the journey, nor will they object to the escorts and receptions that have been talked of by local clubs, but they believe that they cannot leave the question open and escape being overrun.

"IF I call a run of my club and ride down to meet you on Sunday will there be any objection?" said the Captain of a suburban club to me, the other day. "Certainly not," said I, "we shall look upon it as a great compliment."

NOW I am well aware that my topic this week will have little interest for the readers at a distance from the Hub, and I beg that they will excuse me if I talk of nothing else. I consider this annual ladies' tour to be one of the grand institutions of American cycling. I believe these are the initial tours of a widely extended system of mixed runs, which will undoubtedly prevail in America at no distant day. I believe that cycling will do incalculable good for American women, and I do not question that the efforts we are now making to enlist the sympathies of our ladies in the grand sport, will have their reward in the results of the future. And so I am going to beg that you will be patient with me while I tell the ladies what we propose to do.

THE first day we shall meet at Malden. It is expected that those who live in Boston and those who come from a distance, will get their wheels to this place the day before. The ride of the first day is quite long, we must get away early, and we hope to begin the trip with fresh riders.

THOSE who get to the rendezvous early will be able to enjoy a half hour at the Converse Library and Art Gallery, where are many beautiful works of art, and many objects of interest.

WE start at 9.30 sharp. The tourmaster says he shall wait for no one. There will be pacemakers whom no one will be allowed to pass, and a rear guard who will look after the laggards. I believe we are to have a bugler, too, and a system of calls and signals.

WE are off now and we ride through Maplewood, Linden, Cliftondale, Saugus, Lynn, past High Rock, celebrated as the residence of Moll Pitcher, the witch of Lynn, through Swampscott, to Salem. At Salem we shall dine. In the afternoon comes our longest half-day ride, which ends at Gloucester. A pleasanter route one will rarely find than that which runs through Beverly, Beverly Farms, Manchester-by-the-Sea, and Gloucester. The autumn foliage will show forth its brightest colors at this time, and rainbow hues will glow from every rock-ribbed hill. There will be occasional glimpses of the ocean, the rocky shore, and the always-interesting lighthouses that stand sentinel on the coast. Mr. Davis, of the Pavilion, knows full well that we have good appetites, for he has catered for us before, and we can be sure of a well-supplied and well-served table.

AMERICA can boast no finer run than that around Cape Ann. It is hilly, and withal a difficult road to get over; but the surface is good, and one does not mind an occasional push up hill if the eye is continually engaged with scenes of delight, and the mind is filled with wonder at the entrancing sights and scenes. For this trip of seventeen miles, we shall take the entire day. Last year the party did not start till two o'clock, and they were back at the hotel at five. It was a run where the main object seemed to be to get it over with. And yet it was altogether delightful. How much better shall we enjoy it when we have time to visit the great granite quarries, the rocks at Pigeon Cove, and the many places of interest at Folly Cove, Lanesville, Annisquam, etc. One enthusiastic lady, last year, was so tired that she went supperless to bed. "I 'm all used up," she said; "and I must get to bed at once; but I don't regret the journey, and I 'm going to take a long night's rest, so I can have strength to go over the same route to-morrow. Oh, it was grand."

WE are going to lunch on the rocks. The ambulance will carry a hamper filled with good things, and there will be no trouble in finding a granite table and granite seats at Pigeon Cove. My word for it, we shall have a red-letter day in our lives.

BIDDING adieu to Cape Ann, we will, on the third day, run over to Magnolia and visit Rafe's Chasm, and look out upon Norman's Woe, where once: —

> " . . . was the wreck of the 'Hesperus,'
> In the midnight and the snow!
> Christ save us all from a death like this,
> On the reef of Norman's Woe."

STANDING on the rocks at Rafe's Chasm, we see the record of another tragedy in the iron cross erected to the memory of poor Martha Marvin, who was swept from these rocks by the cruel waves in the summer of 1879. Willow Cottage will open its hospitable doors and give us to eat. From Magnolia we go to Salem for the night. Let us hope that our dreams will be pleasant in this town of the witches. Our witches do not ride the broomstick. They prefer the wheel.

THE fourth day, we visit two of the most interesting and lovely places of the many such on the North Shore, — Marblehead and Nahant. I need only mention these names, I know, in order to convince my readers that much pleasure is in store for them. At Cape Ann we have nature in its grandest and its wildest aspect. At Marblehead and Nahant we see natural grandeur indeed, but art has come in to touch it here and there with beautiful gardens and rare specimens of architecture, in the midst of which Boston's merchant princes seek cooling breezes during the heated term. Who has not heard of Marblehead, where

> "Old Floyd Ireson, for his hard heart,
> Was tarred and feathered, and carried in a cart,
> By the women of Marblehead."

AND then we shall separate and ride to our respective homes. The Merrimac party will go northward, and the Providence people will hurry to Boston to catch a train; the Duke of Wellington will have had every lady in the party on his wheel, and we shall all be well acquainted with the oddities and idiosyncrasies that affect the individuals of the party, and we shall have gossiped about each other to our heart's content.

A PARTY of cyclers, such as this will be, forms a rare subject for those who like to study humanity. It brings together men and women of marked individuality. We find queer people in every degree of queerness. Their strong individuality makes them fit subjects for comment and for discussion. And yet there is no vinegar in such gossip, and while we talk about each other we do not forget that our subjects are worthy of our highest esteem. I wish that all gossip was as harmless and good-natured as that which will come out on such excursions as this.

WE are going to have a cart, — no, it is an ambulance. The ladies will not take their children along as I suggested; but if any unfortunate wrecks a wheel, she can take her place in the quadricycle. If foolish virgins are among the number, they may draw oil for their lamps from the vehicle, and if a nut needs tightening, a man will be there to do it. "Our Gideon" is going with us, but he will not be a rover this year, for Mrs. will claim very much of his attention. We need a wifeless man for the best attention.

Do you like the picture? Come with us, then, and drink in the delight. I have said nothing about the financial requirements. We have put all the business in the hands of the gentlemen. The ladies are not so good at this thing as the men are; they like to do it for us, and, bless them, they shall be gratified. If you are going with us, be sure and send your name to the committee, or to me at this office, and you will be made acquainted with all the details.

DAISIE.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THIS village of a million and a half has been so worked up over constitutional and other ratifications during the past week that cycling news is almost out of the question. To visitors from the South it may be announced, however, that the P. W. B. R. R., in competition with the Baltimore and Ohio, has made transportation of wheels free. It may be that this is but the entering wedge for free transportation over the entire Pennsylvania system.

THE Tryon race being off, the disgusted racing men who have trained for the same are anxious to get up a little scrub race between representatives of the teams, or, if possible, of whole teams, two clubs at a time. The whole trouble with the Pike authorities was their fear that so many men starting would cause some accidents, and if the teams had been limited to two or three from each club there would have been no indemnity clause in the permission. The boys, therefore, think that they may as well find out which is the best club for road racers by doing it in heats, as it were. The Pennsylvanians, particularly, seem anxious to have a bout with the Tiogas, but the latter cannot now turn out a full team, as the club surgeon — who, by the way, is about and all right again — was too much shaken up to get into form in any short time again, and one of his companions on the last disastrous trial run, has shown up as a bad case of flunk, and affirms a determination to ride the wily ordinary no more while safeties abound.

THE races at the State Fair on Wednesday were under the direction of Mr. H. B. Hart, and were successfully run off despite the fact that a large mudhole would have been better riding, if previously undisturbed, than was the track. Van Deusen, the Tioga Club's scorcher, made his first attempt at track work, and although by getting to work entirely too soon in the Novices' race, and by not picking his path, he allowed himself to be beaten by Fuller, of Vineland, in the mile open he showed up to much better advantage, easily defeating Pearson and Howell, of Millville, in the final spurt. Following is a summary of the races: —

One Third Mile Dash. — W. I. Wilhelm, Reading, 1; J. B. Pearson, Vineland, N. J., 2; H. D. Harding, Jr., Philadelphia, 3. Time, 1.19.

Two Third Mile Dash, for Novices. — A. L. Fuller, Vineland, N. J., 1; Isaac Van Deusen, Tioga Cycling Club, 2; W. I. Grubb, Pottstown, Pa., 3. Time, 2.54.

One Mile Dash Open. — Isaac Van Deusen, Tioga Club, 1; J. B. Pearson, Vineland, N. J., 2; Louis A. Howell, Millville, N. J., 3. Time, 2.51 1-2.

Between the heats there were a number of pony races. Wilhelm broke a strap of his Star in the mile open. Track soft and muddy, not assisted at all by the pony events.

THERE is considerable talk of a new cycling and athletic track at Wayne, Pa., on the line of the Lancaster Pike, of which I hope to give you full particulars next week.

PHACTO.

THE OWL.

REMOVED from contact of active club life for the past two months, I have to present to my readers this week nothing but the results of some cycling retrospection indulged during my absence. In comparing the racing men of the present, for instance, with those of former years, it has been a question with me whether there are any faster men to-day than there were four or five years ago, when the cycle racing of this country was in its infancy. Taking, for instance, such men as Pitman, Johnson, Stall, Frye, Corey, Claflin, and Midgley, who were all champions in their day, but who have long since retired, and compare them with the best men of to-day, such as Rowe, Hendee, Rhodes, DeBlois, Ives, Crocker, and Neilson; and from my point of view I think that the men of four or five years ago were as good, if not a better, set of athletes than those of to-day; and the racing men of 1887 are simply working under more favorable conditions, as regards better tracks, lighter wheels, and a more perfect knowledge of training. As one of the early wheelmen in this country, I remember a remark that Jack Prince make when he saw Stall and Fry do some good work in the Mechanics Fair Building in Boston. Said he: "You can hunt from one end of England to the other, or in this country if need be, and you won't find two riders who would develop into faster men than either Stall or Fry"; and no matter how much faith I may have in the present "shining light" of the American racing world, I believe that either Stall or Fry, when made to do their level best, would be his equal, if not his superior. Although a great many will speak lightly of the old "vet" (Will Pitman), I remember the day when he was "King of the Path," in fact, as well as title, and he could give the best of them a beating with ease; but, almost like every one else, he chased fortune too far until he lost it, and, as a result, he had to come from a first to a second-class man.

The same fickle fortune also defeated Llewelyn Johnson, who, under the name of Ixion, rode a 54-inch Harvard to victory time and time again. I can also remember when Johnson, Fry, and Stall were looked upon as three wonders, and a number verily believed them to be invincible.

Claflin, of the Massachusetts Club, was one of the best men of his day for anything under ten miles, and had a phenomenal spurt for the last quarter of a mile, a trick possessed by Rich, though for a much less distance. Honest Tom Midgley won the hearts of the spectators at Springfield by his genuine pluck in riding twenty miles against Hendee when he knew he would be beaten. They don't race that way nowadays. Of all the men who have been upon the track, Corey was probably the most sensible, in stopping after he had finished his record-breaking performances in Springfield in September, 1883. He dismounted from his machine at the finish of the ten-mile race, when he had smashed almost every record from one-mile to ten, and declared: "This is the last time I will ever get on a racing machine on a track," and he has faithfully kept his word, more 's the pity. I am not a pessimist, and yet I cannot help thinking that the like of long ago will not again be repeated in American wheeling. With these thoughts of long ago in my mind, I got to wondering what had become of all these old racing men, the Nestors of the American path, and after some inquiry, I have placed them as follows:

Pitman is engaged in the carpet business here in New York.

Johnson runs an extensive cycling agency in Orange, N. J., thus in a manner, remaining true to his first love.

Fry is a shoe manufacturer in Marlboro', Mass.

Stall is the New England agent for the Smith Machine Company, and handles the Star in Boston, thereby somewhat following Johnson's example of cycling constancy.

Midgley is the superintendent of a big wire mill in Bradford, Pa.

Corey, as everybody knows, is at the head of Messrs. Stoddard, Lovering, & Co's cycle department, who control the Rudge for the United States.

Claflin is interested in the electric lighting business, with his headquarters in Boston.

From what I know, prosperity seems to have smiled on them all, and I do not believe that any one of them regrets the experience they had in cycle racing, for although it may not have been very profitable, still a good pair of legs does not always win a race, but like everything else, the man with the coolest head and clearest brain, generally finds himself at the top of the heap.

CHICAGO.

PERHAPS the longest ride ever made within a day, other than racing, was that made by W. A. Davis and Frank Riggs, of the Illinois Club, on Sunday last. They left the club room at 3.10 A. M., to made the circuit of Elgin, Aurora, Plainfield, Joliet, Blue Island, Pullman, and back to the starting point in as short order as possible. The first twenty miles were made by moonlight in one hour and fifty minutes. The rain of Saturday afternoon left the road in bad condition between Chicago and Elgin, with only a slight improvement for the rest of the route. They got as far as Pullman by nightfall, and were feeling a little blue for fear they would have to walk the two miles at the lower end of Stony Island Avenue. Surprising to say, they made the trip from Pullman to the club room with only one dismount, and that at the usual place (Sand Hill). They cyclometered one hundred and fifty-six miles, and were on the road nineteen hours and forty minutes. Actual riding time fourteen hours and forty-eight minutes. Davis rode a 51-inch Star, and Riggs a 51-inch Columbia Light Roadster. Both men and wheels went through without an accident of any kind.

AN informal road race was run by the members of the Illinois Club, yesterday afternoon. It was for the purpose of selecting a team to represent the club in a team race to be contested at the C. A. A. A. grounds, on Oct. 1. So far it is not known who are the lucky three, but it is supposed that Riggs, Maas, and Bowbeer will comprise the team.

C. B. PIERCE has returned from his Eastern trip, and has accepted Maas's challenge for a ten-mile road race. Maas has shown his superiority over Pierce on more than one occasion, so we think there is no doubt of his winning this race. It will be run over the Owl Club course, Saturday afternoon, at five o'clock.

THE following item was clipped from a Madison (Wis.) daily paper: "Harry E. Loveday and Frank V. Newell, of Chicago, members of the Illinois Cycling Club, arrived in the city on their wheels yesterday, and will depart to-day for St. Paul, via Kilbourn City, the Dells, and La Crosse. Their machines attracted considerable attention at the Park yesterday, being made different and much stronger than the ordinary bicycles, and designed specially for long-distance riding. A novel attachment to one of the wheels shows exactly the number of miles travelled in a day."

The boys were mounted on ordinary Experts, and the novel attachment was a Lakin cyclometer. It has been a puzzle to us to know what kind of wheels are used in Madison; also, if these were the first Experts ever seen there.

COL. POPE was in the city one day last week. He looks much improved since his return from Yellowstone Park.

SPECTATOR.

JERSEY.

A SUNNY autumn afternoon, a breeze hardly more than gentle, a track in perfect condition, a well-arranged programme, fair fields of starters, the struggles of crack flyers, and the making of fast time, contributed to the success of the Orange Wanderers' race meeting at Roseville last Saturday. The attendance was the only feature that fell short of what was to be desired; yet some four or five hundred wheel enthusiasts were on the grand stand, and skirted the fence on the home stretch. The rival attractions of the athletic championship meeting at New York drew many of the regular bicycle tournament goers. Barring one or two delays caused by some necessary changes in the order of the programme, the races were run off with gratifying promptitude, and, greatly to the credit of the management, the track was kept clear of all but those who had duties to perform thereon, and the swarm of intruders so often seen at bicycle meetings was happily missed.

THE racing began with the one-mile novice race. As all of the ten entries responded, they were sent off in two heats.

First heat: Charles E. Van Vleck, Montclair; W. J. Mead, Brooklyn; T. L. Wilson, Brooklyn; E. P. Baggot, Jersey City; H. W. Fuller, Dennisville, N. J. The racers rode together until the back stretch of the last lap, when Baggot ran away from the rest, and won by ten yards; Wilson second. Time, 3.08 4-5.

Second heat: Harry Lamson, Nyack; Albert Doetschman, Nyack; T. D. Heyniger, Plainfield; W. D. Anderson, Jr., East Orange; J. T. Hall, Orange. Hall took a long lead in the second lap, but in the last Lamson went for him in earnest, and beat him at the tape by two yards in 3.11 2-5.

Third heat: Baggot, Wilson, Hall, Lamson. The men finished in the order named after a pretty race, Baggot beating Wilson by three yards. Time, 2.59.

A. C. JENKINS, W. H. Caldwell, J. C. Wetmore, and W. W. Chester, of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, had a mile race on roadster tandems just for the fun and glory of the thing. The teams raced together for two laps, when Caldwell and mate went to the front, and scooped the "glory," leaving Chester and partner twenty yards behind to enjoy the fun. Time, 3.30 3-5.

THE half-mile handicap brought out a big field of sprinters: C. E. Van Vleck, Montclair, (150 yards); J. T. Hall, Orange, (125 yards); T. L. Wilson, Brooklyn, (75 yards); W. E. Young, Dennisville, (75 yards); E. I. Halsted, New York, (50 yards); E. P. Baggot, Jersey City, (50 yards); H. J. Hall, Jr., Brooklyn, (40 yards); C. A. Stenken, Jersey City, (25 yards); W. E. Crist, Washington, D. C., (scratch). The race was a gift for Van Vleck, the limit man, as he won way off in 1.12 2-5, with Baggot second and Stenken third. Hall and Crist closed up on the neck in great shape, but failed to get through. Outside watches made Crist 1.16.

A 5.50 limit was set on the two mile races: H. J. Hall, Jr., Brooklyn; T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie; H. C. Burdick, Albany; W. E. Crist, Washington, D. C.

This was a splendid struggle, and resulted in a surprise to every one, most of all to Mr. Crist. Roberts took the lead, and made pace for a mile, which was done in 3.05. Things were going too slowly to get within the limit, so Crist rushed to the front at top speed. Hall and Burdick would not be left, and chased him like good fellows. On the last turn Burdick closed up rapidly, and entering the homestretch was even with Crist, with Hall at his little wheel. Down the stretch they flew, the Albany lad getting the verdict by two feet, from Crist, with Harry Hall close up, time, 5.51 2-5. Burdick is a good man, and can make the best of them show their paces. Handicappers will do well to keep their eyes on him in future.

Too liberal handicapping robbed the Orange Wanderers' mile race of its interest. W. L. Booth (100 yards) beat H. W. Smith (150 yards), easily and C. S. French (scratch) belonged with the limit men. Time, 3.05 3-5.

A 2.45 limit was set on the open mile race by way of discouragement to loafing. Crist, Halsted, Stenken, and Roberts were the starters. The Washington flyer was nettled at the surprise Burdick had given him, and tried the scratch, with blood in his eye. With the incentive of a special medal he was very ready to have a try at the best amateur race record of 2 30

Though the wind had gone down considerably there was far from a calm. In a private trial on Thursday under perfect conditions, he had made 2.35, so that there was a fine chance of his accomplishing his feat. Harry Hill held himself in readiness to make pace on the last laps. Crist dashed away as though he meant business from the start, turning the quarter pole in 40 4-5. Faster yet he raced the second quarter, in 38 2-5, making 1.19 1-5 for the half. The third quarter was done in 40 3-5 in 2. 2-5 for the three-quarters. With a grand final burst of speed that brought the audience to their feet he reeled off the last quarter in 37 4-5. The spectators watched the time board and had but a few minutes to wait before 2.38 1-5 was hung out, and they knew Sandy Sellers 2.39 was beaten. The Washingtonian received a hearty ovation as he rode down the stretch and dismounted. Nor were the other racers without glory, for outside watches credited Stenken with 2.41, and Halsted with 2.44 4-5. Such performances as these were a great tribute to a track which many claim to be the fastest in the world.

CRIST, HALL, and W. E. Young of Dennisville, N. J., started in the one-mile lap race. Crist allowed his friend Harry to take the first lap and then collared the other two and the prize in 3.1 3-5. Young was not in the limit.

THE half-mile dash brought out Young and Stenken, the latter winning as he pleased in 1.27.

THE two-mile handicap resulted in a close and well fought race. It had for starters: F. B. Hawkins, Brooklyn (300 yards); W. H. Caldwell, Elizabeth (300 yards); S. B. Bowman, Elizabeth (300 yards); E. C. Parker, New York (150 yards); T. W. Roberts, Poughkeepsie (825 yards); H. L. Burdick, Albany (125 yards; H. J. Hall, Brooklyn (125 yards); W. E. Crist, Washington (scratch). Hawkins gave up the fight after one lap, and Hall and Crist, though they rode finely and closed up the gaps rapidly, after a mile, decided the chase hopeless and dropped out. At two-thirds the distance the remaining five became bunched until the final spurt, when Burdick won, with Roberts second, Parker third, Caldwell fourth, and Bowman fifth, all well up. Time, 5.35. The Elizabeth wheelmen did very well, considering the fact that they were mounted on roadsters.

THE one-mile tandem handicap resulted in a fine, long, and successful chase by the scratch team. Wetmore and Chester were on the three hundred yard mark, Wilson and Stenken at one hundred and fifty yards, and Crist and Hall at scratch. The scratch men had a big task set on them, and they went at it in a way that drew forth rounds of applause. The limit men dug away for all they were worth, but the flying Humber pair overhauled them rapidly and caught them at the beginning of the homestretch. It was very easy riding for them after that, and they won by three seconds in 2.52, beating the best record for the track by six seconds. Wilson and Stenken were on a strange roadster, which they failed to master, and gave up after a lap's struggle.

HALSTEAD won the consolation as he pleased, with Parker second and Anderson third.

THE intentions of the handicapper were good, and if he erred in giving the start men too much, he certainly erred on the right side. So many handicap races have been won by the back-mark men, that the lesser lights of the path were beginning to stay out.

I LEARNED a great many things at the meeting. Burdick is no longer a coming man, for he has got there already. Baggot's perseverance has at last taken him out of the ranks of the novices. Harry Hall and Charley Stenken are both in perfect shape, and going faster than ever. Look out for the Irvington-Milburn record to be beaten at the race on Election Day. Crist is the champion amateur, and the Roseville track has no superior. Halstead has proved to his scoffing friend that he can beat 2.52. Caldwell had better look out for his clubmate, Bowman, or he will hold the bronze Mercury statue no longer. Both of them should have racers to give them a fair show in the contests.

CAPTAIN MARTIN, of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, found it impossible to withdraw his resignation as captain, and a successor was reluctantly elected. S. J. Berry, Jr., won the place by his well-deserved popularity.

MICHIGAN.

COLDWATER. — Representative C. A. Conover and Mr. H. W. Parker, two of Coldwater's most active wheelmen, have left the ranks of the singly blessed. The wily agent will now be seen exhibiting the beauties of the tandem.

DETROIT. — The question has been decided as to whether the entry list to the one-mile State championship should be opened again or not. The list is now open, and besides the original entries those wishing to enter are at liberty to do so. This race will take place on second day of the meet, Saturday, Oct. 1, at 4 P. M.

THE Detroit Club boys are outdoing themselves in the way of medals for the races on Sept. 30 and Oct. 1, three of the first-prize medals are to be studded with small but genuine diamonds.

HAVE just received a circular of the East Saginaw Club's races, which take place to-morrow. A special feature is a team race between the East Saginaw Bicycle Club and Detroit Bicycle Club. The East Saginaws are at present champions of the State; the Detroits, however, think it should belong here, and to prove it their team will be present. The Detroit team consists of Messrs. Peck Spranger, and Lane.

THIS team race is becoming quite interesting. I is a three-cornered fight, there being three teams,

THE NEW MAIL!

Nashville, Tenn., July 28, 1887.

Messrs. WILLIAM READ & SONS, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen,—I mailed you an afternoon paper, to-day, announcing our return from the Canada tour. Thinking you would be interested in our trip prompts me to write this letter. We left here July 4th, and I wheeled the entire distance from here to Niagara Falls and into Canada. Went by Louisville, Frankfort, Georgetown, Ky., Cincinnati, Hamilton, Dayton, Marion, Cleveland, O., Erie, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y. to Falls. Entire distance by Butcher Cyclometer, 862 1-4 miles. Also rode 183 miles on the New Mail before, making 1,045 miles. You must know we had some terribly rough roads on our trip; over 100 miles rough dirt road in northern Ohio, rough, old worn-out pikes in Kentucky, plank roads, sand roads, tow paths, water-washed side paths, rutty hard, dried clay roads; in fact, every kind of road you could call for.

The New Mail cost me exactly five cents for one quart of benzine for cleaning. We had a little over twelve riding days, making over 70 miles average. Entire time to Falls, nineteen and one half days; stopping in all large cities. The Ball Head worked perfectly, and I consider it the greatest improvement.

Yours truly, ED. D. FISHER.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Our NEW MAIL, though its first year, has been a PERFECT SUCCESS, and has had an EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND. We have been behind orders since the opening of the season till hot weather set in. Now, as the most active bicycle season is past, though the best riding weather is in the autumn, we have decided to offer for a short time only a few of these SUPERB NEW MAILS in exchange for others. This we have persistently refused to do heretofore, as the demand was so great. Wheelmen desiring to exchange their present old mounts for a

NEW MAIL, WITH TRIGWELL BALL HEAD AND PERFECTION BACKBONE,

will please give us a description of the old wheel and their estimate of value. This offer is for no length of time, as we do not care to place many in this way. Address

WM. READ & SONS,

East Saginaw, Adrian, Detroit, who claim the championship. The Detroit team have been vanquished by East Saginaw, and in turn have vanquished Adrian. Whatever the result is at East Saginaw, the three teams will meet at Detroit on first day of races, and the championship decided for this season. Why do we not hear from Grand Rapids with a representative team?

GRAND RAPIDS.—The Grand Rapids Club received a call from the Newaygo Bicycle Club, Sept. 4. The Stevens Bicycle Club of Grand Rapids, though composed of the younger wheelmen of the city, are growing rapidly. The Grand Rapids Bicycle Club will entertain Thomas Stevens on his lecturing there for the Y. M. C. A. star course, this winter. They are now providing themselves with elegant club rooms for the non-riding season.

IONIA.—The bicycle fever has broken out in this town. A club of ten members has been formed, and a light gray uniform adopted. Hal. Montgomery intends making a trip to Detroit, next week.

ST. JOHNS.—The St. Johns Club will attend the fair at Ithaca on Sept. 29, and their band will furnish the music for the occasion. Many skeptics think that this band is a myth, and does not exist in reality; but Bob Steel emphatically declares that this is not so, and that it is a live, Fourth-of-July brass band.

WILLIAMSTON.—Rev. Jno. Claflin and E. W. Andrews, editor of the Enterprise, are the enthusiasts at this place. Rev. Mr. Claflin is at present on a trip in New York State. MICH.

ARIEL WHEEL CLUB ROAD RECORDS.

AT a meeting of the Ariel Wheel Club of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., held the first part of this year, it was decided to establish 12 and 24 hours club road records, the conditions being that at least 75 miles must be ridden in the 12 hours, and 125 in the 24 hours, and over a straightaway course at least 10 miles long.

Elegant gold medals were made to be competed for, and given to the man beating the best previous record until the first of January, 1888, when they shall become the property of the ones then holding them For several months, even when good riding offered an opportunity for the making of records, no one attempted them, one member apparently afraid of another; but at last, on August 10, Messrs. T. W. Roberts and F. St. John started, the former for the 24 hours record, and the latter for the 12 hours.

They started at 6.15 A. M., and, having a strong headwind, they only rode enough miles to take the badges, Roberts making 126 3-4 miles, and St. John, 76 1-2 miles. Roberts' actual riding time was 12 1-2 hours, and St John's, 6 hours and 55 minutes.

The ball having been started rolling, it was no trouble to keep it going, and on August 12 Mr. G. L. Sterling started for both records, leaving this city at 4 P. M., making 110 3-4 miles for the 12 hours record, 10 hours and 50 minutes actual riding time; and 160 3-4 miles for the 24 hours record; actual riding time, 15 hours and ten minutes. The badges were then allowed to rest there until last Friday, when, at twelve o'clock midnight, Mr. H. Von der Linden started for the 12 hours record, and Mr. F. St. John for the 24 hours. It was raining quite hard at the time, but having made all preparations, they would not let that bother them, and after about three hours it stopped raining. They continued riding, Mr. Von der Linden making 128 9-16 miles for the 12 hours record in 11 1-4 hours, and St. John making 193 1-4 miles for the 24 hours record in 18 1-2 hours.

How long these will stand as our club records is hard to say, for some member will undoubtedly go for them before long.

A NOVEL suit and cross-suit have begun in Millville, which will interest all the bicycle riders in the State. Last week S. B. Steelman, a contractor residing in Millville, was at Pitman Grove riding his bicycle, when he met the Glassboro stage. The horses became frightened at the bicycle and ran away, upsetting the stage and wrecking the innocent cause of their fright. The owner entered suit for damages and Steelman has begun a cross-suit, calling on the League of American Wheelmen to sustain him.—Plainfield News.

AN ILDERAN TOUR.

MESSRS. SHEFFIELD and Bradley, of the Ilderans, Brooklyn, N. Y., have just returned from a delightful two weeks' tour of over 375 miles. Barring one accident, which shortened the trip two days, everything ran smoothly.

Starting from Newark, they wheeled across the mountains of Northern New Jersey. From Morristown they wheeled, or rather walked, amidst beautiful scenery to the Delaware Water Gap. Between those two points it was impossible to travel more than four and a half miles per hour on account of heavy grades and poor surfaces.

After visiting all the principal points at the Gap, the most suggestive although not most prominent being "Lover's Retreat," they wheeled along the famous Delaware river road to Milford, where our genial host Crossman took us in charge.

Frank rides a wheel himself. We were shown some records made here by Halstead of the Harlems, one being from Milford to Point Jervis (seven and a half miles) in twenty five minutes and forty seconds. From Milford, fine wheeling was found through Orange County by way of Middleton and Montgomery to Newburgh.

Crossing the Hudson to Fishkill, Poughkeepsie was soon reached over sand-papered roads. Here we were most hospitably entertained by the Poughkeepsie Bi. Club for a whole day.

Thanks are especially due to Messrs. Ostrander and Sterling, as well as several others, who escorted us for a ways up the road.

Mr. Stewart kindly introduced us to his uncle's watermelon patch. The boys are all working hard in the interest of the race meet to be held October 1. Judging from the elegant and costly prizes offered, they should have a large and prominent field of entries. We wish them success.

From Poughkeepsie to Blue Stores, Post Road was followed, where, instead of turning left, the following was found good, and recommend it, as it avoids the clay in vicinity of Hudson. Keep on Post Road, through Johnstown, to Cloverack, where in village take road to right of that which has sign reading, "Hudson, four miles." Hold same to brick Tavern, a large, red brick building, where turn left into Post Road, seven miles from Kinderhook.

At Albany we were taken in hand by W. Honig, secretary of the Albany Bi. Club, and were shown many courtesies. They have an elegant and roomy clubhouse.

Leaving Albany for Saratoga we encountered our hardest afternoon's ride, the roads being very heavy and rain falling every few minutes. Although being compelled to do Saratoga on foot, we enjoyed ourselves immensely. The roads were vile, it having rained heavily all night. From here we trained to Caldwell, sailed up the indescribably beautiful Lake George, and crossing into Vermont by way of Ticonderoga, our last lap was begun for Troy.

Starting at a scorching pace, in order to get warm, we gradually wheel South. When Granville, N. Y., was being approached, the first unfortunate accident occurred. While coasting a long hill into the town Sheffield took a bad header, spraining his ankle. From here, eighty miles from Troy, we were compelled to train it, and take the night boat for New York.

We also desire to extend our thanks to the Troy Bi. Club for courtesies shown us.

CALLIOPE WHISTLES.

EDITOR BULLETIN.—Unusually I regard your answers to questions as embodiments of sound judgment and common sense. Your reply to question No. 88, Sept. 9, 1887, might, it seems to me, have also included some cautionary suggestions. I refer to the use by wheelmen of the calliope whistles adopted by the police in many cities. Aside from the inconvenience of discussing legal propositions with policemen acting under orders, the necessities of the case absolutely require that no one else should use what is liable to be at any time a life and death signal.

A patrolman on his beat, the officer surrounded and outnumbered, a fire, explosion, or accident of any kind, secures the speediest possible relief by the aid of that whistle, which I have long regretted to see in the hands of many persons who might thoughtlessly inflict serious damage, or get themselves into trouble by its use.

It may be that no penalty might be enforcible for the possession of a calliope whistle, but I should very much dislike to take the consequences of sounding a police call on that or any other kind of whistle.

The advantages to be gained by the use of the aforesaid musical instrument do not in any way compensate for the harm it is capable of doing, and I believe that a police regulation forbidding its use would be quite constitutional.

For these reasons I have opposed the use of the police whistle, or calliope, from the beginning, and do still, and think that the fewer such nuisances wheelmen adopt the less antipathy they will raise amongst an otherwise friendly branch of government.

CELEBRATE THE LIBERTY BILL.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—I think the scheme of your Jersey correspondent in last week's BULLETIN is one that deserves consideration, viz: The holding of a parade in Central Park to celebrate the "Liberty Bill," to be participated in by the wheelmen of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City, etc., etc. I think that this ought to be carried out, and the proper persons stirred up to make the thing a success. It ought to be an easy matter to get from twelve to fifteen hundred wheelmen in line, and I feel sure that if this is brought before the riders they will all approve it. I heard several approve of it yesterday, when I was in the Park. No. 13,080.

CHICAGO RECORDS.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—In the BULLETIN of Sept. 9, "Spectator" says, by implication, that Messrs. Hosford, Randall, Diedrich, and Greenleaf, who rode from Chicago to Elgin and back, did not make a hundred miles. Perhaps "Spectator" never thought of their completing a century on the boulevards, as these gentlemen undoubtedly did.

Since "Spectator" is so exact, why does he not mention that Riggs, who won the mile race at the Chicago A. A. A. grounds, had one hundred yards start from Winship, who came in second?

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. THE contestants in the Chicago-Boston road race will start from Boston and finish at Chicago. Good for Chicago, but bad for Boston.

LIEUT. ROTHE writes that he has not retired from cycling, but has had to give up club duties. So long as he can ride, will his wheel be retained.

A SMALL list this week, — 44. It gives us a total membership of 11,412. On October 1 the new rate of $1.25 comes on, and for this many are waiting.

THE Ivel tricycle on which Mills broke the record weighs thirty-three pounds, and had a 63-inch gear. Waterhouse's safety weighed and was geared the same.

MESSRS. HUNTINGTON and Collister, the tandem team of Cleveland, are now getting in trim for an attempt on the twenty-four hour Safety bicycle record.

WM. WOOD, of North Shields, defeated Richard Howell in a race for the twenty-mile professional championship at North Shields, Sept. 3. Time, 1.4.57.

PHYSICIANS say that drinking large quantities of water will produce fat. All right; we'll stick to water. Let some one else try beer, and see if they'll get thin.

BERLO went down to Attleboro and won the following prizes: A watch, cane, umbrella, shaving set, and opera glasses. Berlo is now fully equipped for dudeship.

THE Dryden (N. Y.,) Agricultural Society offers gold and silver medals for a one mile amateur bicycle race, to be run the last day of its annual fair, September 29.

IF Hicks had been at the Attleboro races he would have seen the flying start in all its glory. The wheelmen saw the horse-racing, and there were few converts to the gospel of Hicks.

THE third quarter begins October 1. On and after that day the League dues will be twenty-five cents to January 1, and applicants will be called upon for but $1.25.

NEXT week come the yacht races. If the clerk of the weather will send all his spare wind to New York, and keep it off the roads, both yachtsmen and cyclers will be well satisfied.

THE popularity among wheelmen of the Anchor inn at Ripley, Eng., is evidenced by the visitor's book. C. W. Nairn reports that he signed the 5,638th entry since Jan. 1, on Sept. 1, last.

THE experiences of Attleboro teach us that it does n't pay to put cycle races on to a track that has been in use for horse racing and polo playing for three days. But we knew that before.

THE Pittsburg cyclers bestow upon their city the title of the "City of Natural Gas." The hardihood displayed is wonderful. Just think of the opportunity they give to a man who wants to be funny.

THE Springfield Roadster is acquiring a good reputation as a hill climber. Those who ride it say that they climb hills they never climbed before, and those who always climbed now climb the more.

THE K. C. W., of Brooklyn, have introduced a new idea. They now wear service stripes, — a silver stripe on sleeve, running from seam to seam, for three years' service, and a gold stripe for five years.

MR. T. H. LAMBERT, of Humber & Co., arrived in New York, from London, Thursday of last week. Mr. Lambert is well known among American bicyclists, having accompanied Furnival on his visit to America in 1885.

TEMPLE and Maltby, the champion trick riders, who are now in England, will contest to see which one shall wear the title alone. Let's see! Canary won that title once, and the man who wears it should take it from him.

HILLIER calls Kron's book "the autobiography of a singularly self-sufficient mediocrity." And now Karl should write a spicy review of Hillier's book on "Cycling." We do not doubt he could give us an interesting chapter.

F. R. OSMOND, one of England's crack riders, has announced his intention of trying to cut the records held by W. A. Rowe. That 's right, Rowe wants something to do, and would like to put the figures a notch or two higher.

THE Lynn Club bids fair to have ' all the colors of the rainbow." A set won by them July 4 is on exhibition in a Lynn shop window, and they captured still another set at Attleboro. Hunter, Whitten, and Barnett make a strong team.

THE race for the Missouri Club's season mileage prize is getting hot. Capt. Brewster is ahead so far, with about three thousand miles to his credit, E. A. Smith is next, three or four hundred miles behind, and Alex Lewis behind him.

OUR correspondent "Jer. C." suggested a celebration in honor of the "Liberty Bill," and the idea has been taken up and discussed with a good deal of fervor in New York. The boys want to carry out the idea in a creditable way.

THE Pittsburg, Pa., races are down for next Thursday, the 29th. They are to be run on the first day of the Inter State Fair. The wheelmen of the associated clubs have the arrangements in hand, and will make matters pleasant for visitors.

COTTAGE CITY would like to have the annual meet next year. We are to get an invitation from the islanders, for they have seen Massachusetts cyclers, and now they want the whole country. Baltimore will not the only place that wants us after all.

PUT pure olive oil into a clear glass bottle with strips of sheet lead and expose it to the sun for two or three weeks, then pour off the clear oil and the result is a lubricant which will neither gum nor corrode. It is used for watches and fine machinery of all kinds.

AT the semi-annual meeting of the Norwalk (Conn.) Wheel Club, held Thursday evening, Sept. 15, the following officers were elected: President, E. M. Jackson; vice-president, C. E. Miller; secretary, J. A. Ambler; treasurer, O. B. Jackson; captain, R. G. Hanford.

WE have lost "Phœnix." Pressure of business has forced him to abandon all his cycling correspondence. We regret the loss, for we always felt sure of something good from his pen, and St. Louis has had an able representative. His successor will get to work at once.

THE New York Wheel publishes a picture of the club house which will be built for the New York Bicycle Club. It adds one more to the array of fine club houses that New York wheelmen are building. In this particular, as in several others, the Empire State is at the head.

THE fastest times to date, for the gold and silver medals offered for the best bicycling records on the Queen's, Long Island, bicycle track are one mile. G. E. Todd, Brooklyn Bicycle Club, 3.19 1-2; and quarter mile, Newton F. Waters, same club, 47s. The final trials take place on Saturday.

THEY are trying to get up a race meeting on a rather novel plan down in New Jersey. The Roseville Track Association proposes to issue shares in the enterprise at one dollar each, to the amount of $800, each holder to receive four admission tickets for each share held, and a proportion of the profits.

THE Ottawa (Kan.) Wheelmen will hold a race meeting Sept. 29 and 30. The mile and half-mile State Championships will be run, together with other interesting events. On the evening of the 29th a ball and banquet will be given in honor of visiting wheelmen. Entries, to W. C. Bradley, close September 28.

ELMER E. SUMMEY is using his wheel to good effect in his business. A solicitor for a horticultural firm, he has occasion to call on the farmers and fruit growers, and his wheel allows him to do this easily and inexpensively. He came last week from New York to Boston by way of Connecticut, and will go north through New Hampshire and Vermont to New York State, pursuing his business en route.

THE Welshmen are receiving the American team with widely open arms. At Swansea, the Mayor and leading citizens met them at the depot and escorted them to their hotel with a brass band. A large crowd gathered about the hotel in the evening, and Morgan had to go out and make a speech to them from the hotel balcony.

THE Prince of Wales is sorely exercised about his increasing weight, and would sign a big check if, by doing so, he could regain the waist he was so proud of twenty years ago. Perhaps this may account for the fact that his royal highness was, morning and evening, to be seen on the roads of Homburg, laboriously propelling himself about on a tricycle. — London Paper.

AMERICANS are decidedly a go-a-head people. Quite recently two called upon us to get information about the Killarney route, and they informed us that they and two others had taken a fancy to tour in Great Britain, and that they had purchased four Apollo Safeties, learned to ride them, and started forthwith. They were loud in their praises of cycling. — Irish Cyclist.

THE hoodlum element on wheels is increasing to an alarming extent in and about Boston, if we can judge by some of the exhibitions of rowdyism at the Reservoir on Sundays. League officials would do the cause good service if they would call the attention of the police to the abuses out there, and ask for a suppression of them.

IN order to do away with rusty spots upon nickelled parts, rub them well in with some greasy matter, and clean them well after a couple days with some ammoniac. If this has not the desired effect, put then upon the spot, but upon the spot only, a drop of muriatic acid, and clean it well immediately after. Next wash the articles well in clean water, dry and polish with tripoli or some such substance.

THE stockholders of the Lynn Cycle Track Association held a meeting last week for the purpose of taking into consideration the matter of the failure of that association. The situation was discussed at a considerable length, and it was the sentiment of all that the association should pay the creditors dollar for dollar, instead of so much per cent, providing they could ever make it, and the creditors were willing to give them time.

AN English justice of the peace was recently fined for assaulting a bicycler. Commenting on the affair, a local paper states: "We trust that this decision, with others of recent date, will become widely known, in order that the bullies of the highway, whether justices of the peace or carters, may realize that a man who mounts a bicycle does not thereby forfeit the rights of citizenship, and become an Ishmael, against whom every man's hand may be turned.

THE Edinburgh Evening News says: "The latest notion for steam tricycles is a silver boiler heated by petroleum, or rather a cylinder of aluminium bronze, on account of its enormous tensile strength, with conducting plates of silver — the heat-conducting power of the latter metal being very high." A new vista of delight is here opened up before the gaze of the "respectably dressed young man," and the shekels which will accrue to him through the judicious "melting" of the silver boiler and plates will be many — provided he does n't get blown up."

THE annual 24-hour road race of the North Road Club of England was contested September 3. G. P. Mills added another record to his remarkable list on this occasion, making 266 3-4 miles on an Ivel tricycle, and taking the record. Tinsley Waterhouse rode 270 miles on an Ivel safety, and D. Belding made the best record on an ordinary, 247 3-4 miles.

A LEATHER button, bearing on its front the figures "1679," has been made and distributed among the members of the party from Providence and the Boston escort who arrested the man at Wellesley, and put him through court at an expense to him of $16.79. The inscription is all right, but why didn't they have it on a flask? Every member of the order is proud of his button, and every member will have an excuse to tell the story when he is asked, "What does that mean?"

THE Omaha wheelmen, reinforced by the Council Bluffs Ramblers and a delegation from Plattsmouth, gave an illuminated parade at Omaha, September 7. One hundred gayly illuminated wheels were in line, including a tandem, ridden by Messrs. Coombe and Joliffe, that was very skilfully decorated. After the parade, on invitation of Messrs. Clarke and Moulton, chief and local consuls respectively of the L. A. W., the wheelmen partook of refreshments at the St. Cloud.

W. E. DENSLOW, of Quincy, Mass., met with a serious accident on Carroll's Hill, Middle Street, East Weymouth, Sunday afternoon. In some way not yet ascertained, he took a header on the hill. He was discovered by the people living in the vicinity, and removed to the residence of John Nolan. Dr. G. W. Fay was called and made every effort to restore consciousness. In this he was not successful till near midnight, and then the patient was unable to give an account of himself.

ON Sunday, September 11, a man giving his name as H. Short rented a Rudge Safety of C. A. Ward, Lockport, N. Y., and up to date he has not returned it. The police are looking for him. He was 5 ft. 8 in. tall, had reddish hair, curling close to his head, and was much freckled. He wore a brown checked suit. Mr. Ward thinks he is the same man who victimized the Troy Club, for he left a pair of cuff buttons marked "T," which are thought to belong to Captain Thiessen. Here is a man to be looked out for.

A VERY pretty programme comes to us of the race meeting at Bay City, Mich., on Oct. 5. The whole week will be given by the citizens of Bay City to the soldier's and sailor's encampment, and the bicycle races are down on the programme. Eleven races will be run including the three-mile State Championship; there will be a parade, banquet, concert, and lantern parade. W. P. Walter is secretary and will receive entries.

LAST Sunday, Sept. 13, a party of twenty members of the Lynn Wheel Club rode to Brookline to see Shurman "do" Corey Hill, and this is the way he did it. Mounted on Mr. McCune's ordinary Springfield Roadster, he rode straight up the hill, coasted down the back side, turned around, rode up to the top; turning here again he coasted down once more on the back side of the hill. This was somewhat of a feat, and the men who went to see it came away with large ideas of the hill-climbing qualities of the Springfield Roadster and the pluck of Mr. Shurman. The machine used was the ordinary roadster, geared to the standard power.—Bicycling World.

THE American Bicycle team has for the past three months raced against British riders at least twice each week, and has won over thirty first prizes, seventeen seconds, two dead heats, and unplaced only three times (in handicaps). Some people of refractory memory have been uncharitable enough to charge us with not being representative American riders during a spell of sickness by which Woodside lost several races, but we wonder what they will say now, when little Temple, of Chicago, offers any man in Great Britain, but Howell, ten yards in a mile, and offers to take in Howell on even terms, for $250, Woodside at the same time offering to take in any English rider a ten-mile lap race.—W. J. Morgan, in Lynn Bee.

TESTIMONY is being taken at Providence in the case of the Pope Manufacturing Company, of Boston, against the Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company, of Chicago. Attorney Coburn, of Chicago, appears for the complainant, and Attorney Offield, of Chicago, for the defendants. The case is in regard to the making of the anti-friction ball bearings. The defendants claim that they purchased the patent from John Smith, a police officer of Fall River, who obtained letters patent for it. The complainants claim that the axles are being made according to their own patent. A large number of witnesses have been examined from St. Louis, Chicago, Providence, Boston, and other places.

AN elderly gentleman of violent—well, let us say excitability, and a certain idea of carrying military rule into the bosom of his family, has foresworn his customary cycling exercise during the late terrible condition of the roads. The other day, one of his undutiful daughters was heard to express herself with joy. "Just fancy! papa has taken to riding again! he told me to get out his tricycle this morning, and started off for a ride on it. Isn't it a blessing? Now his temper will be bearable again once more; he's quite nice when he has plenty of cycling.—News.

Readers are warned not to show this to their wives if they have such luxuries. It may be that they will draw forth the remark, "Why don't you ride more, my dear?"

A CORRESPONDENT of the C. T. C. Gazette writes as follows: "To those of your readers who find their saddles uncomfortable, especially for long rides, let me recommend the following plan, which I have found very successful: "Procure from a saddler (price 1s. 2d.) a square foot of the thickest felt, such as is used for making 'humnahs' for placing under saddles for horses (I would suggest the darkest shade). Place this, just as it is, on the saddle, and secure it by a short strap passing over it, and under or through the saddle springs. I am over thirteen stone, and forty-six years of age, yet rode, a few days ago, with perfect ease and comfort, on a tricycle with my saddle so covered, sixty-four miles in a day, against a strong wind and under a hot sun. It improves with use."

THE attempt to introduce tricycles into the Austrian postal service has been but short lived, as, according to the Sewing Machine and Cycle News, the experiment has been a complete failure. It seems that machines were obtained from two Vienna firms on trial. The tricycle supplied by the first were designed apparently by an artillerist, who, in a matter of wheels, could not divest his mind of those of a gun-carriage; consequently, the unfortunate postman mounted thereon was wont to find himself used up before his journey was half over. The other machines erred in the other extreme, being of such a light and fragile character that they were constantly in need of repair. Under these circumstances the postal authorities have decided to discontinue the experiment. It may be remarked, by the way, that the postmen engaged on these machines were about to urge their claims to higher wages, on the ground that the unusual exercise rendered them incessantly hungry!

IN the last road championship, we saw demonstrated the superiority of the safety over the ordinary bicycle, and in England, too, the superiority of the smaller mount has been frequently shown in road races, and especially in long-distance races. We may thus take it that the same pace at least may be got out of a safety as out of an ordinary, and with less risk. The appearance is in favor of the ordinary, distinctly, and, without going into a long dissertation on their relative merits, there is one point on which purchasers, when choosing between the two, do not much trouble themselves about,—that is the probable life of each type of machine. It is my firm conviction that the ordinary will stand incomparably more riding than the safety. We seldom hear of a tricycle on which ten thousand miles have been ridden, and the machine still in good order. Yet this distance has been often doubled, and even trebled, by bicycles, which still seems fit for a few more thousands of miles. It seems to me that the complications of machinery in a tricycle brings it, figuratively speaking, to an early grave; while the simplicity of the bicycle prolongs its life. As with the tricycle, so with the safety. The additional strain on the wheels owing to their smallness, and the continual wearing caused by the chain, is bound to tell, and this leads me to the conclusion that an ordinary will outlast a safety.—Scottish Athletic Journal.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

ACCOMPANIED by Messrs. Fuller, Demarest, and Ackerson, of the Brooklyn B. Club, I have just returned from a week's outing among the hills and valleys of Penna., New York, and New Jersey, starting from the Delaware Water Gap, and proceeding by a circuitous route of about three hundred miles to New York City. Train was taken to the Water Gap, from whence the start awheel was made at 3 P. M., September 10, from the Kittittinny House, and the following days of the tour were a succession of enjoyment of wild and most picturesque scenery, good roads, and most satisfactory hotel accommodations. This latter feature was a pleasant surprise. We had started with the intention of testing the League's hotel system, and in every case stopped at the recognized headquarters, and the result was beyond our expectations. In only one single instance did we receive poor accommodation, and this was at a place not regularly appointed, and where we were compelled to stop from necessity. As the trip was in a measure experimental, to convince those who regard touring as an expensive luxury, to be indulged in only by the wealthy, I will briefly summarize the trip and the necessary expenses, as defrayed by the treasurer.

The first twelve miles from the Water Gap to Bushkill, generally regarded as very poor riding, were found to be good, no dismounts being necessary on account of surface, and but few for hills, which are plentiful, and oftentimes of very steep grade. After climbing the steep ascent out from Bushkill the roads to Dingmans are as near perfection as it is possible to have them, the grades moderate, and the ever-changing panorama of the valley and river below, and the mountains beyond, bathed in the many colored rays of the setting sun and soft light of the afterglow, presenting a picture indescribably beautiful.

We arrived at the Bellevue Hotel, Dingmans just as the last faint rays of light were fading on the hill tops. The building is a small unpretentious structure, and the landlord still more unpretentious if possible. In fact, first appearances were very disappointing, but the good cheer that awaited us within soon dispelled all doubts for our comfort, and we heartily recommend all fellow tourists to tarry here. Here we met a wheelman from Philadelphia, one of those unsalted individuals who know everything, and who, in their own estimation are phenomenal riders. This one, according to his report, had covered twenty-five miles on the road in eighty minutes, and had frequently made the trip from Dingmans to Port Jervis, a good sixteen miles over the hills, in less than one hour. We did not tell him he was a prevaricator, but we thought so all the same. The visitor at Dingmans should not fail to climb back into the mountains and view the Silver Thread and High Falls, two beautiful cataracts falling over the solid rock of the mountain side about two hundred feet, and winding through a gorge as beautiful as the famous Watkins Glen. From Dingmans the roads continued as good to Port Jervis, and on up the valley to Cuddebackville nine miles above, where a turn to the right was made, the valley crossed, and a two and a half mile climb up the mountain followed. At the summit a cool mountain spring refreshed us for a sharp coast down the mountain to Otisville, and thence over hill and dale via Mt. Hope to Middletown, a busy little city where first-class accommodations were had at the Russell House. To Mr. H. C. Ogden, of this place, we are indebted for his courtesy and attention. The following day, heavy rain compelled training to Poughkeepsie in order to keep up to our schedule, thus the delightful ride up the Wallkill Valley was necessarily omitted, much to the regret of all.

At Poughkeepsie, the Morgan House was found most satisfactory in every particular, and the following morning, the rain having ceased, a start was made for Newburg and Highland Mills, thirty odd miles away over roads which, although usually A 1, were now a sea of sticky mud, making riding both difficult and dangerous. Highland Mills was reached at 6 P. M., and at the Highland Mills Hotel we were well taken care of. The next morning was spent in removing several pounds of hardened mud from the wheels, and a start was not made until after dinner, that the roads might receive the benefit of the morning sun. At two o'clock, we were in the saddle, and the good roads and beautiful scenery down the Ramapo Valley to Sloatsburgh was a delightful change from the toil of the previous day. At Sloatsburgh, we turned right and struck straight across the mountains via Ringwood and Hewitt to Greenwood Lake, expecting to find the toughest kind of roads and hills. To the contrary, however, the roads were, as a whole, good, in many places excellent, and the hills not over difficult. Greenwood Lake was disappointing. The scenery was tame in comparison to what we had seen or expected, and

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

(Each Applicant must give as references the names of two L. A. W. members or three reputable citizens.)

here at Brown's, now Cooper's, Hotel, we found the poorest accommodations met with on the trip. Next morning was spent in viewing the lake, and a pretty ride of nine miles brought us to Newfoundland, where we were served with an excellent dinner, and tourists are advised to run down here in preference to stopping over night at the lake. After dinner, the route lay down the Berkshire or Longwood Valley to Rockaway and Morristown. In this valley, scarce two hours from New York by rail, we saw some of the wildest and most beautiful scenery of the trip. The roads are from fair to good, the hill work not severe, and we wonder that the touring cycler does not more often stray this way.

From Morristown the route lay south over excellent shade roads via Bernardsville, Bedminster and Pluckamin to Somerville, where we put up at the County House, so well known to Philadelphia and New York Tourists. The riding hence, in all directions, is fine, and the afternoon was spent in taking in the famous river circuit. The following day saw us on the home stretch, passing New Brunswick and Metuchen to Perth Amboy, where friend Tiet, of the Hotel Central, did his best for us at dinner, after which we crossed Staten Island, and took the ferry to New York City. We were away eight days; wheeled two hundred and fifty odd miles, and trained about one hundred and fifty. The total necessary expenses per man, including railroad fares, ferriages, hotel bills, one night at theatre, and photograph of the party was $21.03. We saved on League discounts at hotels en route, $3.05 per man, and received the best of treatment, rooms and food, and we believe the League is some good, if only for a weeks' touring in the year. We also believe that touring a-wheel is the only way we could have covered so much territory, seen so much, and had so much enjoyment for so little expenditure. If you want to be convinced, try it.

The one-quarter mile, and one-mile time record medals, offered by the proprietors of the track at Queens, were both won by G. E. D. Todd, of the Brooklyn Club. The competition finally got down to a duel between Valentine, the flyer of the K. C. W., and Todd, whose best record was 3.19, with Valentine 3.20 for the mile. Todd then suggested that Valentine and he start from scratch, and race for the medal, the winner to hold same, regardless of time. The result was that Todd beat Valentine handsomely, and captured both medals.

FRACTURES III.

Clavicle. — This bone is more often broken than any other, from the fact that it is the only bony connection between the upper extremity and the trunk, and through it all shocks which are received upon the shoulder or arm in an extended position are transmitted to the trunk. Such fractures are always oblique, and usually occur near the middle of the bone. When due to direct violence, the fracture is usually transverse and often comminuted and compound.

In oblique fracture, the outer fragment is displaced downward, inward, and backward behind the inner, which projects beneath the skin.

The shoulder falls forward, downward, and inward; and the patient sits with his head bent towards the injured side and supports the limb with the other hand.

Bring the elbow of the injured limb forward on the chest, and place the fingers on the opposite shoulder. Make a few turns with a bandage around the arm and carry it across the back and around the chest so as to press the lower part of the shoulder blade firmly against the back.

Then run a bandage from the uninjured shoulder along the forearm and bring it up over the back, so as to support the elbow and retain the forearm in position.

The arm. — The humerus may be broken in any part, and when the injury is near a joint its nature is often very obscure. When the fracture is near the middle of the bone, the signs are well marked. Reduce and flex the forearm at right angles across the chest. Place on the outer side a long right angular splint which shall extend from the shoulder to the elbow and wrist, and on the inner side a short splint extending from the armpit to the elbow. Support the forearm by a sling from the neck, and fasten the elbow to the side by a bandage around the body.

This will also answer for fracture near the shoulder joint.

Fracture of the lower end of the humerus may extend completely around the bone, or only a part be broken off.

When the entire lower end is broken, the bones of the forearm are displaced either forward or backward, depending on the direction of the fracture. Backward displacement closely resembles backward dislocation, and is distinguished from it by the fact that the displacement disappears upon straightening the forearm by the shortening of the arm, displacement and crepitus.

If only half of the lower end is broken off, the bones of the forearm may not be displaced, and crepitus is obtained, if the fracture is on the outer side by rotating the arm, and if on the inner by flexing it.

Reduce and bend the forearm at right angles to the arm, with the palm against the chest. Place an angular splint on the inner side of the arm and forearm, and support by a sling from the neck.

Forearm. — That portion of the ulna which forms the back part of the elbow is often broken by falls upon it, and, the upper fragment being drawn upward by the muscle at the back of the arm, causing wide displacement and loss of power to extend the forearm. Union takes place by means of fibrous tissue, as the fragments cannot be kept near enough together for bony union. Press the upper fragment down as far as possible, and bandage so as to retain it there; and keep the forearm straight by a splint on its anterior surface.

Fracture of both the bones is usually due to direct violence, and the displacement and other signs are well marked; but if only one is injured, the displacement is not marked, and care is often required to ascertain the nature of the injury. Bring the fragments into place, and apply broad, flat splints, which shall be long enough to reach to the fingers over the front and back of the forearm.

Fracture of the lower end of the radius is common, and occurs from falls on the palm of the hand. It is often impacted, the upper fragment being driven into the lower. The deformity is very marked, the lower fragment being driven upward and inward, carrying the wrist with it. Over the back and inner side of the wrist, the lower fragment projects, while in front a depression exists over the wrist, above which the upper fragment projects in a marked manner. The lower end of the ulna forms a prominence on the inner side of the wrist. When viewed from the side, the wrist has the shape of a fork similarly seen.

Bend the hand backward as far as you can, and try to press the lower fragment into place. This is often difficult, and sometimes impossible without an anesthetic. Then place two broad, flat splints over the back and front of the forearm, long enough to immobilize the fingers.

Fractures of the humerus and those near the elbow joint may be followed by paralysis of some of the muscles of the forearm, from injury to nerves which lie near the bones.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows:—

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

THE Los Angeles (Cal.) Wheelmen have recently moved into new quarters, and have also held their regular election of officers, with result as follows: President, H. C. E. Smith; vice-president, Dr. W. B. Percival; secretary-treasurer, A. E. Little; captain, F. E. Olds; first lieutenant, W. W. Downing; second lieutenant, D. L. Burke. Early next month they give an entertainment, which will include an elaborate programme of trick and fancy riding, with a phantom drill. Los Angeles is a very lively wheeling town.

A MUSICAL entertainment at Gloucester by members of the party will be a feature of the ladies' tour. There are several notable musicians who engage in these tours, and they will be able to make music.

"BEN" the cat of Bicycle Corner was run over last week by a buggy, and now he is an invalid. Ben does n't object to being run over by a cycle, but he is disgusted that a buggy should use him so.

APPLICANTS should send but $1.25 after this week.

THE New York Mercury is shocked to hear that our friend Shrivel is talking "Henry George" ideas to his cycling friends, and it fears that he will make converts. Let him alone, Mr. Mercury, till he makes an impression. Wheelmen are too busy just now for politics.

E. R. STOCKWELL, of 19 John Street, New York, is a maker of medals for clubs, and for racing events. He has a large stock of samples and photos of his original designs which are on view for those who are looking for goods of this kind.

HENRY C. HASKELL, 18 John Street, New York, issues a beautiful catalogue of original designs in medals and trophies, made by himself, and furnished clubs and societies for competitions and insignia of office. It is a good thing to have for those who have such things to procure for clubs and race meetings, for in originality and beauty of design, as well as in quality of workmanship, the goods are desirable and the cost is moderate. Designs free upon request.

Gormully & Jeffery Mfg. Co., Chicago, Illinois.

Gentlemen,—Now, I want to stand up and "speak my piece" about the Light Champion. A certain firm, who turn out better advertisements than wheels, have been groaning much of late over the popularity of the Champion Cycles, and telling a credulous public that a good wheel cannot be sold under their prices; that a ball head has not been proven (!) better than a globe head, and other such stuff, always winding up with the phrase, "Let others try the experiment." Now I want to tell you that I have tried the experiment. I have tested it severely and I am more than satisfied. I emphatically echo the words and urge all who want a good wheel to "try the experiment." The Light Champion has now ceased to be an experiment with me, and is a settled fact. I had occasion to test its hill-climbing powers against a wheel sent out by the firm referred to above, and tho' I am not a strong rider, and the other man was, I ran right away from him. For ease of adjustment and for running qualities the Light Champion is unsurpassed and unequalled. Every man I have mounted on my 53-inch wheel has envied me the rams-horn handle-bars and the Cobblestone saddle, and has wondered at the marvellous lightness of the running qualities. As I wrote you once before, I used to ride an —— ——, but I have followed their advice and "tried the experiment," and am so well satisfied that I propose to keep on "trying the experiment." Tell Mr. Jeffery to stop inventing improvements, or he'll have a damage suit some day for inventing and selling a wheel that runs away with the rider.

Yours most sincerely,

BURT E. HOWARD.

Gentlemen. The record of my Expert Columbia is so good that I feel that you will be interested to learn about it I bought it in the spring of 1883, so that it is now in its fourth season. I took it to the City of Mexico and brought it back with me. I used it there over a year and have ridden it regularly ever since returning It has not yet cost me even a single cent for repairs and is still a staunch machine in first class running order.

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded Oct. 1, 1887.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

THE Owl wants to celebrate the close of the first decade of wheeling. The suggestion is a good one, and the veterans had better get to work. It will be a small company but all the merrier, and the more notable for that.

IF that bull and bicycle story comes up again we shall want an affidavit of its genuineness. It has been used in some ten or a dozen forms. They are all interesting, but it is about time to get a new basis.

LONG editorials are being penned on the question of the League's predicted attitude on the road racing question. The editors are telling what the League is going to do and then condemning the action. Setting up a man of straw and knocking it down. Wouldn't it be as well to wait?

A LADY and gentleman riding a tandem along the roadway at Chestnut Hill Reservoir were shouted after and jeered at by the hoodlum wheelmen at the rendezvous, on a recent Sunday. This thing is getting beyond endurance. When riders of the wheel cannot escape insult from wheelman it is time for the police to be called in.

APPLICANTS published this week will become members of the League October 14 and will go upon the quota of the States in reckoning the number of Representatives each State is entitled to in the Board of Officers, at the meeting to be held in New York, October 17. Chief Consuls will be duly notified and they are requested to send in appointments very early.

A RAPIDLY growing abuse is the custom of giving credit for entrance fees. Racing men very often forget to pay these little bills if they are left till the meeting is over. Cash down is the best policy.

THE idea of having a club tailor in every large city is finding favor with League members. It is claimed that club tailors should be appointed just as hotels are. Then the League can supply the cloth, pocket the profit, and let the member deal thereafter with his tailor.

THERE will be very few importers of wheels next year. America is going to make bicycles herself. There will always be a demand for English wheels but the great majority sold next year will be home made. The next step will be to use home material altogether. We can't do that yet.

THE annual run of the ladies to the North Shore takes place next week. This has become a cherished institution of New England cycling. The participants are men and women of mature years, they are strong riders, and the tours are always carried out to the satisfaction of all participants. It is a League tour, authorized by the Tourmaster. No pleasanter town is conducted under League auspices.

HERE is a wrinkle from the other side. The Midland Railway Company will allow cyclists to leave their machines in the cloak rooms for the moderate sum of 7s. 6d. per quarter, providing the rider travels daily on their line, or is a season ticket holder. This will allow wheelmen to ride to the train daily, or it will give city riders the opportunity to make a town five or ten miles out the starting place of a ride.

THE OWL.

DR. EMERY, of the Dorchester Club, has gone on a trip to St. Louis. Well, after the genial Doctor has partaken of the St. Louis wheelmen's well-known hospitality, and indulged in that romantic ride to the brewery, he will follow the example of his fellow-townsman, Kennedy Child, and return home a sadder Budweiser man.

[The Doctor did n't go, but we will let the Owl have his joke. — ED.]

IT seems like the approach of the millennium to read of prizes for a bicycle race being awarded at a turf exchange, as in the recent case of Memphis and Providence. This is carrying the war into Africa with a vengeance, when prizes for wheel races are distributed in the very home of the road-hog.

"VOLUNTEER checkers wanted" is the heading of an article in the Bicycling World last week. That's just what every Englishman wants just now, anything that will checker and let the "Thistle" win will suit them exactly. Speaking of the forthcoming contest between the "Volunteer" and the "Thistle," reminds me of the appropriation of the latter's name for a new racing wheel recently brought out by an English firm. They expect that thistle-down anything going, provided, of course, they can get a good man to volunteer to ride it for them.

FROM the West will no doubt arise a yell of delight when they learn of the dissension over the amateur law now being waged in our sister association, the N. A. A. A. A., and the affair will be used by these anti-amateurites to predict the beginning of the end, when there shall be nothing in our laws dividing the amateur from the professional. To such of us, however, as are accustomed to look below the surface of cycling for the causes of any of the ripples that occasionally pass across its placid face, it remains to us still a patent fact, that cycling owes its present greatness to the stringency of its amateur laws, and the vast majority of the members of the L. A. W. will not consent to any abrogation of so wise and beneficial an ordinance as this has proven itself.

THE sign on an old English inn reads as follows: —

"Good entertainment for all that passes — Horses, mares, men, and asses."

The last word is supposed to be a direct bid for the patronage of the old, original road-hog.

EVER increasing is the cry of misfits in regard to the new League uniform. The only way to remedy this, in my exalted opinion, is to abolish the position of "League outfitter," and supply members with the cloth and specifications for uniform, allowing each individual to get the suit made for him by his own tailor, then any errors are simply personal matters between the purchaser and the maker, and not, as at present, a cause for fault finding with one of the most efficient committees that the League has ever had.

MY retrospective article in last issue has brought to my mind an affair that has for some time been thought over, and which will, I know, meet with commendation and hearty support from every wheelman who cherishes a proper reverence for the glorious sport of which he is a disciple. The idea is this. I should like to see a reunion on the part of those eligible to the honor, in celebration of the decennial of American wheeling. The affair should most appropriately be held in Boston, the cradle of the sport in this country in its infancy, and the head of it in its prime. To such fathers of the sport as Messrs. Dalton, Pitman, Pope, Weston, Dean, Pratt, Hodges, and other veterans of like ilk, to whose energy, ability, and liberality is, beyond question, due the peerless prestige and prominence of cycling, outranking, as it does in these and numbers anything of the kind this country has ever seen. To the kind consideration and competent management of these gentlemen, do I entrust the proper management of the affair. While the time limit of ten years riding would cut me off from any active participation in the affair, yet would it afford me much pleasure to, in some way, testify my admiration and gratitude to those brave spirits to whom I, like fifty thousand other wheelmen in America, am indebted for the many happy moments spent in wheeling. I would like to suggest to those having the affair in charge, that it take the form of a reunion and banquet, to be held, as before stated, in Boston, at which should be organized an association of cycling veterans or alumni, to which in after years any rider should become eligible, providing he had ridden for not less than ten years. The mere existence of such an association in cycling would be of incalculable benefit to the sport. From the accumulative experience of such an organized body of cycling "graybeards" only wisdom could come, and the continued prosperity of the sport be preserved. This crude idea of mine, I therefore commend to the indulgent consideration of all who are proud of the greatness of wheeling, and who would, in consequence thereof, do honor to those whom they have to thank for our present greatness. To those eligible to the high honor of being one of the founders of American wheeling, I would most earnestly urge the justness of their in some way affording to the wheelmen of this country a chance of seeing them assemble and properly review the result of the seed they sowed, which to-day has blossomed in a harvest of wheelmen stretching from Maine to far-off California. I sincerely trust that my brethren of the pen will not let this subject fall into oblivion, but will, in their very able way, see that the desired result is arrived at. Knowing that the affair will be safe in their hands in this respect, I there leave it.

THE OWL.

WE always believed that a double and a single tricycle was a man's best cycling outfit, for when he or his wife want to go 'alone they can take the single, and they can mount the double in company. But now comes Singer & Company to offer us an Apollo Safety and a Straight Steerer tricycle with a little attachment thrown in. The single machines offer a good range of choice for solitary riding, and with the attachment a tandem can be rigged up with the tricycle and the safety minus the front wheel, coupled together.

CHICAGO.

THE north side club is now fully organized with Ned Oliver at its head. They have finally accepted "Lincoln Bicycle Club" for the name of the organization. I am informed that there is an article in their by-laws which reads about as follows: — "Any wheelman in good standing, whether amateur or professional, shall be eligible to membership in this club." So far, I know of no applications for membership from the professional ranks has been received, but should one come before the club, and same be accepted, what will become of their championship races? Certainly they cannot prohibit a member from entering a club race; so the only way out would be to tell the party in question that he is not expected to enter for the race.

SATURDAY afternoon about forty wheelmen met at Forty-third Street and Drexel Boulevard to witness the race between C. B. Pierce of the Owls, and W. J. Maas of the Illinois. The race was started a few minutes past five o'clock over the Owl Club's ten-mile course. The men kept together until they came back to the entrance of Drexel Boulevard, just one mile from the finishing point, where Pierce made a tremendous spurt, but was unable to hold it. Maas followed him, gaining inch by inch until about three hundred yards from the tape, at which point he spurted past Pierce and won easily by several lengths. This seems to be a bad season for the older racing men and especially those of the Owl Club, who have met defeat at the hands (or rather legs) of the Illinois boys for four successive times.

ONLY three of the city clubs have entered for the team race to be contested at the C. A. A. A. grounds on October 1. These three are the Illinois, Owls and Æolus. The Owls seem to be confident of winning the cup. I have been loafing at the track, and happen to know what each man is doing for his five miles. Now, brother Owl, if you want to win this trophy your team will have to do better work than it has ever done before. The Æolus is one of our new clubs, and I am informed that they have a surprise in store in the form of a dark horse. The prize for this race is a handsome silver cup, twenty-four inches in height, and ten inches in diameter. Quite an ornament to any club-room.

THE majority of Chicago wheelmen usually foot it through the business portion of the city on account of the granite paving which is constantly kept soaking wet by the wheelman's enemy, the street sprinkler. The mayor has finally tumbled to the fact that the granite should not be sprinkled, but swept daily, and has issued such orders. It has met with the approval of every wheelman in Chicago.

SPECTATOR.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

IN Harper's Bazar for October 1, Mrs. Elizabeth Robins Pennell, for whose opinion we all have a great respect, has an article on "Cycling Dress for Women," which is very readable, though it contains little that is new for old riders. Here is her preface: —

"LET me, however, say, by way of preface, that the dress best adapted to cycling is the most suitable for all out-of-door amusement and healthy exercise. Therefore, I am not addressing myself to cyclers only, but to every sensible woman who believes in rational dress; that is, using the term in its real sense, and not merely in its narrowest acceptation, when it means a divided skirt or other like abominations."

AMERICAN women have never taken to the divided skirt, and I doubt if a single one is worn in our country, in spite of the fact that so many are worn in England, and that in things cycling the mother country still leads the way to a great extent.

WHEN I read Mrs. Pennell's condemnation of the "divided skirt or other like abominations," I was prepared to find that she had joined hands with the many sensible women of America who have abandoned that "abomination" which hampers and hinders womankind from the free movement of body enjoyed by the sterner sex, — I mean the corset. But Mrs. Pennell accepts the corset, though she thinks it can be improved. "Corsets made of wool are now to be had, and very sensible corsets they are, with but few bones and little stiffness. Indeed, one kind which is sold at dress-reforming establishments is nothing more than a knit bodice with corset steels in front and straps over the shoulders."

LADIES, if you take my advice you will never wear a corset at all. If you feel that you must wear them at other times, for pity's sake leave them at home when you go to ride. A woman that is clad in steel cannot get a full breath, and as for a free movement of the body, it is impossible.

MRS. PENNELL condemns the kilted skirt, and sees no reason why a lady should wear a uniform as recommended by the C. T. C. officials.

"I HAVE always found that I could be comfortable on the tricycle, and presentable when I came to a town through which I wished to wander on foot, by wearing an ordinary tweed travelling dress — the skirt rather plain, the drapery simple, with no ends or loops to catch in the machinery, and a Norfolk jacket neither too loose nor too tight. As for your hat, get a felt, by all means, with a brim to shade your face, and trimming that will defy sun and rain alike."

I AM in receipt of a long and interesting letter from Mrs. J. R., of Stockport, N. Y. I will let you read portions of it with me.

"I SUPPOSE you know my husband is a great hand to keep statistics from reports you have seen. Well, whenever we go riding he tells me to go on while he stops to put down the distance, take the time, etc. He has a complete table of the roads around here, and when we go out for a tour we try to go over new roads, even if they are not of the best. Sometimes when he stops and talks I leave him so far behind that he thinks I have lost my way, and when he comes rushing up behind me around some corner he wonders how I could have gone so far in so short a time. He will talk!"

"IN July I caught a severe cold, bathing, and had chills and fever, which a trip to Ocean Grove did not seem to entirely cure. After an absence of four weeks, I came home and had another chill. Not having had a chance during July and August to ride much, on account of the weather and my absence from home, it was discouraging to have a return of the chills. I stopped taking quinine, and took something for my blood instead, using my tricycle to get me into a perspiration on each chill day. Of course I rode on other days, too. The first three times I rode on chill days, I took a quick, warm sponge bath and got between flannel sheets, and slept for one hour or more. On each day, I rode about ten miles over our common hilly roads, and felt no return of the sickness, though riding through the hour when I should have had the chill All my clothing, of course, was composed of wool, and right here I would like to say that I have been using the Jersey pants made by Holmes & Co., and find them the finest thing I have ever tried for touring. Have also tried their self-supporting stockings, and like them very much. I notice that you advise the use of these garments, and I hope that more ladies will be induced to try them, as, with no more than a short flannel skirt, riding is much more enjoyable."

"SINCE the three rides for my health, which proved so beneficial, I have taken with my husband some longer and very delightful rides over new roads. Two weeks ago, we started about noontime with a friend for a little picnic ride; and, after facing the south wind for about eleven miles down the Hudson River, with the beautiful Catskills in view, we ate our lunch (which I had strapped on my luggage carrier) in the corner of a yard near a pump. The place proved to belong to the supervisor of the town, and he asked us 'why we did not eat our lunch on his piazza,' and was very kind. On the way down, we met two members of the Hudson County Wheelmen (N. J.), and when about to eat our lunch two more members appeared."

"THE clouds looked like rain, so we did not stop long after eating, but hurried over another and more beautiful route home."

"The roads were very smooth, but it being mountainous along this route, the coasts were fine, and so long in places that the brake drums became hot. We reached home in time for tea, making twenty-three miles."

"A WEEK ago we took a trip to Troy with our wheels — going part way by boat — and while there we were loaned a "Columbia" Tandem by a kind member of the Troy Bi. Club, to try, and I must say we were delighted with it. We rode about fourteen miles in two hours, including at least five miles of poor pavement, and a hill three quarters of a mile long, and quite steep."

"LAST Friday I went on the longest day's ride I ever took with my husband. We started at 7.15 A. M., and rode through Kinderhook, past the old home of Martin Van Buren, (where an old milestone on the post road from New York to Albany says, 'one hundred and forty-two miles from N. Y.') Valatie-Chatham Centre, East Chatham — between the latter places we had to walk nearly four miles, up steep and stony hills — to Chatham (twenty-three miles), where we stopped an hour for dinner.

"Leaving Chatham at 1.10 P. M., I rode over nice roads for ten miles, without a dismount, passing through the villages of Ghent and Mellenville. Three miles farther on we rode through the beautiful village of Claverack, and over three miles of bad roads to Hudson, where we stopped to do some trading. After riding around the city, we faced a strong north wind for five miles home, making a circuitous route of forty-six miles. We reached home at 5.30 P. M., and finished fifty miles, and a very enjoyable trip, before 6.15 P. M."

THE North Shore tour is coming along finely. Names are coming in and the prospective company is gaining large proportions. I am told that it is to be a League tour, and that the League colors will be worn by all those who have united with our national association. A concert by talent drawn from the party is set down for the second evening at Gloucester, and it may be that we shall have a dance one evening.

I CAN tell but little outside what is given in the circular, but I want to say one last word to urge the ladies to join us. It will be the occasion of the year, and every lady ought to be with us.

DAISIE.

NEW ORLEANS CHIT-CHAT.

AFTER the storm comes the calm is an old saying and in our case a true one. After the rush incident to the preparation and successful consummation of such a "big institution" as our tournament of the 15th, every one is resting, and there is consequently a dearth of news items in local circles. Talk concerning the races form, and will for some time to come, form the main topic of conversation whenever the boys get together, and well they might, for such a great, grand, and glorious success as we score is not an everyday occurrence. Three thousand spectators — two thousand of them ladies — and the favorable mention received from the press, all count for something. To Chief Consul Hodgson's untiring energy are we in the main indebted for our success; the members of the Racing Board are of course entitled to a portion of the credit, but the lion's share deservedly falls to the lot of Mr. Hodgson. He labored early and late; spent time, money, and patience in advancing the interests of the meet, and while the display made is in itself something of a reward, he will hardly secure full returns this side of the Jordan, may he get them on the other. Although the races are but just over, his fertile brain is already at work again, and he has a plan in mind, which if carried out, will please the boys mightily. He has not fully decided upon it, however, and a request to keep mum, forbids my revealing its nature.

EVERY member of the Division received gratis as a result of his membership, seventy admission tickets to the races and an oxidized silver League badge, to say nothing of those who secured prizes in the races. This is the way our Chief Consul is showing his work and benefits of League membership at the same time.

C. C. HODGSON was a happy man over the success of the races, and Col. E. C. Fenner was jubilant over the success of the American champion, six out of eight events being won on that wheel. Col. F. is agent for it, you know.

HILL and Guillotte are evenly matched. In every race in which they are brought together some fast running and exciting finishes are the results. Neither has the advantage however. Guillotte beat Hill in the N. O. B. C. championship, and the latter got his revenge by defeating Guillotte in the State championship, in both cases the distance between the two was the same, a scant length.

SHREVEPORT ALFORD is plucky and all that, but is plainly no match for our home champions. His was a popular victory in the consolation race, but he got his share of cheering whether first or last.

A SIXTY-SIX pound Star and a Standard Columbia of the first crop, were two of the racing wheels used at our meet.

SOME of the late aspirants for racing honors are soliloquizing on the queer things which do sometimes happen. Hobson and Renaud are of this class. Hobson ran away from Renaud in the L. C. C championship for permitting (?) which the latter will pay for a supper, at which lemonade and gas will form the main relishes. Renaud got even though by downing Hobby in the handicap.

BEN REA did not show the magnificent form he exhibited in his practice spins. A couple of vomiting spells on the track however, showed that all was not right.

C. T. MITCHELL, of the Louisiana Club, who was expected to make the fast runs here was compelled by the death of his mother to abandon this year's contests, much to the disappointment of the wheel world and his clubmates in particular.

THE first quarterly meeting (business) of the division occurs in this city Monday, Oct. 10. BI.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE event of this week will be the annual lantern parade of the King's County Wheelmen, which is to occur, weather permitting, on Thursday evening the 29th inst. Each person participating will be furnished with numerous Japanese lanterns with which to bedeck his untamed steed; and if the pavements are in their usual slippery condition, I anticipate some of the riders will consider their steeds both untamed and fiery before the evening is over. At the conclusion of the parade an entertainment will be given at the rooms of the K. C. W., and this part of the programme will no doubt be a huge success, and much enjoyed by all; for the K. C. W. have a reputation as hospitable entertainers.

The Brooklyn Bicycle Club hold their one-mile novice and championship races on the track of the Queen's Athletic Association, on Saturday, Oct. 1, at three P. M. Both races are looked forward to with much interest, and will doubtless be well attended. At the same time and place will occur three other races, open to all, viz.: One-mile handicap; two-mile handicap, and one-mile novice. The track is three minute's walk from Queen's Station, or about a half-hours' ride from Jamaica by wheel.

Friend Prial, of the Wheel, is to be commended in his laudable endeavor to awaken proper interest and action, to secure an improvement of the Boulevard, or a part of it, for the use of cyclers. I doubt very much, however, if the effort will ever bear fruit. We have heard of this proposed cycling path to Coney Island for the past four years, but we have yet to see it assume a tangible shape. In my opinion, if such a thing is ever done, it will be by private enterprise and capital. I doubt if the Park Commissioners will ever appropriate a sum to macadamize one of the side roads for the exclusive use of cyclers; and even should they macadamize one of the roads in question, I doubt if they have power to restrict its use to cycles only. Should they not have such power, the improved road would benefit us but little, as all loaded and heavy moving vehicles would prefer the harder and smoother surface of the macadam, and a continuous stream of farm wagons, brewers' trucks, furniture vans, coal carts, and lumbering family coaches would make cycling on the narrow roadway a misery indeed.

The Long Island Wheelmen anticipate getting into their new club house early in October. We presume the happy event will be properly announced and celebrated.

We were surprised to see so many men around on Saturday, who were to have gone to the State Meet at Cooperstown. Their excuse was, the weather, which they said was too cold and threatening. We hope the same complaint did not strike all parts of the State.

Several members of the Brooklyn Club, under the leadership of color bearer Williams, made a century run on Sunday last, starting at six A. M., and finishing by daylight. The Wheel says, the Iderans contemplate having a century run on Oct. 9, and a ten mile road race over the Irvington-Milburn course on Oct. 16. It don't seem much out of the way to have a run on Sunday, either century or otherwise, but when it comes to holding club races on the Sabbath there is a lack of moral tone about it that does not speak well for the club, or the parties participating, and it is therefore hoped that this rumor is without foundation. BON.

JERSEY.

THE road racers are girding up their loins for the battles that are to come, and the devotees of the path are deserting sandpapered levels and bethinking themselves of laurels that may be plucked on the highways. The talked-of subscription tournament at Roseville, if the proposition be carried out, may keep some of the racers on the track a few weeks longer, but down this way the honors of the road are more sought for than the prizes of the path, and the winners of the great team contest gain greater renown than champions and record breakers of the track.

It is universally conceded that, barring accidents, the interstate cup will again be won by the present holders, and it speaks much for the healthy interest taken in the association and the sport that even in the face of three successive conquests and another certain defeat, the beaten clubs show no signs of hauling down their colors and acknowledging the permanent supremacy of the K. C. W. champions. The interest in the struggle seems to be as great as ever, as many gallant teams will face the starter to do battle for their respective clubs as in the past.

This is the proper spirit to evince, and they who fight and lose can always gain glory not vouchsafed to those who stay away. The relative merits of Stenken and Hall are discussed with all the ardor of the past, and no can advance a convincing proof of which is to be the winner. With fair course and fair weather, it is pretty well assurred that the 1.33.56 of last spring will be beaten. Both the men have passed through a vigorous track campaign and are far fitter for a bruising race than they were on Decoration Day. "Our Charley" has, perhaps, shown himself a trifle the speedier on the track; but a mile path race, and a twenty-five-mile road scorch are two different things. Whichever of the pair may take the lead, it is safe to say will make a much faster pace than was set last time. I was pretty lucky with my prophecies before, so let me predict that under favorable conditions 1.33.56 will be beaten from three to five minutes next time, and I shall not be at all surprised to see 1.25.00 made.

Jersey will probably send to the post the Hudson County, Elizabeth, and Union County teams, though I hear the same pleas of laziness on the part of good men that are invariably uttered about this time before the race, only to be forgotten when the racers begin to sniff the smoke of the battle near at hand. In Capt. Baggot the Hudson County boys have a vastly improved and fast improving man; the Union County Club has a good new one, in Rhett; and Decker and Gilbert, with work, have a fair chance of being given a trial on the Elizabeth team. In the development of "dark horses" seems to lie the only chance of wresting the cup from the gallant Kings County Club.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen propose to run their annual ten-mile handicap road race over the Irvington-Milburn course on October 8, and will attempt to make it a memorable event in the number of contestants as four prizes will be offered and every inducement held out for a big field of bicycles, tricycles, and tandems to start, and it is hoped that fully twenty wheels will be ready to do or die on that day. If there are, there will be rare sport with judicious handicapping. Then, again, there is the mile championship trophy, the elegant bronze Mercury, now held by Caldwell, to be run for. The contest will be held at the proposed Roseville tournament, or in the event of the failure of that, on the Roseville track some afternoon before long. The Hudson County Wheelmen are also to have their annual ten-mile road race over the Irvington-Milburn course early in October, nor has the Century Club run, which the rain prevented, been abandoned.

I see a statement in one of your contemporaries, that the road authorities will not permit the running of the team race on Election day. This is news to all the Jersey boys, that I have seen, and I cannot believe that there is any foundation to the rumor, as I see no reason why the authorities should interfere in the absence of any complaint and in the presence of so much interest and approval. If, however, it be true, then there will certainly be but little difficulty in persuading the powers that be the justice of granting to cycling the same indulgence as is shown to other sports that may perhaps interfere with the technical rights of a few carping and unreasonable citizens.

THE Atalanta wheelmen of Newark are to open their new club rooms at 443 Broad Street, Thursday evening, the 28th inst. Some of the neighboring clubs have been invited to assist at the festive ceremonials.

THE Bloomfield Cylers have moved into new quarters in Library Hall, corner of Broad and Liberty Streets. This club is about to resume its hare and hound runs, which were so popular earlier in the season. Some of the neighboring clubs have been asked to join them in following the paper trail.

THIS club is a thoroughly live organization, and has an untiring leader in Capt. Pierson. He writes me, "On Friday the 16th, a 'peach run' was called at six o'clock, the destination being the town of Flemington, in Hunterdon County, the centre of an extensive peach-growing district. Flemington is about eleven miles from the Delaware River, and is fifty miles from Bloomfield. We reached Plainfield at 9 o'clock, and Somerville at 11. Here we met one of the Somerset County wheelmen, and also a party of tourists from Brooklyn. After taking dinner we started out at one o'clock passing through Raritan, where we crossed the river, and then took the river road past the Frelinghuysen homestead and on toward South Branch.

The road followed led next through Neshaine and Clover Hill. When three miles out of Flemington a raid was made on a peach orchard where we quenched our thirst from the boundless supply afforded by 9,000 trees.

We found good accommodations at the Union Hotel, until 8 o'clock Saturday morning, when we started out to see the Roseville races, forty eight miles away. Reaching Plainfield at 12 o'clock we dined at Lang's Hotel and got under way again at 1.15 and reached Roseville, via Westfield and Springfield, at 3.33 o'clock. Two of the party were only fifteen years old, and yet they covered the forty eight miles in 6½ hours. The roads for twenty miles from Flemington are in all directions such as make a wheelman's paradise.

The surface is the natural red shade, and there are no ruts, but instead, smooth streaks eight or ten inches wide, where the wagon wheels travel. The country is very rolling and full of short, sharp hills, which give invigorating climbs and delightful coasts. There has been a club organized at Flemington with seven members Thanks, captain, may your shadow and those of your men never grow less.

NEW YORK DIVISION.

Proceedings of the Annual Business Meeting of the New York State Division, held at Hotel Fenimore, Cooperstown, N. Y., Sept. 23, 1887.

THE meeting was called to order at 3.15 P. M., Chief Consul Bidwell in the chair. The chairman explained that Secretary-Treasurer E. K. Austin was unavoidably absent, and, on motion, Representative Raymond S. Coon, of Troy, N. Y., was made secretary pro tem.

The regular order of business was then taken up.

Upon request, Representative C. H. Luscomb took the chair, and the report of the Chief Consul was read, accepted, and, with recommendations, placed on table to be taken up under head of miscellaneous business.

Report of Secretary-Treasurer read, accepted, and placed on file.

Report of Committee on Finance and Audit read, accepted, and placed on file.

Report of Committee on Rules and Regulations read, accepted, and placed on file.

Next in order was the election of Vice-Consul and Secretary-Treasurer for the ensuing year.

Representative Dr. W. J. Gilfillan, of Brooklyn, spoke at some length of the capability of the present incumbent, and of the satisfaction which he had given the members of the Division in discharging the duties of the office of Vice-Consul, and proposed the name of W. S. Bull, of Buffalo, N. Y., for re-election. No other names being presented, nominations were closed, and, on motion, the Secretary was directed to cast one vote for Mr. Bull, who was declared unanimously elected.

Mr. H. C. Foster, of Albany, proposed the name of Representative R. S. Coon, of Troy, for the office of Secretary-Treasurer. No other names being presented, nominations were closed. The Chief Consul was directed to cast the unanimous vote of the meeting for Mr. Coon, who was subsequently declared the successful candidate.

Under the head of miscellaneous business, on motion of Mr. Luscomb, the recommendations contained in the Chief Consul's report for the transfer of the clerical work of the Secretary-Treasurer to the Chief Consul was adopted, and the sum of $100.00 voted to him for the clerical expenses of his office for the coming year.

Adjourned.

CHIEF CONSUL'S REPORT.

To the Members of the New York State Division, L. A. W.:

In submitting this, my second annual report, of the work accomplished by this Division since Sept. 1, 1886, I do so with the very comforting thought, that we, as a Division, have in one year and six months, advanced from the rear to the front ranks, and now stand at the head of our national organization.

We have, as a Division, demonstrated the usefulness of the League of American Wheelmen, and have opened the way for practical work which will directly and actually benefit cyclists in all sections of the United States.

It seems hardly necessary for me to give in detail the work accomplished during the past year. Our greatest achievement was the successful passage, against the strongest political opposition, of the Liberty Bill, which opened the park driveways of this State to wheelmen, and established the bicycle and tricycle as vehicles on the highways of New York State.

Next, I might mention the compilation and distribution, free to our members, of the New York road book. Our road book is conceded to be the most complete and correct of any similar book and represents a large amount of hard work and money, and will stand for all time as a practical illustration of the benefits derived from membership in our organization.

I have stated that in the space of eighteen months this Division has advanced from the rear to the front rank, and now stands at the head of all League Divisions. A few figures showing our rapid advancement would, no doubt, be interesting.

Our membership in 1885, was 1,028; Sept. 1, 1886, it was 1,640; Sept. 1, 1887, it is 2,208; 827 of the membership of 1885, renewed it in 1886; 1,421 of the 1886 membership, renewed in 1887. It will be seen from these figures that our membership has more than doubled in two years, and in each year, over eighty per cent have renewed their membership. We had in 1885, 65 consuls and 23 league hotels; we now have 144 consuls and 173 hotels.

The Division has a correspondent and active League worker in every city, town, and village in this State, where there is a League member. The consuls, with very few exceptions, are energetic and enthusiastic League workers, always willing to perform any duty asked of them. Of all communications sent to consuls during my term of office, requiring replys or information, ninety-five per cent have received prompt and satisfactory attention, and ninety per cent of the consuls have replied to all letters sent by me requiring answers from them.

The consuls are really the foundation and corner-stone of the Division, as far as its usefulness as an organization to the membership is concerned, and I think that we can point with pardonable pride to the showing our consuls have made, and the energy they have displayed in League work in their respective localities.

The plan of districting the State, formulated by the Chairman of our Rules and Regulations Committee, was seen in practical operation at the elections last spring, and will prove a success, without a doubt. It allows each district to nominate and vote for only such representatives as the district may be entitled to, and prevents locating the Board of Officers.

The Committee on Touring has rendered the Division valuable work during the past year in the compilation and distribution of the road book, and I might add that their work does not end with the distribution of this book, as a continual revision and correction is being carried on, in order that our next edition may be more complete and correct than the present one.

The work of the Rights and Privileges Committee has been mainly in the preparation and passage of the Liberty Bill, but outside of this, the committee are very frequently called upon to give advice and opinions as to the liability of wheelmen who have infringed supposed rights of others, or whose rights have been infringed. In most all cases the committee by prompt and active attention have prevented suits at law and consequent expense to the members and the Division.

The Rules and Regulations Committee are well organized and ready to present a plan for any change in our present mode of government, should one be deemed necessary, but the rules by which we are now governed, formulated by this committee, seem to meet all the requirements, and, I think, will only be altered to conform to a reorganization of the parent body.

The most important work on hand is the erection of guide posts, with appropriate signs at the inter-section of the cross roads throughout the State. We find that the Highway Commissioners are obliged to erect and maintain these signs at the expense of the town, and we propose, if possible, to enforce this law. We are now receiving reports on this subject from the consuls, and find that in almost all instances the commissioners are inclined to act with us. It is proposed that the Division prepare the signs and furnish at cost to the different townships. This or some other inexpensive plan will probably be adopted, and during the coming year we hope to see the erection of proper guide posts wherever needed.

This Division will probably take the initiative towards introducing a reform in our existing road laws, with a view to effecting a permanent improvement of the highways of the State. On this subject I cannot at present say more than I have, but developments may be anticipated in the near future, and when we are ready for action, every member will be asked to assist us in attaining our object.

During the winter and spring, the efforts of my office will be directed towards a renewal of old members and the recruiting of new. I trust in this every member will lend personal aid, as an increased membership is absolutely necessary to a successful accomplishment of the work before us.

The passage of the Liberty Bill demonstrates the practical advantage of a large organization. Without the 2,000 members, this bill would not have become a law. For the accomplishment of a great work such as this, we need the power, influence, and strength that only a large membership can give us, and to accomplish the work in hand and contemplated, we must have even a larger membership than at present exists. To attain this increase, I ask every member to promptly renew their membership in the League, Jan. 1, 1888, to personally see that their club members and acquaintances do likewise, and also prevail on all wheelmen not members, to send in their application. I place our membership for 1888 at 3,500, and I hope you will all aid me in realizing this prediction.

Our financial condition has been a source of considerable study and thought. Our activity and the great amount of work accomplished during the past year has depleted our treasury, and from our present income, I cannot see that we shall regain a satisfactory financial condition until next spring. It is apparent that too much of our revenue is needed by the National body, but the parent, under the present organization, needs the funds, and it is natural that her offspring should be the source of supply. Our course, therefore, is plain. We must endeavor to remove or reduce that which causes the need for our revenue on her part, thereby allowing more income to the offspring. This is the work allotted to the National re-organization committee, and as our State is ably represented on this committee, we can depend upon our interests being protected and this object attained.

While I am in favor of having a reasonable balance always in the hands of our treasurer, I am against a surplus, while there is work to be done, and would prefer to see our treasury in the condition that it is, when we can point to the work we have accomplished as the cause of its being so, than to look back at our inactivity and full treasury of 1885 and 1886.

The clerical work connected with the Division is increasing rapidly; and for the best interests of our organization, it seems to me necessary to recommend a change in the method now used in handling it. I advise the transfer of the clerical work of the Secretary-Treasurer to the Chief Consul. The Chief Consul to be allowed $400 per year for clerk hire, and work incident to both offices, to be performed by the Chief Consul, except the receipt and disbursement of funds. By this change, the amount now allowed to both officers would enable the Chief Consul to employ competent aid to assist him in the transaction of the business of the Division. All records, books, and correspondence would be consolidated and under one management, thereby facilitating and simplifying the routine work, and during a change of administration, the work in the hand would be known to the clerk, and could therefore be continued until the new officer should become familiar with the duties of his office.

In concluding, I desire to thank the members of this Division, the Consuls, and the Board of Officers, for the very hearty support they have accorded me in the administration of the affairs of my office.

Respectfully submitted,

G. R. Bidwell, Chief Consul.

Approved. An apparent difference of $26.25 between the amount shown as due from the Secretary-Editor of the L. A. REPORT OF FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Committee on Finance and Audit beg leave to report that since their entry upon the duties of their office, their efforts have been confined to the approval of the miscellaneous bills of the division, and the audit of the accounts of the Secretary-Treasurer.

The various bills referred to have been examined by each member of the committee, and have been in all cases unanimously approved. The accounts and vouchers of the Secretary-Treasurer were examined by the committee, item by item, and were found in all respects correct as appears, and our official approval endorsed on that officers' report.

The total amount of indebtedness that has passed under our inspection, has been to date, $1,201.34, besider the vouchers accompanying the foregoing accounts which have been considered by our predecessors in office.

On our assumption of office we found no regular method of placing the responsibility for indebtedness upon the division account, and therefore drew up a voucher form to be attached to all bills, and signed by the officer ordering or cognizant of the fact.

This was duly approved by the Chief Consul, and officially published in the Bulletin of July 29, 1887.

Since that time no bills have been approved unless so certified.

All of which is respectfully submitted

For the Committee,

(Signed) Jno. C. Gulick,
Chairman.

Dated Sept. 22, 1887.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

The proposed track at Wayne, of which I wrote last week, will be on the grounds of the new Merryvale Athletic Association, the site of which has been selected convenient to Wayne station, Pennsylvania Railroad, and but a very short distance from our Lancaster Pike. It is proposed to lay out these grounds for base ball, cricket, and tennis within a half mile track for bicycling, and a club house will be erected with ample gymnasium room, gymnastics to be under medical supervision. Active members' fees for initiation are five dollars, with a monthly assessment of one dollar; ladies and juniors are admitted, without voting privilege-, at one-half rates. The management will be vested in a board of managers headed by Dr. Walter O. Browning of this city. The secretary is Howard T. Frick, Gen'l Wayne P. O., Pa., and Dr. Jos. C. Egbert, of Wayne, is one other of the board of managers. The half-mile track is to be a special feature, and will be made and kept in first-class order, and with its situation right on the line of our best wheeling route should be very popular with cyclers.

The West Philadelphia Athletic Association made another abortive bid for popularity with the outside public in its race meeting of September 24. It was a cold day, — cold for the contestants, cold for the spectators, and supremely cold for the managers. It is almost time that they had found out that this city enthuses not on bicycle race meetings. Following is a summary of the events: —

The opening event was a one-mile novice bicycle race, contested by George Bowman, R. D. Thompson, F. C. Bechfold, H. C. Middleton, C. W. Hoskins, and H. M. Green. Middleton won in 3.20, and Bechtold took second place, but was protested, as it was charged that he was not a novice.

The half-mile bicycle race for boys under sixteen was between Edward Crawford, Robert Coningsby, and Murray Kilinen. The latter won, with Coningsby second. Time, 1.55.

In the annual one-mile race of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, T. A. Schaffer and Louis Hill represented the club. There was much interest in this event as Schaffer rode an Ivel machine, and held the lead until the close of the fourth lap, when he was passed by Hill, who finished in 3.21 1-2.

Annual one-mile race of the Century Wheelmen. Starters, F. H. Garrigues, R. L. Schaeffer, M. J. Bailey. Won by M. J. Bailey, F. H. Garrigues, second. Time, 3.30.

Annual one mile race of the Vesper Wheelmen. Starters, Robert D. Thompson, George Bowman. H. T. Harding, Jr.; won by H. T. Harding, Jr., George Bowman second. Time, 3.20.

Annual race of the Frankfort Bicycle Club, three miles handicap. Starters, Joseph Dyson, scratch; George Hare, 50 yards; Robert Matthews, 60 yards; Walter Denn, 75 yards; William Denn, 80 yards. The limit man had the lead till the last lap, when Dyson passed him and won in 12.1, William Denn second.

Inter-club bicycle race, one mile. Starters, T. A. Shaeffer, Pennsylvania Bicycle Club; Joseph Dyson, Frankfort Bicycle Club; M. J. Bailey, Century Club; H. T. Harding, Jr., Vesper Club. Won by T. A. Schaeffer, H. T. Harding second. No time taken, nor, it may be added, made.

The starters in the one-mile open bicycle race were M. J. Bailey, H. T. Harding, Jr., Harry Swartz, and F. Dampman. Swartz, who rode a Star, took a good lead at the start and kept it to the finish, winning in 3.06 1-2, with Harding second.

Harry Swartz and Frank Dampman were the only contestants in the two-mile bicycle lap race, Swartz won eight laps, and two were won by Dampman. Time, 7.15.

The starters in the half-mile open bicycle race were M. J. Bailey, H. T. Harding, Jr., J. T. Bradley, Frank Dampman, and Harry Swartz. The latter was the winner, and Dampman got second place. Time, 1.30 1-5.

Half-mile bicycle, without hands. Starters, Samuel Crawford and Edward Crawford. The latter was allowed half a lap, and he won. Time, 1.40.

Sixty yards bicycle slow race. Starters, first heat, Robert Coningsby and Murray Kilinen. Won by the latter. Time not taken. Second heat, William Whittemore and William Flenard. Won by the latter, who also won the final heat.

The consolation race wound up the day's sport. The starters were George Bowman, J. T. Bradley, George Hoskins, and it was won by J. T. Bradley, George Bowman second.

Hoskins is a well-known runner and athlete, but a new hand at bicycling.

The officers of the meeting were: Referee, Arthur McOwen, Pennsylvania Bicycle Club; judges, John A. Wells, R. Fitzgerald, Kirk Brown, J. Sellers Kite; starter and handicapper, Frank Henderson; clerks of the course, William Thompson, John Green; timers, Capt. C. A. Roberts, Frank Kolher, and William Bowen. Phacto.

CYCLETS.

The melancholy days,

So called by the poet Bryant,

Are now with us, but the wheelman sees nothing melancholy in them.

The "wailing winds and naked woods and mead ows brown and sere" trouble us not.

Good roads, the cooling breeze, and hardened muscles dispel all melancholy feelings, and gladness fills the air.

We now enter the fourth and last quarter of the League year. The fee is now $1.25.

Advertise your old wheel in the Bulletin for fifty cents.

C. S Davol of Warren, is now Chief Consul of Rhode Island.

It is on the bills for the President to review the parade at Atlanta.

The cross-country road race starts on Monday, Oct. 10, from Boston.

The World is calling loudly for checkers. Guess it wants to have a little game.

In the fall the roads are good, and cyclers autumn make considerable use of them.

Burdick seems to be a coming man on the racing path. Wonder who he 'll ride for.

England is about to borrow another idea from America, and establish a racing board.

There are ninety-six ladies in the League. We ought to have a hundred before the year closes.

The New York Athletic Club will hold its annual games at Mott Haven, on Saturday next.

Scranton wheelmen have caught the club-house fever, and a new three-story house is being talked about.

Wheel records are doing well this year. Very few have been broken. Perhaps the breakers are broken.

Boston wheelmen are discussing the feasibility of a hill-coasting contest. Now, heavyweights, there's your chance.

W. F. Knapp, of the Gormully & Jeffery team, and Miss Essie Williams, of Lynn, have joined hands in wedlock.

It is rumored that the Cambridge Club will make a portière for the new club house out of Hayes's orange and black blazer.

Dr. Emery changed his plans at the last minute, and did not go to St. Louis as announced last week. He will go later.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat published a very good portrait of A. M. Hill, in connection with its report of the cycle races.

The well-known manufacturing company of Rudge & Co. will be merged into a joint stock company, and shares will be put upon the market.

The Atlanta meet, if carried out in the same liberal spirit that dictated the list of prizes, will be one of the grandest affairs of the season.

Now why doesn't some enterprising Yankee get up a race meeting, with the President for referee, and Mrs. President to award the prizes?

The Long Island Wheelmen will occupy the new house about Oct. 1. Wonder if the officers will go over to see it after the New York meeting.

Kansas City wheelmen are beginning to believe that one strong club is better than two weak ones, and they talk of a union between the city clubs.

The Cambridge Club has rented a house on North Avenue, and are now busy as bees furnishing it. There will be a housewarming in November.

Another cycling editor is gathered in. R. J. Mecredy, of the Irish Cyclist, has our congratulations, and so does Miss Catherine A. Hopkins, who is now Mrs. Mecredy.

In the series of races for the championship of Wales, the lead is now held by Ace, who defeated Morgan, Sept. 10, in a ten-mile race. The score now stands, Ace, 2; Morgan, 1.

We were this week shown a wrench, patented by a California wheelman, which combines a wrench, oiler, spoke grip and screw-driver. It is proposed to put them on the market next season.

The modern baby carriage is too large and too heavy. Cyclists are becoming pushers of baby carriages every year. Mark our words, the cyclers will give us a lighter baby carriage yet.

The Columbia team, at Lynn, will probably try to beat Dingley's records, and then the Gormully & Jeffery team will try again. Competition may be the life of trade, but it is death to records.

American riders are no longer satisfied with American records. It must be world's records or nothing. Dingly has just given us a long list of records that it will require a good man to better.

THE NEW MAIL!

Nashville, Tenn., July 28, 1887.

Messrs. WILLIAM READ & SONS, Boston, Mass.:

Gentlemen,—I mailed you an afternoon paper, to-day, announcing our return from the Canada tour. Thinking you would be interested in our trip prompts me to write this letter. We left here July 4th, and I wheeled the entire distance from here to Niagara Falls and into Canada. Went by Louisville, Frankfort, Georgetown, Ky., Cincinnati, Hamilton, Dayton, Marion, Cleveland, O., Erie, Pa., Buffalo, N. Y. to Falls. Entire distance by Butcher Cyclometer, 862 1-4 miles. Also rode 183 miles on the New Mail before, making 1,045 miles. You must know we had some terribly rough roads on our trip; over 100 miles rough dirt road in Northern Ohio, rough, old worn-out pikes in Kentucky, plank roads, sand roads, tow paths, water-washed side paths, rutty, hard, dried clay roads; in fact, every kind of road you could call for.

The New Mail cost me exactly five cents for one quart of benzine for cleaning. We had a little over twelve riding days, making over 70 miles average. Entire time to Falls, nineteen and one half days; stopping in all large cities. The Ball Head worked perfectly, and I consider it the greatest improvement.

Yours truly, ED. D. FISHER.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Our NEW MAIL, though its first year, has been a PERFECT SUCCESS, and has had an EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND. We have been behind orders since the opening of the season till hot weather set in. Now, as the most active bicycle season is past, though the best riding weather is in the autumn, we have decided to offer for a short time only a few of these SUPERB NEW MAILS in exchange for others. This we have persistently refused to do heretofore, as the demand was so great. Wheelmen desiring to exchange their present old mounts for a

NEW MAIL, WITH TRIGWELL BALL HEAD AND PERFECTION BACKBONE,

will please give us a description of the old wheel and their estimate of value. This offer is for no length of time, as we do not care to place many in this way. Address

WM. READ & SONS,

107 Washington St., Boston.

THE wheelmen of Cincinnati have at last secured the privilege of being allowed to ride in the park. They must, however, wear a big badge, which is to serve as a guarantee of their respectability as cyclists.

DINGLEY, the bicyclist, is said to have "beaten the world's record." The world has no business to compete with a bicyclist. Even Thomas Stevens went around the world on a bicycle, like a cooper round a cask. — Globe.

THE Overman Wheel Company will branch out next season and manufacture its own wheels. It has recently purchased a fine brick building at Chicopee Falls, having a floor space of twenty thousand feet.

THE Piedmont Exposition at Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 13, 14, 15, is making a very strong bid for the best racing talent. In the one-mile professional, the prizes are $150 and $50, and a diamond medal is offered for the mile amateur.

THE Harlem Wheelmen are engaged in a record-making contest. Capt. E. I. Halsted heads the list at present with a mileage from Jan. 1 to Sept. 1 of 2,885 miles in ninety-one riding days. E. C. Parker is second on the list with a score of 1,927.

A RACE for the fifty-mile bicycle championship took place at Leicester, Eng., Sept. 24. Howell retired at the end of the tenth mile, and Woodside's machine broke while he was leading in the forty-third mile. The race was won by Dubois, a Frenchman.

IT is unfair to put upon Lacy Hillier's shoulders all that appears in Bi. News. He is the editor, and lives at London, while the paper is printed at Coventry. He is, after all, little more than editorial correspondent, and has very little supervision of the News. He has been made to answer for many things he was not the author of.

EX-AMATEUR WOOD defeated Richard Howell in the race for the twenty miles bicycle championship of England, at North Shields, September 3. The finish was very exciting, there being a difference of but four inches between them when the tape was reached. The time was 1 hour, 4 minutes, 57 seconds, the last mile having been ridden in 2 minutes 44 1-5 seconds. The other starters were Battensby, Dodds, Lees, Parkes, and Tyre.

"OH, for the good old days," remarked an old rider recently, "when we had well attended runs." His remark is not without its significance. There is not the road riding done now that there used to be. It is true that exceedingly bad weather this summer has interfered with Sunday outings. Wheelmen should do a good deal of road riding, as the effect will be benefiting in more ways than one.— Kansas City Journal.

THE badge used by the Louisiana division at its meeting and races at New Orleans, Sept. 15, is very unique and pretty. The pin is an arrow, and from this hangs, by a purple ribbon, a metallic disk, with the League badge design on its front. The lettering is on the ribbon; the badge thus combines the League color, its design, and the guide-board design.

BICYCLES and tricycles have played an important part in the mobilization arrangements of France recently. The Daily News correspondent says: "a feature in the lading of the trucks was a number of bicycles and tricycles for staff messengers. The steel horse is fast making its way in the French as well as in the German army."

WHEELS are being once more turned in the direction of Cobb's tavern. The clubs have neglected it until recently. If it is a fair question, why wouldn't this be a good place for a corn roast? We imagine the corn is eaten from the cobs at these affairs, though we haven't yet found out what a corn roast is.

BURLEY AVERS believes the Illinois poster will have a good effect. He says: "What's the use of spending all our time educating the city people, they know enough as it is. We want to reach the country folks. We want to begin at the bottom of the ladder and work up. That's the idea. The digest can be prettily framed to make a desirable wall ornament. Such a plan will do wonders in enlightening the minds of some rustic boors who believe that the roads were not made for man, but for horses."

THE Quincy (Ill.,) Bicycle Club will have a reunion and celebration Oct. 11, 12 and 13. The programme of the first day includes a run to Canton, hill contest and ball. On the second day there will be a parade, races, lantern parade, and smoker. The third day will be spent at the Soldier's Home, where there will be a competitive drill and festivities. A cordial invitation to wheelmen is extended by the club.

Oh, to be last in the half-mile race!
Yet, I could not follow the red-hot pace,
So I fell behind—it was no disgrace,—
So it's not for that I'm complaining;
Nor yet for the prize—two dollars it cost—
But I mourn for the good old grub I lost,
The month I was in training.—Gazette.

THE comments of a Surrey crowd are very amusing. When Morris, on a safety, spurted to the front in his heat, a gentleman near us remarked, "My! Bill, look at that little bloomer. Ain't he givin' them big wheels snuff!" Another, when Brewerton rode a grand finish behind Potter, fairly screamed with delight: "Ain't he game?" he shouted. "It does my 'eart good to see one like 'im a-tryin' and a-tryin' and a-tryin', and only beat wen he passes the post. Give him a cheer, boys." And they gave it. — Wheeling.

HAVE we a stretch of twenty miles of road running parallel with a railroad here in England? If so, let us have a road race upon it, and follow the American example by making the train a moving grand-stand. We can think of no finer view being obtainable, and give the Yankees credit for suggesting an excellent, if impracticable, means of looking upon all the stages of a road race, — a pleasure that is denied to all but competitors. The idea was carried out recently in "Yankeeland." — Bicycling News. Where was it?

THE Pittsburg club is so anxious to have a large field of entries for its championship race, that it has voted to fine every member one dollar who does not turn out. This reminds us of the scheme adopted by a Boston club to secure answers to a circular letter sent out. A concert was on the tapis, and the secretary mailed two tickets to each member, with a circular, stating, "These tickets will be charged to you on the books, but the charge will be cancelled if they are returned to the secretary within a week." A number of men who usually put such things in their pockets, and forget them, had to pay for the tickets.

OSCAR G. MILLER raced with Herring, of Aurora at the Aurora Agricultural Fair. Herring ran into Miller, and both fell. Miller was the quickest to remount, and finished first. Herring protested, and the protest was allowed by the judges Why the referee, alone, did not decide the race does not appear. Judges in a bicycle race can have nothing to do with fouls. The race was given to Herring, but the crowd sympathized with Miller, and he received several bouquets from the ladies. The moral of all this is that wheelmen should ascertain the character of the officials of a race before they enter. It is very probable that these officers did not know their duty, and it is intimated that they had bets on the race.

A TRICYCLE event should be a feature of every race meet programme. It is a good chance to show the ladies as well as timorous, hyper-cautious, or elderly gentlemen that they too can cycle. The general custom at present is to have no tricycle event, and when such have been held, they have been but sorry exhibitions. Manufacturers, to whom race meet managers so often appeal for aid, should insist on a handicap tricycle race being run at every meet with which they have aught to do. Indeed, they should go even further; they might loan the men a couple of racing trikes, for the great green public is affected by time, and the trike now has the reputation of being "slow." — Wheel.

A VERY pleasing incident in connection with the visit of the American cyclists to Swansea took place at the Star Theatre, on Saturday night. This was the presentation of a medal to Mr. W. J. Morgan, the long-distance champion, subscribed by friends and admirers in Swansea. Between the second and third acts of the play, Mr. Cowlard, business manager, mounted the stage, and said he had been selected to make the presentation to Mr. Morgan, on whom he called to come forward. Mr. Morgan then mounted the stage, amid vociferous cheering, and having been decorated, spoke a few words briefly and to the point. — Cambria Leader.

Next Saturday the Boston Club members will ride to South Natick. The actives will be transported on their cycles, while the associate members will be hauled there in a tally-ho coach. The programme is as follows: Leave clubhouse at 3 P. M. sharp, running to Hotel Bailey, South Natick, where the night will be spent. Arrangements have been made with the proprietor by which everything belongs to the club while the members stay there. Sunday morning, after breakfast, boats will be taken for a sail up the river, the scenery of which exceeds in beauty that of the "lower Charles." After dinner the start homeward will be made via Hotel Wellesley and "Echo Bridge." Arriving at clubhouse early in the evening. John R. Chadwick will have charge of the tally-ho, and Captain Whitney will have general charge of the party.

RHODE Island wheelmen have nothing but good words for the professionals who participated in the Division tournament. Their mutual relations were of the pleasantest, and the racing men gave the Division and the spectators a splendid exhibition, and raced like a parcel of novices for all they were worth. Talk is so cheap now-a-days about the jockeying of professionals that the Rhode Island cyclers are especially glad to say that their relations with them have been decidedly agreeable. It is said that one of the professional riders was offered cash to let certain men win His answer was to the point: "No, sir! I'd lose my best girl first, before I'd sell to that team." It was a good representative body, Columbia, American and Star men being on deck, and Rhode Island wheelmen will be glad to have them come again. — Providence Journal.

ON Wednesday, A. I. Barton, Robert King, and Reeves Ketcham, members of the Newburgh Bicycle Club, the former its captain, made a road record on the wheel of which they may well feel proud. They left Newburgh on their cycles at an early hour in the morning, and taking the turnpike road at Fishkill proceeded north to a settlement called Blue Stores, ten miles this side of Hudson, in Columbia County. Here a rest was taken, after which the return home was made. The cyclometer recorded a distance covered of one hundred and one miles, and the time intervening between the hour of leaving Newburgh and the arrival home, 12h. 45m. The actual time consumed in travelling was 9h. 36m. After arriving here, Mr. Ketcham again mounted his steel steed and rode to Cornwall, where he resides. The time consumed by Mr. Ketcham in travelling one hundred and six miles, was 10h. 10m.— Newburgh paper.

DURING the late race meet of the Cycling Association at Roseville, an incident occurred which reflects anything but credit upon one of the professionals. When the race was called for which he was entered, he said, when asked if he was going to start: "Yes, for ten dollars I'll start." "Well, that's a funny piece of business," said his interrogator. "You came here to ride and take your chances with the rest." "That's all right, as far as it goes," he said, "but unless I'm guaranteed ten dollars, I will not start." As he did not start it may be taken for granted that no "guarantee" was forthcoming. What he did get however, was a first-class tongue lashing from one of our local dealers, and I am rather inclined to think that the Roseville track will know him no more.— Gazette.

"JOHNNY get your gun, get your gun." A young West End athlete, who possesses ingenuity as well as muscle, has made a hit by inventing a simple contrivance by which an organ can be played by the movement of a bicycle wheel. He tells me he first got the idea from a musical German friend, and immediately commenced experimenting. He showed me the evidences of his success. The box or instrument is made fast to the steering gear on the yoke or neck of the machine, and the crank is connected by a rod to the pedals of the wheel. Without any extra exertion whatever he can now grind out music by the foot, yard or mile. As he rode away on his shining wheel the notes of that gay but awful threadbare tune, "The Flowers that Bloom in the Spring," floated out behind him on the air. The ingenious bicyclist says his invention will do entirely away with the ear-splitting alarm whistle that warns man and beast of the approaching wheelman, as well as help beguile the cyclist's time when on a long journey. — Philadelphia Times.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

THE Division racing committee, after the tournament, discovered these facts: Professional riders want money prizes, naturally enough; amateur riders, the real article, cannot take money, and they want nothing of scarf-pins, canes, umbrellas, watch charms, or the whole lot of "useful" trophies which are supposed to be the best substitutes for money; they want medals, or trophies of some sort that tell the story of their victories. The only man that wants anything of the bric-a-brac and trinkets of the average tournament is he who is sailing under amateur colors, but ought to be a professional. He don't want the stuff, but it is the nearest thing to money obtainable — nearer than medals — and so he takes it, with bad grace, too. There is no reason in scoffing at medals. The amateur wants them, for they mark his record as long as he lives. With the other stuff, especially if he is wealthy enough to indulge in pure amateurism, he has no use; in them he has nothing to show for his races, no glory in gold and silver properly inscribed, and his work might as well never have been done.—Providence Journal.

A WHEELMAN went gayly forth with his lantern the other night, says the Providence Journal. It was on the Riverside road, and it was dark. The lantern's rays, however, brightened the way satisfactorily, and the cycler was familiar with the road. Suddenly a big hole in the ground yawned before him. He whirled his wheel about just in time to avoid it. A moment after he narrowly escaped another hole, also a big one. Then there was another. The road was full of holes, and in avoiding one he swirled alongside of a second and barely avoided that to dive toward one on the other side, and with a violent yank of the handles he brought up right over still another, and his big wheel would have plunged straight into it if he had n't got off. The funny part of it was, that when he got off he could n't find the holes anywhere. He looked at his lantern, and there on the lens was a leaf that had blown up and stuck there. It was n't a very big leaf, but it was big enough to make a shadow like a bottomless pit.

THE POUGHKEEPSIE CLUB ROOM.

A GAY and interested throng surged through the elegant rooms recently acquired by the Poughkeepsie Bicycle Club, yesterday. The occasion was a reception by the club. The verdict of the public may be summed up in exclamations such as these: "Oh!" "Ah!" "My!" "Did you ever see anything like it?" Is n't this elegant?" "What more do you want, the earth?"

The rooms were fitted up by George D. Eighmie for his private use, and no expense was spared to make them absolutely perfect in convenience and elegance. They front on Catharine Street, a short distance north of Main. Massive oak doors with upper panels of the most expensive stained glass, flower design, open into a hall with straight easy stairs leading to the upper rooms. The stairs are of oak, having highly polished risers of bird's-eye maple. At the landing you enter a square hall furnished with doors opening into every room in the suite. The ceiling is arched and oddly frescoed, a colored glass skylight at the apex. The floor is of chestnut and cherry, and a bird's-eye maple wainscoating ornamented with an oak rail surrounds the room. The side walls are decorated with buff felt. In the upper panels of all the massive oak doors and at the top of the posts, are carved cat-tail designs. The furniture of the hall consists of an antique oak registry desk with a heavy glass mirror.

The billiard room is to the north. The floor is of chestnut and cherry. A handsome billiard table stands in the centre. It is all finished in white and yellow pine. Two windows open on Catharine Street. The lower parts are of heavy plate glass, and the upper, stained glass of wondrous design. All the windows in the entire suite of rooms are made the same way. Six oak doors open from this room, four of them entering closets. The upper panels of the doors are relieved by carved flower pieces cut bas-relief from pure white holly. A bath room complete with all modern appointments opens from this room

South from the billiard room is the card room. The prevailing tint of the paper is gold, the ceiling is arched, and hand painted in oil to represent the lattice work roof of an octagonal rustic arbor, with creeping vines and flying birds.

The parlor is probably the most magnificently furnished in the city. Mr. Eighmie is reported to have expended $5,000 on it, keeping the wood for months before using it, and employing only the best artists in the country to decorate it, the painting on the arched ceiling costing $2,000. The walls and ceilings are panelled with cherry mouldings finished in oil (cherry alone is used throughout the room). At the east and west ends the panelling is interrupted by massive plate glass mirrors, making the room appear double when one glances in. On the south side is a cherry mantel of very pleasing design, surmounted by another huge plate glass mirror having on either side small shelves. The arches from the side wall to the ceiling contain ten designs in oil. The wainscotting is carved cherry, containing panels of mirrors or carved designs. In all the rooms are handsome brass chandeliers. Opening from the parlor is a balcony and summer house.

In the evening Prof. Milo Deyo rendered some classical music for the pleasure of those who attended the reception. The reception committee was composed of Walter Gillens, A. N. Shafer, A. A. Freleigh, Frank Jennings, Charles Shafer, Dr. P. N. Smythe, W. P. Heath.

The club has about forty members, the officers being: H. W. Ballard, president; A. N. Shafer, vice-president; F. Bowne, secretary; G. T. Cluett, captain. — News-Press, Sept. 24.

AT THE RESERVOIR.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I wish to state a circumstance which happened on Sunday, Sept. 18. My wife and I rode to the Chestnut Hill Reservoir, arriving there about 4 P. M. As we rode round the drive, we passed an assemblage of wheelmen lying on the bank opposite, and a number of them (I say number, not all, for there were some gentlemen present) commenced to laugh and made several remarks about us. I was very much surprised to find wheelmen so ill-mannered. I must say that this is the first time I have ever had occasion to complain of the conduct of a wheelman. One expects the public generally to express their approval or disapproval of wheeling, and especially where a lady rider is concerned, and allowances can be made for them; but when a wheelman, and in this case a number of wheelmen, openly insult a lady, it seems to me that the League has some work before it. I won't say in its own ranks, as I can't believe any member of the L. A. W. could have been one of that party. The captain of one of the prominent clubs of Boston was present, and was quite as disgusted as I was myself, No. 8,964.

MORE ABOUT WRENCHES.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I note in your issue of 16 September, that "H. N. G." asks "How do you carry your wrench?" Appreciating the importance of this matter, I hasten to advise him that I carry my wrench very badly, just now — its a bad wrench and I carry it in my right forearm and elbow — result of too much "pedal mount." I carried my wrench for a time, in my left side, but not long. I put a porous plaster over it and the wrench passed away. "H. N. G's." plan of having his wife make a morocco bag for his wrench is good — if I could get this wrench of mine into a bag of any sort, just now, I'd be in better shape to ride. I cannot agree with "H. N. G." in his mode of slinging his wrench at his belt. I once had a wrench at my belt and can most heartily advise all wheelmen not to take their wrenches at that part of their bodies. The wrench at my belt was caused by my trying to jump a fence on my bike. The big wheel ran between the pickets and stopped — I continued on my way over. I stopped when half way over and got the worst wrench at my belt that I ever had. It only took me five minutes to decide which side of the fence I would prefer to get down upon, but it took me five weeks to get over that wrench.

When "H. N. G." says he carries his "oiler on his back bone" I come nearer agreeing with him. A still better place, I have found to be at the knee-joints. When on a long tour, I carry an oiler at each knee-joint. One trip I took across the prairie afforded me a fine opportunity to test this plan. I had noticed a squeaking noise and supposed that my wheel needed oiling. I dismounted. As soon as I got to the ground with my feet I continued to descend. A strange "palsied" feeling in my knee-joints caused me to assume a very undignified position on the face of the earth. I tried to "wag" one of my legs and discovered that the squeaking noise proceeded from my knee joints. Ever since that time, I carry my oiler at my knee-joints.

Mr. Editor, I note that you "are not responsible for opinions in these columns" so just slide the blame for this, on

LITTLE ROCK, ARKANSAS, Sept. 20, 1887.

DUES.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Is the reorganization committee still listening for suggestions? If they are, here is one. Make it an object for a club to be a League Club. I have worked hard to persuade several clubs to be League Clubs and I have no card to play except the "loyalty" one. When a man asks what is the object in your joining the League as a club, it is hard for me to answer him. Make it an object, gentlemen. Could you not discount ten per cent to members when a club goes in as a whole?

CONSUL.

ON Friday (to-day), if the weather be favorable, Samuel P. Hollingsworth, of the Columbia team, will make an attempt on the Lynn track to lower Dingley's 100-mile track record. He will start at 9 A. M. and ride a Columbia roadster of the same weight as Dingley's. Wednesday forenoon Hollingsworth ran fifty miles in 2.41.56 1-2, making the last mile in 2.56 1-2. He paced himself all but twenty-six miles.

THE Worcester, Mass., Club had a 10-mile road race Wednesday last for a club record. The starters were J. F. Midgley, J. F. Wilson, G. D. Putnam, H. H. Sibley, C. E. Arnold, and C. A. Cooke. Midgley won in 38.33; Putnam second, in 39.15 2-5; Wilson third, in 39.19; Arnold fourth, in 45.56. There were four prizes. Midgley was handicapped two and a half minutes, so Putnam took first prize.

D. C. PIERCE, of Brockton, has resigned from the League and will enter the professional ranks.

EDITH FOURDRINIER has gone to Ohio to make arrangements for the road race.

THE demands of some of the racers who were asked to go in to the road race were, to say the least, extraordinary, and yet they were asked to do an extraordinary thing.

THE Ladies' Tour will start on Friday, should it be unpleasant on Thursday.

PROFESSIONAL RECORDS.

LYNN, MASS. Sept 22. — Frank E. Dingley, of Minneapolis, Minn, established American records from fifty-one to one hundred miles, and beat the best previous records held in England. A race was arranged between Knapp and Dingley, but the former ran only ten miles, acting as pacemaker. Dingley made his fifty miles in 2.42.39, which is behind the 2.38.53 1-2 made by Prince, indoors, last year at Minneapolis, and better than Woodside's Springfield record of 2.50.19 4-5. At the thirty-seventh mile Dingley began to beat American records, and he captured them all to fifty miles, after which he established new records, no authentic records having been in the books before this. Fred Lees holds the English professional record for thirty miles (1.33.20), but above thirty miles Dingley beats all English professional records, except the 1.50.24, which Lees holds at thirty-five miles. The English amateur bicycle record for fifty miles is 2.41.40 3-5, held by Potter, and this was left untouched, but above this all were beaten. Dingley has won world's records from fifty-one to one hun-

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

Gentlemen,—Now, I want to stand up and "speak my piece" about the Light Champion. A certain firm, who turn out better advertisements than wheels, have been groaning much of late over the popularity of the Champion Cycles, and telling a credulous public that a good wheel cannot be sold under their prices; that a ball head has not been proven (!) better than a globe head, and other such stuff, always winding up with the phrase, "Let others try the experiment." Now I want to tell you that I have tried the experiment. I have tested it severely and I am more than satisfied. I emphatically echo the words and urge all who want a good wheel to "try the experiment." The Light Champion has now ceased to be an experiment with me, and is a settled fact. I had occasion to test its hill-climbing powers against a wheel sent out by the firm referred to above, and tho' I am not a strong rider, and the other man was, I ran right away from him. For ease of adjustment and for running qualities the Light Champion is unsurpassed and unequalled. Every man I have mounted on my 53-inch wheel has envied me the rams-horn handle-bars and the Cobblestone saddle and has wondered at the marvellous lightness of the running qualities. As I wrote you once before, I used to ride an —— ——, but I have followed their advice and "tried the experiment," and am so well satisfied that I propose to keep on "trying the experiment." Tell Mr. Jeffery to stop inventing improvements, or he'll have a damage suit some day for inventing and selling a wheel that runs away with the rider.

Yours most sincerely,

BURT E. HOWARD.

Miss Pope Mfg Co

Gentlemen. The record of my Expert Columbia is so good that I feel that you will be interested to learn about it I bought it in the spring of 1883, so that it is now in its fourth season. I took it to the City of Mexico and brought it back with me. I used it there over a year and have ridden it regularly ever since returning It has not yet cost me even a single cent for repairs and is still a staunch machine in first class running order.

Yours sincerely

Sylvester Baxter.

RUDGE RACERS.

As we have decided to discontinue the use of racing wheels as an advertisement, we wish to call your attention to the following novel and special sale of racing machines.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded Oct. 1, 1887.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

Members who write for back numbers will have them forwarded on Friday, our regular mailing day.

For LIST of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

THE attitude of the League respecting road racing will be definitely determined at the New York meeting on the 17th. The Racing Board recommends that the League take strong measures and expel from membership all those who persist in breaking the laws by racing on the highway. It is an important question, and must be considered carefully; but if the League decides to adopt the proposed policy, we hope to see a vigorous enforcement of the rule.

FOR ourselves, we prefer to see the present non-interference policy of the League continued. Let the thing alone, and it will soon die out. There is no revenue from races of this kind, and clubs will not bear the necessary expenses much longer. Moreover, if there is an increase of interest the law will step in to punish the law breakers, for with the increase must come interference with travel and traveller's rights that will not be brooked. Nevertheless, we hope to see the decision of the majority abided by.

DURING his vacation at Sea Girt, N. J., Mr. Marriott C. Morris, of Philadelphia, put in a little time for work in the interest of wheelmen. The Town Committee of Wall, Monmouth County, has advertised for proposals for the erection of guide-boards in the township. Mr. Morris writes: "There is, I believe, a sign-board law in New Jersey, but it is not enforced in this part of the county, and the sign posts and boards put up there nearly fifteen years ago have all rotted down. What makes it more important is the fact that several good-sized towns, as Manasquan, Spring Lake, and Ocean Beach, are included in this township, and in summer time many wheelmen visit these seashore resorts Many of the roads back from the beach are very confusing to strangers, so I am very glad that the Town Committee at last seems as if it were going to do something. I have put up a few L. A. W. signs in the above locality; but, of course, being in Philadelphia most of the summer, I cannot do much, and the cost of the boards, etc., has had to come out of my own pocket."

WE are receiving very many indignant letters from New York wheelmen who have received Mr. Shriver's circular urging them to support Henry George and his party. There are so many of these that we cannot find room for them in the BULLETIN, and we write this that it may go on record that Mr. Shriver has given offence to many League members by his action. We believe the better way to treat this matter would be to let it severely alone, for we do not think that it will amount to anything; but if a majority of members think it unwise to use the League for political purposes their opinions should prevail, and reading popular opinion by what we have seen we are inclined to believe that Mr. Shriver has been doing a decidedly unpopular thing. Replying to one correspondent, we will say that the names and addresses of wheelmen were not furnished from this office.

MR. B. O. MILLER, of Camden, N. J. writes to correct an impression that the wheelmen of Burlington County are asserting more than their rights on the road, and he tells us that they have been abused and ill-treated by the farmers and road hogs, who demand all of the road, and greet wheelmen with curses and the whip. The statement of a Burlington County man, recently published in the BULLETIN, he tells us, misrepresents the state of affairs down there. Mr. W. S. Macomb, of Philadelphia, had an unpleasant experience with one of the cyclophobists on the road recently, and has laid his case before the Rights and Privileges Committee of the League.

CHIEF CONSUL VAN SICKLEN, of Illinois, has made us an excellent suggestion regarding the publication of applications, and hereafter we shall publish not only the number representing the accession of names, but also the total number of members credited to the division. We shall also publish the grand total each week. This will be a great convenience to the division officials, and we are very glad to adopt the suggestion. We are at all times ready and anxious to make changes which will perfect our system, and little hints like this serve us in good stead.

"THE Stevens Bicycle Club, of Grand Rapids, though composed of the younger wheelmen of the city, is growing rapidly." The foregoing appeared in the BULLETIN of Sept. 23, and has given offence to the club referred to, and they write to us to say that though they are the younger wheelmen, they can outride the veteran club of the city, be it on the road, the track, or at fancy riding. They also claim the right to entertain Thomas Stevens when he goes to Grand Rapids, since they bear his name, and have therefore the first right to do this. Our young friends will not be displeased at being called young when they are a little older. But youth is impetuous, and quick to take offence. It would be strange if they could n't outride the veterans, for in these contests young blood will always tell. Friendly rivalry between clubs is always to be commended, but it will not exist so long as the parties go about trying to find offensive references in the most peaceful utterances. Our correspondent intended nothing more than a complimentary reference to the club, and we cannot see how it can be otherwise construed.

WE have very many calls for suggestions regarding Constitution and By-Laws by those who wish to draw them up for prospective clubs. We have no better way to answer such applicants than to forward them copies of rules now in use by other clubs. We get a few of these from time to time, by the courtesy of club secretaries, but the supply is not nearly equal to the demand. Secretaries of the clubs who wish to help along the cause can do a little missionary work by sending us copies of their rules, which we will agree to distribute where they will do much good.

Land and Water, an English periodical, in a late issue, has an excellent article on the much discussed amateur question, and among other points it makes is one regarding the condition of the sport in France. France has no amateur rule, and the interest in cycling is at a very low ebb, for the sport has become unpopular. The journal argues that it is for the interest of the trade and the sport that the definition be sternly upheld.

THE Massachusetts Legislature of last year passed a law obliging towns and cities to erect guide boards at the corners of streets and at cross roads. The Massachusetts Division has issued a circular, calling the attention of municipal authorities to this law, and asking that it be complied with. And now comes the Chelsea Gazette, with a charge that the circular is an impertinence, and it indulges in a little grim humor at the expense of the guide-board law. The editor of the journal was a member of the last Legislature and voted for the law, and he must have known that no place needs guide boards more than Chelsea. There is not a single direction board within the city limits. It is gratifying, however, to know that the paper does not express the ideas of the city authorities, for we have had personal interviews with the Mayor and other officials, several of whom drive about a good deal, and they have assured us that they saw the great necessities of such helps to travellers on wheels or by carriage, and would do what they could to have signs erected. Throughout the State the towns and cities have recognized the demand for guide boards, and no town nor city has indicated a desire to evade the law. The Gazette stands alone in its opposition. It occupies a lonely field in journalism, and we believe its stand will be indorsed by very few people in Chelsea, and especially will it be repudiated by those who drive and see the necessity for guide boards in other cities.

THE most disgusted man in Boston to-day is Editor Fourdrinier, of the World. He has been working very hard for a month or more to perfect the arrangements for the thousand-mile road race, and he finds the whole thing impracticable for want of a sufficiently large field of contestants. The racing men made demands upon the manufacturers that could not be met, and they preferred letting the whole thing go by the board. The Gormully & Jeffery team was all ready to start, and so was the Springfield team, but the Pope Manufacturing Compan would not submit to the unreasonable demands o the men it proposed to enter, and the Overman Wheel Company withdrew on account of a change in the date. The race has been abandoned, and Editor Fourdrinier has had his labor for his pains. It has always seemed to us that the affair was too much of an undertaking and we have had little faith that it would be successfully carried out, though we have great faith in the ability of the management. If we are to have a straightaway road race it would be better to grow to such an affair as the one that has just fallen through by first making a race between Boston and New York, after that between Boston and Buffalo, and, having run these two, the longer one could be better planned by drawing on the experience gained in the initial efforts.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

WHAT a great bore it is that we cannot always talk with the pen under the inspiration of the moment that is with us, and that we must impel ourselves into the future to stand with our hearers. I am in the midst of preparations for the ladies' tour, the committee is struggling with the difficulties that will always arise in such work, we are uncertain about our company, and yet, when you are reading this, we shall be wheeling around Cape Ann or we shall be complaining of weather which keeps us within doors.

THE future is filled with uncertainty, even though it be a very neighborly future, shut out from us by merely a day's breadth.

I THINK we are storing up experience that will be useful for us in the future. The fall is the very best time for touring, but alas! men talk of fall trade and its imperative demands, which keep them at the desk. Again, large companies must be fed and the summer hotels, which are best equipped for feeding multitudes, close their doors in September. We must start away early next year, catch the hotels open, and notify people far in advance, so that vacations may be arranged.

WE shall have "a goodlie company," though we shall miss some of the good people who were with us last year. We have fifteen couples already booked, and many more are as yet undecided. We shall give good report of ourselves, and so good by.

THE Bicycling News has been discussing my remarks about mounting the bar steering tricycle, and it says: "We don't think this method sounds remarkably graceful, and think we could a good deal surpass it by the spectacle of one of our English girls mounting to the saddle of her bicycle steerer in the orthodox manner."

NOW, I protest that this is unfair. If they have a better way, and it is "the orthodox manner," why not tell us all about it. If a cycling paper has one mission more important than another, it rests in making itself a medium through which one may borrow from the experience of the many. If the News can show me that I have the wrong way of mounting, I shall be very glad to make a change, and to advise my readers to adopt "the orthodox manner."

VIOLET LORNE takes issue with me on some of my objections to the handle-bar steerer. Regarding those objections she says: —

"So we all thought once, but experience has taught us there is nothing to compare with the Cripper type for ease and comfort. As to lightness! I should like to know the weight of "Daisie's" mount. Mine is only sixty pounds at present, and I am contemplating one hardly more than half the weight of this."

MY present mount weighs just what Violet's does, but it is far below in weight the machine ridden by the most of our ladies. I suppose that seventy-five pounds represents the average weight that they ride. Violet forgets that we have roads not of the best, and that it is not safe for us to ride the light wheels that can be used in England. We cannot look upon a thirty-pound wheel as within the bounds of possibility, though one maker has promised me a wheel to weigh forty pounds, which he will guarantee to carry me.

AMERICAN women do not ride the single machine to the extent they used to. The tandem is the popular mount, and riders go in couples. As in everything else, there is the good and the bad in this. The ladies are not so independent of masculine assistance as they used to be; they ride only when it is convenient for their partners to go; and they do not become such strong riders as did the pioneers, who had to pedal over a hundred pounds in weight over hill and level.

THE tandem is a great discourager to the single, for it has speed and endurance unknown to the latter. The woman who rides a tandem gets along very fast and with little expenditure of force, and the harder worked single rider is left far behind. Can we wonder that the tandem is popular? And yet there are great advantages in the single, which I regret to see laid aside.

I THINK I told you not long ago of a young lady who has ridden with us occasionally, and who always takes her dog along for company. She who has not ridden with a canine companion knows little of what excitement can be got out of the combination. Mr. Canine goes into every field, every brook, every yard. He explores every back passage and alleyway along the route, and about every ten minutes he wakes up another dog or dogs, and there is a running fight in the street. Cats go scurrying up trees, hens and chickens make a noisy departure from his path, and all nature, animated and inanimate, gets a shaking up.

MISS R. always took her dog along. She was devotedly attached to him, and her only sorrow grew out of a feeling that the dog did not return her love. Unrequicted affection very soon turns to disgust. She went to a man well up in dog statistics and characteristics, and consulted him about her four-footed friend. "Is he," said she, "the kind of a dog that will be faithful in adversity as well as in prosperity? Will he never desert me, and when I depart from this life will he go out and die on my grave?" The dog student told her that it was a very good dog, but he did n't believe it would die on anybody's grave if another body would give it a bone. It was a verdict of "guilty." My friend came to a quick conclusion not to waste her affections on a dog that would not die on her grave, and she sold him.

DAISIE.

THE OWL.

THE question has often been asked, "Does racing pay?" There are two answers to this question, yes and no, the difference in reply laying in the point of view from which it is considered, from that of the racing man, or from that of the manufacturer; the first would undoubtedly say yes, while I am afraid the latter would reply no quite as decidedly.

IN the early days of racing, it was undoubtedly a great attraction, and a decided benefit when introducing a new make of wheel, to have some powerful and expert rider mount it, and, having a sufficiency of strength and skill, defeat all his competitors. When such a rider could be found it raised him in the eyes of his fellow wheelmen, and they thought that they must only have the same make of wheel to accomplish the same results.

PROBABLY my old friend Harry Corey, in his connection with the Rudge agency in this country, is responsible for a good deal of the present system of controlling racing men. When he was introducing the Rudge, he found some difficulty, as it was a wheel considerably lighter than the then American made machine, and the average purchaser could not comprehend how increased strength might be secured, and yet the weight be decreased. Corey finally, to practically demonstrate this fact, arranged to have Howell, who was riding his make of wheel in England, come to this country and engage in professional races, which he did, accompanied by one or two other crack riders. They came and took part in the tournaments at Hartford and Springfield, and carried off a cart-load of prizes, Howell alone receiving over $1,000 in money.

I WILL never forget what a revelation it was to me to see Howell, who stood 6 feet, 2 inches in his stocking feet and weighed in condition nearly 200 pounds, go flying around the track on his 58-inch Rudge Racer, that only weighed 22 pounds; in fact, I for one would not accept the weight claimed for the wheel until I had myself mounted it upon a pair of American scales, and found that these 22 English pounds were as true in weight as the coin that bears their name.

THIS started the ball rolling, and from the then heavily made American machines the tide set in strong toward the lighter English wheels, which thus seemed capable of standing the strain of wheels weighing 10 pounds more than they did. Thus from both Corey's and Howell's standpoints of view in this case, I have no doubt that they could both truthfully declare that racing did pay, as Corey's idea was a great success and introduced his make of machine very extensively in this country, while Howell was the richer fully a couple of thousand dollars through his connection with the affair. American manufacturers, though, at once protested against this form of advertising, but seeing that it prevailed with a certain class of riders, they were forced to build racing machines to compete with the English wheels. Slowly but surely from this time on the racing for prizes and trinkets grew stale with the racers, and drifted into their demanding from the makers a stated sum for expenses, salary, etc., and as they found that in many cases several makers wanted them at once, they were in positions to dictate their own terms, which they often did. The manufacturers in consequence of all this soon had from one to four men in their employ, together with trainers and their attendants, the expense of which can only be likened to some unsuccessful candidate for political office.

AS soon as the American makers began to take up racing, Corey with his usual shrewdness dropped out, knowing probably that with his English machines the margin was not large enough to stand such tremendous expense for the little good that has since been received, and now one or two of the dealers have followed his plan, though there seems to be an effort on the part of the riders to resume upon the road the good thing they formerly enjoyed upon the path.

IT seems to me that the decline in racing his year, and the reason that large tournaments have not held in Springfield and Hartford, has not been from any lack of interest in racing by the people, but there was but a limited number of men that would compete at these tournaments, and it was almost a foregone conclusion as to who would win. The expense, also, of undertaking to manage these affairs has been so much that unless a man had an unlimited amount of capital, it would invariably prove a failure. Heretofore tournaments have been run under the auspices of certain clubs, and it is a very difficult thing to have a club of 60 or 70 members work harmoniously upon anything even much less complex than the affairs of a large tournament, and without doubt the question of bicycle tournaments in this country in the future will be controlled by private individuals.

BICYCLE races on a small scale for small towns and country fairs have always proved an attraction and probably always will. It is a characteristic of Americans for one to compete against the other, and as a consequence we are to-day a nation of "champions." No sooner does a man develop any skill or fame in any given direction than he issues a challenge to his fellow man, defeats him or is defeated, and forthwith blossoms out into a "champion," regardless of his defeat or victory. This fact holds good in bicycle racing, but where races are held in small towns or at some country fair, the local riders naturally do not relish seeing some so-called amateur, who is in the employ of some firm or other, come and sweep the board, when the real races would be between their own club members. In this way paid amateurs are a detriment to the very cause they are paid to further, since they lessen the interest in racing to that extent. Among the largest of English manufacturers is George Singer, of Coventry, England, who builds bicycles strictly for road use and for touring, and who maintains that his experience in the bicycles business has proven that the cost of keeping racing men, with the attendant expenses, amount to more than the actual good, for he says: "People don't buy road machines because they see a man make fast time upon that make, and while it has advantages as an advertisement, the cost is invariably more than the benefits derived." It was a surprise to many that the Pope Manufacturing Company should go into racing, as their Columbia machines were known the world over, and noted for their thorough workmanship and riding qualities. The story goes that one day at Springfield, when the tournaments were in progress, somebody said to Col. Pope, when they saw Howell flying around the track, "Why can't you build a racing machine like that?" "I can," said the Colonel, "and what is more, I will." And he did, and to-day the Columbia Racer holds the fastest time ever made, from an eighth of a mile to over 22 miles within the hour, and I doubt not that there are other manufacturers who wish in consequence that the "smart Aleck" who asked the Colonel why he did not build a racing wheel had been stricken dumb before he asked the question. The idea of Colonel Pope in building racing machines was not I think to demonstrate that he needed an advertisement, as his policy has always been against racing, but was simply to show the riders that he could compete with any manufacturer in the world, and beat them, if necessary, which the result shows he has done.

HOW far the American makers may go in the racing line remains to be seen, but from the present aspect of the case, the feeling seems to be that it will not be long before each one comes to his senses, and the practical use and value of different makes of machines will not rest upon the performance of a phenomenal rider and a specially made machine, but upon the good opinion of road riders, using it as a means of health and recreation, and not for the purpose of gratifying some insane desire to beat sombody or lower a record a quarter of a second.

THE OWL.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THREE days of hard rain have completely stopped cycling hereabouts. The lantern parade of the K. C. W., for which great preparations had been made, was necessarily postponed until next week, as were also the races of the Brooklyn Bicycle Club, which were to have been held at the Queen's track on Saturday last. Favorable weather will witness the parade on next Wednesday evening, and the postponed races will occur on the ensuing Saturday at 3 P. M. The present storm is no doubt the equinoctial, due about this time, and it over, we may expect the usual fine weather of October, the banner month of the year for touring or long runs.

THE Long Island records of the Brooklyn Club do not seem likely to suffer much this year. At the beginning of the season it was thought that an attempt would be made to break both the twenty-four hour and century records, but as yet they have remain unaltered. Hawkins and Barkman both state that they graduated from record-breaking last year, and prefer now to ride for pleasure rather than for miles. Todd is the coming man, and it is hoped that he will try for the hundred miles, if not for the twenty-four hour record. There is some talk of getting up a hundred-mile road race, open to members of any of the Brooklyn clubs. The only obstacle seems to be the lack of a suitable day on which to hold it. Election Day is taken up by the Alphabetical Association, and Thanksgiving Day, the only remaining holiday, is too late in the season to be depended upon.

I NOTE that at the recent meeting of the Division a change was made in the office of the secretary-treasurer, Mr. E. K. Austin being dropped in favor of Mr. R. S. Coon, of Troy. Mr. Austin was a true and faithful officer, and his non-reelection is much to be regretted by all who know him. The change in the office and the officer was not a surprise to those who are familiar with the workings of the "powers that be": and now that our worthy chief consul has accomplished his pet scheme, we hope that he will prove as efficient in the dual office as he has in the past, and continue to merit his well-deserved title of being a "model chief consul."

IN my touring experience this year, I have had occasion to note the superior excellence of the New York State Division. Consuls and regularly appointed hotels are to be found in almost every town of importance. The former, as a rule, are an intelligent set of men, and seem thoroughly posted as to their districts and duties. The latter, in every case, have given satisfactory accommodation, and seemed anxious to do all in their power for the comfort and convenience of the tourist. Their hotel certificates are generally displayed in a conspicuous place, and they seem to take a pride in being the League hotel. In Pennsylvania they are likewise obliging, but regularly appointed hotels are few and far between, causing some inconvenience in strange places. In New Jersey, however, a total lack of any system seems to prevail. I have not seen a hotel certificate in all my touring in that State; was refused entertainment at one hotel, said to be regularly appointed, and found that many of the hotels named in road book, as regularly appointed places were totally ignorant of the existence of any such thing as the League of American Wheelmen. Notwithstanding this sad state of affairs, the cycler usually finds fair to good hotels in most of the Jersey towns, which are very glad to entertain cyclers and give good accommodations; and who, if not already, would be glad to be, regularly appointed stopping places. Particularly is this so at the Hotel Central, Perth Amboy, County House Hotel, Somerville, and Nassau Hotel, Princeton, at each of which I always stop with pleasure.

ST. LOUIS.

THE charges againt Hurck, Gordon, and Oellien are practically dismissed. Chief Consul Brewster, in whose hands they were placed, says there is nothing in them, and the boys were allowed to race last Sunday. Brewster says the charges were in some particulars very trivial. For instance, Hurck and Oellien were charged with racing under an assumed name because their names appeared in the programme as Huerk and Oellier, which anybody can see was a missprint or clerical error. The charge that Harry Gordon raced against a horse for money could not be substantiated. The next time Kansas City impeaches St. Louis riders she had better be a little more careful, although I don't know but this scare will check the loose methods some of the city cyclers have employed in going around to the fairs.

SPEAKING about racing, I wonder if Whittaker will do anything with Percy Stone's challenge, which he issued so boldly last week. He calls Whittaker a lot of bad names, such as "bluffer" and "coward," and says he gets very tired when he hears of Whittaker challenging Rowe, when he can't beat anybody but third-rate men like McCurdy and Knapp. Percy says that Mc. is no good. If I remember right, Percy could n't touch Knapp at the Ramblers' tournament in 1885, but that was two years ago, and Percy was only a kid, or was called so. It is my private opinion that Whittaker can make Percy hasten himself rather lively. To help along the match, which I hope will come off, I want to whisper in Whit.'s ear this: "Take up that challenge now if you ever intend to. Percy has n't been training at all this summer and you 'll never get a better chance to solve this riddle." Percy is absent at Mitchell, Dak., and will be away running professional races up there for the next ten days. He has left the arrangements of a race with Whit. in the hands of friends, who can act during his absence.

FRANK MEHLIG bobs up again with a story that almost takes the wind out of Hicks's tale about the maiden who escorted him and Greenwood out of the Wisconsin wilderness. The Wisconsin romance occurred in the sunset. Mehlig goes a point better, and works in the moonlight. A few afternoons ago Mehlig meandered out of his front yard with his wheel about four o'clock, and started for De Soto, forty-five miles away. He knew it would be dark long before he got there, but he did n't shy at shadows, had a good conscience, and was n't afraid, and besides, he was after glory. The other boys had ridden down in daylight; he was going to do it at night. He got along all right, he says, for a good distance, until the moon got so high that the shadows covered the roads at intervals with a blackness that suggested gullies, and often he got off and walked, so realistic did the gulf yawn. These little annoyances were nothing to him, however, and he was bowling along a little beyond Bulltown when in front of him loomed a black object. "Another shadow! Confound it! I'll ride it." So he braced up and plunged at the black spot. There was a loud "moo" and a dull thud, and then the rider knew he had hit a cow; wheel all right, though. On he climbed again, and without special incident reached Hillsboro' about midnight. De Soto was only a few miles away, and as the lonely cycler left sleeping Hillsboro' he began to sing for joy as he reached the long plateau, on the edge of which the white road runs. His music awakened the echoes. Nobody who ever heard him sing will deny that. It also awoke a black and white four-legged concern that slipped out from the brush and made for the noise. Mehlig says he did n't know what it was, but he was scared. He leaned over the handles and flew over the road like a sin-cursed ghost; but every time he looked back there was that creature. The cyclist was getting weaker, and he knew a big hill was coming.

What was to be done? Fate found the answer. Just as the wheel touched the hill slope, he missed his pedal and went over. The fall was unusually picturesque, and to it he owes his escape. The conglomeration of legs, arms, and wheels astonished the grim pursuer, causing him to pause. Mehlig made a break for a fence, and "grabbed a fence rail," so he says, though he is n't a Hercules. Instead of sitting on this rail for safety, he took it along back to the road, where he used it as a ball club on his swift-footed avenger, which unused to the cruel raillery, succumbed on the third strike. Mehlig drew it into the moonlight and was so struck with its beauty that he fastened it to the backbone with a piece of string and took it along as a prize to De Soto. The next morning the landlord wanted to know what ailed the house, and on going to Mehlig's room found that his prize was a very well-scented skunk, which was as active in death as in life. Other places may have bulls, etc., that chase wheelmen, but St. Louis is ahead in the polecat pasture.

HOW nice to leave such a scene of outdoor lonesomeness, and go into the Smoker given by the Missouri Club to the Cycle Club last Thursday night! Both clubs were largely represented, and entered into the informal entertainment with zest. An improvised colored band furnished the music when the time came for dancing, which was not till "ample justice" had been done to the liberal supply of cigars and refreshments of a temperance character. A stag dance in lancers, waltz, and quadrille was as funny as such dances usually are, and put everybody in good humor, in which President Lucas, of the Cycle Club, caught them with some well-timed remarks, closing the affair.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 26, 1887.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

ON Saturday, Oct. 15, Philadelphia wheelmen who are competitively inclined will have an opportunity to see what they can do in a quiet corner. There will be a mile open handicap, a two-mile handicap, a half-mile hands off, and a mile open scratch race, at the grounds of the Chester City Cricket Club. Entries to Mr. J. H. Cochran, Chester, Pa., close Oct 12, 9 P. M. The Germantown Club has decided to move up town, and has selected quarters at 1907 Park Ave., within a stone's throw north, and back of the present quarters of the Century, certainly an unwise move on the part of any club wishing to keep the cycling peace, as it is bound to excite more or less rivalry, and perhaps ill feeling. This club's treasury being somewhat depleted, it has decided to levy an assessment of five dollars per member, a measure to which some members will doubtless strenuously object. The Century will give a jolly "Smoker" during the month sometime, at which each member will be expected to contribute his quota of music or entertainment to the general programme.

ON Saturday, Oct. 8, Mr. John A. Wells and a partner from Pennsylvania, will endeavor to establish a twenty-mile tandem record on the Lancaster pike. Miller and Harris, of the Gtn, have the tandem record of one hour and ten minutes from Paoli to 52d Street (about sixteen miles, some of it very bad riding), and Powell and Gideon have a ten-mile record of thirty-eight minutes, but no twenty-mile time has yet been attempted. Van Deusen and Dallett, of the Tioga club, are reported as willing to have a go with Fuller and Merrywether, the first two men of the Pennsylvania team, and it is probable that a match race may be arranged between them.

IN view of the frequent recent mention of the decease of the Association for Advancement of Cycling, it may not, perhaps, be out of place to give a short review of this Association's struggles for life. It was an idea evolved from the fertile brain of Mr. E. M. Aaron, organized early in 1886, and was, as it was then understood to be, a sort of City League Headquarters, an idea which took hold immediately with the great unattached, but which was viewed with considerable distrust by the clubs. However, an amicable adjustment was made, a large club-house rented, considerable furniture bought, and quarters fitted out in handsome style. Then the summer came on and everything fell flat. No meetings, no money in the treasury, big bills, and finally Mr. Aaron was

FOR

THE NEW MAIL!

Since making our offer below, many wheelmen have improved the opportunity of a year to obtain one of these superb wheels, by exchanging their old mounts. Our offer remains open but very short time longer!

GET ONE WHILE YOU CAN.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Our NEW MAIL, through the year, has had an EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND. We have been behind orders since the opening of the season till hot weather set in. Now, as the most active bicycle season is past, though the best riding weather is in the autumn, we have decided to offer for a short time only a few of these SUPERB NEW MAILS in exchange for others. This we have persistently refused to do heretofore, as the demand was so great. Wheelmen desiring to exchange their present old mounts for a

will please give us a description of the old wheel and their estimate of value. This offer is for no length of time, as we do not care to place many in this way. But few more to be exchanged. WRITE AT ONCE.

taken with his famous illness. Then the Association decided to give a race meeting to obtain funds, Mr. H. B. Hart, of the Philadelphia Club, kindly guaranteeing the Association against loss. The next question was the track, and the ill-favored "five-lap track" controversy arose; the Association, whose object in life was the advancement of cycling interests, even perhaps at some primary expenditure, having elected, on the ground of least expense, to give its race on a track that at that time certainly was not particularly adapted to the advancement of racing cyclers in any direction, save over the handles. As a good result of the dispute, the track was placed in much better condition than it has ever been since, and fortunately no falls resulted, and the Association made two or three hundred dollars; not enough to clear it of debt, however, and Mr. Frank Read, the president of the Association, advanced considerable money to aid it. On the seventh day of September, 1886, the Association was incorporated, with E. M. Aaron as president; almost immediately afterward came the secretarial troubles, and the Association has steadily declined ever since. Now, the quarters have been given up, goods stored, Aaron is still president, and only the life members are still concerned. As soon as these can be gotten together for a meeting, the affairs of the corporation will be finally wound up.

ON Saturday, Oct. 22, at the West Philadelphia Athletic Club grounds, another cycling race meeting will be given. This time the affair will be worked up and properly managed by the indefatigable "Chris." MacOwen, who has still firm faith in the possibilities of the track in question. Details will be given later. PHACTO.

ROAD RECORDS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Will you kindly state to the wheeling public in general, and to wheel makers in particular, that we are going to Clarksville, Mo., to try some road records, and hereby extend a general invitation to all comers to make these trials competitive.

We will try these records, commencing Oct 7, for ten days. We select Clarksville, Mo., because it is the only place we know of where a rider must go the entire distance, without the possibility of a chance to cut off distance; and also because the Clarksville Belt Road has been accurately surveyed and chained, and the distance is positively known, and is a matter of record.

We do not propose to claim records where it is possible for distance to be cut off, or for any question to arise as to the authenticity of the performance. We believe records have been claimed which were not substantiated, and which were not capable of being substantiated, and we do not propose to allow the public a chance to raise any question in the case of our records.

CELEBRATE THE LIBERTY BILL.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I fully agree with the New Jersey correspondent's idea of celebrating the Liberty Bill, expressed in BULLETIN of Sept. 16, and think No. 13,080's suggestions in issue of 23d excellent and possible to carry out. It would be a fitting compliment to our Chief Consul, and those who worked so hard to secure the passage of the bill. By all means, let us have the celebration parade in Central Park, at some not distant date, to be named by Chief Consul Bidwell.

NEW YORK STATE MEET.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — It was my pleasure to attend the New York State Meet, at Cooperstown, Sept. 23 and 24.

Although we had an enjoyable time, yet it is a matter of regret that so few were there (less than fifty).

It was unfortunate that the meet had to be postponed to so late a date, and was a mistake to have held it at a place so difficult of access.

It was also proved that an impromptu meet is not a success. Let us have our next State meet at some point on a trunk line, and by all means let us return to a regular programme for each day's events, and I prophesy we will not have a corporal's guard meet again. 13,935.

CYCLETS.

OCTOBER.

AMIDSHIPS of the fall.

Now gather autumn leaves, and crack the chestnut burr.

A CYCLER says:

"Now comes the season of the year
When clear autumnal nights begin;
When smiles the moon a friendly leer,
Inviting all to take a spin."

A GERMAN paper computes that that country annually imports ten thousand cycles from England, and manufactures seven thousand itself.

EDMUND ROBBINS, of Springfield, who committed suicide by blowing out his brains, was quite prominent in bicycling circles in that city.

ALPHONSE KING rode his water bicycle across the Delaware River, from the Walnut Street wharf, Philadelphia, to Camden, N. J., Sept. 23, the distance, about a mile and a quarter being covered in 19.10. A high wind was against the making of fast time.

DR. EMERY'S grip is packed, and he is off to St. Louis, if nothing hinders. He will stop at New York and try to persuade the Owl that he is not a Dorchester man, but a denizen of our Roxbury suburb.

RHODE ISLAND is talking of a boulevard from Providence to Pawtucket.

W. A. ROWE is to be married in about a month to a young lady in Lynn.

R. P. GORMULLY, of the Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company of Chicago, is stopping at Young's for a short time.

W. MALTBY, the American trick rider, has just entered into an engagement with the London Gaiety Theatre management to appear nightly in "Fun on the Bristol."

S. G. SPIER has made a bicycle tour from Stockton, Col., to New Mexico, going through Los Angeles, San Diego, Silver City, and El Paso. He claims to be the first bicyclist who ever made a tour through the Indian country of Arizona.

THE wheelmen of Buchtel College, Ohio, are about to form a club.

PIETRO P. CAPRONI, one of our Boston League members, has gone to the home of his boyhood, "Lucca per Barga, Italy," on an eight months' vacation to recruit his health. He has taken his wheel with him, and anticipates much enjoyment riding over the smooth roads and under the bright skies of his native land.

REV. J. D. PICKLES, of the Lynn First Methodist Church, delivered a special sermon last Sunday evening, when the Lynn Bicycle Club was invited to attend. The subject of the discourse was "The Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde."

W. W. CRANE, of New Orleans, asks us to say in his behalf that he withdrew from the Bicycle South some time since at his own volition and option, and without anything to his discredit. He wishes us to do this on account of the continued appearance in that paper of a notice to the effect that he is no longer connected with it, which carries the impression that his connection with that journal had not been desirable to its proprietors.

CAPT. J. S. LOWELL, of the Roxbury Club, has lately entered the bonds of matrimony. The club called on him last week, and presented him with several pieces of silverware. President Emery made the presentation speech.

THOMAS STEVENS will begin lecturing in England on Jan. 20. Engagements have been made from that date to the middle of February. Thirty lectures in all will be delivered.

THE ladies are out and exploring the North Shore roads. We hope the clerk of the weather will be gallant enough to give them good weather.

THOSE who think of touring abroad should communicate with the Foreign Marshal, Jo. Pennell, if they are in need of information concerning roads and routes.

EDITOR FOURDRINIER will no doubt be opposed to road racing in the future.

THE American team have changed their minds regarding the length of their sojourn in Europe. The latest announcement of "Senator" Morgan was to the effect that the team would shortly leave for home, instead of remaining there till spring. Socially and financially, however, the trip is stated to have been a thorough success. Temple has been the most successful of the trio, having won thirty-five first prizes, seven seconds, two thirds, and made two dead heats. Among those whom he has beaten are Howell, English, Lees, Battensby, and W. Wood. Howell is the only one who has lowered his colors at his favorite distances, while in their first series of races Temple beat the Englishman once, dead-heated him, and was once beaten by him. He has ridden a mile in 2.35 1-2, and half a mile in 1.13 1-2.

THE death from over-exertion of the young man who rode from Oakland to San José on Sunday, the 11th inst., should be a warning to those who attempt feats of endurance without proper preparation. It seems he attempted to ride to San José within a given time on a wager. He made it in three hours and twenty minutes, the distance from where he started probably being forty miles. He was a new and inexperienced rider, and simply unfit for such a ride. The day was very warm, and reaching San José very much heated, he is said to have drank freely of ice water. This did not seem to have had any immediate effect, however, for he returned on the train apparently all right. Several days later he died. As the lower part of the body was paralyzed, the trouble was evidently of a cerebro-spinal nature. — San Francisco Chronicle.

THERE is no need to inform our myriads of readers that the editor and staff have a knowledge truly surprising, and, unlike the generality of great minds, descending to tha smallest detail connected with the simplest subject, but the pertinacious correspondent who weekly fires off the question, "Which is the best machine?" is earnestly entreated to cease. We are pleased at all times to give an opinion as to the merits of any particular make of the cycle, — but as to the machine, we would suggest that the querist locks himself in a quiet room with a supply of wet towels and other stimulants, all the makers' lists he can get hold of, and finds out for himself. We cannot just now remember the author of the following lines, but they evidently allude to the subject: —

Ev'ry cherub born 's the best,
Ev'ry mother 's got it;
What a blessing! sets at rest
Great desire to spot it.
Ev'ry cycle follows suit
In happy imitation,
Ending all absurd dispute
About a jigger's station!

— Bicycling News.

A LITTLE item appeared in print a few days ago about a Boston coachman who drove home with a paper bag of crackers, and left his passengers at the grocery. It was recalled by an incident witnessed last week on Massachusetts Street. A bicycler was wheeling along leisurely toward Richmond Avenue, keeping well to the right of the street. In the opposite direction was coming a carriage — on the box a figure in a tall hat, bright buttons, and other insignia of a coachman. On it came, like a thing of life, looking neither to the right nor left. In the left hand was a long, straight whip, projecting horizontally beyond the side of the carriage several feet. The carriage was to the left of the centre of the street, yet not a move was made toward turning out for the wheelman, who was riding close to the curb. Passers-by became interested to see the outcome, wondering whether the man on the wheel would scoot across the street, jump the curbstone, or ride straight ahead, and get the projecting whip across the face. Just as he met the whip, up went his left hand like a flash, and — zip! it had lost its whip. The wheelman carried it five or six rods, and then dropped it, and continued his leisurely pace. The coachman painfully dismounted, and his face actually had an expression on it as he went back for his whip. — Buffalo News.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

WARREN, Oct. 3, 1887.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, L. A. W. DIVISION.

EVERY member of the L. A. W. residing in the District of Columbia is requested to meet at League headquarters, 1023 Twelfth Street, N. W., Tuesday, Oct. 11, 1887, at 8 P. M.

It is hoped that every League man who reads this notice will think it is intended alone for him, and not for the other fellow; and, therefore, that so special an invitation will be sure to induce him to be on hand.

Livelier interest in League wheeling matters is the business to be transacted.

EDWARD BALTZLEY, Sec.-Treas.

RULES COMMITTEE.

To the President and Board of Officers, L. A. W.:

Gentlemen, — In view of the proposed reorganization of the League in the near future, your committee on Rules and Regulations has thought it best to make no changes in the present by-laws that did not seem absolutely necessary, and will, therefore, have no report to present for your consideration at your meeting in New York, Oct. 17.

CHARLES S. BUTLER, Chairman.

Messrs. SHARE and WILLIAMS, concurring.

BUFFALO, Sept. 23, 1887.

APPLICATIONS FOR MEMBERSHIP.

The following is a list of applications for membership received up to date, and published in accordance with Article III. of the Constitution, which is as follows: —

"Any amateur wheelman, in good standing, eighteen years of age or over, shall, with the indorsement of two League members in good standing, or of three reputable citizens of the United States or Canada, be eligible to membership in this League upon payment of an initiation fee of one dollar, and such dues for the year as may be provided for in the By-Laws. Upon the approval of the Board of Officers, or a committee thereof, two weeks after the publication of the name in a list of candidates in the official organ of the League, the applicant shall become a member."

Applicants will please bear in mind that in addition to the two weeks, as above, it must necessarily take several days for their tickets to be issued, as it passes through two hands before being mailed to them. After four weeks from date of publication they may look for tickets.

It is expected, and it is the duty of all members to examine the list of applications for their respective States, and report at once any error in name or address, and see that no objectionable person is admitted to the League. Any objection must be made to the Secretary within two weeks from date of publication. It will be considered confidential.

Candidates will please notice if their names and addresses are correct.

HOW TO MARKET MANUSCRIPT.

If you have any original matter, essays, articles, poems, sketches, short stories, or pen-and-ink drawings that you wished published, send two-cent stamp to THE MANAGERS' NATIONAL LITERARY AND NEWS BUREAU, Box 722, NEW YORK, and they will send you a circular explaining how, and on what terms, they will dispose of your manuscript to newspaper or magazine publishers. They are personally acquainted with the editors of all the leading newspapers and periodicals in the United States, and, knowing the style of matter wanted by each, they can dispose of any literary matter that possesses merit, and do so more quickly and obtain better price than the author could.

HARRY AMSDEN, of Clinton, Mass., has sent us a copy of the Atlanta Constitution, with an account of the moving grand-stand road race, which we indicated in a late number that we had never heard of. It was run on the road between Fairburn and Atlanta, Ga., and the riders were in full view over the whole course of the people on a special train running along on rails parallel to the highway. When a rider became disabled, the train would stop and take him up. The audience on the train was kept at a high pitch of enthusiasm the whole diatance.

MANUSCRIPT BROKERS.

THE New York Journalist of Sept. 24 says: — "We believe, as the old darkey asserted, that 'the world do move,' and we like to be well ahead in the movement. A firm of manuscript brokers, called the National Literary and News Bureau, has been started in New York. Abundant capital is in the hands of experienced and successful journalists and literary men, to make the new scheme a success. We know the men, and know them to be reliable, energetic, and already successful. They propose to handle manuscripts for authors on a commission basis. They are personally acquainted with all the leading editors of periodicals, magazines, and large newspapers in this country. Having had considerable experience both in buying and selling manuscript, they are in an excellent position to do the best for their customers and themselves. It is also a labor-saving scheme, for the editor as well as the writer. For the MSS. which go to an editor's desk with the indorsement of these gentlemen, will be received with more consideration than when it comes from an unknown author; while, on the other hand, it brings to the aid of the author the experience and business acumen of men who have been long in literature and journalism, and who know just where an article will sell, and how much to charge for it.

It is a good plan all around, and deserves success because it is a step forward. It simplifies business, and works well at both ends."

We don't go in for track racing very heavily, but then, you know, we are "in the swim."

AT NEW ORLEANS OUR ROAD MACHINES CAME OVER THE TAPE FIRST, IN SIX OUT OF THE NINE EVENTS.

THE CHAMPION

Also captured all, or nearly all, the Medals and Prizes at

MEMPHIS, TENN., CLARKSVILLE, TENN., AND PAOLA, KAN.

Then take that Professional Handicap at North Attleboro' the other day, when Munger won easily, with Rowe, McCurdy, Hollingsworth, and others in the field. Munger rode an ordinary LIGHT CHAMPION, while all his competitors were on 21-pound wheels. The LIGHT CHAMPION took first in every event at Parker, Dak., on September 17, ridden by Frank Montelius.

There's no use talking, the bearings are bound to get there, even if the machine is heavy and made for the road, and when one does ride the CHAMPION on the road, he simply says "MY! it's the easiest running wheel I ever saw." A further acquaintance with the American Cycles can be had by applying for our catalog.

Below we give you the size and full description of racing wheels in stock, numbered in such a way that they can be easily ordered. We have made this list, showing the present selling price of the Racers, also the special price at which we offer them to close. In addition to this we propose to accept bids on any machine in the list, up to September 15th, which bids will be carefully recorded, and any wheels that have not been sold at the regular price, at that date, will be forwarded to the highest bidder.

To insure the genuineness of the bids, each bid must be accompanied by a check for $5.00, for which a receipt will be given, showing the number of the machine for which the bid has been made, and in case the machine has been sold, or has had a higher bidder, the money will be refunded Oct. 1, 1887.

The reputation of the Rudge Racer for strength, durability and speed, has earned for it the name of "King of the Path," and parties wishing a racing wheel, cannot do better than provide themselves by this sale. They are all in good order, fitted with racing saddle, spade handles, and racing rat-trap ball pedals.

WEEKS ago the New York meeting of the Board of Officers bade fair to be a very dull, uninteresting, and unimportant gathering, but as the day draws near for the meeting, it would appear that very many matters of importance will come up for consideration, and those who had determined not to go are packing up their gripsacks. It will be an important and therefore an interesting meeting. The Tri-mountain party goes to Manhattan on Saturday.

FOR the first time since Outing has been known to wheelmen, its pages are, this month (October), without any cycling matter whatever. Wheelmen have continued to take it of late for the sole purpose of reading the narrative of the bicycle journey around the world, for there has been no other cycling matter worth speaking of for months past. In the present number, even that is omitted. The "Editor's Open Window," however, contains an intimation that the series will be continued next month. We hope this promise is not on a par with sundry other promises that Outing's New York management has from time to time indulged in, and then seemed to forget all about. If Outing has given up cycling, we presume that an explanation from its cycling editor would be of interest to many members of the L. A. W.

THE World takes us to task because we do not recognize the "Ives" record, in giving credit to Dingley in his recent performance. The League has nothing whatever to do with professional records, but the editor of the BULLETIN tries to be awake to the news and the issues of the day, and he has a litttle book in which he keeps professional records, which he regards as reliable. The Ives record (?) never went down in our book, for we did not consider it one worthy of recording. The rider was timed by inexperienced timers with cheap time pieces, not fit to be used for a distance greater than five miles. The natural consequence was that the watches ran wildly, and the timers themselves were not ready to vouch for all the records, and they threw out as unworthy of consideration all times for distances above seventy-five miles. This run for a record was made to beat the time made by members of the Columbia team, who ran under the eye and hand of experienced timers, holding watches valued at $1,200. The aggregate value of the watches held by the Ives officials was less than fifty dollars. We refused to put the figures on our books at the time, and have never considered them as records.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

"You must write up that ladies' tour. It was altogether an affair of the ladies, and a lady should be its historian."

This to me from the editor.

"But, my dear friend, I don't know what to say about it. I can't put it all into a tract, and you won't place a volume at my disposal."

This from me to the editor.

"Don't worry about space. Make it interesting, and you can have all the space you want. Go ahead and rush along your copy."

This from the editor to me.

And so here I am to tell you that the ladies' third annual tour to the North Shore of Massachusetts is a memory only, but a memory crowded with so much interest, so many incidents, so much experience, and so much fun, that I almost despair of writing a history that shall do it justice.

IF I put it before you in instalments, don't blame me. If you don't find it running into my letters for months to come, I shall be surprised, for it has given me very much choice material, which I shall put up in my mental preserve jars to be used when winter's snows make wheeling impossible.

HERE is our roster. I will use an asterisk to denote those who were with us last year:—

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stall,* of Brighton. In Mr. Stall see our efficient, energetic, and very emphatic tourmaster and photographer.

Mr. and Mrs. Abbot Bassett,* of Chelsea. In Mr. Bassett please to recognize our knight of the notebook and secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hopkins,* Wellington. In Mr. Hopkins do not fail to observe our conversationist and our patient and resigned rearguard, whose duty it was to encourage the laggards, keep the ambulance in trim, see that accidents were quickly repaired by the knight of the tool-box, and to make himself generally useful, while the crowd ahead was having all the fun. In Mrs. Hopkins find our musical artist, our impersonator, and the chaperon of the little girls of the party.

Dr. and Mrs. Wyman, of New Bedford, and the "dog Sport." In Dr. Wyman you may see the one who kept us free of strange dogs by driving them away from his own by the use of sundry missiles, etc. The dog won the hearts of all the ladies.

H. L. Spencer, of Pawtucket, R. I., and Miss S. Gertie Howard, of Chelsea. In Mr. Spencer behold our artist, who employed himself with his sketch-book, choosing subjects from many ridiculous situations in which the party placed itself, and from the natural beauties of the country.

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Gilbert, of Waltham. In Mr. Gilbert also see one of our artists.

Misses Maggie* and Jennie Kirkwood, of Maplewood. Our children, aged respectively seventeen and fourteen, young in years, but strong in limb and body, and able to keep up with the procession.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Linnell, of Boston Highlands. In Mrs. Linnell we had a sweet singer, a pianist, and a leader of the midnight choruses. While she played, he enjoyed his cigar on the piazza.

Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Southwell, of Charlestown. The survivors of a wrecked machine.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shakespeare, Waltham. The heroes of the only header on the trip.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. McArthur, Malden. Quiet and unobtrusive, but they climbed the hills.

Mr. F. F. Gage, Milton, and Miss Penniman Longwood. Very nice and very sociable.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Mason, New York. Our scorchers. Bright as a sunbeam was she, and always ready for a romp.

Mr. T. A. Raisbeck and Miss Adelaide Raisbeck, New York. Our distant friends. We were glad to have them compliment us by coming so far to join us.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cary, Malden. Who did n't know how far they could go, but went the whole trip nearly.

Mr. F. M. Gorrie and Miss Lane, of Boston. Late comers, but welcome.

Mrs. Mary Noyes* and Mrs. Waters, Lynn.

Nineteen ladies; fifteen gentlemen.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Rush Green,* Somerville (one day).

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Smith,* Merrimac (one day).

Mr. J. B. Seward, Chelsea (one day).

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Conant, Salem (two days).

Mr. William H. Hollis and Miss Nellie Hollis, Chelsea (one day).

Sundry other polite escorts and companions by the way, including Capt. Peck and a delegation from the Massachusetts Club, the Beverly Club, the Salem Club, the Chelsea Club, friends in every town and city on the route, to say nothing of the assembly of friends at the start.

WE met according to the official schedule at nine o'clock in Malden Square. Here many people came to see us start, and the riders who go out with us to dinner the first day were on hand. The barge "Gem" was loaded with our luggage and the spare wheels carried to be used in case of breakdowns. A mechanic was taken along to screw up nuts, oil the machines at night, clean the wheels, and repair damages. The barge and the mechanic were among the choicest and most inexpensive luxuries of the trip.

IT did n't take us long to get acquainted. Wheelmen and wheelwomen are always ready to go half way on such occasions, and people become old friends in a remarkably short space of time. Our distant friends, the Masons and Raisbecks of New York, and young Mr. Spencer of Pawtucket, as well as the Wymans of New Bedford and dog Sport, were warmly welcomed.

THE tourmaster decorated each of us with a silk badge with bullion tassel. Purple (League color), for the rank and file, and crimson for the committee. The secretary set us all into fidgets by announcing that he had lost his gold League badge. We sympathized with him, and a general search was instituted. We did n't find it. He found it that night in his pocket.

WE are off at 9.50. Only twenty minutes after advertised time. Good. Punctuality is one of the virtues often proclaimed, but seldom lived up to. All goes smoothly as the summer sea, until we get to Tower Hill. The Dentist has a hard time and is in troubled waters; but he pushes hard, and makes no complaint. At Tower Hill the mechanic looks at the machine, and announces a broken axle. A spare wheel comes out of the barge, and the lady goes in. The wreck goes to Boston, and smoothness once more prevails. Here we meet the Lynn delegation

SALEM is in holiday attire. The Odd Fellows are out, and banners wave from many roofs. Hector says, "The Odd Fellows are going through Salem, and there 'll be nothing left for us to eat at the hotels; and so we are going through Salem to Beverly." This is one of the many poor jokes perpetrated on the way. Brother Mason spoke to a gamin, and gave him some friendly advice. He was tartly told to "shut up." That urchin did a naughty thing. His evil example was quickly followed, and the epithet was used to squelch enthusiasm time and again on the road. The tourmaster had it at his tongue's end, and it dropped off on the slightest provocation.

AT Beverly we dined at the Trafton House. Forty covers were laid. If Minna Caroline Smith had looked in upon us then I think she would have been proud to be present with such a goodly company, for she organized and carried out the first ladies' run of the series, and gave us the idea which has been so successfully built upon in the years since.

THE dinner was good, and it was well served. Cyclers are a hungry set, and hotel keepers do well when they bring all the food on at once. A group of cyclers like this will keep the ordinary number of waiters busy in supplying water and coffee.

AFTER dinner, Mr. John Wood invited us around to see his steam tricycle. The engineer was getting up his steam, and as the gauge registered 80, 90, 100, 110, the gentlemen began to turn away. "By George!" said one gentleman to me, "I have been on a big steamer where they run it with only thirty pounds of steam. I'm going over to the hotel." Just then a man came up and said the pressure was up to one hundred and thirty pounds, and my friend rapidly disappeared. I was going, too, but the gentlemen said it was a high-pressure engine and there was no danger, and so I remained till I found I was the only lady with curiosity enough to go into a large crowd of gentlemen to inspect a tricycle, and then I retired discreetly and watched the machine at a distance. It ran smoothly, leaving behind it a trail of smoke from the escape pipe.

I DON'T want a steam tricycle. There is oil and dirt enough to suit me in the pedomotive machine, and I don't need a fire to keep warm. I can imagine that one would have little work to do on a vehicle of this kind, and if we consider utilitarianism, there is a demand for such a machine; but we lose the sport when the steam engine comes in.

I FORGOT to say that Beverly is noted for its baked beans. I do not dare say how many times the dish was replenished at the New Yorkers' table, and I can readily believe what one young lady said, who remarked, "The New York people are eating nothing but beans."

GOOD by, Beverly, and good by to our friends who turn back at this point. Our afternoon ride was through a country abounding in the richest and grandest of scenery. Spencer mounted a stone post and caught us in his sketch-book once, having Manchester for a distant background. The tourmaster's wife runs away with the tandem every time he gets off to review the parade.

NOW we approach Gloucester. A reporter comes out to meet us in a hack. He stations himself at Sawyer's Hill to see how many will climb it. He does n't see any one make the attempt. Lady tricycle tourists are not ambitious for hill climbing records at the end of a thirty-mile ride. Here is what he got from the tourmaster: "Say, old man, come out here when we go home and see if we don't all coast down it."

GLOUCESTER, Pavilion, mine host Davis, a bath, boiled clams and lobster. These interested us now. The evening was a jolly one. We had music, vocal and instrumental, the waltz, the polka, the Virginia Reel. We had all of those after we went to bed, for the natives had possession of the hotel for a dance, and the overflow swarmed into the parlor, where noisy choruses ran rampant. And now I will leave the party courting — no, twosing,— that's the new word used on the tour — the drowsy god, and order brakes on and a halt at this point till our next.

THE OWL.

MY sable brother the "Raven" has taken my view of the Central Park parade project exactly. There will be no parade, because this description of celebration will not meet with support from any of the influential city clubs, who believe that such a form of jubilation would only engender a further bad feeling between wheelmen and the already displeased Park Commissioners, who would not under any circumstances grant a permit for the affair to take place, even though it was otherwise a success, which it certainly is not. To such wheelmen as are actually worrying for a celebration over the passage of the Liberty Bill, I certainly see no better way than that proposed by the "Raven," i. e., contribute to the payment of the expense of its passage, by remitting their subscriptions to Chief Consul Bidwell, and then if they still have a surplus of enthusiasm and coin, let them thunk up some other more sensible method of jubilation.

WHILE on the subject of Central Park, I would request from such wheelmen as ride there an act of justice on their part, which will at the same time prove to be one of profit to them. There are, I believe, only three first-class places of entertainment in the park boundaries, viz., Mt. St. Vincent, Claremont and the Casino. At the two last-named, which are certainly the most inferior ones of the lot, wheelmen are given plainly to understand that their custom is neither appreciated nor desired, while at Mt. St. Vincent, Mr. McCann, the proprietor, as soon as the passage of the Liberty Bill gave wheelmen a chance to dismount at his hospitable doors, issued an order that all cyclists should be a twenty per cent discount upon anything they might order. Now I want wheelman to profit by his generosity, and give unto this gentleman any trade that they may have, believing that this is only justice. In religion it may be right to do unto others as you would have them do unto you, but as a rule, I have observed that in wheeling it is well to do unto others as they do unto you, and thus, when any one like Mr. McCann makes an exception in the favor of wheelmen, I think that they should in their turn patronize him in preference to any other less obliging boniface, and I therefore make this notice of the fact, and request for it the attention of my readers.

WHAT a pleasure it must be to be a first-class racing man and feel one's ability, just to enter the Bay City Wheelman's races and take the pick from such elegant prizes as they offer! Here are a few of them: Pair dancing pumps. Pair custom pants. Shaving set. Pair fine shoes. Odor case. Archery bow. Dunlap hat. Ocarina, and an Edam cheese. Could art or good taste suggest aught else for the encouragement of manly contests? Look upon this, ye athletes of old! Did Greece even in her palmiest days award the victor of her Olympic games prizes anything that compared with an Edam cheese, or a pair of custom pants? Compare the return home of the victorious youth of ancient Greece with nought but a laurel wreath upon his brow to show for his prowess, with that of a modern athlete who comes back triumphant from Bay City. His parents espy him from afar, and seeing a Dunlap hat up on his head, a pair of custom made pants upon his legs, an ocarina in his eye, and his mouth full of Edam cheese, they know their darling boy has "got there" once again.

I REMEMBER a remark made by Corey some years ago, when standing with him upon the judges' stand at Albany, viewing some well contested races held under the auspices of Albany Club, that I have often intended to put into print, but have always forgotten to do so till now. A close and desperate finish had just been run, and the air yet rung with the cheers of the victor's friends when I turned to Corey and said, "Personal interest aside, Harry, is not a racing wheel the furth rest degree removed from what constitutes the true charm of wheeling?" "I don't know but what you are right," he said. "Neither of those wheels just ridden is of the least use from a practical point of view, and they certainly are not desirable for touring purposes. They seem to me to stand in the same relation to cycling that the race horse does to the draft horse, with the difference that, like O'Connell's mule, they have neither pride of ancestry, nor hope of posterity." And the more I have thought of it, the more I am convinced that he was very near correct.

PROBABLY no one thing causes a writer in the press so much gratification as to see the work of his pen quoted in other papers, and credited to him, and nothing so exasperates him, as to see the same article pirated, and published by some one else as original. It is hard to protect ones self against this last abuse, and the wheel press is probably the most notorious of any I have ever worked on, in their lifting and non-crediting abilities. Just to make a trial to see to what an extent this was indulged in, some months since, I penned a note to the effect that Fred Russ Cook was matched to race against a racing ostrich, and turned the item loose in a daily paper. There was not one iota of fact in the squib and yet I have counted twenty-eight different appearances of it, nine of which were in wheel papers here and abroad. Now that it's all over with, I just make these remarks for the benefit of those who steal and think that they are safe from detection.

THE presence of the Rover-typed safeties, and of cripper steering trikes has lately been utilized abroad for the introduction of a novelty in indoor entertainments, under the title of "cycling jousts." The game consists of two riders mounted upon similar typed wheels, that is, either bicycles or tricycles, and each armed with a lance of ash about six feet in length, the end of which is covered by a heavily padded boxing glove. The contestants are then placed facing each other, at the opposite ends of the arena, and at a given signal charge at each other at full speed, the effort of each being to unseat the other, by bringing the boxing gloved lance against his antagonist's head or body. It is claimed that these tournaments are rare sport for the spectators and repairers, but my informant is discreetly silent as regards the pleasure of the contestants, but of course they must enjoy it, or else why would they enter into it.

THE donation of $100 by the New York Bicycle Club to the subscription to defray the expense of the passage of the Liberty Bill, shows that they mean to honor their position as the first club in the L. A.W., by being the first — and seemingly the only — club to go down in their pockets in response to the New York Division's appeal for aid. There is both a moral and example here that our other city clubs might do well to study and follow.

THE recent bid for the wheelmen's vote in New York State by the George party, who promised in return for it the placing of convicts upon road improvements, reminds me of a trick played by a shrewd Irishman upon his constituents in one of the down-town wards. He promised to build a bridge to Ireland if he was elected. Well, every Irishman worked hard and voted often, and he was elected by an overwhelming majority, but the bridge is not built yet. The only mistake George makes is in taking wheelmen for the same class of voters, when they are not.

THE OWL.

ST. LOUIS.

OUR season of twin agonies, — the Division meet and the Manchester road race, — has come and gone, and we still live. Not only that we live without any bitter feelings toward anybody, that is, no more than we used to have. As non-producers of bad feelings the events were successes; in other respects, failures. There was but a handful of wheelmen at the Missouri club house, Saturday evening, to attend the annual meeting of the division. I think that the small attendance was due more to a mistake about the meeting place than to indifference. At first it seemed as if the bloody scenes of the last annual meeting, in May, 1886, would be re-enacted. When Chief Consul Brewster went to take the chair, somebody noticed that he was wearing long pants and a dudish gray overcoat that gave him a very swell appearance. "Here," said one fellow in the rear, "this will never do. Can't allow this. It's treachery. Like Bougwan in 'King Solomon's Mines,' you must take those pants off." The sentiment grew, and a revolt seemed imminent, when Brewster arose and said he appreciated the apparent breach of cycling etiquette which, under ordinary circumstances, would be enormous, he admitted. But he had hurt his back severely while trying to butt a hole in Cincinnati ground a week ago, and he was still unable to get on a wheel. He hoped the gentlemen (and here he put great stress on the "gentlemen") would pardon the breach. The "gentlemen," touched by their chief's lamentable experience, pardoned the breach and the breeches, and proceeded with business. Brewster had a great deal to say in his report of his own unfitness and the great fitness of the several representatives, all of which did not go down. He advised the division to revise the Constitution and appoint a committee for the purpose, which latter was done, A. C. Stewart, the attorney, being made chairman. Brewster said the road book could not be got out by Oct. 1, and it had therefore been postponed till Jan. 1. Bets of ten to one that it would n't be issued then were offered sotto voce at this point, but found no takers. Another good suggestion was made by the chief consul to the effect that chairmen of committees be elected, and that they be allowed to select their own committee. Brewster said this would promote harmony, friction-less working, and subserve the interests of cycling.

THE report of the secretary-treasurer disclosed a gain of eighty-eight members from December to October, and a total membership now of three hundred and forty-six, an increase of nearly one hundred in less than twelve months, about ten a month. The apportionment of $250 from the meet surplus had swelled the treasury and enabled the balance to show up to the extent of $376.85, the largest balance the division ever had, an announcement which was greeted with manifestations of delight.

THE Cycle Club seemed disposed to let by-gones be by-gones, and when Ab. Lewis was renominated for secretary-treasurer there was no voice raised in opposition, and he was elected by acclamation. The new committees for the ensuing year were constituted as follows: Touring: C. H. Stone, St. Louis; DeTar, Kansas City; Sergeant, Joplin; Cake, Clarksville; Miller, Hannibal. Racing: Walter Wylie, Alex. Lewis, E. N. Sanders, E. A. Smith, St. Louis, and E. A. Clifford, Clarkesville. That ended the business of the meeting.

THE starters with their handicaps in Saturday's race from Manchester to the pump, on the Forest Park boulevard, were Snyder, Sanders, Lewis, scratch; Hurck, 2; Smith, 3; Davidson, Mehlig, 4; Downing 4 1-2; Baker, 8. The officers of the race were: W. M. Brewster, referee; C. F. A. Beckers, starter; Lindell Gordon, C. H. Belden and A. K. Stewart, judges: C. H. Belden, Walter Wylie and A. K. Stewart, handicappers. The story is easily told. Smith and Davidson were never caught sight of by the scratch men. A dismount had to be made at Christovel's as the road across to Forest Park was unridable. There Smith and Davidson were together, but in getting across the muddy piece, Smith gained about twenty seconds, and won only by that much. Sanders got away from Alex. Lewis in the same way, and catching Mehlig at the last turn into the boulevard, beat him in by twenty feet, and won third prize, Mehlig getting fourth. Lewis came in right after them. Then Hurck, Baker, Snyder and Downing straggled in. The road, though rained on for five days previous, was in good condition, except the last muddy section. The time would have been under an hour if the boys could have got a chance to train the week before. As it was, Sander's time lowered Percy Stone's record of 1.05. H. W. Baker's time was an eye-opener to his friends, and young Davidson, who is from Little Rock, Ark., and attends the Christian Brothers' College, is considered now a very good man for the scratch next time. Alex. Lewis got a sideache near the Kirkwood Crossing and had to dismount. He caught Sanders again at Bartold's Hill, but was coached wrong by Prof. Stone when he reached the mud, and got left like Davidson. The time of each for the sixteen miles, counting the handicaps, was in the order they arrived: Smith, 1.04.15; Davidson, 1.05.35; Sanders, 1.02.30; Mehlig, 1.06.35; Lewis, 1.03; Hurck, 1.07.25; Baker, 1.15 30. Downing and Snyder practically fell out of the race, and the former fell into the biggest mudhole on the road, which played havoc with a very showy pair of blue tights. The prizes were: First, $50 silver cup; second, $25 gold medal; third, Jersey suit; fourth, cyclometer.

THE Spectator has much to say about the ungraceful bending over which many riders indulge in; but I would like to say a word against the more common bow-legged riding in which the knees play not up and down, but in and out apparently, and I doubt if anything has a more prejudicial effect on the general public than this style of riding. I remember when I began riding that the chief question directed at me was, "Does n't cycling make a person bow-legged?" Now, where did this question originate? In the "spread" motion of the careless rider, whose legs looked bow legged on the wheel, and therefore, asked he public, why not on the ground? This habit of riding, I have no doubt, comes in a great measure from riding with long pants. In a desire to keep he bottoms out of the spokes the latter naturally bows his legs out, and when long pants are used much for riding the habit becomes fixed. The man cuts the best figure awheel both for himself and his machine by keeping the inner side of the knee almost rubbing the forks. Better rub them than not. It will keep your forks nicely polished, and straighten your legs. "Polishing the forks" to me seems the best way of avoiding this "spread" style of riding.

THE meetings of the Board of Officers of the Division at Chief Consul Brewster's residence have been very pleasant affairs this summer. The business has all been transacted promptly, but Brewster has made the occasions quite like social reunions. It is said that when Frank J. Suda, the new representative, kicked at first about not proceeding with business, somebody took hold of his ear and said, "Here now, don't get excited. Business is business, but fun is fun, and don't you forg t it." When the evening's duties and pleasures passed off with great eclat, Suda was quite taken with the graceful way of combining work and pleasure. This hint, if used by other chief consuls, may do away with that apathy which some chief consuls complain of in the board's attitude toward its meetings.

OMEN.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 3.

JERSEY.

THE annual ten-mile handicap club road races of the Elizabeth and Hudson County wheelmen called out quite a gathering of cyclers at Irvington, on Saturday afternoon. The course was from the Irvington Hotel to Milburn and return. There was almost a dead calm, but the surface of the road was dusty and in far from high-class trim.

THE H. C. W. race was started first with the following contestants: Charles E. Kluge, scratch; C. A. Stenken, 1m.; E. P. Baggot, 2m.; William Eldridge, 5m. Stenken and Eldridge rode Stars, and the other two Columbia Light Roadsters. There was some surprise at the handicapper giving Stenken so much start over Kluge, and the others so little. The limit men were caught and passed before the turn was reached. The following was the order of finish and actual times made, or rather approximate, for they were taken with an ordinary watch: Stenken, first, 35.00; Kluge, second, 35.05, beaten sixty feet; Baggot, third, 39.30; Eldridge, fourth, 43.00. The performances of Stenken and Kluge were highly meritorious, and far ahead of any previous records over the course.

AT 4.05 the Elizabeth Wheelmen racers were sent on their way, as follows: —

W. H. Caldwell,	Columbia L. R.	Scratch
S. B. Bowman,	Star,	Scratch

Berry had been under-estimated by the handicappers, and won as he pleased. He is but a recent convert to the crank wheel, had done but little riding, and little was expected of him. Gilbert and Chandler were new hands at racing The latter had to give up the battle at two miles, as his rachet spring broke. The men finished as follows: —

	At.	Actual Time.
1 Berry,	4.44.44	39.44
2 Gilbert,	4.51.14	41.44
3 Caldwell,	4 52.17½	37.17½
4 Bonnett,	4.52.57	41.57
5 Bowman,	4.53.27	38.28

Meda's were awarded the first three men, and Caldwell won the championship and a special prize by making the fastest actual time. JER. C.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE Press cycle man advances an excellent idea in last Sunday's paper. He proposes inter-club runs. What a run it would be, to be sure, that included Cal. Wallace and Don Cæsar, Jno. Wells and Charlie Miller, E. M. Aaron and Frank Read, etc., etc. But perhaps he is right, and a better understanding of each other's views of mooted questions as well as a firmer fellowship might be established by just some such course. John A. Wells has offered a year's subscription to his paper to any one sending in ten miles of unreported roads around Philadelphia. There is room for any one to go north of the city and get such a report of the Montgomery County roads.

FLEMING of the Century has ridden, up to Sept. 25, over 6,300 miles, and fully expects to cover 8,000 before the end of the year.

YOU will remember, Mr. Editor, that some time ago the New York Wheel placed J. W. Powers as at least as good as Crist, and better than Rich. Our flier, L. J. Kolb, was placed, properly too, at about fifth or sixth place. Note then the following report of the national championships: —

At the annual fall meeting of the N. A. A. A. in New York, Sept. 17, all the Philadelphians entered won first prizes in their respective events. W. B. Page won the running high jump with consummate ease, and L. J. Kolb won the one and a half mile bicycle race by a few inches, with J. W. Powers second, and P. M. Harris third.

THE West Philadelphia Athletic Club race meeting, proposed for 22d inst., under the management of "Chris," has been postponed to Oct. 29, on account of the University sports scheduled for the 22d. A wise move.

HARDING of the Vespers, a new club of this city, is doing good work, and should prove to be a first-class flier. If my money were up on a race for the championship of Philadelphia, however, I should want it placed on Isaac Van Deusen, Jr., of the Tioga Cycling Club, whom, I believe, with a little track practice, would be fields ahead of any other racer in the city.

AT the regular meeting of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, on last Thursday evening, between forty and fifty members were present, and measures were taken to clear off the liability standing against the new club house.

AT this meeting Mr. Chares Harvey, of West Philadelphia, and Mr. S. Bernard Chambers, also of West Philadelphia, were elected trustees of the club's mortgage connected with the new club house.

ON Saturday, Oct. 8, Messrs. Jno. A. Wells and Homer Synnesvedt of the Pennsylvania Club, established a twenty-mile tandem record for the road. The course was the same as laid out for the great twenty-mile inter-club road race which never came off — for the "Tioga" cup (somehow that cup has been called the "Tioga Cup" ever since the compositor's blunder in the BULLETIN made it so). Wells and Synnesvedt made the twenty miles in one hour and twenty-three minutes and a fraction, — as good time as either of them has either of them has made on a bicycle, and only four minutes behind Fuller's record. This is really good time and will take a lot of beating. The machine ridden was a Quadrant, geared to fifty-two. The number of vehicles on the road interfered somewhat with fast riding.

MERRYHEW, of the Pennsylvania Club, and McDaniels, of Wilmington, Del., on Sunday last had a try at the troublesome "Pike record" and succeeded in both getting inside of the best previous time. Merryhew did for the fifteen and one half miles fifty-five minutes dead, and McDaniels lowered it still further by getting in in fifty-three minutes forty seconds. Next. PHACTO.

CHICAGO.

THE first annual fall games of the Chicago Amateur Athletic Association were held on their grounds Saturday afternoon, Oct. 1. An excellent programme had been arranged, consisting of the usual athletic sports, and two bicycle events, a one-mile handicap and a five-mile team race for the championship of Chicago.

THE one-mile handicap had a field of nine starters with Ehlert at scratch, and the limit man at the hundred and fifty yard mark. This was a splendid race and resulted in a victory for Fred Van Sicklen, handicap, one-hundred and thirty yards. F. K. Boyden, handicap, one hundred and twenty-five yards, was a good second.

THE Illinois and Owls were the only starters in the team race. Ehlert, Bowbeer and Maas composed the team of the former club, and Winship, Harmon and Sieg represented the latter. Winship was ambitious to lap all of the contestants. This was an easy matter with all save Ehlert, who was an easy winner at the finish of each mile. Bowbeer surprised himself and friends in two ways: First, by keeping third place throughout the race, and second, by riding five miles on the track without falling from his wheel. He was much elated over the victory, and, at the finish of the race, was bawling for a piece of pie. The time 17.06 was remarkable, considering it was made on a heavy cinder track. The points were divided as follows: Illinois, 65; Owls, 46.

THE tug-of-war fever has struck the members of the Illinois Club, and any evening, at their club rooms, you can find a dozen or more awaiting their turn for a three-minute pull. We believe we can defeat the other clubs of the city at this game as easily as we can on the wheel.

THE Æolus Cycling Club has engaged quarters for the winter, at 655 North Robey St., and hope to have same furnished ere the riding season is over.

THE wheelman of Chicago were requested to take part in the procession in honor of the President's visit to the city of inland seas. Chief Consul Van-Sicklen issued an order urging all wheelman to be present. Only sixty five turned out and about fifty of these were from the Illinois Club. Nearly every wheel was gaudily decorated, and as the wheelmen rode slowly down the boulevard, they were heartily cheered by the crowds along the line of march.

TOM ROE is again among us and this time brings a small fortune with him. He is now associated with the firm of S. L. House & Co., agents for the Star bicycles.

CAPT. EHLERT has now under consideration a hare and hound chase for Thanksgiving, while the energetic Bob Garden is thinking over a Pullman road race for Decoration Day of '88.

ENGLISH RECORDS.

C. POTTER won the 50-miles championship of the Surrey Bicycle Club, Sept. 24, only four men coming to the scratch. He lowered the records from 28 to 50 miles. He rode 37 miles 1,420 yards in two hours, and 19 miles 100 yards in one hour. He was not headed from start to finish.

SEPT. 22, Furnivall won the 20-mile championship of his club, the Berretta Bicycle Club, on the Surbiton track. He made the pace the whole way, began record cutting at 11 miles, covered 20 miles 675 yards in the hour, and lowered all English records up to 25 miles, which he covered in 1.3.49 3-5. Cassall pulled the eighteenth mile from the champion.

AT Leicester, Sept. 24, Dubois won the 50-miles international championship from Lumsden, Robb, and Hawker. Woodside was riding strongly when he retired on his 43d mile on account of a break in his wheel. Dubois won by a foot in 3.6.35 1-5.

AT Crystal Palace, Sept. 21, A. L. Bower lowered the tricycle records from 21 to 25 miles, making the latter distance in 1.22.5 4-50, and covering 18 miles 612 yards in the hour, and 20 miles in 1.5.13 2-5. He afterwards captured all records from 26 to 50 miles, same track, and on Oct. 1 covered 100 miles in 6.9.26, and 150 miles in 10.18.29 3-5.

IN the North Road Cycling Club 100 miles open road race, Sept. 24, there were 29 starters on ordinaries, 10 on tricycles, and 8 on tandems. The tricyclists numbered such men as Nixon, Mills, and Fenlon. Hale, on a Premier Safety, won in the unsurpassed time of 6.46.7. Fenlon retired at 11 miles, when his saddle plate split. Brown and White rode 70 miles on a tandem without a dismount. Their full time was 7.6.50. Crooke, on a New Rapid, made the record for ordinaries at 50 and 100 miles, making the latter distance in 7.9.59. G. P. Mills led the tricyclists home in 7.46.33.

TO VIRGINIA L. A. W. MEMBERS.

PURSUANT to notice, the second annual meeting of the Virginia Division was held at Norfolk, Sept. 29 and 30. Thirteen members were present, including one from Richmond, Mr. Thos. H. Hill, chairman State Racing Board. The only member of the board of officers present being Mr. John C. Emmerson, L. C., of Portsmouth.

On calling the meeting to order it was learned that we had no record of the proceedings of the Richmond '86 meeting, no report whatever from the secretary-treasurer, no report from committees said to have been approved at that meeting; in fact, were it not that the chief consul has received his salary as such, very regularly, he would have doubted the official existence of the Virginia Division. One thing fortunately we had in abundance, that was enthusiasm.

With the assistance of League and non-League members of Portsmouth, and our gallant friends of the Washington Cycle Club, marshalled by Chief Consul Pettingill and Captain Smith, the Seaside Club had given a brilliantly successful racing programme in honor of the second annual meet, and it was given under many difficulties, and with many misgivings, for a motion to "make an assessment," there being but seven dollars in the club treasury, was amended "to make an assignment."

After the election of representative, secretary, treasurer, and three members of the Racing Board, Messrs. C. A. Field, Norfolk, T. H. Hill, Richmond, and John C. Emmerson, Portsmouth, were appointed a committee on Constitution and By-Laws, and requested to report as speedily as possible, in order that their report might be printed and submitted to the members of the division, for a mail vote upon their adoption.

The chief consul has every reason to believe this committee will report promptly, and upon the adoption of their report the permanent organization of the Virginia Division will be an accomplished fact, and there is every indication that the division will grow and prosper, by a united effort to advance in every way the interests of the wheel in this State. When a small organization of ten members, with no funds in hand, can give, on a track three miles from the town, a financially successful race meet, and have it made successful by the support of those who but a short time ago signed a petition to the Senate and House of Delegates "to prohibit the use of bicycles, tricycles, or any form of velocipede, on any of the highways of the State of Virginia," it shows a great change in public sentiment in our favor; and the enthusiasm of the spectators assures us that the change is permanent. It rests with the members of the division, by each considering themselves a committee of one, to bring non-members into our fold, to make the third annual meet of the Virginia Division compare favorably with those of the older organizations of the League. This can be accomplished by a determined and united effort on the part of our members, and that it may be so, is the desire of

Fraternally yours,
J. C. CARROLL,
Chief Consul.

LEAGUE OUTFITTER.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Referring to the editorial on the "Club Tailor in Every City" question, and the screech of the "Owl" on the "Misfits of Uniforms," I would state that, from a business standpoint, it would seem to me a matter to be deplored were the contemplated change to be made.

Any division of patronage in a matter of this sort would not result to the advantage of wheelmen at large, for, should "club tailors" be appointed, each could make up but a limited number of suits, and thus lose the principal element of cheapness, while, in the present case, the "League outfitter" makes up thousands of them, and it is patent that in the making and cutting of same a great saving is possible on the score of economy and the saving incident to large operations of any sort. The wheelmen derive the benefit from this.

As an instance, the writer offered to furnish the stuff to his tailor for the pantaloons, and the latter proposed to charge him $5.00 for the making alone, the writer to furnish all other material. The "League outfitter" will provide everything, and charge $4.34 delivered. Again, there is prevailing a general idea that the tailor, like all other parties in business, derives the greater margin of his profit in the furnishing of material, and if this source of profit be removed, would it not be reasonable to suppose that there would be even a greater charge for the mere making of the suits? Now, with special reference to the "Owl," would it not be in order for the possessors of the "misfits" to apply directly to the maker, stating his complaint, rather than to the committee, and thus relieve a very good committee from a great source of annoyance. This would place the blame where lies the power to remedy it.

The writer has dealt for years with the present "League outfitter," finding him always to be gentlemanly and ever ready to remedy the errors of his employees, and it is but fair to suppose him to be consistent and ready to remedy any misfits he may make.

Possibly the great majority of errors in suits is due to faulty measurement of the members, owing to their inability to properly apply the instructions given them. Their only remedy, then, is to blame a very patient committee or the much-abused tailor. Another point may not be unworthy of mention: While there may be a number of League members who have the means to pay the higher prices such a change would engender, yet many others are not so fortunately situated, and rather than be compelled to undergo the heavy additional expenses imposed upon him, such a member would resign, for no true lover of the wheel desires to be "of the League" without all of its accompanying necessities. The loss of membership from such a cause might result in serious detriment to the future prospects of the League we all love so well.

L. A. W. NO. 16,680.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3, 1887.

FROM MR. SHRIVER.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Since the protests against my recent political circular, which have been sent to you, are sufficiently numerous to demand your notice, I will ask just a line or two. First, to make plain to every one that no League official furnished me with the list of names used, and which was mainly compiled from the weekly application lists as published in the BULLETIN for several years back. Second, I want to make a reply to my friends, the protestants, if only to show that I 'm not silent under rebuke. I did nothing in this matter that I had not a right to do, nothing that I 'm ashamed of; and while I didn't in the beginning think the affair was one of such magnitude as to be specially proud of, it seems to have stirred up an amount of opposition that is positively gratifying. My circular was in no sense an official one, nor did it pretend to be. The explanatory note as to who I happen to be (a representative, etc.) was marked as an explanatory note, so plainly that no one with the slighest knowledge of English grammar could mistake it. The presumptive fraternity of the League was used by me as a means of introduction that it might ensure a better hearing, just as a wheelman who was selling goods would be very apt to mention the subject of cycling to a possible customer that was interested in it. Of course, this is a matter that men think strongly about, and a few of the fraternity seem to have lost their heads a trifle. The letters have not all been one way in my own correspondence, for I have heard from men reflecting every shade of opinion.

Yours truly,
EDWARD J. SHRIVER.

NEW YORK Oct. 10, 1887.

MR. SHRIVER'S CIRCULAR.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Your editorial note in the BULLETIN of Oct. 7, censuring an active and hard-working League member for his political actions, seems most unwise. The members you refer to, who think the columns of the BULLETIN the proper place to ventilate their views on political questions, should read the Constitution and By-Laws of the League at least once. The returns from New York this fall will amply vindicate Mr. Shriver's action in doing all in his power to prevent the perpetuation of the corrupt rings that have so long disgraced his city and State, and of the system that encourages their formation.

W. J. ATKINSON.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Oct. 10, 1887.

HEAVY WHEELS — FLORIDA.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — In the BULLETIN of Sept. 22, "Spectator" says in his Chicago notes, commenting on a clipping from a Madison (Wis.) paper: "It is a puzzle to us to know what kind of wheels are used in Madison; also if these were the first Experts ever seen there." The writer, together with George B. Morton, of Chicago, was in Madison in August, 1885, having made that point the terminus of a tour from Chicago via Milwaukee. The writer rode a Victor, and Morton an Expert. At that time there was only one bicycle in the place, and it was a boy's machine (iron tire). It must be that the Madison editor has forgotten that a bicycle was ever there, although the day after we arrived he published a half column description of our wheels.

If George B. Morton is still a member of the L. A. W., I would like to have him send me his address.

If any bicycle riders come to Florida to spend the winter, ask them to bring their wheels with them. You will not regret it. We have on the beach along the Atlantic coast some of the finest riding in the United States, if not in the world. We have from Mayport to St. Augustine about forty miles, a straightaway ride on a road that will equal any race track at Washington or any other place.

THE AGE QUESTION.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — There is a strong feeling in our club in favor of becoming a League club; but there seems to be one insurmountable obstacle in the way. Two of our members are not as yet League members. They are good riders, and in every way worthy, but after repeated research, and many consultations of family records, they are unable to satisfy themselves that they are over eighteen years of age, though both are over seventeen. They certainly will make application for admission to the L. A. W. upon the arrival of their eighteenth birthdays. I write to ask if there is any power in the League which can waive this (pardon me) absurd condition. I say "absurb," not that I think for a moment that our League should be made an organization of children; but I do think that our chief consuls and division committees should have some leeway in cases where circumstances seem to warrant making an exception to the rule. The young men to whom I have referred are in all essentials as fit (and more so) to be members of the League than many members whose years outnumber theirs. This is the only reason we have not ere this registered as a League club, for we all believe in the League with all our hearts.

Pardon my reflection upon a law framed by wiser heads than mine, but it strikes me that way.

FRANK C. BLODGETT,
President Star Bicycle Club, Detroit.

MUSIC IN THE AIR.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — A cyclet in the BULLETIN of Sept. 30, concerning an organ operated by a moving bicycle, suggests an improvement. An attachment might be devised for the hub that would discourse sweet music while it measured the miles. The rider could then start out on a long run to the tune of "Over the Hills and Far away," or rattle off "Oh, Granny, Will Your Dog Bite?" as he passed a farm house.

The advantages of such an invention would be manifold, for as it whiled away the tedium of a long run it would enable the rider by counting the number of times a certain tune was played and without consulting the dial to determine the distance between any two points.

Again, the cylinder containing the pegs might be made so that when the rider tired of that particular assortment of tunes, it could be taken out and replaced by another.

Of course a number of riders going out together and each playing a different tune might produce a rather startling effect.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE event of the week was the lantern parade of the Kings County Wheelmen, held on Wednesday evening last. Formation was made on Brevoort Place, right resting on Bedford Avenue. About three hundred wheelmen werein line, including the Kings County Wheelmen, Brooklyn Bicycle Club, Ilderan Bicycle Club, and Calumet Cycling Club of Brooklyn, the Manhattan Bicycle Club of New York, and a number of unattached riders. Each bicycle rider was provided with two Japanese lanterns suspended from the end of a lath tied across the handle bar, while the tricycles were decorated in many ways according to the fancy of the riders, a tandem ridden by Messrs. Perego and Schwalbach being most elaborately decorated and attracting much attention. The line of march was down Bedford Avenue to the fountain, countermarching to Flushing Avenue, and returning to the headquarters of the Kings County Wheelmen, where a very enjoyable entertainment had been prepared for the edification of the guests. The whole affair was most successful, being the best ever given in this city, and the Kings County Wheelmen deserve the hearty congratulations of all their fellow wheelmen.

The refusal of the Long Island Wheelmen to participate in the parade created much comment. The following clipping from the Eagle will perhaps explain their position, though I question the policy of their action, as it has caused some feeling in local cycling circles: —

"At last evening's meeting of the Long Island Wheelmen, at the club's temporary headquarters on Bedford Avenue, Mr. E. A. Bradford, as chairman of the Executive Committee, announced that the new club-house on Bedford Avenue was completed and paid for, and that the club and its property would probably be moved to the new quarters next week. The house and its appointments are probably among the best for bicycle club purposes in the State.

"Many affairs of club business were discussed and acted upon, not the least among them being the resolution sustaining the action of the road committee in the matter of moonlight and lantern exhibition parades. The sixty members present voted unanimously in favor of the resolution, indicating that the sentiment of the club was decidedly averse to torchlight processions. The club is composed of business and professional men, who ride for recreation and health, and the members have no inclination to indulge in wheeling for exhibition purposes.

"Another important action was the adoption of a constitutional age limit of "at least twenty-one years" as to all future applicants for membership. This amendment was adopted by a vote three to one, as it was apparent that a limit would have to be established, because of the rapid increase of the club membership. The appropriation asked for by the Reception Committee for fireworks was granted. The committee propose to "blow it off" in honor of the Kings County Wheelmen on the occasion of their lantern parade to-night. It is proposed to receive the Kings County boys in a blaze of fire as they pass the Long Island quarters."

Unfortunately the police interfered, and prevented their setting off the fireworks with which they intended to do honor to the occasion.

The bicycle races at the Queen's track, on Saturday afternoon last, were well contested and much enjoyed by all present. Owing to the postponement, the attendance was small. The events and results were as follows: —

Brooklyn Bicycle Club. One-mile Novice.—W. S. Mead won, with W. J. Kenmore, Jr., second. Time, 3.36 3-5.

Queen's A. A. A. One mile Open Novice.—Final heat won by W. S. Mead, B. B. C., with Roy Burton, I. B. C., second. Time, 3.27 1-5.

Brooklyn Bicycle Club. One-mile Championship.—This was hotly contested, and was the most exciting event of the day. G. E. D. Todd won, with W. S. Mead a close second, and N. F. Waters and F. B. Hawkins close up. Time. 3.25 2-5.

Queen's A. A. A. One-mile Handicap Open. — Won by Harold Quartropp, Morris Park Wheelmen (150 yards), with Roy Burton, I. B. C. (150 yards), second. G. E. D. Todd, B. B. C. (scratch), 0. Time, 3.21.

Queen's A. A. A. Two-mile Handicap Open. — Won by Newton F. Waters, B. B. C. (140 yards), with G. E. D. Todd, B. B. C. (scratch), second. Time, 7.14.

The handicaps were entirely too much for the scratch man, and the track, which is six laps to the mile, and was rather rough, owing to recent rain.

We have news this week of the formation of a new bicycle club in our midst, a number of unattached riders meeting together, and organizing a club to be known hereafter in history as the Universal Cycling Club of Brooklyn. The following gentlemen were elected officers: President, O. H. Knapp; Vice-President, F. Miller; Secretary, P. Finn; Treasurer, Fred'k Weaver Captain, Wm. Finn; Lieutenant, W. Stanton; Bugler, Edw. Drew.

Lately considerable attention has been called to the frequent occurrence of rowdyism and hoodlumism on the part of certain individuals in various parts of the country, who unfortunately belong to our wheeling fraternity, and in many instances to respectable clubs. We usually find that the outcry is caused by some brainless bawler, of whom we may be informed that he was either a drunken straggler, or one of those loud-mouthed, unsalted individuals who have arrived at that age when they are neither men nor boys, and in their egotism are totally lacking of the usual common sense of the former, and aspire to show their superiority to the latter by eclipsing them in vulgarity and indecency.

We regard hoodlumism, anywhere and everywhere, particularly in club life, as a crime of the first degree, especially henious, as it issues from no motive other than momentary self indulgence and the desire to annoy and humiliate all respectable auditors.

There is no case that has fallen under our observation where any such person has been punished by his club, and we are advised of but one case where a club called to account a member for disgracing himself and his club for appearing in public a drunken outlaw.

This is perhaps due to delicacy on the part of those witnessing such outrageous proceedings, or the fear that the club will suffer through the exposure. This is a mistake. The sooner the thing is taken in hand, the easier it is to stop it, and the better it will be for the club. It is better to be known that a club was prompt in suppressing vice, than finally to have it leak out that vice was tolerated through fear; and it will surely leak out sometime.

We hold the club to a quick and prompt response to all demands for order, peace, and decorum, for it claims, or should claim, to be a model of all that is best in good administration and good citizenship. The club house is a place to which members resort to enjoy life and come in contact with intelligent examples of mankind, and in this number we do not include drunkards, ruffian brawlers or scapegrace breakers of the peace.

CYCLETS.

NEW YORK,

OCTOBER 17, 1887,

WILL see the fall meeting.

IT will be a large gathering, and many points of interest will be discussed.

ROAD racing will be before the Board on trial. Will the verdict be "guilty?"

WE think the League has enough work to do without adopting a punitive policy in regard to what can well be let alone.

ROWE and Crocker have gone to Atlanta, Ga.

THE Eastern Road Club cup has gone to Chelsea.

THE clerk of the weather was very kind to the ladies.

CHAS. C. RYDER has been elected secretary of the Massachusetts Club.

THE Seaside Club, of Norfolk, Va., has changed its name to "Norfolk Cycle Club."

A RUSH

FOR

THE NEW MAIL!

Since making our offer below, many wheelmen have improved the opportunity of a year to obtain one of these superb wheels, by exchanging their old mounts. Our offer remains open but very short time longer!

GET ONE WHILE YOU CAN.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Our NEW MAIL, through the year, has had an EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND. We have been behind orders since the opening of the season till hot weather set in. Now, as the most active bicycle season is past, though the best riding weather is in the autumn, we have decided to offer for a short time only a few of these SUPERB NEW MAILS in exchange for others. This we have persistently refused to do heretofore, as the demand was so great. Wheelmen desiring to exchange their present old mounts for a

will please give us a description of the old wheel and their estimate of value.. This offer is for no length of time, as we do not care to place many in this way. But few more to be exchanged. WRITE AT ONCE.

WM. READ & SONS,

107 Washington St., Boston.

MR. E. J. SHRIVER rises to explain. Those who have condemned him should read his defence.

THERE will be no race meeting at North Attleboro, Mass., on Oct. 15, as announced in some of the papers.

NEW YORK wheelmen talk of a bowling club for winter. Instead of bowling over the roads they want to bowl along the alley.

THOMAS STEVENS writes that he has not yet closed a contract to lecture in England. He has had an offer, but has not decided to accept it.

FRED T. SHOLES has sent us some views of the starts at the Cleveland races, including an instantaneous view of the finish between Rowe and Crocker.

THE Pope Manufacturing Company has presented Editor Fourdrinier, of the Bicycling World, with a check for fifty dollars, as a contribution toward meeting that paper's loss in the abandonment of the 1,000-mile road race.

DR. W. G. KENDALL was unanimously elected to the office of first lieutenant of the Boston Bicycle Club, in place of Theodore Roethe, resigned The club is the recipient of an elegant album of photographs taken by the doctor. The collection is the joint gift of Dr. Kendall and W. B. Everett.

WHEN respectable M. F. J. A. Webber was visiting Venice early this year, a bicycle race took place, for which a prize equal in value to fifteen guineas was given. You are asked to imagine the feelings of Webber at seeing a Venetian nobleman win in the much applauded time of seven minutes to the mile.—Wheeling.

THE Technology Club, composed of Boston "Tech" students, has organized for the season with the following officers: President, William H. Merrill; vice-president, M. Rollins; secretary treasurer, George M. Basford; captain, E. S. Hutchins; first lieutenant, C. H. Warner; second lieutenant, Charles Heyden; bugler, George A. Hilton; color bearer, W. B. Reed.

ON Sept. 25, as a party of Chelsea Ramblers were riding in the vicinity of Dungeon Rock, Lynn, one of their number, Mr Otto Baron, took a header and was quite badly shaken up. At the time, Mr. W. Basset, of the firm of Basset, Whitney & Co., happened to be passing in a carriage accompanied by three friends. They immediately stopped and rendered every assistance, and gave the use of their carriage to convey the injured man home At a meeting of the Chelsea Ramblers, held Oct. 4, a vote of thanks was passed to Mr. Basset and his friends for their kindness.

RALPH TEMPLE left Leicester, England, Sept. 23, for Ireland, having been engaged to give a series of trick exhibitions there. The united cycling clubs of Dublin honored him with an entertainment in the form of a smoking concert at the Earlsfort Terrace rink on Sept. 28. He was to rejoin the other members of the team in time for the six-day ventures, which commence in Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 24, contestants to travel eight hours per day. The tour of the team has been a pronounced success.

THE Malden Bicycle Club has taken possession of elegant new quarters in Stanwood's new brick block, Malden. The suite of rooms on the second floor include billiard, pool, card and reception rooms. The club is in a most flourishing condition, has eighty members, and the change cannot but add to its membership.

THE new club-house scheme of the Cambridge Bicycle Club has begun to draw in the members. Twenty-four were admitted at the last meeting. The new club house is being put into habitable condition as fast as possible. The painters have been brightening it up this week, electric bells and new gas chandeliers have been put in, and partitions in the attic torn away.

GIVE Daisie time enough, and you will get the full story of the Ladies' League Tour. Thirty-two riders, eighteen of whom were ladies, went through the whole trip of four days.

THE Gormully & Jeffery Manufacturing Company will send a team of racing men to Crawfordsville, Ind., to try for the road records. The five men, Dingley, Munger, Whittaker, Knapp and Eck, will be there, and the officials will be men of good commercial standing.

THE annual ten-mile race of the Wakefield Bicycle Club will take place Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22, over the following course: From Rodney down Main street to Water, to New Salem, to Salem, to Lowell, to Vernon, Court, Cordis, Swetser, Main, Church, north side of Main to Rock, and over the same course again, then to Albion, Railroad, Chestnut, Main, west side of Common, Church, Main, Swetser, School, Cordis, Main to Rockery, via Church and west side of Common and finish. The prize will be the 10 mile club champion gold medal; second, bicycle lamp, and third, Rudge saddle. The club medal must be thrice successively won to entitle the holder to ownership. Fred B. Patch now holds it.

LIEUTENANT SPIERS, of the Rhode Island Wheelmen, will ride to Rocky Point to-day, and he proposes to get there before steam yacht Eudora, the gallant flyer of Fleet Captain Thornton, of the Rhode Island Yacht Club, does. The bicycle will naturally take the road, and the yacht, as naturally, the water, and the start will be made at two o'clock this afternoon, the bicycle getting away from Trinity Square, and the Eudora from Hill's wharf. A number of wheelmen will pace the bicycle, but who will pace the steam yacht is not known. — Providence Journal.

RALPH TEMPLE has been communicating his views on the drink question. He says: "I would advise total abstinence from all alcoholic liquors whatever. I have found pure buttermilk to be the best drink to allay the thirst, but do not advise drinking in quantity. Soda and milk is another good drink. Cyclists should be careful not to drink anything that contains gases. It is not the stomach that is thirsty, but the throat; consequently, clearing the throat often with clean, cool water is as good as anything. Drink as little as possible. Smokers will find more trouble in this respect than those who do not indulge."

ON Monday last, J. Fred Midgely, of Worcester, rode up Corey Hill in one minute fourteen and two-fifths seconds. G. Minturn Worden of the Manhattan Athletic Club, New York, then borrowed the wheel and rode up the front side of the hill, coasted down the back side, and, turning, rode up back of the hill. Worden had never seen the hill before, and was unprepared for riding, as he rode up wearing a business suit and silk hat.

DENVER wheelmen have more days of wheeling than any of their brethren in the country. They can almost live on their wheels there, and little wonder, for the sun is rarely obscured more than a few hours a day, and the roads are of the finest description, needing no care to keep them in condition. The use of wheels in this section has necessarily become more and more widespread, and they have been put to practical tests. Few cities have better riders. The cyclists can all ride with their hands off the bars, and generally have several bundles to carry at that. One can ride from the Denver City Hall to one of the finest boulevards in the country, ten miles long, and not encounter a hill. Despite the level roads, the Safety has come to be the favorite mount, and its riders are daily increasing — Ex.

THE fate of the Lynn cycle track is still undecided. Manager Carroll called at the Boston Globe office Saturday, and in the course of a conversation on the subject, said: "We have done everything in our power to raise money enough to satisfy our creditors, but the best we can do is to offer them thirty cents on the dollar, and ask for an extension of time to pay the balance. All but two of the creditors are willing to accept these terms, but those two demand dollar for dollar. We may yet arrange things with them, but if we do not all the property of the association will have to be sold. I suppose the matter will be settled one way or the other next week. If the track is sold I suppose it will bring about $900, which, with the $800 we have in the treasury, will net the creditors about sixty per cent, for the total indebtedness is something in the neighborhood of $2,600. We are confident, however, that if we were only allowed more time, that we would be able to pay every dollar we owe. If the track is sold it will probably fall into good hands, and still be used for cycle racing. If we do succeed in keeping the track, we shall run a series of races next year on a different principle than they have been conducted heretofore. We shall ask the League to amend the racing rules, making them more after the style of the National Trotting Association, and providing for short races to be run in heats. We also want a protective association formed of the managers of the different tracks. Then the 'fly' racing men cannot go about imposing on managers in different parts of the country, as they do at present. I have received a letter from Henry Ducker, in which he states that he is trying to arrange for bringing the English, Irish, German and French racing teams over here next year. He thinks that Buffalo will have a good bicycle track before another season has passed."

MORE RECORD BREAKING.

SAMUEL P. HOLLINGSWORTH, of Russiaville, Ind., and Asa Windle, of Lynn, both of the Columbia team, started in a 100-mile bicycle track race on the Lynn track at 9.45 o'clock A. M., Wednesday, Oct. 5, for a purse of $75 offered by the Pope Manufacturing Company. The intention was to lower the records made by Frank E. Dingley, of Minneapolis, of the Gormully & Jeffery team, on Sept. 22.

The officials were as follows: Timers, E. E. Merrill, Boston; C. E. Whitten and W. F. Allen, Lynn. Judges, G. L. Lyons, Lynn; W. S. Doane, Boston; F. W. Goodwin, Lynn. Referee, C. W. Fourdrinier. Starter, W. F. Corcoran, Boston.

ON Friday, Oct. 7, Wm. A. Rowe, of the Columbia team, made the attempt to beat the record, but stopped at 46 miles on account of the high wind. Below we give tables showing the times made by Dingley, Hollingsworth, and Rowe, and comparisons between them can easily be made.

OVERMAN WHEEL CO. LAMPS.

In view of the ordinances lately passed by a number of our large cities, requiring the carrying of lamps on all bicycles and tricycles after nightfall, we desire to present to the cycling public our claim to the best wheel lamps yet produced. Our lamps are all of the best and strongest construction, and are fitted with the most successful ventilating apparatus ever used. By its use, the air is brought up to a level with the flame before being admitted to the lamp chamber, thus preventing the strong upward draught which has made it so difficult to keep other lamps burning. Try them.

THE Canadian Wheelman's Association has taken up the question of loafing in path races, and has added the following to its track rules: "The referee shall, acting with or on appeal from the majority of the executive board, suspend from the race, or the remainder of the race meeting then being held, or from any meet held under these rules, for such period as he may see fit, any competitor guilty of loafing or otherwise prejudicing the race; and notice of such suspension shall be at once published by the referee in the official organ, provided always that the party suspended, if it be for a longer period than the meeting in question, shall have the right to appeal to the racing board; said appeal to be made in writing to the chairman of the racing board, accompanied with a full statement of the appellant's claim and a fee of one dollar, which will be refunded if the appeal is allowed. The chairman of the racing board shall at once place the appeal, accompanied with a statement from the referee, in the hands of the racing board, and as soon as possible announce their decision to the appellant."

THE sixteen-mile bicycle race from Manchester to the pump on the Forest Park Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., was run Oct. 1. The men started from Manchester at 4 P. M., and finished as follows: E. A. Smith, 3m. (1), 1.04.00; Davidson, 4m. (2), 1.15.35; Sanders, scratch (3). The best previous record over this course was held by Percy Stone at 1.05.00.

THE twenty-five mile road race of the Eastern Road Club, occurred at Newton, last Saturday afternoon. This is the second race in a contest for a silver cup, to be won twice in succession before it becomes the possession of a club. In the previous race it was won by the Dorchester Bicycle Club.

There were ten entries, four clubs being represented as follows: Dorchester, W. S. Doane, A. Benson, J. Longstreet; Chelsea, F. A. Woodman, R. G. Beasley, E. A. Phemister; Cambridgeport, E. Hynman, H. L. Caldwell, F. Carmen; Suffolk, G. H. Locke.

The start was made at 3.08½ P. M., and the following gentleman officiated as officers of the course: Referee, A. Kennedy Child; judges, G. L. Haynes, C. E. Walker, B. Gould; starter, W. R. Maxwell; timers, C. W. Fourdrinier, R. E. Bellows.

The men crossed the line at the finish in the following order: Carmen, Beasley, Doane, Hynman, Benson, Woodman, Phemister, Longstreet, Locke. H. L. Caldwell was thrown from his machine, and did not finish. The Chelsea Club won the race, netting a total score of 18 points, while the Cambridgeport and Dorchester Clubs were tied for second place.

The time made by the first four men who crossed the finishing line follows: Carmen, 1.34.20.; Beasley, 1.34.30.; Doane, 1.34.34.; Hynman, 1.38.34. The other men finished in straggling order, some of them barely escaping the time limit. Woodman's stomach went back on him at seventeen miles, but he finished the race, riding in great torture.

THE race for the Citizens' Cup, gotten up by subscription, to be run for by the bicycle clubs of Baltimore, Md., was run Friday, Oct. 7, around Druid Lake. The Maryland Bicycle Club won the race and the cup. It will have to be won three successive times to become the property of any of the clubs without further contest. The cup is a massive silver punch bowl, handsomely engraved with representations of bicyclers, and was gotten up by citizens who take an interest in the sport. Three clubs entered for the contest, Maryland, Rambler, and Baltimore. Each club selected five of its best men to represent it. The rule under which the race was run was that the man who finished first was to score fifteen points, the second man fourteen points, third, thirteen, and so on. The course was ten miles long. The finish line was on the lake drive a little west of the tower, and seven laps were necessary to complete the ten miles. The circuit of the lake is put at about a mile and a quarter. The starters were: Maryland, — Griscom, Whittingham, Bartlett, Shriver, LeCato. Rambler, — Eberman, Kingsland, Hoover, Clotworthy, Warrington. Baltimore, — Pope, Brown, Eisenbrandt, Worthington, Tyler. The men finished as follows: Kingsland (1), 15; Whittingham (2), 14; Griscom (3), 13; Pope (4), 12; Bartlett (5), 11; Brown (6), 10; Clotworthy (7), 9; LeCato (8), 8; Tyler (9), 7; Eberman (10), 6; Worthington (11), 5; Eisenbrandt (12), 4; Shriver (13), 3. Maryland Club, 49; Baltimore, 38; Rambler, 30. Kingsland, 30.44; Whittingham and Griscom, 31.03 1-5; Pope, 32.30.

THE FAMOUS CUSTOM-MADE

PLYLOUTH ROCK $3 PANTS

(Full Suits and Overcoats.)

One pleasure in having clothing CUT TO ORDER is that you can have things as you want them. One man likes corner pockets, another, side pockets or an odd pocket here or there. Some want spring bottom (which, by the way is out of style for city trade) or big at one point, small at another. IT MAKES NO DIFFERENCE TO US, we cut as we are ordered. The best way, however, is to order us to cut in the prevailing style, leaving it to us to satisfy you, which we will do or REFUND YOUR MONEY. Upon receipt of 6 cts, we mail 20 samples of cloth—latest fall and winter styles—to select from, self-measurement blanks, and (if you mention this paper) a good linen tape measure. Or, if you cannot wait for samples, tell us about what color you like, give us your WAIST, HIP and INSIDE LEG measures, together with $3 and 35 cents for postage (or prepaid express) and packing. We guarantee every garment by agreeing to make another or REFUNDING MONEY FOR ANY CAUSE. The American Express Co. (capital $20,000,000) will cheerfully reply to any inquiries sent to their Boston office about us and our treatment of customers.

DO YOU WEAR PANTS

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

We don't go in for track racing very heavily, but then, you know, we are "in the swim."

AT NEW ORLEANS OUR ROAD MACHINES CAME OVER THE TAPE FIRST, IN SIX OUT OF THE NINE EVENTS.

THE CHAMPION

Also captured all, or nearly all, the Medals and Prizes at

MEMPHIS, TENN., CLARKSVILLE, TENN., AND PAOLA, KAN.

Then take that Professional Handicap at North Attleboro' the other day, when Munger won easily, with Rowe, McCurdy, Hollingsworth, and others in the field. Munger rode an ordinary LIGHT CHAMPION, while all his competitors were on 21-pound wheels. The LIGHT CHAMPION took first in every event at Parker, Dak., on September 17, ridden by Frank Montelius.

There's no use talking, the bearings are bound to get there, even if the machine is heavy and made for the road, and when one does ride the CHAMPION on the road, he simply says "MY! it's the easiest running wheel I ever saw." For List of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

THE regular fall meeting of the Board of Officers, L. A. W., was held in New York the present week, and is fully reported in these columns.

HARMONY prevailed, and although all the measures were not passed upon unanimously, there was no dissatisfaction expressed at results.

THE Board rejected the amendment offered by the Racing Board anent road racing, and will continue to pursue its policy of disapproval and non-interference.

FOR the first time in the history of the League, the Board has failed to confirm a member appointed to its body. The majority of those present felt that a man who has recently been removed from the Board for malfeasance was not the man to be accepted as a member again, and many proxies were received, with special instructions to vote against his confirmation.

INCIDENTAL to the meeting, a great deal of work was done by the Executive Committee and the Committee on Reorganization. Plans for the future were mapped out, and the present financial condition of the League was carefully considered.

WE are invited to a "smoker" to be given by the Omaha Wheel Club, and the invitation comes on a very pretty silver card. We do not doubt the boys will have a good time, but we don't smoke, and we should'nt be happy in a room where every other man was smoking. We have prejudices in favor of pure air, and we don't care to spend much time in a smoke-saturated atmosphere. When we go to a smoker, we will spend our evening in the banquet hall.

FALL MEETING, BOARD OF OFFICERS.

THE regular fall meeting of the Board of Officers, L. A. W., was held in Parlor A, Grand Union Hotel, New York City, on Monday, Oct. 17, at 10 A. M.

The first business in order was the appointment of a Committee on Credentials. President Kirkpatrick appointed Dr. C. S. Butler, of Buffalo, N. Y.; C. S. Davol, of Pawtucket, R. I., and E. T. Pettengill, of Washington, D. C.

They reported thirty-one members personally present, holding seventy-two proxies, all in proper form. Report received.

The Secretary-Editor then read the list of chief consuls appointed by the president and the list of representatives appointed by chief consuls of the States, all of which have been published in the BULLETIN.

Dr. Butler, of Buffalo, moved that all the appointments be confirmed, except that of John A. Wells, of Philadelphia, appointed representative for Pennsylvania by Chief Consul Jessup.

Mr. S. Jackson, Jr., of Philadelphia, called for a statement of reasons why Mr. Wells should be refused confirmation.

Chief Consul Jessup said that he had been requested by the Pennsylvania Club to appoint Mr. Wells. The Club is a large and influential one, and he felt that they deserved recognition of this kind. He had made the appointment for the good of the division and in the interest of peace and harmony. He hoped to see Mr. Wells confirmed.

Dr. Butler's motion prevailed. All of the appointments were confirmed except that of Mr. Wells.

The roll was called, and the following members were shown to be present: —

President Kirkpatrick.
Secretary-Editor Bassett.
District of Columbia. — Chief Consul Pettengill.
Massachusetts. — Chief Consul Hayes. Representatives, Dr. W. H. Emery, W. R. Maxwell, J. B. Seward, Geo. W. Parker, A. W. Robinson.
New Jersey. — Chief Consul Dr. J. H. Cooley. Representatives, Dr. G. C. Brown, Dr. A. J. Wright, Dr. F. A. Kinch.
New York. — Chief Consul, Geo. C. Bidwell. Representatives, E. J. Shriver, John C. Gulick, Knight L. Clapp, Frank Egan, M. L. Bridgman, A. B. Barkman, Chas. H. Luscomb, Chas. Schwalbach, Joshua Reynolds, F. R. Adriance, C. S. Butler, W. W. Share, W. J. Gilfillan, George M. Nisbett, A. I. Barton.
Ohio. — Chief Consul, J. R. Dunn.
Pennsylvania. — Chief Consul, Geo. A. Jessup. Representatives, S. Jackson, Jr., J. J. Van Nort, Col. Geo. Sanderson.
Rhode Island. — Chief Consul, C. S. Davol. Representative, H. L. Perkins.

Reports of officers and committees were submitted as follows: —

SECRETARY-EDITOR.

Gentlemen of the Board of Officers, L. A. W.:

The Secretary-Editor presents for your consideration at this time many facts and figures calculated to show the financial condition of the League, its membership, and its prospects for the future.

Including the applicants published Oct. 7 and 14, we have now a membership of 11,624, apportioned among the States as per the annexed table: —

Our financial condition, so far as this office is concerned, is shown by the financial statement published in BULLETIN of Oct. 14, dated Oct. 1, as follows: —

Cash on hand	$162 21
Accounts receivable, good	2,147 68
Accounts receivable, doubtful	1,072 47
		$3,382 56
Accounts payable.
Printing, correspondence	$1,196 13
Division	1,725 18
Balance		$461 05

If all the doubtful accounts could be collected, we should have a balance of $461.05, as above, to turn over to Treasurer Brewster, and this sum would not, we fear, pay all the bills he has on hand. Since Oct. 1, we have collected $125 of the doubtful accounts, and there is good prospect that we shall get more; but if all the accounts prove worthless, we cannot meet our obligations by the sum of $486.42 in addition to the liabilities which the Treasurer can exhibit.

The policy of the Secretary-Editor has been to pay all bills held by creditors outside the organizations, and to throw upon the Divisions the financial burdens we are obliged to bear. We have to conduct the office with no capital outside these debits, as it is impossible for a business concern to collect all its bills from month to month, and the money goes out as fast as it comes in.

It will be remembered that we took charge of the affairs of this office when the League was several thousand dollars in debt; that we had to assume and carry out contracts for advertising made at prices less than cost; that we have faithfully carried out these contracts, and that we have good progress towards solvency. We are encouraged to believe that we can put the League upon a good financial basis at an early date after the opening of the new year, though we cannot hope to improve upon our condition during the months between this and January, 1888. We shall sink some money on the BULLETIN during these coming winter months, for they are the dullest of all the months of the year so far as advertising goes.

We have printed and circulated, thus far in 1887, 429,200 copies of the BULLETIN, a number larger by 99,350 than was printed during the same months of 1886, and the expense of printing these has been less by $271.73 than that of 1886.

We have many plans to save money during the next year, and it is fair to presume that our outgo will be materially decreased. New plans of registration have been approved by the Executive Committee, and these will simplify matters at the office and save not a little in the way of clerk hire. We are in hopes that the Board, in its wisdom, will vote to change the rule relating to the annual election of consuls and representatives, and save to the League a very large amount formerly spent in printing and postage.

Other schemes are on foot, all of which are in the interest of economy. We cannot believe that we shall have the extraordinary expenses that we had to meet during the early part of 1887, and we are encouraged to think that 1888 will see us out of many of our difficulties. I wish to state here, that I am indebted to the officials of the State Division for the consideration shown me, and the patience with which they have waited for remittances. We have sent money where it seemed to be most needed, and we have kept on hand no more than was absolutely necessary. We shall have to ask them to bear with us a little longer, and to expect much of the future.

ABBOT BASSETT, Secretary.

Membership Committee.

To the President and Board of Officers, of the L. A. W.:

The Committee on Membership beg to submit the following report: —

After our appointment, we took such steps as we could to obtain possession of the books and papers belonging to this committee, and through the President's efforts, finally secured the documents from Mr. Hill, the former Chairman, who, under date of June 2, forwarded them (without books or records, however), to the President. Among these papers, we found several protests, which we have reason to suppose were acted upon by Mr. Hill, in 1886. Among those awaiting action, we found the resignation of E. M. Aaron, of Philadelphia, dated April 9, which we accepted. The following protests were also found awaiting action, viz.: F. T. Andrae, Milwaukee; H. T. Burpee, New Bedford, Mass.; Robert H. Ehlert, Chicago; Prof. Cyrus, G. Focht, Gettysburg, Pa.; Jas. B. Ferguson, Princeville, Ill.; H. A. Keplinger, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; E. K. Lowe, Newport, Ky.; and Henry A. Stewart, Gettysburg, Pa.; and request for expulsion, G. L. Schneider and E. B. Andrews, of Williamsport, Pa.

The following protests have been filed with the present committee: John M. Troy, Suffern, N. Y.; Chas. M. Ostrander, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Albert F. Brooks, Washington, D. C.; M. O. Spring, St. Louis, Mo.; and request for expulsion of eight members of the Camden Wheelmen for non-payment of dues, etc.

Your committee have recommended the admission of the following: F. T. Andrae, E. Kinney Lowe, Robert H. Ehlert, J. B. Ferguson.

The following protests have been withdrawn: Albert F. Brooks and H. A. Keplinger; and the application of Prof. C. G. Focht was also withdrawn.

The following protests were sustained by your committee, viz.: C. M. Ostrander, M. O. Spring, and the following members of the Camden Wheelmen: K. P. Ashley, Levi Hurst, George L. Barker, and B. Royal, who have failed to reimburse their club for League dues paid for them. The cases of John M. Troy and H. T. Burpee are still undergoing investigation. No action was had in cases of requests for expulsion of J. L. Schneider and E. B. Andrews.

Respectfully submitted,
James R. Dunn,
G. Carleton Brown,
For Membership Committee.

Rights and Privileges.

To the Board of Officers, L. A. W.:

The Committee on Rights and Privileges submit the following report:

The usual number of inquiries as to the right of the American wheelman to blow a calliope whistle, and to permit his aggressive and awe-inspiring bicycle to occupy roadway when a road hog is in the vicinity, have been received and answered.

It is still apparent that in many sections of this country the wheelmen must battle, not only for his rights, but often for his personal safety as well.

It does not seem to occur to the average road hog that there is no legal difference between using his horse and wagon as a weapon wherewith to assault a human being, and the use of a club for the same purpose. The fact that the victim happens to be on a wheel, instead of on his feet, does not alter the status of the case.

Of course, it requires time and frequent pounding to compel these gentry to recognize the rights of others besides themselves to the public highways.

It is sometimes extremely difficult to overcome the desire to apply directly to the person of the offender the only argument he is capable of fully comprehending; but unfortunately (in this respect) we are not a League of prize fighters, and it would not be profitable to the good standing of the L. A. W. to recommend frequent and unceremonious scrimmages.

The present Committee received from its predecessor only the unfinished North Carolina Wilmington turnpike case. In this case the North Carolina Supreme Court, in a long opinion, sustaining the Court below, held that a man should not ride a bicycle, where it frightened horses and caused injury through the failure of the horse to understand that the wheel was not an infernal machine and would not explode.

The judges, however qualified their opinion in so far as to hold that the discretion of roadway commissioners must be exercised within proper limits only, and the reasonable interpretation of the decision would be that when wheeling becomes more common and less calculated to alarm and frighten horses, the question may be again raised, with a fair chance of securing proper recognition of the cycler's rights, especialy as the Court declares "that there may be occasions, or times, or seasons when bicycles may be used on the roads."

This sapient utterance, taken in connection with the remainder of the opinion, would indicate that the "occasions or times or seasons" when the bicycle might venture forth from its lair would be when the lordly horse was enjoying his repose in the seclusion of his private stable.

In the present state of development, however, in North Carolina the sense of propriety of the horse must be duly respected, and care taken not to disturb him during his reflective moods.

This decision and the grounds upon which it was based, together with the financial condition of the treasury, and the small League membership in Alabama, were the moving reasons controlling the committee in its action on the Mobile Bay Beach road matter.

This came before us upon the report of Mr. W. W. Crane, of Louisiana, who was denied the right to ride a bicycle upon the road in question.

It was recommended that the wheelmen in Mobile endeavor to secure a limited privilege upon the road mentioned, and when the popular prejudice became somewhat less, by reason of the greater familiarity of horses with bicycles, and the probability of accidents therefore lessened, a contest for the rights of wheelmen could be maintained with far greater likelihood of success. This very question of frightening horses, practically determined the North Carolina case against us, and if in every instance, litigation be resorted to, only after some headway shall have been made against popular prejudice, the most dangerous and persuasive argument of our opponents would be wanting.

The case of Mr. Robertson, of Beatrice, Neb., who was imprisoned and fined for riding upon a public street, in violation of an ordinance of the City Council, prohibiting the riding of bicycles upon certain streets, received the attention of this committee.

The District Judge, having discharged Mr. Robertson, holding the ordinance to be unconstitutional, the City Council determined to carry the case on appeal to the Supreme Court of Nebraska. The matter was admirably presented to this committee by the Chief Consul of that State, and we were enabled to take speedy action upon it.

On the approval of the Executive Committee, it was determined to employ counsel, and join issue with the city authorities of Beatrice, on appeal, and the Chief Consul of Nebraska was thereupon directed to proceed without delay.

This case reached a very satisfactory ending, without further litigation, as the Beatrice City Council repealed the objectionable ordinance and withdrew their appeal.

This committee took notice officially of the bill introduced in the New York legislature, defining the rights of wheelmen and prohibiting unjust discrimination against them, and one of its number attended and spoke in favor of the bill, at the hearing before the Governor of New York, and further assisted the State committee, whenever opportunity could be found.

The committee has been in considerable correspondence with the Chief Consuls of Michigan, Nebraska, Kentucky, North Carolina, and New York upon various matters of wheeling and League importance in their several States.

The unfortunate unfamiliarity of our League officials with the contents of our By-Laws and the duties of their offices was strongly demonstrated by the action of a local consul, who informed this committee by letter, that a boy aged fifteen, having left his bicycle in the street gutter, where it was subsequently run over and injured, he — the local consul — had taken official cognizance of the case, and engaged counsel to represent the League, and further requesting the Committee on Rights and Privileges to authorize him to maintain an appeal should it become necessary, stating that he had not time to acquaint the committee more fully as to the facts, etc. The consul was politely instructed as to the proper course to be pursued in all such cases, and the powers and duties of a consul kindly pointed out to him. The sequence was an impertinent letter, with the usual reference to red tape, criticism of the L. A. W. and an expressed intention of not further troubling the committee.

This matter is only adverted to because of its force as an example, to point the necessity for careful selection and instruction of subordinate officials. The possibilities and probable result, should a few score of local consuls suddenly benome possessed of a like inspiration to take cognizance of, and engage counsel on behalf of the League for the many small cases of injustice to wheelmen, constantly arising, without duly reporting the same to the proper officials for investigation and action, furnishes us an illustration so instructive that the necessity for caution is at once apparent.

The work of the committee has been seriously embarrassed by the lack of available funds wherewith to maintain and progress the cause of wheeling where unduly restricted: and it must labor under this disability until the National Treasury is in condition to warrant us in declaring an offensive campaign wherever and wherever the road hog or the antiquated legislator, magistrate or municipal officer attempts to set himself in the way of the freedom and progress of the wheel.

It is recommended:

I. That cases of minor importance, like the ordinary road collisions, where no general question of importance to the rights of the fraternity at large is involved, be primarily conducted by the State Divisions, reporting to, and using this National committee as an advisory office.

II. That there be created and maintained in the office of the Rights and Privileges Committee, a reference library, compiled from Statutory enactments and Court decisions in the several States, upon the road laws and the rights of wheelmen.

III. That the question of road improvement deserves the immediate attention and action of the L. A. W.

And in this connection, that united action by wheelmen and owners and drivers of horses, should be sought, and legislation attempted in every State, and continued until the work is accomplished.

This unity of interest and action in the wheelman and his natural enemy, should make them allies and friends, and so solve peacefully and effectually the long struggle of right of way upon the public highways.

Dated, New York, Oct. 17, 1887.

Racing Board.

Mr. President and Members of the Board:

The amateur rule is so thoroughly well understood, and the penalty for violation so certain to follow, that during the past five months only six protests have been entered upon charges of professionalism, and so far as investigated have been dismissed, as the charges were not sustained. Racing men who had previously lost their amateur standing, have shown an inclination to repent and return to the fold and obey the amateur rule. Thomas Stevens, Frank Hentz, Charles Marsden, Willie Haradon, C. H. Smith, C. E. Kluge, and J. B. Ferguson have been reinstated.

National championships have been located and won as follows: —

Half-mile Bicycle. — Williamsport Bicycle Club; won by W. E. Crist; time, 1.21 2-5.

One-mile Bicycle. — Cleveland Bicycle Club; won by A. B. Rich; time, 2.47 1-5.

Two-mile Bicycle. — Wilkes Barre Bicycle Club; won by W. E. Crist; time, 6.52 2-5.

Three-mile Bicycle. — Detroit Bicycle Club.

Five-mile. — New Jersey Division; won by J. W. Powers; time, 16.25 1-5.

Ten-mile. — Central Cycling Club, Junction City Kansas; won by F. S. Ray.

One-mile Tricycle. — Cleveland Bicycle Club; won by A. B. Rich; time, 3.27.

Shortly after its appointment the attention of your Committee was called to the question of Road Racing, by a circular letter of President Kirkpatrick, addressed to all the members of the standing committees, and the replies, twenty in number, were placed before the Racing Board, with the request that such action be taken and such rules passed as would effectually control racing upon the public highway. In looking into the matter it became at once apparent that if the League exercise any jurisdiction whatever, it must be that of prohibition. The policy of the past has been that of non-interference, and although it may have been expedient, it certainly has not been in accord with the letter and spirit of the amateur rule, which says: "A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by competing with a professional in public, or for a prize." The rule does not say that it shall be on a race track, nor does it say that it shall not be upon the public highway. Under the policy of the past, members have been allowed to disregard the amateur rule, and no questions asked. Shall we exercise jurisdiction and make rules to regulate and restrict road racing which is acknowledged and understood to be unlawful? To do this we must depart from all the traditions of the League, and nullify the Constitution, which declares that the League of American Wheelmen is organized to ascertain, insure, and protect the rights of wheelmen under the law. We cannot regulate the unlawful acts of our members, for to regulate would be to encourage, and in that we would become accessory before the fact. It has been suggested that road racing might be permitted where consent of the authorities can be obtained. We are certain that in New Jersey (and that State is perhaps more grievously afflicted with road racing than any other), no such power is vested in the road overseers, or in the Board of Chosen Freeholders, and the only effect of such permission would be to indemnify any person injured, and you will find that they will be very slow to do that. The abutting property owners have no right to grant you the privilege, for once a road is accepted by the Board of Freeholders, it is no longer under the control of the property owners, but becomes public property and dedicated to the public use. Certain persons are appointed to attend to the construction and repair, but their power extends no further, except to see to it that they are kept in a safe and passable condition. Recognizing road racing to be illegal, the Racing Board does not deem it expedient that the League should recognize road racing, or that it should permit a few of its members to jeopardize its interests by unlawful acts. Your Committee has adopted the following rule, to be known as rule K: Road racing, being unlawful, is prohibited. Any member taking part in an organized race upon the public highway, shall for the first offence be liable to suspension for such a time as the Racing Board may determine; upon a second offence he shall be expelled from the League, and recommend that, if it meet with your approval, the necessary changes be made in the By-Laws, giving us authority to carry it into effect.

Respectfully submitted,
J. H. Cooley,
Chairman.

Report of Bookmaster.

To the Board of Officers, L. A. W.:

Gentlemen, — The Bookmaster would briefly report that the principal work of his department, since his appointment, has been the answering of numerous letters of inquiry, chiefly regarding roads and routes, the majority of which have been from members of the Western Divisions or prospective tourists in that direction.

The great increase in the number of persons undertaking extensive tours has made apparent the necessity of compiling such information as is obtainable regarding the main through routes between the important cities of the country, with a view to the publication, at some future date, of a national road book of through routes.

In this direction considerable preliminary work has been accomplished; and with the aid of the Chief Consuls of the various States, it is hoped that some substantial results may be obtained during the coming year.

The majority of the important Divisions have already published, or have in progress, satisfactory road books; but in many of the lesser Division no attempt has as yet been made toward the compilation of road information. It is therefore recommended that all the Divisions who have not done so, be urged to organize some system for the gathering and recording of road information; that in case the Division be unable to print the same, it may be on hand for use in a national road book, or for the purpose of answering inquiries, or for use by the "Bureau of Information."

Inquiries are frequently received from isolated wheelmen regarding the L. A. W., its objects, benefits, etc. It would be a great convenience if the League would provide a suitable circular to be mailed to such applicants. Such a circular would be inexpensive, save considerable labor, and be far more explanatory than the average manuscript letter, and would, I think, result in much good.

The necessity of a new addition of the hand book is very apparent, and I would recommend that the League take steps to issue one at an early date.

Respectfully submitted,
A. B. Barkman,
Bookmaster and Chairman, Bureau of Information.

Oct. 17, 1887.

The amendment offered by H. W. Hayes, and published in Bulletin of Sept. 30, was passed. It reads as follows, and simplifies the system of the election of members of the Board by a ballot in the Bulletin, and doing away with sending ballots to each and every member. The new rule reads as follows: —

Section 1. During the month of March, each year, the Secretary shall cause to be printed in the official organ a voting blank for Chief Consuls and Representatives, together with a statistical table, showing the number of Representatives each State is entitled to. And there shall also be published in the Bulletin, at the same time, full and explicit directions to members regarding the votes which are to be sent to the Secretary-Editor, and full and explicit directions from the Chief Consuls of States where special regulations governing the ballot have been adopted.

Dr. J. H. Cooley offered on behalf of the Racing Board the amendment prohibiting racing on the highway under penalty of expulsion from the League.

In this connection resolutions and protests were sent in by the Hudson County Wheelmen, the Union County Wheelmen, and the Elizabeth Wheelmen, all of New Jersey.

A long discussion took place, and finally the Board adopted the following resolution, which was offered as a substitute to the amendment by C. H. Luscomb: —

Road Racing.

Resolved, That organized races by wheelmen upon the public highways are unlawful and prejudicial to the best interests of the League of American Wheelmen;

Resolved, That the League strongly disapproves road racing, and earnestly urges upon its members that they refrain from participation therein or encouragement thereof;

Resolved, That officers of the L. A. W. should not identify themselves with road racing by acting in an official capacity in such road contests.

All recommendations in the reports of committees were referred to the Executive Committee, with power.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

North Shore Tour, II.

Whizz! Saints preserve us, how we fly! I was rushing down a steep and rocky hill on the front seat of a tandem. The Duke of Wellington was on behind, holding the brake with an iron grasp. The party was watching us with awestricken faces. Mr. Gage was dancing wildly about, shouting, "A crown of laurel to the hero who saves them." Young Mr. Spencer was sketching the scene. The tourmaster was rushing after us on foot. A great rock has fallen from the mountain and obstructs our path. "Stop us, duke, or we perish." Too late. Crash! Bang! I make one desperate leap for safety. Pshaw! It is but the summoning club of the call-boy sounding on the panel of the door. I had been dreaming, and was awakened suddenly by the summons to breakfast. The club of the call-boy lacks the poetry of the clarion crow of the chanticleer, but it arrives at its destination just the same.

The second day of the ladies' tour was ushered in under the most favorable circumstances. The clerk of the weather had bade fair skies to gently smile upon us, and had prevailed upon the atmosphere to make our pathway hard and smooth. This was to be the days of all our days the choicest. We knew there were great hills to climb and soft roads to travel, but we carried in our minds only the down grades and the hard roads, and delighted in the joyful anticipation of the scenery magnificent.

Over the breakfast table we exchanged experiences of the night. The duke had been quartered over the dance hall and directly above the bass viol. He dreamed of thunderstorms, and his dreams transferred the rolling of the surf into a howling cataract. The Masons were over the piano, and were lulled to sleep to the music of "White Wings" and "Rock a Bye, Baby." The tourmaster was over the piazza, and was forced to drink in the soft and saccharine utterances of young lovers who had sought the seclusion that the piazza grants. But all this ended at the witching hour of midnight, and then the deep breathing of the tourists mingled with the beating of the waves upon the beach.

Procrastination is indeed the thief of time, Mr. Young, and the thieving wretch made many successful raids upon us. There was confectionery to be bought, photographs to be taken, and walks upon the beach to be indulged in. Our machines gave us little trouble. We left them at the door of the hotel at night, and Martin, the knight of the tool box, stabled them, oiled them, cleaned them, and delivered them to us at the door the next morning. Take this hint from our experience, all ye who tour in large companies, and take a man along to do this service for you.

The photographer caught us with his camera on the steps of the hotel. It was not the only picture. I think we were taken some forty times, including a separate picture of each couple. The Boston papers came to us with the first day's tour fully set forth. How lucky it was that we did n't go far from a paper. Put a gentleman out of reach of his morning journal and behold a most unhappy and altogether unsatisfied being. We got the papers, and the gentlemen were beaming all over with satisfaction.

We are off. Thirty-two in the party, not including the driver and mechanic, the horses or the dog. The thirty-two are all that appear on the roster, but the others count at dinner.

Gloucester is a pleasant place indeed, but it is very pleasant to get away from it when one is a-wheel. There is very much sand, and very often a palpable suggestion of decayed fish in the air. But it does not take many revolutions of the pedals to carry us beyond the borders of the town made famous by the visit of Deacon Foster, who went to Gloucester in a shower of rain, and we are soon at Beaver Dam. We know it is Beaver Dam, because it says so on a great stone barn; but we have never yet seen the dam.

Just beyond Beaver Dam we had a photograph taken. The Duke was full of spirits, — not alcoholic nor etherial, — and regaled us with his conversation till the photographer told him to hold his mouth still or it would be taken going. He talked no more. Here we decorated our wheels with bittersweet, alder and bayberry.

Rockport, with its great hill, its granite quarry, and its pickled limes, gave us much entertainment. We discreetly walked the hill, and at the summit we stood upon the grand arch and looked far down below us into the great opening with its high palisades of granite, and we thought how many magnificent buildings now rear their walls to accommodate the business of mankind, and to beautify cities by reason of these great granite storehouses whose treasures have lain idle for centuries till man came and tore the rocks piecemeal from their beds, and fashioned them to his needs. And how many more graceful shapes and ponderous architectural stones now lie sleeping in these mountains of granite waiting for the chisel to awaken them to their uses. The gentlemen bought all the pickled limes to be had in Rockport, and the party was refreshed and reinvigorated.

Now, we go by Pigeon Cove and beyond to Folly Cove. Here we dine. The barge goes for water, and the great hamper is thrown open. We are sitting on a high hill just above the rocks which fringe the shore. Halibut Point is on our right, and the rocky headland hides Hoop Pole Cove from our view. Folly Point is on our left, and within the embracing clasp of these two lies Folly Cove. Far out to sea we can see white wings just above the horizon, while in the foreground fleet schooners are bending their proud hulls beneath the pressure of a land breeze which kisses their sails. A lobster man in his dory is gathering in his pots just below us. In the air above, the sea gulls float, and occasionally dart into the waters to catch the unwary fish that has ventured near the surface. A flock of ducks passes over, and we watch them till they go from our sight. Meanwhile, the hamper is lightened. Young Mr. Spencer sits upon a post and sketches the party. He catches the Secretary on a rock with a handful of Irish moss, and down upon the book goes the Secretary. The Doctor's wife has brought a mysterious bundle from the hotel. Not even the Doctor has been able to make her tell what it contains. And now we find out. It is a pillow, and Mrs. Doctor gets her postprandial nap upon the grass. There is a fight for the pillow at first, but the party finally leaves her in peaceful possession, singing a lullaby to soothe her to slumber, and clambers over the rocks, drinking in the view. Artist Gilbert gets a fine sketch of the cove.

The tourmaster's whistle sounds, and we must be off. The songstress carries a bottle and administers a tonic to the weaker ones. The Secretary tries to drink lying down and gets an eyeful. Some facetious one suggests that he has had a drink of Rock port, and the dog whines.

And now for Lanesville. As we approach it our ears are greeted with the sound as of artillery. Are they giving us a salute? No, it is another quarry, and gunpowder is serving mankind in the useful arts, not strewing the fields with carnage. We stop to see the quarry, and then on again. We have left the rocky shore, and now we are enjoying inland waterscapes and landscapes. We lose the road that would have taken us by the great boulder and over the rustic bridge at Lobster Cove, and we save a mile of wheeling, but the saving does not compensate for the loss, and we are somewhat disappointed. We wheel over Goose Cove, by Mill River to Riverdale. It was here that William Shakespeare took his header, but he saved his Bacon. Excuse me, it is the atmosphere.

Under the trees at Willow Road we ride in ecstacy. The sun is behind the hills, the foliage is all aglow with brilliant shades, and the bending willows gracefully arch the road above. Young Mr. Spencer draws his sketch book and goes to work. Artist Gilbert enjoys the view, but his sketch book remains in his pocket. "Webber 's got that in his book; I don't want it," is his remark. Mr. Gilbert would never enjoy a chromo.

The tourmaster halts us and gives us a position in line. We are getting back to Gloucester, and we must enter town in good military order. The Pavilion receives us. We are in high spirits. The ride has been one long to be remembered. The fun has been great. Fatigue has failed to visit us. And now, your Grace, the Duke of Wellington, bring forth those who will entertain us, and let them be heard.

Our concert was a colossal artistic success. Our artists were Mrs Chas. Hopkins, guitarist, vocalist, reciter, and impersonator; Miss Hattie Stearns, guitarist, vocalist, pianist; Mrs. Southwell, reciter; Miss Gertrude Howard, reciter, and Mr. C. N. Barker, 'celloist and baritone.

The instrumentalists and vocalists gave us some very choice concerted pieces well rendered. Mrs. Hopkins sang very finely "The Drum Major," and had to sing it again, and she recited "The Chinese Question," in costume, and several other selections. Miss Stearns exhibited a beautiful contralto voice in several solos, and gave us the "Siege of Sebastopol" on her guitar. Mr. Barker was a host in himself, with his 'cello and as a soloist. Mrs. Southwell and Miss Howard read selections with good taste.

The entertainment gave great satisfaction, and the various members received a great deal of well-merited applause. We went to the theatre one night of the tour, and we got an enter tainment far inferior to this little affair of our own. The Duke of Wellington was master of ceremonies, and he was abundantly equal to the task.

And now the quiet ones of the party retire to their rooms, while the noisy element gathers about the piano for an overflow concert. They overflowed till past midnight, and we of the quiet contingent tried in vain to sleep. And now another good night, and another chapter is closed.

FOR

THE NEW MAIL!

Since making our offer below, many wheelmen have improved the opportunity of a year to obtain one of these superb wheels, by exchanging their old mounts. Our offer remains open but very short time longer!

GET ONE WHILE YOU CAN.

SPECIAL OFFER.

Our NEW MAIL, through the year, has had an EXTRAORDINARY DEMAND. We have been behind orders since the opening of the season till hot weather set in. Now, as the most active bicycle season is past, though the best riding weather is in the autumn, we have decided to offer for a short time only a few of these SUPERB NEW MAILS in exchange for others. This we have persistently refused to do heretofore, as the demand was so great. Wheelmen desiring to exchange their present old mounts for a

will please give us a description of the old wheel and their estimate of value. This offer is for no length of time, as we do not care to place many in this way. But few more to be exchanged. WRITE AT ONCE.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE all-absorbing topic of conversation in the clubs at present is the coming interstate road race, and, from present indications, election day will see the largest and most enthusiastic assemblage at Orange that has yet turned out to do honor to this great semi-annual struggle. From what can be learned, there will be changes in all the familiar teams, and important ones, too; but whether the changes will be for the better or worse remains to be seen. The Kings County, who are generally looked upon as the winners, will ride without Valentine, who is at present said to be riding but little and out of form. It is generally supposed that Val's repeated failure to secure first place is the real reason of his not riding; but this, I think, is a mistake Rumor had it that Rich was to ride in Val's place, but this has been contradicted; in fact, since Rich joined the Citizens, it has been generally understood that he had withdrawn from membership in the Kings County Wheelmen. The Elderans lose their old champion, Greenman, who, since his marriage, has almost given up riding. They still have Bradley, who did so nobly at the last contest, and they speak of a dark horse whom they say is even better than Bradley. These two, together with Schoffer and Hornbostle, will probably constitute their team, and it will be a very good one. The Hudson County Wheelmen are evidently intending to make a grand effort to retrieve their past hard luck, and secure first place if possible. Stenken rides with them of course, and the rivalry between him and Hall of the Kings County Wheelmen will made an exciting race for first honors. Kluge, who has bu recently been readmitted to the league as an amateur, is to make an attempt to ride in the team of the Hudson County. Unless I am mistaken, the rules of the association provide that no person can compete unless he has been, for three months previous to the day of the race, an active member of the club for which he rides. I fail to see how Kluge can ride under this rule, when he was a professional or a promateur about three weeks ago. I am informed that he will be protested, and also that he will ride under protest; in which event, some interesting developments may be looked for.

The Brooklyn Bicycle Club are to have a hundred-mile road race on Saturday, Oct. 29, the course to be on Long Island, probably on the Jericho Pike from Jamaica to Jericho, fifteen miles straight-away. Hawkins, Todd, and Waters are working hard for the event, and a lively race is anticipated.

Harry Hall, of the Kings County Wheelmen, is to be seen in the Park almost any afternoon, practising on the West Drive Hill, for the coming road race. Wilson, of Schwalbach's Brigade, generally makes pace for him, though he is occasionally accompanied by one of his clubmates Harry has fire in his eye, and evidently means business. The trial for first honors between him and Stenken will be a contest worth witnessing. BON.

THE OWL.

IT will bring a pang to many a fair one's heart when they learn that Kennedy-Child has at last centred his affections on one of their number, and will in consequence thereof bestow his hyphenized cognomen upon a fair daughter of Boston. This is, I think, the first intimation in print of the near approach of this happy event, and is, I assure you, official and correct. Boston's postmaster may, in consequence of this, prepare himself for a deluge of missives from all over the world, the fair writers of which will upraid the fickle and talented Child for his perfidy. One of these will be from a young lady he met no later than the recent New York State Division's meet at Cooperstown, and if he is as wise as I am prone to think he is he will just kind of dodge anything from that fair one, as her hair has more than a faint suspicion of that color that causes one intuitively to look around for a white horse, and such lasses are not noted for sweetness of temper.

IT has been one of the few unpleasant results of my long and intimate association with wheelmen to be often brought into contact with their ingratitude and parsimony towards their benefactors; but in no case have I seen such a glaring exhibition of this as in their failure to respond to the call for aid from Chief Consul Bidwell to enable him to meet the expenses incurred by the State Division in its recent battle for the passage of the "Liberty Bill," which was the great legal battle and victory for wheelmen. There are estimated to be in this district from eighteen hundred to two thousand wheelmen, about six hundred of whom are members of the L. A. W., and they have contributed to date about $290 towards the $800 needed by the State Division to pay off the indebtedness incurred in its fight for the benefit of these two thousand gentlemen, who have shown their appreciation of it by an average contribution of less than fifteen cents per man. Could anything more clearly stamp the parsimonious personnel of these individuals than this? These same gentlemen were willing though to pay five times this amount for a badge that an unjustly discriminating Park Commission forced them to wear when they passed through only a small portion of the park, and now that they have secured to them the free use of all of the roads they offer in return to pay for it only one fifth the amount per capita that they were formerly glad to expend for only a small portion. Here's logic and generosity for you!

CAN any wheelman ride through Central Park, and thus make use of the labor and money of others, and, without aiding same, consider himself a gentleman? If so, then please consider me out of this category of gentlemen. A little closer inspection of the source of this $290 is interesting. One hundred of it comes from the New York Club, about thirty dollars is from the Citizen's Club members, individually, which will be followed later by a club contribution of $300, I am informed. Now, this leaves just $160 as the sum representing the patriotism of the remaining 1,800, of the two thousand wheelmen estimated to be in the city. It shows that the Harlem wheelmen, Manhattan wheelmen, and Y. M. C. A. Club, as clubs, care nothing for the privileges given them by the passage of the bill, nor for the honor of the State Division, that stands in jeopardy through the non-payment of the debt it contracted in their behalf. It may be claimed by these clubs that they have contributed individually. Well, then, perhaps they did, but they have only $160 to divide between themselves and the remaining four hundred division members in the city, and it will not prove flattering to either their patriotism or their generosity. What is the consequence of this? The divis on treasury is bankrupt, the hands of its officers tied, while their hearts are discouraged at so flattering a proof of the appreciation of those they have labored to benefit. Bad as this is, it is not the worst. I am in possession of the proofs of the determination of the Park Commissioners to offer an amendment to the Liberty Bill, at the forthcoming session of the Legislature, excepting Central Park from the freedom of road use guaranteed elsewhere by the enactments of the bill. To meet this, we have what? A division bankrupt and in debt, officers dispirited and disheartened by the apathy of those benefited; and the result can only be overwhelming and irredeemable defeat, and the victory it has taken us seven years of struggle to gain will be swept away in a moment. Can it be, that this army of wheelmen will stand idly by and see such a thing happen? And it will happen just as sure as I pen this article, if they do not, like men, come together and present an unbroken and defiant front to their common enemy. One more point, and I am through. When it became necessary to retain competent aid to secure the passage of the bill, it could only be obtained by the Chief Consul becoming personally responsible for the payment of the bills. This he did, and to-day finds him, gentlemen, through your generosity, in a position to put his hand into his pockets to the tune of two or three hundred dollars to pay your indebtedness, for such it must be considered, since it was contracted in your benefit. Will you sit supinely by and see him do this, or will you individually assume it yourselves, as you should? It is to be hoped that, for your own honor, you will adopt the latter course, and relieve the division from the cloud that at present rests upon its fair name. The country has its eyes upon you, and awaits your decision with no less interest than does your friend, THE OWL.

ST. LOUIS.

BELDING and Prof. Stone rode to DeSoto last Sunday, the 25th, on their 1887 Safeties, accomplishing the distance, 45 miles, in 6.03. The actual riding time, deducting an hour for dinner, was 5.03, which they both triumphantly announce as a record. "All these years of my active cycling," says the professor, "I have been yearning for a record, and now I've got one. Suppose it is divided with another, it's a record. Let 'em call me 'Henry and his little velocipede;' if I can get there, that's enough." His allusion to "Henry" arose from the fact that in a recent run to Fenton with the Missouri Club, he was a participant on a Safety, and some joker dubbed him as "Henry and his little velocipede." Belding, who, on his Star, has for years been at the tail end of the average run, is wonderfully elated, and has the temerity to publish an inclination to meet Greenwood over the same road.

THE growing popularity or prominence of the wheel have so far forced themselves upon the benighted editor of the Globe-Democrat which has slighted and insulted wheelmen so often, that Monday last it published a cut of the scene on the boulevard the day before, when the carriages were all trying to keep up with the President's vehicle. In the foreground was a bicyclist lapping the hind wheel and existing in the full light of a rather impossible smile from the Chief Magistrate. So one by one the roses fade. In the same account it made the laughable error of resurrecting the Ramblers and making them parade before the President's house Sunday morning. The paraders were a mixed detachment of Cycle and Missouri club men, who having found a bundle of flags left by the G. A. R. at Forest Park, formed an impromptu parade at the pump and rode back to the city where they proceeded to the Mayor's residence in Vandeventer Place, and made so many pretty evolutions that President Cleveland, who was nearly ready for church, stepped to the door and nodded to the group

I HAVE a little incident about the Fair Ground boycott, which will interest every one who attended the League Meet. At that time prohibition was removed because of a very vigorous protest from the committee, who threatened to make a public protest if the visitors were n't allowed to ride inside the grounds Maybe you did n't know of this before, but it is correct all the same. Well, the grounds were opened for the two days of the meet but after that were closed as tight as ever against wheels. During the Fair just closed, a wheelman, through a friendly gatekeeper, managed to get his machine through, and rode it inside. The management interrogated every keeper to find who had been guilty, for the purpose of chopping off his head, but they could n't locate him, so he escaped. But the next day that bike stayed outside. I just mention this to let the wheelmen of St Louis know that when they ridicule the narrow-mindedness of other cities, they must n't forget the beam in their own eyes.

CHIEF CONSUL DUNN, of Ohio, was in the city last week and was taken around to see the elephant. He attended the Veiled Prophet's ball, saw the parades, shook hands with Grover, and then was given a "full dress" dinner at the Planters by half a dozen of his friends and their wives. OMEN.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

I SEE by the last BULLETIN, Mr. Editor, that John A. Green, one of our first really good Star riders, is again an applicant for League membership. Mr. Green is universally and deservedly popular with the wheelmen, and will be a welcome addition to the ranks, if admitted.

The bicycle races at the sports of the Chester City Cricket Club were well contested, and of course the most interesting portion of the programme. The sports were given last Saturday at the Club's grounds on Twelfth Street, with a good attendance. The one-mile handicap fell to R. P. Bernard, of Lehigh University, to whom the handicapper had been exceedingly liberal; J. J. Potter, of the Camden Club, took second place. Bernard captured the two-mile handicap, but when he came to buck up against H. B. Schwartz, of Reading, in the mile scratch, it was an entirely different matter. Schwartz is a flier of the liveliest kind, and on Thursday last he and F. M. Dampman, of Honeybrook, Pa., with Richard Dallett, of the Tioga Club as a pace maker, tackled the record from Paoli to 52d street, on the Lancaster pike, recently lowered, as first reported in these columns, by McDaniels, of Wilmington. Wells and Synnesvedt, on a quadrant tandem, were given five minutes start over the course (16 1-2 miles) and the pair succeeded in making a 58.05 record for the three-wheeler. Schwartz got in to the tune of 52.05, beating McDaniels' record by one minute and thirty-five seconds. Dampman rode well, and gained rapidly on Schwartz for the last mile, making up two hundred yards or more, and finishing in 52.07, hardly thirty feet behind. Dallett, who started merely as a pace maker, kept it up and did fifty-six minutes dead; not at all bad for the smiling Tioga infant, within a week or so of changing from a fifty-five to a fifty-three inch machine. The West Phila. races, under the supervision of "Chris," Mac Owen, begin to look like success. One new idea is that it shall be distinctively local in its attractions, but one race being given in which a "foreigner" can enter. It is announced that if this meeting is successful, the track will be raised at the corners and "given a coat of cinders." We pray deliverance from the cinders, but raising the corners is a necessity if the track is ever to be a track, and if improvements are in order, the shape of the course could be advantageously attacked. However, with proper care and attention to the surface, a good time can be had on the 27th, and wheelmen should give the meeting the support that anything Mr. Mac Owen fathers deserves.

The Century will give their smoker on the 27th inst. A jolly time is assured. On Tuesday, Oct. 11, Mr. H. B. Hart, founder of the Hart Cycle Company, and the pioneer dealer in wheel goods in Philadelphia, was married to Miss Gertrude A. Crocker, of Vineland. Mr. Hart has the hearty congratulations of his many friends, who are indebted to him for their sturdy Columbias

On Saturday, 22d inst., the annual fall sports of the University will be held at the groun 's, 37th and Spruce. The events will all be interesting, and the bicycle events particularly so, as W. J. Wilhelm, of the Reading club; J. Fuller, Dental University of Pennsylvania; John J. Bradley, S. E. W.; Frank J. Beechtold, H. J. McArdle, S. E. W., and Louis J. Kolb, Med. University of Pennsylvania, will be in the race. Many Pennsylvania men believe Kolb to be the winner. He was recently defeated by Wilhelm, and there is every prospect of a close and fast race for blood. My idea is that Kolb will find the old man from Reading a little more than he can handle, despite the laudatory opinions of the Pennsylvania men.

NEW ORLEANS NOTES.

171 St. Joseph Street knows the New Orleans Bicycle Club no longer. The club has moved, and is now duly installed in its new quarters, No. 178 Baronne Street, which place was remodelled specially for the use of a cycle club, and is consequently well equipped with the many conveniences which go to make club life comfortable. There was no regular house-warming, the nearest approach to it being the annual election, which occurred on the 3d inst., and resulted in Edward A. Shields rising from a high private to a full-blown president. When Mr. Shields is absent Frank Fenner will preside, having been elected vice-president. Harry Fairfax will keep the records and handle the cash, and Ben C. Rea will lead the boys on all their runs during the ensuing year. George Dear Gaudry will hold down the first base, — lieutenancy, I mean, — and if Charles H. Fenner ever returns from a seemingly never-ending summer vacation, we will bask in the sunshine of his smiles while he learns of election to the second lieutenancy. Bob Abbott will guide his mates over the worst spots in the road, and then ride hands off and grin while they get up and brush the flies and dust off; and Samuel M. Posen Patton will toot the bugle for another year whenever occasion requires. Gentlemen, congratulations. No, thanks, never drink anything stronger than bicycle punch.

WE did it. The developments are full and complete, and the pin now nestles snugly in the centre of Chief Consul Hodgson's scarf. It was at a special meeting of the Louisiana Cycling Club on the 10th, after two new members had been elected and an invitation to the New Orleans Bicycle Club to join in the club's run and "sugar cane eat" on the 27th inst., authorized, the presiding officer arose and told Mr. Hodgson in substance, that his many efforts in advancing the interests of the wheel had stamped him as a true and faithful "worker," that his work had been appreciated, and his name endeared to that portion of the local wheel world which recognized and admitted true merit"; and "I am happy to be able to state," added the speaker, "that the Louisiana Cycling Club is numbered with that class, but, as action speaks more forcibly than words, the members of club ask me to act for them and present to you this little trinket as a token of their sincerity. It cost considerably less than a thousand dollars, but such gifts are measured by the feelings which prompt, not by the value of the article itself." The cheery Harry H. responded in a neat little speech, full of gratitude and commendation and encouragement to the club, and when the time for the Division meeting arrived every one felt the better for the little act of the few minutes before.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The editor wishes it distinctly understood that he is not responsible for the statements and opinions expressed in these columns.

STEVENS EXPLAINS ABOUT OUTING.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Dear Sir, you were quite right in pointing out in last week's BULLETIN, Outing's shortcomings in the matter of unfulfilled promises. I am quite ready to admit that an explanation is due from me, or at least, from somebody, to members of the L. A. W. As you suggested some time ago, there are doubtless many members of the League who subscribed for the magazine on the strength of the promises made, when I returned from the journey around the world, that there would be a revival of cycling literature in its columns. It is no more than reasonable that these subscribers should want to know why these promises have not been kept.

It is highly probable, also, that many a reader has associated Outing's delinquency in this respect, with my own name. Very naturally so, too. What more natural than to attribute some of the blame to the decline of the magazine's cycling department, to its "cycling editor," pray? In justice to myself, I ought to have explained long ago; but anything savoring ever so slightly of "personal grievances" are, I know, a bore to others.

The fact of the matter is: Outing has not had any cycling editor for the past five months. I might dilate upon the why and wherefore of this, perhaps to the enlightenment of many wheelmen who remember the "pomp and circumstance" of my own installation therein a couple of months earlier. As this is a matter of persons, however, rather than of public interest, I deem it best at present to merely clear myself from possible suspicion that I am in any way to blame for the non-fulfilment of Outing's promises.

Outing's good genius was sadly remiss in her duty to the cause of cycling when she permitted the magazine to pass into the control of the erratic and unreliable individual who blazoned forth so pompously as its "Editor and Proprietor" a few numbers back. The "New York Management," Mr. Editor, of the magazine, has consisted solely of this same "Editor and Proprietor" and his own "quips and fancies." No one else is responsible in the least for broken promises. Indeed, delusive promises, made only to be broken, have been that slippery party's chief stock-in-trade, so far as my experience goes; and were it not that he is now virtually at the end of his managerial string, I should not feel like predicting any fixed policy for Outing in the immediate future. I understand, however, that henceforth the management will be in competent hands.

Anyhow, I can promise wheelmen subscribers, for certain, that the art department of the magazine will be improved at once and that the November number will contain the next chapter of Around the World on a Bicycle. I had a talk with the new management the other day, and received the assurance that it is their intention to make every effort to regain the prestige among wheelmen that has been lost by the suicidal policy of the last few months.

There is no denying that Outing has done noble work for the cause of wheeling in the past; and, given proper support, there is no reason why it should not do it in the future also.

Sincerely,
THOMAS STEVENS.

JERSEY.

YOUR proof-reader or typo, made Kluge's time in the ten-mile road race read 35.05. It should read a minute faster.

LAST Wednesday's meeting of the Elizabeth Wheelmen was an important and interesting one. In addition to the full discussion of the road-racing question, there were several presentations of medals. Ex-Captain Martin in a witty speech awarded medals for century runs, to S. J. Berry, Jr., E. J. Runyon, F. C. Gilbert, and Walter Leary; also a medal to W. H. Caldwell, one for being the first to beat three minutes on the road, he having ridden a mile in 2.56. At the conclusion of his remarks, the Ex-Captain was surprised to have Secretary Pennell step forward and present him with a gold-headed cane from the club as a token of his labor in its behalf, during his long service as captain. He, however, soon recovered his presence of mind, and thanked the members for giving him a prize he had not won, in spite of his many efforts to gain distinction.

THE Elizabeth Wheelmen will have a lantern parade on the 20th. The Roselle Ramblers, Plumfield Bicycle Club, Orange Wanderers, and Atalanta, Union County, and New Jersey wheelmen will assist.

SAICH, the veteran bicycle maker, has severed his connection with the King wheel, and is building a machine after an idea of his own.

THE Oranges were well travelled on Sunday. Among the clubs out was a large delegation from a Philadelphia club. There were several ladies in the party. Some of the King's County men were on the Irvington-Milburn road watching five of the candidates for the team taking a fifteen-mile trial scorch. Kluge has taken up his training quarters at the Irvington Hotel, and has a ten-mile spin morning and afternoon. Others of the racers will join him there shortly. The ex-amateur Star champion is celebrating his return to amateur ranks by doing some wonderful pedalling on a crank, and proving that the Star is not the only road machine, even over the Irvington-Milburn course.

THE DISTRICT DIVISION.

AT a division meet held Tuesday, Oct. 11, much enthusiasm was manifested, and several important questions discussed, and resolutions adopted tending to an awakening of interest in League matters in our division.

The report of the Secretary-Treasurer showed something like $35 in the treasury, after paying all bills incurred by the committee in charge of the reception during the May drill, and $15 due the division from the Secretary-Editor.

It was decided to hold meetings of the division on the first Saturday in each month hereafter, to give a run to Cabin John Bridge on Thanksgiving Day, and to have a League dance at an early date, — all with a view to increasing our membership, which is now nearly a hundred.

A committee on new constitution was appointed and set to work.

A chronicler for the division was appointed, with instructions to write up League matters in the local and wheel press.

The question of posting our roads with signboards was discussed at length, and the matter of our jurisdiction over Maryland territory, in the immediate vicinity of the district, was also considered. It was decided to open correspondence with Maryland division officials on this subject, as well as with reference to the appointment of League hotels at Cabin John Bridge and Marlboro', our two favorite runs.

A membership committee was appointed "to inquire into the standing of every applicant for membership in the District Division," and in this connection a protracted discussion arose; but as Chief Consul Pettengill will bring that matter before the Board meeting next Monday, I will refrain from comment.

As a result of all this, you may expect to hear more of our little division in the future, and I trust that what I may be called upon to chronicle will be in the nature of good tidings indicating progress and enthusiasm.

CODCLAW.

H. C. WALLACE, and Eugene Heeley, of Scranton, Penn., made a century run of one hundred and two miles in twelve hours on Oct. 9. Actual riding time, nine hours.

LIEUTENANT J. L. SPEARS, of the Rhode Island Wheelmen, recently raced on his bicycle from Trinity Square to Rocky Point against steam yacht Eudora, which ran from Hill's Wharf to the Point. The bicycle made the distance by road in forty-nine minutes, and beat the yacht twenty-four minutes. The distance is twelve miles.

SEPT. 30, A. L. Bower brought the world's tricycle record for one hundred miles down to 6.9.26, riding a "Beeston Humber Cripper," on the C. P. track, in wind and rain. He also lowered the one hundred and fifty miles time to 10.18.29 2-5. A wonderful performance.

Then take that Professional Handicap at North Attleboro' the other day, when Munger won easily, with Rowe, McCurdy, Hollingsworth, and others in the field. Munger rode an ordinary LIGHT CHAMPION, while all his competitors were on 21-pound wheels. The LIGHT CHAMPION took first in every event at Parker, Dak., on September 17, ridden by Frank Montelius.

There's no use talking, the bearings are bound to get there, even if the machine is heavy and made for the road, and when one does ride the CHAMPION on the road, he simply says "MY! it's the easiest running wheel I ever saw." THE World thinks we question the Ives' record at a late day, and says it would have been better had we called attention to the erratic action of the watches at the time, and given our reasons for doubting the record then and there rather than at this late date. We called attention to erratic action of the watches at the time, gave a statement written by the referee, to show that the timing was not what it should have been, and we made a statement showing that the watches used were not fit for long-distance timing.

WOULDN'T it read well if we could say, "Chief Consul Bidwell received money enough in three days by popular subscription to pay the bills incurred in passing the Liberty Bill." But we can't say it. "Wheelmen like privileges, but hate to pay for them," is what we are forced to say. League workers can find little encouragement to go ahead and work for the interest of wheelmen if wheelmen will not support them. It may be that Mr. Bidwell will have to call for help on wheelmen outside the State.

THESE are the days when the true cycler, the one who rides for the enjoyment to be gotten out of it gets his best sport from his wheel. No other season of the year finds the roads in as good condition as the Fall. In regular racing trim, packed, and hard, and clean swept by the autumn winds, and over them the rubber glides noiselessly save the mellow crunching of the leaves, or the musical ping of a spoke in response to the endeavor of a festive twig to scrape its acquaintance. Freed from the heat and dust of summer, cycling acquires a new zest, and hills which were doubtful three months ago, are now taken with a rush, while a level stretch is simply an anticipation of the toboggan slide. There is a time for everything, and this is the time for touring.

IT is pleasant to note the success of the ladies' tour, and easy to imagine the delightful times the company must have had. Not but what success is always attendant upon feminine energy and persistency, but rather that success is always a pleasure. It is always the social side of these tours which has most of interest for the participant, the distance travelled being simply the thread upon which are strung the various experiences of the trip. Memories of different intensities as circumstances may have invested them. Cyclers are, as a rule, very companionable, and touring always brings out the best side of their nature; due, no doubt, somewhat to their entire sympathy with the sport and the presence of congenial companions. Touring is, above all, conducive to the formation and development of individuality. Here there is no restraint, and the natural inclination is followed, aided and abetted by pressure of animal spirits. But no one goes too far, for the cycler is of necessity a well-balanced individual. Success to all tours, and let us have more of them.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

NORTH SHORE TOUR III.

WITHOUT leave or license I married one of the couples who were with us the first and third day of the trip, and I hasten to divorce them now. Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Conant appeared on the roster, but hereafter they will be known as Mr. Conant and Miss Isadora E. Bacon. The secretary insisted on calling them Mr. and Mrs. Smith, and as such he introduced them, and after finding out that they were not the Smiths, he made them man and wife under another name. I can believe that Mr. Conant desisted from setting him right in sheer desperation.

I THINK I may have neglected to set down the statistics of our ride, but since we were not riding for records, and since we had plenty of time to go over the routes laid out we were not at all particular about cyclometer records. It is very hard to find a man that is not an earnest advocate in favor of the accuracy of his watch, and let the time of day be mentioned in a party of gentlemen and you will soon get a heated argument upon a question of seconds. Not so with the cyclometer, especially on this occasion. I believe no two recorded the same distance, and the party seemed to be wholly indifferent as to the distance run or the time taken to make it.

FROM Malden Square to Gloucester, our first day' run, was thirty-one miles, and as very many had to ride to the rendezvous the mileage was in nearly every case greater than this. The run around Cape Ann covered sixteen miles. Those are cold facts and figures. No instrument could measure our delicious fun nor our joy-jewelled experience.

I WAS awakened on the morning of the third day by the "Miserere." Mr. Barker was enjoying himself with his 'cello. I have often wondered what could induce a man to learn to play "the big fiddle." Certainly no thought of serenading his lady-love nor of entertaining a company could induce him to adopt such an ungraceful and stridulous instrument. Utilitarianism alone can be responsible for his act. But Mr. Barker has selected an instrument nearly as ungraceful as "the big fiddle," though in sweetness of tone it rivals the smaller ones. I can imagine Mr. Barker playing love airs on his 'cello, under the moonlit sky, beneath the window of his charmer. He gave us a morning concert. I don't believe he knew that he was disturbing us, for undoubtedly he awoke at first break of day, and hurried to commune with his favorite. I will not suggest that he was practising.

BUT I am wasting time. We must be off. We take our farewell meal at the Pavilion, and the Tourmaster wins the name of "Pirate" for raiding upon certain exclusive delicacies that the Songstress has bribed a waiter to bring her.

WE coast Sawyer's Hill. A big dog tries to eat the Masons. Sport comes to the rescue. The big dog endeavors to eat Sport. The gentlemen bombard the big dog with stones, and he retires with his caudal appendage between his legs.

AND now for Magnolia. Only four miles. We arrive early in the forenoon. Under the apple trees we leave our wheels, and take up our line of march to Rafe's Chasm. The tide is out, and the rocks are well exposed.

THE reef of Norman's Woe shows its huge proportions. It looks harmless now. When the tide is full, and it just shows itself above the water, we know it for a treacherous destroyer, though it has a peaceful aspect.

THE iron cross erected to the memory of Martha Marvin turns our conversation to the details of the fearful tragedy once enacted on this spot. But the cross tells another story and it is one of vandalism.

"Fools' names, as well as faces,
Oft appear in public places," and the iron cross is covered with the names of fools who have put themselves on record as such. Who but a fool, would inscribe his name on another person's tombstone?

THE photographer catches us in a group on the rocks, with the chasm for a background. To do so he stands with his tripod on a rock, over which the waves break. He gets his feet wet, but he minds it not. One wave reaches his pile of plate holders and the dry plates are no longer dry. He threw the plates away. He dried his stockings that night by beating the water out of them on the door between his room and my own.

MR. BARKER brings his instrument along and we have a service of song on the rocks. Under the shadow of a great rock I sit me down to drink in the panorama of beauty laid out before me. The scene is enchanting. My eyes take in the grand ocean view, while the sweet strains of music fall upon my ear. I am awakened from all this by a call to gather for another photograph.

OUR dinner at Willow Cottage was a success. Mrs. Foster knows the taste and capacity of wheelmen and she caters well to them. And now another photograph. The photographer's supply of plates seems inexhaustible. Each couple wheels before the camera and gets a picture.

THE ride to Salem from Magnolia was a delightful one. The roads were grand and the scorchers were happy. There are few hills. No stopping for laggards now. The roads are so good that the slow ones can ride fast. Even the sociable riders were seen to lean forward and scorch. But when Tandem rides with Sociable, it is "good-by, Sociable." At Beverly Farms we fall in with the Apalachian Mountain Club. They have been climbing a mountain. Our friend Mr. Parsons, who has been with us in previous years, is with them. I would rather see Mr. Parsons on a wheel than on a mountain.

AT Beverly the populace turns out to welcome us. A druggist invites the party to indulge in a free glass of soda. Happy party. I really believe they enjoyed that soda better than anything else on the trip. What the boys call "a free blow" sweetens a draught and garnishes a morsel. The Duke of Wellington was particular to wash his hands before drinking and he lost his soda by the delay.

SALEM welcomes us. We avoided the home of the witches on our outward trip for fear that we could not be accommodated. Our accommodations now made us wish that we had passed through. By doubling up here and there, the greater portion found sleeping room, but several had to look up lodging places outside. I gave you last week a portion of the experiences of Deacon Foster, who went to Gloucester, but I didn't complete the poem, for it's closing line did not echo our sentiments regarding Gloucester. Did you think I had forgotten it? Let me put it in right here and I think some of the party will not object. "He vowed he would never go there again."

A SCRIMMAGE in the parlor. The Songstress insists that the Secretary's well-developed calves are stuffed and tests them with a penetrating pin. A glass of water is distributed equally over Secretary and Songstress. The Doctor's wife had candy in her lap, and munched, and munched and munched; "Give me," quoth one, "for not since noon I've lunched." "Nay, not so," the Doctor's wife replied, "these sweets are not for men, sweets to the sweet, go elsewhere for your lunch," she cried. The gentlemen make a raid, and behold a great pile of struggling humanity on the floor. "Shut up," cries the Tourmaster, and the combat ends. The lady retains her confectionery.

AT Salem, we met a delegation from the Massachusetts Club, headed by Capt. Peck. Here, also, came the Smiths, of Merrimac, and so warm was their welcome that the waiters could not take orders. Mr. J. Fred Adams, of Haverhill, also joined us, and delegations came from Beverly, from Peabody, and from Lynn. We spent the evening at the theatre, and saw a stupid play given by a poor company. But cyclers on a holiday are not given to complaining. We were out for a good time, and we accepted the entertainment without a murmur.

SUNDAY morning, our sociable couple went to see the House of the Seven Gables, and brought back photos of its interior and exterior. We are delayed in getting off. The minutes are flying, and our visit to Nahant is imperilled. We are escorted beyond the town limits by scores of wheelmen, and we take on the appearance of a grand parade. On the rocks at Swampscott, we sit down to enjoy the delightful scene. The photographer gets us into posit on once more, and we are taken with our wheels. We ride along the beach road, through Ocean Street, Lynn, to the Mildred Range. The party called it the "Mildewed Range." We had a good dinner, well served.

AND now we separate. One section starts for home; another starts on a run to Nahant. I cannot go to Nahant, and I join the former party. Report comes to me that the ride over the isthmus was greatly enjoyed, and that our beautiful peninsula delighted the visitors from afar. Our journey homeward was greatly enjoyed.

AND now good-by to the North Shore tour of 1887. It was altogether a success. The weather was perfect; the roads were good; the company was choice. It was a combination sure to result in experiences of pure delight. We shall all look back upon it as a bright spot in our wheeling careers. It will make us look forward to the tour of 1888 with eager expectation. May we all be at roll call at that gathering, and may we find new friends gathered with us then and there.

ONE or two supplementary tours were organized for the week following the grand tour. I have not heard the particulars of these, but I am pained to hear that the tourmaster's wife met with an accident at Newport, which confined her to her bed for many days. I hope to hear good news of her before my next. DAISIE.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE FIRST QUARTERLY MEETING OF THE LOUISIANA DIVISION, L. A. W.,

HELD AT NEW ORLEANS, MONDAY, OCT. 18, 1887.

MEETING called to order at 8.20 P. M., Chief Consul Hodgson presiding, and Messrs. Betts, Buhler, Crane, Dodge, Dwyer (W. H.), Fairfax, Hill, Jones, Patton, Rea, Renaud, Ruhlman, and Ziegler present.

The minutes of the previous meeting (July 8) were read and adopted.

The Secretary-Treasurer's report for the period beginning July 8, 1887, and ending Sept. 30, 1887, showed the total membership to be sixty-nine, and the Division in debt to the extent of $40.40, account expenses incurred in Division race meet Sept. 15. Report received and ordered filed. On motion of Mr. Fairfax, seconded by Mr. Dwyer, the Secretary-Treasurer was authorized to call for individual subscriptions from the members to make good the deficit.

The standing committees having no reports to make, the Chief Consul then read his report, which was, in brief, a resumé of the various Division matters which had transpired since his election. The need of greater harmony and a more general sharing of the work was urged. C. M. Fairchild's good work in posting League signboards was favorably mentioned, the deficit resulting from the races of Sept. 15 was touched on, and the members urged to do the proper thing. The need of a suitable track in New Orleans for cycle racing, and the good results that would ensue from the establishment of one, were commented on, and some move looking to that end recommended.

On motion of Mr. Hill, seconded by Mr. Dwyer, the chair was authorized to appoint a committee of five to inquire into the matter of a track and solicit funds for its construction. Chair appointed A. M. Hill (chairman), B. C. Rea, H. W. Fairfax, R. G. Betts, and C. B. Guillotte.

There being no further business, the meeting adjourned. RITCHIE G. BETTS,
Secretary-Treasurer.

PORTLAND WHEEL CLUB.

BEING in Portland a few days last week, I had the good fortune to attend the opening of the new rooms of the Portland Wheel Club, on Congress Street. Here they have two large, connected, well-lighted rooms, one front and one back. An entry gives a separate entrance to each, and the general arrangement is peculiarly well suited to the club. The smaller room is used as a smoking room and the serving of early breakfasts of oatmeal, etc., while the larger one is for receptions, reading, and music. Carpets, plush easy chairs and sofas, a parlor stove, draperies, upright piano, files of daily and weekly papers, etc., render this apartment very pleasant and attractive, while the artistic disposal of pictures, scarfs, and various trophies of the club's phenomenally successful minstrel show of last winter combine to form an effect which few clubrooms present. The evening's programme consisted of an informal reception, solos by Mr. Thompson, and quartette numbers by Messrs. Thompson, Stevens, Beckett, and Pierce. After the company had been sufficiently "moved by concord of sweet sounds," they adjourned to the supper room, where the merits of a fine spread were discussed with much interest and attention, and when subsequently the atmosphere had attained the proper degree of discoloration, some little business was transacted, and the company slowly departed, after a most pleasant and auspicious dedication of the new quarters. The club has now some fifty-four members, and there seems no reason why it should not gain as many more with the advantages which membership holds forth.

QUADRANT.

JERSEY.

WITH the Semi-annual Team Road Race but two weeks off, little wonder is it that it is the absorbing topic of conversation among clubmen. Seven clubs have officially announced their intention of entering teams. Kings County, Brooklyn, and Ilderan will do battle for Long Island; Union County, Hudson County, and Elizabeth for New Jersey; and Harlem for New York. All the candidates for the teams are hard at work, be their prospects of winning small or great. The repeated victories of Kings County do not seem to dishearten the defeated ones a particle, and they are ever ready to "up and at 'em again." This is the true sportsman's spirit. Let the persevering ones remember that all the glory is not with the victors, and that a plucky race will bring, honor even to a loser. A well-fought fight is a good fight be it a winning or a losing battle. There are to be many changes in the personnel of the teams this time, which may cause a considerable shifting in the former relative positions. The race seems to lie between the Kings County and Hudson County teams, and to my mind it is the toss of a penny between the two,—The Hudson County boys will put forth Stenken, Baggot, and Eugene Smith as last spring, and will have the powerful assistance of the reinstated Kluge. Valentine and Webber will not wear the Kings County colors, and it remains to be seen whether Tim Hall and Wilson can fill their places. I look for Kluge, Hall, Stenken, and Knox to be the first four in; but in what order I will not venture to prophecy. If these are not the first four I think that the surprise will come from the Harlems or the Ilderans. The Union County men will miss Pierson and Moore, and rely on Burnett, Farrington, Warner, and Rhett. The Elizabeth boys will choose from Caldwell, Bowman, Jenkins, Berry, and Gilbert. I understand that there has been some talk in the executive committee of the association of giving the second and third teams in, some rewards for meritorious endeavor, by way of consolation.

THEY are repairing the long hill on the Irvington-Milburn road and the surface will hardly be in apple-pie order by the day of the race. This may affect the time somewhat, and stand in the way of the 1.30 being beaten, as many prophecy it will under favorable conditions.

THERE is a good prospect of there being a big turnout on the occasion of the lantern parade of the Elizabeth Wheelmen next Saturday evening. Ten Jersey clubs have been invited to brave the terrors of Belgian block riding at night, with the encumbrance of a festoon of lanterns. I should not be surprised to see two hundred of the unterrified in line. JER. C.

CHICAGO.

A GENERAL run of Chicago wheelmen to Pullman on Nov. 6, is now being arranged. Some think that we can get three hundred wheels into line, while others predict a scorch from beginning to end, and think it will only call out the "flyers." I think the above figure is a little large, and have estimated the representatives from the various clubs as follows: Illinois, 65; Owls, 35; Lincolns, 45; Æolus, 30; Unattached, 25. This is surely the limit from the clubs and if we get ten of the "unwashed," we will be in luck. As everybody knows, Pullman is located seventeen miles south of Chicago, and is reached by the South Park Boulevards, which extend over the former half of the distance, while the latter half is of fine macadam which renders the road ridable, rain or shine. A run of this kind once every month would be benefi cial to cycling, and would increase the friendly feeling between the general public and wheelmen.

CAPTAIN EHLERT seems determined to have a successful Hare and Hound chase on Thanksgiving. I have been unable to obtain any definite information, and so far as I can learn, his idea is to give the hares five minutes start of the hounds; the hares to be provided with bags of paper and will drop a piece at every corner they turn. In this way the hounds will have no difficulty in following them. The hares may go in any direction they choose, and the chase will be from 9 A. M. till 1 P. M.

YOURS truly, was one of a parts of fifteen wheelmen, consisting of twelve Cranks and three Stars, that attempted to make the trip from Maywood to Desplains, over ordinary dirt roads, after a week's rain. Part of the distance we were in luck to find good walking. Eight headers were the order of the day—five of these being from the Star machine. McCurdy was one of the party, but did not hold up his end in a very creditable manner. Mc. is a fine fellow, but as Burley says, "He can't ride bicycles."

THE Lincoln Cycling Club, the last to be organized in the city, is now in a prosperous condition. Their membership is now at sixty, with a good prospect for a rapid increase. They have engaged quarters for the winter within a block of Lincoln Park, and will formally open same on the evening of Nov. 1.

THE ball that was to be given by the Illinois Cycling Club took place at the appointed hour. It is needless to say that it was a grand success, both financially and otherwise. One hundred couples tripped the light fantastic toe to the music of Friedburg's famous orchestra. An elegant supper was served at 11.30 o'clock, and the boys seemed to enjoy it as much as they would the usual country dinner which is so familiar to all touring wheelmen. The committee on arrangements for this ball deserve an unlimited amount of credit, for they had "failure" preached to them from all sides. The Illinois Club has yet to fail its first time, and I believe they can maintain their reputation if they continue to work together.

WHILE at the rooms of the Pope Company, this morning, I learned of a road race between Ehlert and McCurdy, for a nickel-plated leather medal, same to take place Sunday morning, at nine o'clock. The start will be made from Drexel Boulevard and Thirty-ninth Street, thence through Washington and Jackson Parks, and back to starting point. I was unable to learn what brought about the match, but hope to give a full report in my next. A telegram from Dr. Cooley says that Ehlert's amateur standing will remain uninjured. SPECTATOR.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

ONE of the coming Philadelphia racing men, if he takes proper care of himself and drops his everlasting cigarette smoking, is Johnny Fuller, of the Pennsylvania. He captured the trial heat of the club in preparation for the Tryon Road Race in the record time, for the twenty-mile course, of 1.19. Last Saturday at the sports of the University he captured second place from Wilhelm, and there are plenty of us who think that Kolb, had he ridden, would have had to content himself with third place.

The starters were: W. I. Wilhelm, Reading Bicycle Club; John Fuller, Pennsylvania Cycle Club; John J. Bradley, South End Wheelmen; and H. T. Harding, Jr., Vesper Club. Wilhelm took the lead from the start, closely followed by Fuller, Bradley, and Harding. In this order three laps were ridden, Wilhelm and Fuller gradually leaving the others. In the last lap at the 220 yards mark, Fuller spurted, but Wilhelm also quickened his gait, and on the homestretch gradually pulled ahead, winning by fifteen yards. Time, 3 1. Bradley came in third. This is good for about 3 3 for Fuller, and with the splendid natural spurt that he possesses, a little careful training would make him a dangerous antagonist for any one in the city.

THE races at the West Philadelphia Association grounds, next Saturday, promise to be of more than ordinary interest. Shafer, Middleton, Hill, and Fuller, of the Pennsylvania; Potter, Weaver, and Strong, of the Camden Club; Harding, of the Vesper; and Van Deusen, of the Tioga,—are among the entries for the club events, the winner of each club event to start in the Inter-Club championship. Fuller, Van Deusen, and Potter should do battle royal for the championship—barring accidents. Wilhelm and Schwartz have entered for the three-minute limit, the only race open to them, and will bring a lot of Reading men down for the class events.

The following programme has been decided upon: One-mile novice; half-mile, open to Philadelphia riders only; one-mile annual club race of Camden wheelmen; one-mile, 3.20 class; one-mile annual club race of South End wheelmen; one-mile, 3.10 class; half-mile, for boys under sixteen; one-mile annual club race, Tioga Club; one-mile, inter-club race; one-mile, 3. class; one-mile, 3. limit. In the latter race no prize will be given unless 3. is beaten. Gold and silver medals are offered for each open event, and it is probable that a special, and handsome, medal will be given to any one lowering the track record, which is now 2.50 for the mile.

There is a great deal of dissatisfaction expressed in various quarters, over the non-confirmation of John Wells appointment as Representative, and Mr. Frank Read gives it as his opinion that the Pennsylvania Club will withdraw from the League. It is to be hoped that the club will do nothing of the kind. It would not materially cripple the National organization if the club did withdraw, however,—witness the action a few years ago, of the Capital Club, then a proportionately larger club than Pennsylvania. The wisest thing for all in Philadelphia is to allow all personal quarrels to be permanently dropped.

"CAL WALLACE" seems to think that I proposed a race between him, Mr. Read, Wells, and D. Cæsar, Esq. Mr. C. Wallace is mistaken; I simply seconded a suggestion for an inter-club run, of the easy going kind. And how really ill it must make Editor Wells to have one of his own correspondents class him as a "little pistol" in racing—right after scooping pike records too! If "Cal" really wants to tackle a big little pistol, he might lay hold of good old Abe Powell; who, without a day of preparation, rode the "Paoli-to-52d St." job last week, on a Victor Safety, to the tune of fifty-four minutes without pace-makers. I consider this a better performance by far than the record—Schwartz's fifty-two minutes five seconds, with pace-makers all the way.

WILHELM failed in his attempt to break the Paoli record on Sunday, 23d inst. He did fifty-eight minutes, however, against a very strong head wind.

THE OWL.

WELL may L. A. W. members cry "deliver us from our friends." On every plea they are begged for financial aid. The last and by far the most outrageous attempt to induce them to put their hands into their pockets, is the editorial in the last issue of The Wheel to the effect that if each one of the 11,624 members of the L. A. W. will send seventeen cents to the N. J. Cycling and Athletic Association, that it will clear that corporation from debt, and save the track for that association. I cannot see why any call for aid should be addressed to the members of the League. The N. J. C. & A. A. is a corporation who put a certain sum of money into a track, upon which they had a series of cycle races, and to witness which every wheelman, both League and non-League, had to pay. The affair does not prove a financial success, and now these League members are called upon for aid. Why?

W. C. HERRING, whom many will remember as an attempted solver of the amateur question, is studying medicine in London, along with Furnivall.

As soon as the complete list of nominations for political officers, to be voted for on the 7th. prox, is complete, I shall keep standing at the head of this column two lists of candidates, one of which will be the names of such politicians as have favored cycling and wheelmen, and the other of such as have been prominent in attempting to injure either or both. For our friends I shall expect every wheelman to pay them the debt he owes them by casting his vote for them, and for our enemies his vote should go for the rival candidate. Do this but once gentlemen of the League, and I will guarantee that our claims in the future will meet more support and less opposition from these powers that be. Watch the list.

JOE PENNELL has a full page in Harper's of a wheeling scene on the Ripley Road, in front of that famous cycling resort "The Anchor Inn," while Thos. Stevens has written the descriptive article thereto. The whole affair makes one long just to scorch down to Ripley, just once. Penning this regarding Stevens reminds me that hardly a week passes now that he is not a contributor of some article or other to one of the large dailies, based on his observations on his recent tour. Few things of their kind are better written or more entertaining than these same articles of Stevens.

THEY seem to have a strange idea of just what the practical purpose of the L. A. W. is, down in Louisiana. The State division there recently gave a race meet on quite an extensive plan, to which, each member received a number of gratuitous tickets. Needless to say the affair was a grand success, in every way but financially; now the obvious result is a depleted treasury and a division bankrupt and in debt, and the now-common amusement of passing around the hat for subscriptions will be made, and it remains to see if this performance will be as successful as the race meet. I think not, and I know wheelmen pretty well too. If they won't "chip in" for the "Liberty Bill," I am sure they won't for any race meet, especially when it is one of the past.

MR. MORGAN MARSHALL of the New York Club, is the latest aspirant for metropolitan header fame, his claim is based on a broken arm secured in an attempt to drive a light racer at a scorching pace over the muddy surface of Central Park roads on Friday last. Next!

THE "Riverside Wheelmen" made a new departure, for New York, in their bid for the presence and dimes of cyclers, by the means of a fair held, for the last three days in last week, at their rooms on the Boulevard. I understand the affair to have been a most glorious success, socially as well as financially, the too-susceptible wheelmen, being as usual, unable to answer nay to any question backed by a pair of bright eyes that looked into his, as their fair owner asks him if he won't just please take a chance in a pincushion, or something else equally as necessary to his health and happiness. In such an affair, where the fair ones to help the fair, cause one to bid farewell to even his car fare, I consider myself to have fared well to have escaped with even this fair treatment from the fair ones at their fair.

THE OWL.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

MY friend, "The Owl," has worked himself up into a terrible state, as evidenced by his recent letters to the cycling press, because the appeal from our Chief Consul for subscriptions to liquidate the indebtedness of our Division has met with such a comparatively unsatisfactory response. Now, the indignation of our esteemed friend is both worthy and just, but before censuring the Division at large, he should acquaint himself with the true facts of the case. If he will consult the Chief Consul, he will find that the appeal was sent only to those members residing in New York city, for the reason that they, more than any others, have received the direct benefit of the Liberty Bill, and are numerous enough, and should be patriotic enough, to defray the paltry expense of its passage. Now, if he will rail against his fellow-citizens, we outsiders will be content; but when we stand ready to assist, and are advised to wait until officially asked to do so, we object to being classified with those who, having been directly benefited and personally appealed to, as a body, refuse to lend a helping hand.

The Board meeting is now a thing of the past, and those who feared the consequences of the proposed general slaughter of road races are at rest. The Board very wisely refused to adopt the stringent measures proposed by the Racing Board, and thereby avoided another of those unpleasant squabbles of which we have had so many in the past. The resolutions adopted were admirably framed, expressed the sentiment of the majority, and are about as binding as any can be made unless the laws of the different States be changed for this reason. Road racing has generally been regarded as an unlawful pastime, and so I have always considered it. I was, therefore, surprised a few days since, when informed by a prominent attorney that there are no general laws regulating the rate of speed at which one shall travel on the public highway. Certain cities and large towns have adopted local restrictions regulating the speed of vehicles using the highways within their jurisdiction; but once outside this local jurisdiction, there are no State or United States laws restricting one from going at any rate of speed he chooses. Therefore the question of the legality of road racing will depend entirely upon whether or not the course chosen is within the jurisdiction of any local ordinance regulating speed. If the course is not within the jurisdiction of such local ordinance, I fail to see how the act can be construed as being unlawful, unless those present congregate as a mob, annoying the residents, and infringing upon the free use of the highway by others, in which case the assemblage would be not only unlawful, but calculated to do our organization untold injury; and for this reason the resolutions passed should receive the hearty support and co-operation of all well-wishers that in the end these great road racing events may be quietly and peaceably abolished.

The New York correspondent of the Athlete states in the last issue of that paper, that if the Kings County Wheelmen win the cup at the coming contest on election day, the same will become their property. It was generally supposed that no one in New York or hereabouts, who even pretended to be posted in wheeling matters, did not know that the interstate trophy is a perpetual challenge cup, to be raced for twice each year. Truly, the "Attic Bee" must spend most of the time in his attic, or he would not have resurrected this exceedingly antique piece of misinformation as something new.

The Kings County Wheelmen are working even harder than usual for the coming contest. They admit that their team, this year is inferior to former ones, and that they have at least one dangerous rival. But if careful preparation and hard work count for anything, they should be successful, as no little detail has been neglected to put their team in the very best of shape. We naturally want to see the cup return to Brooklyn, and as we do not consider any of the other teams from this city as strong as they, we wish them every success, and hope they will come out as usual,—ahead. We visited the course on Sunday last, and found it in spots, particularly on the long hill, in very bad shape, owing to recent repairs. It will no doubt be in much better shape on the day of the race, but it does not seem possible to get it in its usual fine condition by that time. At present, I doubt if any one could coast down the long hill, on account of the quantity of loose stones and fresh dirt with which it has been liberally covered, and I know it would be a tough climb up at a ten-mile pace. Unless considerable

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating."

improvement is made, we may look for much slower time and a few headers.

The Brooklyn Club turned out fifty-two men, on Sunday last, for a club photograph, which was taken at Prospect Park. Thomas Stevens, who has been a member of this club since his return from the East, turned out with them in the morning for the picture, and in the afternoon took a twenty-five mile spin around the Brooklyn Riding District with several of his clubmates. BON.

OCT. 24, 1887.

ST. LOUIS.

I WAS never more forcibly struck with the Juggernaut-like advance of the wheel than by the case of George S. Johns, dramatic critic of the Post-Dispatch, and author of some thrilling war stories. Last summer, a year ago, Johns was taken in hands by a journalistic confrère, and became quite a biyclist, going so far as to ride all the way to St. Charles, thirty miles distant. But snow came before he learned the charm of riding, — coasting, — and this summer he has not touched a wheel. Animated by a Judas Iscariot malignity, some months ago he wrote for the Spectator an effusion on the "Confessions of a Reformed Bicyclist." The other night an immense audience was at the "Last Days of Pompeii," three miles out in the suburbs. Just before the performance was over, there was a wreck on the only railroad leading back to the city. The audience had to wait over two hours before trains were running. As some wheelmen were rolling their wheels out through the throng Johns and his wife stood looking at the lights of the distant city and the trainless track. I shall never forget the look of mingled remorse and despair Johns wore as he caught sight of us, and exclaimed, "Oh, if we only had a tricycle."

I DO not see why a little more originality is not displayed in finding names for bicycle clubs. The ear and eye are weary with repetitions of the same old names, Ramblers, Wanderers, Rovers, etc. Every town where a club exists has a name like this, or the town's name as the basis. It seems to me the name could be made to suggest some pretty feature of riding by compounding words ingeniously. When the new club was organized last summer all the meditation on a new name evolved nothing but the prosaic "St. Louis Cycle Club." There is nothing in the name that can be personified. When you want to speak of one member you can't say he is a Rambler or a Missouri, but you must use the whole long name. Could anything be more awkward? A little skilful compounding would provide a name pretty and expressive. Suppose, as they have been told, they had taken the three words "hill" "and" "dale." Uniting them we get hillanddale. Cutting out a "d" we have "hillandale," which could be altered still further to "hillendale." How much prettier and more euphonious would the "Hillendales" sound than the "St. Louis Cycle Club." The name at once would suggest the charming changes in scenery which the rapid motion of the wheel presents to the riders' eyes. Such combinations of words could be extended indefinitely, and with much benefit to cycling.

I SAW Charlie Duryea of Washington, at the Fair last week. He had fallen from grace, and was exhibiting, not one of his marvellous inventions in the wheel line, but a new-fangled scoop board for the farmers. Nevertheless, his fallen condition has not worn on him very much, and he was looking fatter and better than when he left here two years ago, and his general appearance showed that his inventions are beginning to bring him some satisfying returns. I asked him about the prospects of the Safety. I have long wanted to get a competent mechanic's opinion on the little wheel. Duryea is the man par excellence to give such an opinion, as he is honest as the day, and can rise above prejudice. So I listened as he answered: "The Safety does well enough on floors or asphalt, but it is n't adapted to general roads. Why? for two reasons: First, the wheels are so small that you cannot pull them out of a rut, they just skid along in it. Notice how easy the big wheel of an ordinary rolls out of a rut, and how the little wheel, though carrying but one quarter the weight, slides along in it. That is the principle exactly in the Safety. Second, the sensitiveness of the steering precludes the restful pleasure of hands-off riding. You can ride a few yards or so, but not enough to cause a relaxation."

"How about your spokeless wheel?" I asked.

"I have been riding it all summer," he replied, as if astonished that I and the rest of humanity were in ignorance. "I have been climbing three-inch curbs with it hands-off, and doing such things. I expect to have it on the market next spring, and I mean it too. This is no 'XM Miles' gag either."

I don't like to pit my judgment against Duryea's, but I would like to call his attention that H. W. Belding is out in a defi to Greenwood, and claims to be able to defeat Hal on the DeSoto road. Belding is a recent convert to the Safety and with it is confident he can lay out the Star. If the little wheel is so bad, it is funny it has served Belding so well on the worst road in the country. OMEN.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16.

CYCLETS.

H. D. COREY is in England.

MALTBY has joined Morgan's American team.

NEW JERSEY sent none but doctors to represent her at the New York meeting.

PERCY STONE is at Dallas, Tex., winning prizes in professional races with the Texans.

PROSPECTIVE balls, dinners, and minstrel shows now engage the attention of clubs.

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., is putting up guideboards and street signs. The law is working.

THE Vermont Bicycle has once more changed its form, and now appears with many 6 x 8 pages and a cover.

THE Century Wheelmen of Philadelphia will have a "smoker." This is a new idea in Philadelphia.

IF you want to sell your wheel let it be known. We will tell about twenty thousand people all about it for fifty cents.

MALTBY was "spotted" by some clever party on his arrival at Leicester as W. A. Rowe in disguise, and quite a scare ensued. — Cyclist.

THE World will arrange for and conduct a twenty-four hour road race to be contested Oct. 31, and a hundred mile race to be run Nov. 5.

A RACE meeting has exhausted the Lousiana Division treasury and a popular subscription is called for to put the division financially on its feet again.

GET your tailor to measure you and your uniform will fit. The outfitter cannot be blamed if the measures sent are taken by an incompetent person.

THE Harrisburg (Penn.) Wheel Club will hold a lantern parade Saturday evening and this will be followed by a Sunday run to the "Little Old Log Cabin."

YOU will be able to get cheaper wheels in 1888. The cycle bears have been at work. One or two of the manufacturers are making a cheaper grade of wheel.

IN a hill-climbing contest at Quincy, Ill., John Stout, the mute rider, and Percy made the ascent in 1.24. In a trial to decide the tie, Stone made the run in 1.18.

ROWE pronounced the Attleboro track the worst one he had ever seen, but when he got to Providence he pronounced the track much worse than that at Attleboro.

THE Ames Manufacturing Company will build bicycles for the Overman Wheel Company next season, but the company will manufacture its own tricycles and safeties.

AND now the man who rides every day in the year will begin to talk in loud tones of condemnation against the man who covers his wheel with vaseline, and puts it away.

ELMER E. SUMMEY started from Boston on Monday to wheel to Buffalo, via the White Mountains, Lake George, Albany, etc. He expects to be a month on the journey.

J. F. Midgley, the racer, was run into by a wagon at Seabrook, N. H. last week, and his wheel was wrecked. He demanded payment of the owner, was refused, and will sue for damages.

ONLY wheelmen capable of maintaining a pace of ten miles an hour are eligible to membership in the Denver Ramblers. Ramblers, indeed! The idea of rambling at the rate of ten miles an hour.

WE ought to get twelve thousand members this year. To do this we must keep up an average of applications. Only a few over three hundred names will give us twelve thousand.

NOW that the tricycles are taking on twenty-six inch pilot wheels we cannot see one of the old kind of these wheels with eighteen-inch pilots without thinking the wheel to be 1Sty little thing.

THE makers of the Springfield Roadster have contracted for four thousand wheels for 1888, and hope to sell six thousand. A higher cost wheel will be put upon the market, and this will have ball bearings.

HOLLINGSWORTH tried to beat Dingley's hundred mile record last week, but failed to complete the distance, though he beat Dingley's time from twenty-four miles to sixty-four miles, at which point he stopped.

"OMEN" wants clubs given such names as "Hillendale" because they ride over hill and dale. We have found that clubs generally ride to the hotel which gives the best dinner. Why not "Washengrub" club?

AT last Woodside wears Howell's scalp at his belt. The big man was beaten by the American in a ten-mile lap race at Leicester, Oct. 1. Fourteen points to twelve points was the score. Woodside rode a Rudge.

OUR types put "Rhode Island" in italics last week, and gave the impression that Little Rhody was not a division State. It was a cruel wrong to Rhody. And now we shall not dare to go to Rhode Island for a year.

WINTER is coming on, and maybe the debating societies can help us out on the question; "Which is the fastest man, Rowe or Howell?" There seems to be no better way of arriving at a conclusion. — Wheelmen's Record.

CRIPPS is still in the hospital in London. It will be a month yet before the poor fellow will be able to put his foot to the ground. It will be remembered that he severely hurt himself a month ago by the breaking of a heavy plate glass window.

IF Belding should happen to beat Greenwood to De Soto, it would be a good card for the safety. No one will say that, man for man, Belding is the equal of Greenwood. Belding claims that no man on a Star could coast the De Soto hills as fast as he did.

HICKS, of the Post-Dispatch, is after the N. C. U. for accepting records made with a flying start. It does look a little inconsistent for the Union to insist that its rules shall be used, and then accept a record made contrary to a very important rule of its code.

SENATOR MORGAN writes that the Secretary of the C. T. C. has fifteen clerks at work for him. When will it be necessary for the League office to have fifteen clerks? Perhaps when we give up publishing a weekly paper and come out once a month.

CHAIRMAN LUSCOMB, he of the Rights and Privilege Committee, wields a terribly "sarcastical" pen. A big circulation awaits the cycling paper that secures him as editor, but he would need always to go armed. There are parties who object to sarcasm at their expense.

W. PARKES, J. Dubois, W. J. Morgan, W. M. Woodside, J. D. Lumsden, T. H. Steele, A. H. Robb, R. Patrick, E. Eole, W. Day and others have entered for the six day, eight hours, international contest at the Waverly Market, Edinburgh, which begins to-morrow.

IT would have been very pleasant if some of the Gloucester wheelmen had piloted the ladies around Cape Ann and pointed out the places of interest, but though the ladies have taken the trip three years in succession such a courtesy has never been extended though it has been requested several times.

MR. J. S. SMITH, of the Surrey Machinist Co., has, in company with his wife, just made another remarkable record on a tandem. On Oct. 8, they tried for an hour record and succeeded in covering twenty miles in the amazing time of 1.3.44 4-5 and twenty-five miles in 1.20.6. The best record for a single tricycle for twenty-five miles is 1.22.29.

"OMEN" wants to see more originality in club names. His ideas are very good except in so far as his objection to the taking of town names goes. The club that adopts the name of its town does well, for it is then easily located. We do not like county names. They are long and mean little beyond their immediate vicinity.

FOR the first time since wheel racing has amounted to anything, a year is going to close without any racing by George Hendee, the only American who has ever been a match for Rowe. There was some hope that George would take to the track again this fall, but the announcement is now made that he is to make a drumming tour through the South for the next six months, which will keep him busy well into 1888.—Post Dispatch.

AFTER the ladies' tour to the North Shore, Mr. and Mrs. Mason, of New York, rode to Newport and took the boat to New York. Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Stall accompanied them from Boston. After leaving the Masons, the tourmaster and his wife started to ride home; but Mrs. Stall's foot got caught in the machine as they were getting off, and she received an injury that obliged her to forego riding. A doctor dressed the foot, and they came home by rail.

CHIEF CONSUL DAVOL, of the Rhode Island Division L. A. W., and Mr. C. F. Gladding, of the Racing Board, contested a spirited race of two heats on Main Street, in front of this office, Thursday afternoon. Both were mounted on trikes, and it is needless to say that the experience of the Chief Consul on this mount more than counterbalanced the superb muscle of the celebrated Rudge rider, who was distanced in both heats. The result was Gladden-ing to the Chief Consul's friends, and not disheartening to his defeated opponent.—Warren Gazette.

DOANE and Benson of the Dorchester Club have been making a road record to Providence this week. Starting from the Dorchester Club house they rode to the club house at Providence, against the wind in 3.40., going by way of No. Attleboro and Wrentham. Distance 40 1-4 miles. Returning they had the wind at their backs and came by way of Attleboro and Foxboro; distance 48 miles; time, 3.40. They then finished out a century, completing it in riding time of 8.10.

FRED S. ROLLINSON, the trick rider, was arrested in Sacramento, Cal. several years ago on a charge of larceny, and given two years in State Prison. He was transferred from that institution to an insane asylum, and subsequently released before the expiration of his term. He went to Australia and has married the daughter of the proprietor of a comedy company, of which he is now part owner. A man man died in a California poorhouse some time ago, who confessed that he committed the crime, at least such are the advices which W. J. Morgan has from the Antipodes.

THE Pope Manufacturing Company has issued its new scrap book. The book is gotten out in a very taking style, and as one turns its leaves it looks to be a manila book into which newspaper scraps have been pasted. The selections embrace articles that have been published in various periodicals, and relate to tricycling for ladies. No book that has been published contains so much of value to lady riders as this does, and as it can be had for a stamp, we advise every lady rider to procure a copy, and if there are gentlemen who wish to persuade ladies to ride, they should get one of these.

THE meeting of the Missouri Club, Tuesday evening, was a busy one. The subject of winter entertainments was discussed, and Brewster was elected chairman of the entertainment committee and Frank Pratt, of the finance. The first will be given some time in November. The hop feature will largely prevail, as it was found last year that it was a little too expensive getting up entertainments otherwise. A proposition that the club unite with the Cycles and put up prizes for a road race was voted down, Brewster opposing it on the ground that road racing was wrong. Quite a number of changes in the constitution and by-laws were made.—Post-Dispatch.

THE Philadelphia Club recently tendered a reception to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lewis, who have just returned from their tour through Europe on a tandem tricycle. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis have been absent from Philadelphia since the 25th of May last, and during that time rode almost 2200 miles, passing through England, France, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Germany. Mrs. Lewis three years ago was a confirmed invalid. A more forcible argument for cycling as promotive of health could not be advanced.

THE World announces that it will conduct a 24-hours road race, also one of 100 miles over a course not over 20 miles long, on roads in the vicinity of Boston. The first race given will be the 24 hour, and will be started Oct. 31. Entries will close Oct. 29. The 100-mile race will take place Nov. 5. Entries close Nov. 4. Entries $2. The prizes will be gold medals for the first, and fine medals for the second. The route will be a simple and direct one, in which it will be impossible to skip and go astray.

IT has been calculated that a man whose stride is thirty-two inches will make 1,980 steps to the mile. If he walks at the rate of one hundred steps per minutes, he will walk a mile in 19.8, or about three miles an hour. A rider of a 52-inch bicycle, each time he makes a revolution of the pedal, advances his wheel 13½ feet. If he makes a hundred revolutions per minute, he moves 1,361 feet, or nearly fifteen and a half miles per hour. It may be said, then, that on a good road a rider of a bicycle can cover a given distance in one third the time with one sixth the exertion as compared with walking, or three times as far as on foot with the same rapidity of movement, and less than one half the exertion.—The Standard.

THE Cambridge Club held open house on Tuesday evening and dedicated the new club-house on North Avenue. Some five hundred guests were present, and the evening was spent in looking about the new club-house. President Hayes and Mayor W. E. Russell received the guests in the parlor. An orchestra furnished music, and there was a very pretty floral display. The house is fitted up for social purposes, with parlor, card room, billiard room, etc, but later a wheel room and gymnasium will be provided in the basement. The rooms are beautifully decorated and furnished, and the club is well quartered.

AN occasion of rare enjoyment was the meeting of the Columbia Bi. Club of North Attleboro and Roxbury Club of Boston at Walpole last Sunday, the Roxburys entertaining the Columbias at dinner at the Walpole House. After satisfying their great appetites, President Emery, on behalf of the Roxburys, presented Captain F. I. Gorton of the Columbias with a grandfather's stop-watch, suggesting its convenience for timing, and causing much merriment. Captain Gorton responded, though surprised; he expressed the thanks of his club and himself for the pleasant occasion. The two clubs intend visiting Mechanics Fair together, the first of next month.

AT Indianapolis Prince Wells performed a feat never before accomplished by a unicycle rider. At the grounds of the Athletic Club of that city he mounted his single wheel and rode for 59 minutes and 40 seconds without a dismount, going exactly 10 miles. The record is remarkable. A few weeks ago he rode ten miles at New Orleans in 1.20., which was a world's record until his Indianapolis record. Prince rode his first mile on a unicycle at Indianapolis in July, 1885, in 4.1., which was at that time considered something marvellous.

BRISTOL COUNTY (R. I.) CHAMPIONSHIP.

A GOLD medal for the best rider in Bristol County was first offered two years ago, and was won twice in succession by M. W. Turner, of Warren. The winner was challenged in August last, by Arthur Beuchene, a French Canadian, the race taking place in the latter part of the month. The Canadian won by a few feet, and there was dismay in the ranks of the Bristol County Wheelmen, as Turner was supposed to be their fastest rider. Naturally, there was joy in the French camp, and the new champion was carried home on the shoulders of his friends, a keg of beer opened, etc.

The Bristol County Wheelmen had good cause to look with dismay on the result. F. A. Bliss was the only man that could follow Turner, and in both previous events Turner had defeated him by three or four seconds. In the mean time, the Division held its annual races at Narragansett Park, and Bliss won the one-mile State championship, hands off. A council of war was held; Bliss challened Beuchene, and the boys "chipped," and offered a gold medal, value $25. The event occurred Saturday, Oct. 22, 1887, after a heavy rain, and in the teeth of a gale of wind. The course is three and one quarter miles, over an ordinary country road. Bliss won, time 12.39, defeating his opponent so badly that he turned off at a side street and wheeled home. The street was packed, and as Fred crossed the tape the yell was deafening. Every American was pleased, and some of our foreign friends secretly expressed their joy at the result, as the captain is a prime favorite, and will not get the "big head" over his success. Bliss says that it is his last race; but if some would-be champion should desire to compare speed with him, I think he could be accommodated at short notice. The day ended in a jolly supper, and the championship once more takes up its residence on Main Street. The town of Bristol, four miles away, is hardly able at the present time to send a man capable of carrying home the coveted prize; but we hope, before many months, to behold a trial of speed between riders from the two rival towns. 7308.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CUFF BUTTONS.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—During the past year I have worn a pair of cuff buttons which are easily and cheaply made. Not only are these buttons handsome, but they carry conspicuously the mark of our League. Take four small L. A. W. buttons, such as are used on the sleeve, have them heavily gold-plated and linked in pairs. The link can be made like a letter S, very much compressed, and elongated thus ∞. The letters can be enamelled or blacked with Indian ink. Total cost in my case, seventy-cents.

W. H. BERGTOLD, M. D., L. A. W. 2175.

LEAGUE OUTFITTER.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—I see that L. A. W. No. 16,680 defends the present League tailor against the insinuations of misfit. Has the "Owl," in some of his nightly prowlings, run across an electric light that has made him lose his temper? I would seem so. I have worn the so-called League uniform that was given us two years ago, and while it looks well at first, we all soon become "red men." As soon as I could get hold of a sample of the new cloth, and found that it met my expectations, I went to my tailor and was measured for a coat, sent the measure to Philadelphia, and in due time received a coat that fitted, — not a wrinkle in it. Had every member of the League sent a tailor's measure rather than their own to the firm who are furnishing the League suits, there would be very much less fault finding. The Uniform Committees have done their work well. L. A. W. No. 3,248.

MANHATTAN SUBSCRIPTION.

EDITOR BULLETIN:—Allow me to protect the good name of the Manhattan Bicycle Club, by correcting the statement of "The Owl" in last BULLETIN, in which he says the Manhattan Bicycle Club, among others, "care nothing for the privileges given them by the passage of the (Liberty) bill, nor for the honor of the State Division." Now, sir, this is pretty strong language, and, knowing the facts as I do, I can but characterize it as merely the hootings of "The Owl."

Since the first call for help by the Chief Consul, the management of the Manhattan Bicycle Club has kept the matter before the attention of the members, and a number of them have subscribed; and it was and is the intention of the club to send a club subscription at an early date. Before making such a statement, "The Owl" should have looked into the affairs of the Manhattan, if he considers such his calling, as he seems to have done in the case of the Citizens', to ascertain what they were "going to do." In regard to the New York Bicycle Club sending $100, allow me to state that this money was taken from the treasury and afterwards made up by the members.

The Manhattans have done their share to aid the passage of this bill, as they will do in defraying the expenses of the same, in due time.

Then take that Professional Handicap at North Attleboro' the other day, when Munger won easily, with Rowe, McCurdy, Hollingsworth, and others in the field. Munger rode an ordinary LIGHT CHAMPION, while all his competitors were on 21-pound wheels. The LIGHT CHAMPION took first in every event at Parker, Dak., on September 17, ridden by Frank Montelius.

There's no use talking, the bearings are bound to get there, even if the machine is heavy and made for the road, and when one does ride the CHAMPION on the road, he simply says "MY! it's the easiest running wheel I ever saw." All matter for publication, whether reading or advertising matter, should be addressed to the EDITOR. All checks should be made payable to his order.

Reading matter, to insure publication in the following issue, must be in the EDITOR'S hands not later than Saturday afternoon; advertisements not later than Monday morning.

The EDITOR must in all cases have the full name and address of the authors of contributed articles, as a guarantee of good faith.

Members should be careful to notify the EDITOR promptly of any change in their residence, giving their old as well as new address. Great care is taken with the mailing list. All changes received after Tuesday night can not be attended to until the following week, as at that time the list goes to printer for revision. Members who write for back numbers will have them forwarded on Friday, our regular mailing day.

For List of League Officers, Statistics of Touring Department, and directions "How to join the L. A. W." see special page in Advertising Department.

NEW-YORKERS, who can afford it, now ride in cabs with rubber-tired wheels. It they get comfort they should remember to give the cycle all due credit. When carriages go on rubber tires how happy we shall all be in the freedom from noise.

IN the nine weeks of September and October, 1886, we had 571 applications for League membership. In the same nine weeks of 1887, we had 598 applicants. We may get the 12,000 this year, but we have got to push for it.

THE Marlboro tandem which Allard and Oxborrow rode in their run for a record, weighed only forty-nine pounds. This is getting the thing down pretty fine. England is still ahead of us in the matter of light wheels, but England has the roads suitable for very light machines. America has got to have roads before she can hope to have lighter wheels than her makers are now giving her.

SEVERAL League clubs are now suffering from the action of those whose League dues they have paid, and who refuse to reimburse them. The clubs do not hesitate to expel all such, and in cases of this kind, expulsion from the League should follow. The League ought not to give privileges to those who are taking them dishonestly.

WILL the bicycle and the buckboard go hand in hand? Witness this from a Colorado paper. "Mr. Louis R. Ehrich, of Colorado Springs, advocates the formation of a Colorado Buckboard Club. The idea is novel, but decidedly commendable. The benefits which he expects will be derived are, better hotel accommodations, better roads, new roads to points of interest, the issuing of information to tourists, and a wider and completer knowledge o the resources and scenery of our State." We welcome the buckboard as an ally.

THE Indiana Division has one hundred dollars in its treasury, and the officers are at a loss to know what to do with it. They propose to hold a fall meet, and have a good time with the money. A Southern Division recently spent all its funds on a race meeting, and we have had several letters from secretaries of State Divisions, who have written us that they have no use for money. One secretary writes: "Don't send me any money. I have a good sum now on hand and nothing to spend it for. If you should send me a remittance, the money would lie idle in the treasury." We state these facts as important ones to be considered in discussing the question that many are now raising, to wit, that the Divisions get too small a proportion of the dues paid into the National treasury. This office is severely hampered in its work for want of ready money. We know of but one Division that has been hampered for want of funds the present year. New York has spent a great deal of money, and we have been unable to furnish cash to them as fast as it was wanted. Other Divisions have had bills to pay, and we have made an effort in every case and furnished the money. No Division, except New York, has suffered, and so far as we know, no Division has had to abandon work for want of funds. We know of no case, except that of New York, where there is not a surplus in the treasury. The Treasurer of the League and the Secretary-Editor are unable to meet their bills promptly. If, then, more money is given to the Divisions, will not this state of things be aggravated? Let the Reorganization Committee determine. We do not contend that it would not be a good plan to send more money to Divisions that use it in League work, and we should favor such a scheme, but we do not care to see money sent to Divisions that do no League work, for it will only swell the amounts now lying idle in the treasuries, and will perhaps be expended after a time in a junket for the members.

FROM A FEMININE POINT OF VIEW.

I HEAR with no little regret that the projected ladies' tour in England has had to be abandoned. It was promoted by the C. T. C. and a prominent official was designated to personally conduct it, but it received no patronage and could not be carried out. This brings to my mind the failure of the ladies' Irish tour last year, and the question naturally arises,—why is England so backward in this feature of the sport? In nearly everything else, cycling, Albion points the way but I fear she will have to follow America in touring.

I SAID touring, and I think I can use the word in its broadest sense for England has shown us no "Big Four," nor "Down East" tours, nor has she, as we have, sent tourists across the seas to Bermuda. It is very common to hear of Americans touring in England and on the continent, but do we ever hear of Englishmen touring in America? They have good roads, to be sure, and their climate is a perpetual invitation to ride, but we have a few good roads, and we have much to show strangers. Can it be that our English cousins have earned the title of "butterfly riders" by keeping to good roads, and never essaying uninviting ones?

AMERICA has indeed pointed the way to England in the matter of ladies' tours and we point with pride to the four successful tours to the North Shore and the many one-day concerted runs that have been held on this side of the blue ocean.

OUR friends who went with us to the North Shore caught the riding fever, and I have heard of them and met them on the road in small parties on several occasions since. The Tourmaster and his wife rode to Providence and Newport and saw the Masons off to New York. The Songstress and her husband, and our Malden friends, went a short distance with them, and at Providence the local riders received and rode with them. The tour of four days was extended to two weeks by several of the party. The Tourmaster's wife caught her foot between the crank and the frame of her machine while at Newport and broke a toe. She was forced to remain in Providence a few days and have her foot attended to, but is now at home and doing well.

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD LEWIS of Philadelphia have returned from their European trip and have been received by the wheelmen of Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis left New York May 28, for Liverpool. They went by rail from the latter city to Coventry, where they purchased a tandem machine and began their tricycle tour. They went up by easy stages to London, visiting by the way Kenilworth, Warwick, Stratford on Avon, Oxford, Windsor, and Hampton Court. They spent ten days in London, making nearly all their journeys from place to place in the city on their tricycle. They then visited Winchester, Southampton and the Isle of Wight, and crossing to Portsmouth, went along the coast to Chichester, Brighton, and New Haven, where they took steamer for Dieppe, and thence went by way of Rouen to Paris. They spent ten happy days in the French capital, and then went on to Geneva, Interlaken and Lucerne. Then they went over to old St. Gothard Pass and by way of Lake Maggoire and Lake Como, down to Milan. They came back along the right side of Como and over the Spluegen Pass into Switzerland again. Next they went for the usual run down the Rhine, taking in Strasbourg, Baden-Baden, Heidelberg, Mayence, Coblentz, Cologne and all the rest of them. From Cologne they wheeled on into Holland, pushing far into the north, where few tourists go. They crossed the Zuyder Zee—in a boat, of course—and rattled down the peninsular to Amsterdam. When they struck that quaint old town they awoke to the fact that the rubber on the wheels of their machine had worn down to the rim, and that the journey, delightful as it was, had better stop there. They packed up their machine and sent it to Liverpool by rail. They followed it and have brought it home with them. They will have new rubber put on the wheels and content themselves with trifling runs of thirty or forty miles round about Philadelphia.

EVERYWHERE, Mr. Lewis said, although objects of curiosity to the natives, they were politely treated except in some parts of southern Germany, where some of the peasants thought it funny to make ironical remarks.

IN London they could find but one hotel in which they could have a place for their tandem. Even then they had to put the machine in a hallway, and take the proprietor's word that no one would disturb it. On the Continent there was no trouble of that sort, Mr. Lewis having a book isssued by the German Wheelmen's League giving a list of hotels affording accommodations for "man and wheel." There was a luggage carrier connected with the machine, in which were stored some twenty-seven pounds of clothing and books. After they left Paris Mr. and Mrs. Lewis depended on the carrier altogether, having grown weary of the annoyances incidental to the forwarding of trunks in Europe. The roads were fair nearly everywhere, and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were obliged to walk only some fifteen miles, a bit at a time, during the whole of the tricycle trip. The maximum run for any one day was made on the trip from Paris to Geneva; it was sixty-three miles. The whole journey from Paris to Geneva consumed seven days. The cost of the journey aside from the steamship charge averaged $6.50 a day for both. They had no notion of making an economical trip and never stinted in expenditures. Among the wheelmen met on the road was a party of six young Americans making a bicycle tour of Germany.

ONE of the most interesting circumstances in connection with the whole story, Mr. Lewis thinks, is that only some three years ago his wife was a confirmed invalid and scarcely permitted to walk at all, and was altogether forbidden to walk up stairs. Yet on a part of their trip through the Bernese Oberland they rode up an ascent that amounted to 3,300 feet in eight miles.

I WAS honored with an invitation to visit the Cambridge Club in its new house on the occasion of the "opening" last week. The club is very prettily quartered and has gathered within the four walls all that goes to make one comfortable and happy. The gentlemen have displayed excellent taste in fitting up this establishment, and yet there was lacking those little graceful feminine touches which the master of a household secures from his wife. A bit of ribbon here, a pretty tidy there, an embroidered, mantel scarf or a prettily worked lamp screen, were missing, but I was assured by the lady friends of the gentlemen that all these were soon to come, and that loving feminine fingers were fashioning pretty ornaments for the new house.

WE had an uncommonly delightful evening and the house was opened under the most flattering auspices. DAISIE.

ST. LOUIS.

KLIPSTEIN was riding along Pine Street the other evening very happy. He had just got back from Cincinnati, and as we nearly ran over a couple on the crossing who did n't see our lampless wheels, he burst out: "I tell you, fellahs, St. Louis is the freest city for cyclists in the country. Why over in Cincinnati we were riding along peaceably, when all of a sudden a cop waved his big club at us and yelled, 'Fifteen feet there, fifteen feet. I did n't know what ailed the fellow. There were only seven of us, and I was busy trying to figure out where the extra foot came in when I was reminded by my companion that the police regulation called for a space of fifteen feet between wheels, and for not more than two abreast. Holy Smoker! what would we do if that was the rule here?" he asked, as he bent over the handles and spurted down the hill, as if to leave the horrid thought behind.

I WAS going out Lindell Avenue to the park the other Sunday, when I caught up with a wheelman. As I drew near him I fell behind a buggy, and just for fun, yelled: "Come there, you bi-sickler, don't take up the whole road." To my surprise the wheelman turned off into the gutter, ran into some loose macadam and flopped. "Well," said my companion, "I 'll bet a dollar he is n't a St. Louis rider." Sure enough when we apologized for scaring him so, we found he was from Minneapolis. Then as we rode along to the park we gave him some lessons. We told him of how many times Cola Stone had licked road hogs all through that part of the suburbs, of what bloody seas we had to ride through to win the rights we now hold, and how no self-respecting wheelman could so far forget the glorious traditions as to allow anybody to scare him off the road. We left him in such an aggressive and independent mood that I shudder to think of what he might have done had he met a highway hog on his return.

A LITTLE incident that has not yet seen print shows in a rather peculiar, but none the less forcible way, the power and effect of the League. As the League parade last spring was sweeping through Forest Park, several young boys a-wheel flew along the boulevard far ahead. It happened that a prominent citizen, who is a genuine road hog, if there ever was one, was out there with a skittish horse. But let him tell his own story, which I got almost direct from him: "I was riding along when two boys came along on bicycles, and my horse shied and reared. I got him quieted and turning the lines over to my friend, I grabbed my whip and jumped from the buggy to use it on 'em, when Lord! over the hill came an army of 'em, with six big fellows on one wheel. Did I use that whip? Yes, but it was on my horse, and in getting out of there, mighty quick.

To those who can see no use in joining the League, ask them if it does n't pay to have an "army of 'em" to back them up in open riding, as in the above instance, or in the silent influence that makes itself felt in the city councils, the mayors' offices, the legislative halls, and the courts.

SPEAKING of the League parade, reminds me of one of the most ironical coincidences I ever stumbled on. Participants in the parade will remember that it was broken once at 28th and Locust Streets by a half drunken fool, who kept whipping his horse through the line. He is quite rich, but as mean in his house as on the road. His wife left him, and the other day he went to a certain house to get a room. He was charmed with a certain apartment, and grandly said: "I 'll take that." "But you can't," said the landlady, "a young man has it." "Oh, I 'll fix him all right. Call him down." The bicyclist came down and heard the man's proposition, and then said: "I know you too well. When I saw you try to break up our bicycle parade last spring, I swore I'd get even with you. I have this room and all your money can't move me out." He might have added: "Ha, ha, villain, I have thee on the hip!" and not violated the dramatic proprieties, but he did n't. He just pointed silently to the bicycle standing under the stairs, and turned on his heel.

THE Missouri Bicycle Club has decided to continue, this winter, the delightful monthly entertainments which lifted the club into social prominence last year. The literary features, I understand, will be in a great measure sacrificed to the Terpsichorean, as it is less expensive. Literary diversions seldom suffice, and a band is nearly always necessary to touch up the dancing element a little before the night is over. So it has been practically decided not to incur the extra expense of providing literati to furnish amusement. Brewster has been made chairman of the entertainment committee, and Frank Pratt will manage the finances. Last year's plan of having a separate member of the committee charged with each month's entertainment, and thus working in new ideas, will probably be carried out this winter. The first event in the club's social life, this fall, will be held some time next month. I hope to see the extensive musical talent in the club drawn on. It is too bad to see voices like Oeter's, Bosswell's, Andrews's, and others, going to waste.

SOME of you long-distance cranks in the East chew on this: Between the 29th of August and the 29th of September, E. A. Smith, of the Missouri Bicycle Club, rode to Ballwin and back every single day, rain or shine. Ballwin is twenty miles from St. Louis by the Manchester pike, so that Smith in the round trip covered forty miles. His total mileage for the month was thus over eleven hundred miles. And don't forget that the road to Ballwin has hills on it that tear a new man's "lung out," as one of our cycling expressions goes. Some of our visitors, who have felt like getting off and dying at the top of several of these hills, will realize the magnitude of Smith's achievement. With such riding as that, it is no wonder that he won the road race, and that he has overcome Capt. Brewster's lead, and now moves along at the head of the list with a total mileage of about three thousand five hundred miles, and a good prospect of beating Stevens's record of last year. It should be remembered, too, that Smith's Ballwin rides were made before or after business hours. Such hustling has never been known in these parts before, nor do I think any other region can show anything like it. If it can, will not some correspondent of the BULLETIN please mention it?

OUR boys came back from the Quincy meet rather down in the mouth over the way Chicago scooped in the prizes. Sanders and Oellin entered in two races, but were beaten by Ehlert and Bowbeer. The only person from St. Louis to get any glory was the blooming professional Percy Stone, who defeated John Stout, the mute Star rider, in the hill climbing after a dead heat. By the way, Stone got the best prize in the hill-climbing contest. When the amateurs found they were down to climb with professionals, they kicked. So the judges decided to split the events into professional and amateur. When they told Percy of this decision, he said: "All right, but you mind that the medal first agreed on remains for the pros." And it did, he says. It is a cold day when a professional gets left, and though the air was a little chilly, it was n't cold enough.

WHAT makes the St. Louis contingent mad is the fact that Chicago is saying that "there is no use talking, the Quincy races were a representative contest between the two big cities." Such a claim makes our boys mad, and it ought to. Sanders is no flyer,—never claimed to be,—and any way has n't been in training for several months. And Oellin? Well, well, Chicago, you don't call him a flyer on the track. He has n't thought of racing this summer, and has never at any time been considered good for anything under 3.05. True, he enjoys the deceiving title of "Flying Dutchman," but that is all a joke. Chicago should n't forget Gus Hart, who beat her so badly last year, Harry Gordon, J. M. Hodgen, Klipstein, and other amateurs; while in the way of professionals, we may ask: "What 's the matter with Percy Stone, whose challenge to Whittaker, called the Chicago champion, remains unanswered?" OMEN.

JERSEY.

FULLY five miles of uneven Belgian blocks and rough cobbles to be ridden at night on wheels encumbered with a festoon of lanterns. This was the obstacle to be surmounted by the Elizabeth Wheelmen when the project of a lantern parade was promulgated some two weeks ago. Many of the boys shook their heads, and feared from past experiences elsewhere, even under more favorable conditions, that the carrying out of the scheme without no small wreckage and disaster to mar the artistic effect of the parade would be most difficult, not to say improbable. Captain Berry, however, was not to be easily discouraged, and, having received the sanction of the club, set about his task undismayed. Invitations were sent to all the neighboring clubs. The next question was how many would respond. The ill-fame of Elizabeth's roughly paved streets, you know, is widespread. The answers, however, began to come quickly, and the "toughs" of the clubs seemed anxious to have a try at it. And so the preparations were pushed forward.

SATURDAY night came, and Luna smiled her brightest approval. The elements and the citizens favored the enterprise. The weather directors gave a succession of dry days, and even the water-cart fiend desisted for once in his destructive labors. At the club house the committee had hung flags within and festooned lanterns without. The lady members had sent in cakes, sandwiches, and the like in bountiful profusion, to serve in the recuperation of famished bodies.

AT seven o'clock the clans began to arrive and were assigned position in line. The lanterns and fastenings were quickly handed out, and soon along the curb for an eighth of a mile was stretched a line of brilliant lanterns. At 8.30 the bugle sounded and the start was made. The procession was arranged as follows: —

First. — First Bicycle Division of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, 15 riders, under Capt. Berry and First Lieut. Bonnett, with G. C. Pennell and S. B. Bowman as aides.

Second. — Tricycle Division. This contained 10 Elizabeth Wheelmen wheels and 10 machines from other clubs.

Third. — Atalanta Wheelmen of Newark, 18 riders, under Capt. A. W. Snow.

Fourth. — Essex Bicycle Club of Newark, 6 riders.

Fifth. — Hudson County Wheelmen of Jersey City, 13 riders, under Dr. E. W. Johnson.

Sixth. — New Jersey Wheelmen of Newark, 4 riders.

Seventh. — Plainfield Bicycle Club, 17 riders, under Capt. F. L. C. Martin.

Eighth. — Roseville Ramblers, 6 riders.

Ninth. — Union County Wheelmen of Westfield, 7 riders, under Lieut. T. H. Burnet.

Tenth. — Ilderan Cycling Club of Bergen Point, 16 riders, under Capt. P. S. Tunison.

Eleventh. — Second Bicycle Division of the Elizabeth Wheelmen, 15 riders, under Second Lieut. L. B. Hazard.

The Savannah Bicycle Club of Georgia and the Rutherford Wheelmen were each represented by a single rider. Scattered here and there through the line were unattached wheelmen. A count was made as the parade passed through Broad Street, which showed one hundred and forty-three machines in line, the largest number that has ever participated in a parade of this kind in the State. In the tricycle division there were nine lady riders, six from the E. W., and one each from the H. C. W., the I. C. C., and the N. J. W.

SPECIAL attempts at decoration of wheels beyond the regulation two lanterns across the handle-bars were naturally confined to members of the Elizabeth Wheelmen. F. C. Gilbert set sail on his Star in the centre of a large design of the "Volunteer." He carried his decorations with great skill, and received enthusiastic applause until a low-hanging branch carried away the whole business. E. J. Runyon rode his Cripper tricycle beneath a bower of thirty big lanterns. He was the recipient of cheers along the whole line, and was also tendered a large volunteer escort of the genus small boy. Thomas Bergen rode a trike, beneath an umbrella of small lights; and J. C. Clirehugh had a circle of lanterns surrounding a large one in front of his tricycle, while Mrs. Clirehugh had an arch over hers. Dr. A. H. Oliver's tandem was rigged with a Japanese umbrella with lanterns pendent from the ribs. Among the Stars worthy of special mention were those of Walter Chandler and S. B. Bowman, while Capt. Berry and Lieut. Hazard had their cranks elaborately rigged.

THE procession moved in single file, and the line stretched over half a mile. The streets were thronged with enthusiastic spectators, and be it here remarked, to the credit of the Elizabeth populace, that the wheelmen throughout the parade were treated with the utmost courtesy. Bonfires were lighted in an almost continuous line along the route, and over fifty citizens either illuminated their houses or set off colored lights, rockets, and Roman candles, as the procession passed. Notwithstanding the rough roads, be it said to the credit of the expertness of Jersey riders, there was but a single tumble, and fully eighty per cent of the lanterns were kept lighted to the end. It was a brilliant spectacle, and did much to increase the interest felt already in cycling among the citizens. The Elizabeth boys are running over with gratitude to the neighboring clubs for the dangers they braved to make the parade the signal success it was.

AT the end all hands were given an opportunity to partake of the generous provisions the lady members had prepared at the club house. It was midnight before all the clubs had been sent on their way homeward with cheers.

THE composition of the teams for the great road race will not be known positively until to-morrow, when the names will have to be in Secretary Bridgman's hands. From what I can learn, however, the following will represent Jersey: Burnet, Farrington, Rhett, and Warner, the U. C. W.; Kluge, Stenken, Baggot, and Eugene Smith, the H. C. W.; and Caldwell, Bowman, Berry, and Gilbert, the E. W. The race is to start "as near one o'clock as possible, and under no consideration will start be made later than 1.30. A large force of wheelmen marshals will be on hand to see that the course is kept clear and that the rights of horsemen and wheelmen alike are respected. There will be, of course, as great a gathering of wheelmen as in times past, as the interest in the race seems to increase among all classes each time. There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee to-night to complete final details of arrangements. JER. C.

OCT. 31, 1887.

LETTER FROM BROOKLYN.

THE crowning event in the history of the Long Island wheelmen has at last occurred. On Saturday they assembled at the Park in the afternoon, had a photograph taken, and then paraded to, and took formal possession of their new club house. The affair was confined entirely to club members, no outsiders being present. At some time during the latter part of November they will have a house warming, to which their wheeling brethren will be invited.

THE Brooklyn Clubs commence holding their regular monthly receptions Wednesday next. These affairs proved very successful last winter, and it is expected that those of the coming season will eclipse all previous efforts.

THE Kings County are thinking of nothing at present but the coming road race. I have heard a report that Harry Hall is sick and will be unable to ride on their team. If this should prove correct, they will indeed have a desperate struggle to retain their supremacy. All the teams were out last Sunday, and they watched each other with most eager curiosity. The course is in wretched condition, being even worse than it was the Sunday previous, and bids fair to be still poorer if the authorities continue putting on new material. There is much grumbling because Kluge is to ride. Every one knows he was but recently a professional, and every one is morally certain that he is now a paid amateur of the Pope Company. It is no credit to the Hudson County to have such a man on their team, and it will be no credit to the Association if he is allowed to ride. The Association was organized for purely amateur and friendly races between the clubs composing it. Now when it becomes necessary for clubs to resort to jockeying, or other questionable methods, to attempt to gain the supremacy, it is important that one of two things should be done,—either expel the club, or disband the Association—and of the two, we think the first most just. Such men as Kluge should not be allowed to compete with the class of men who compose the teams of the other clubs, men who are pure amateurs, and who do not live on the course, training at somebody's expense. It might be a pertinent question to ask at the present time, on what grounds was Kluge reinstated? Was it to please the Pope Company, or the Hudson County Wheelmen? BOB.

QUAKERTOWN QUILLINGS.

THE Century Club's "Smoker" on Thursday evening, 27th ult., drew a crowd of 130 wheelmen to the club's handsome quarters, some excellent music, both vocal and instrumental, and some well rendered recitations filled out a most enjoyable evening. The club's career has been a phenomenally prosperous one and its membership has grown within a year from a little over a score to well above the "Century." There is considerable talk of a repetition of the "Smoker" in a month or so.

THE fall meeting of the West Phila. Athletic Association, scheduled for Oct. 29, was postponed, for the second time, to Nov. 5. Bad weather and the hope of a clear November day caused the change. Chris Wheeler says that the "policy of the change can hardly be questioned when the nature of the events to be decided are taken into consideration. The majority of these events were cycling ones, and as a number of very fast men were entered, the chance for good times was fair, provided the track was all right. Owing to the rain and prevailing dampness for two days prior to the 29th, the track could not by any means be made what it ought to have been to insure fast time, and therefore the management committee determined to try and give Philadelphia at least one exhibition of fast bicycle time to put the sports off for one week. Next Saturday, weather permitting, the following well-known men compete in the various events: In the cycling contests Wilhelm, Dampman, Schwartz, Snyder, Kolb, Schaeffer, Douglas, Kiliner, Fuller, Middleton, Potter, Weaver, Harding, Van Duesen, Strong, Wells and Synnestvelt, and in the athletic events the names of O. P. Chamberlain, Kocap, Terry, Fuguet, Chesterman, Wasson, Lapp, Beeler, Keeley, Murta, etc., are entered. The special match bicycle races between J. J. Potter, of Camden, N. J., and H. C. Middleton, of Philadelphia, and F. M. Johnson and C. R. Massey, of the Pennsylvania Bicycle Club, are eagerly looked forward to by the friends of the respective contestants, and there will be close competition and real fun over these special races."

AT the last meeting of the Germantown Club, Geo. D. Gideon resigned from membership. There is considerable talk of L. J. Kolb retiring from the race track with this season's close; but those who know Mr. Kolb are not willing to believe that he will stop racing so long as he has the least show of winning a race. He has worked from the lowest round of the Philadelphia racing ladder to near the top and never seems quite "done for."

AT Swarthmore College, Oct. 29, the mile bicycle was won by Mode '91, in 3.20 1-2, with Lightfoot '88 second; Lightfoot captured the two miles, with Hall of the same class second, to the tune of 7.41. Not very fast time but the college record all the same.

THE Philadelphia Club at its meeting Oct. 11th. adopted a series of resolutions setting forth that while the L. A. W. fulfils its mission as a national organization it is not adapted to the requirements of special localities and it is proposed therefore to have a meeting of three delegates from each club in this city to meet January 9, to formulate a plan of union.

S. SNYDER, of Reading, has beaten Swartz's record for the bicycle on the Lancaster pike from Paoli to Fifty-second Street. The trip was made Sunday in 52.3, being two seconds better than Swartz's time. R. L. Shaffer and M. Bailey were the pacemakers, and J. W. Loeb received the men at Fifty-second Street. W. I. Wilhelm also started in the trial, but he broke his wheel near Berwyn. When the wheel broke, Wilhelm was three minutes ahead of his last Sunday's time for the same distance. McDaniels of Wilmington also started, but was disabled by a fall. PHACTO.

"It's a wrong wheel that has no turn."

CYCLING seems to bear out the theory of evolution in an alarming degree. A pedestrian first, the wheelman was treated to a four wheel manumotive machine, which was followed by an awkward form of three-wheeler, then a superfluous wheel was lopped off, and the bicycle was the result; still the cry for decreasage of weight and friction on the part of the rider has been met by the manufacturer, by taking off one of the two wheels remaining, and in the spring we are promised a unicycle that any wheelman can ride, without possessing any of the qualities of a Canary. This retrospection brings us to the startling theory that evolution, and the continued lopping off of a wheel, that has marked cycle construction from its conception, may land wheelmen where they began, i. e. pedestrians, and we may yet find ourselves wondering how a man can ride even one wheel, when he gains so much less friction and weight by walking. Who knows?

I OVERHEARD two young ladies the other evening having a confidential discussion on the usual womanly topic of dress. They finally brought up, on what was the most comfortable material for the construction of a tricycling dress for summer wear. The majority of this learned discourse was of course lost upon me, because of my inability to listen to it "from a feminine point of view," but as I left, the meeting had not adjourned, and one of the fair contestants was strongly holding forth for the merits of brown nun's veiling, as the only proper and satisfactory material. I have heard of black nuns and grey nuns, and none such, and "none for Joseph," but who are the brown nuns, I wonder?

A SPOKE on the wheel, is worth two in the factory.

I HAD intended placing at the head of this column the names of such political candidates, as had their actions towards wheelmen and their interests merited the cyclist's vote or the contrary, but finding this somewhat impracticable, I will condense the list, and make note of but two. Each of whom is an example of his class. Mr. Cantor, the introducer and passer of the "Liberty Bill," is too well and favorably known by the sixty thousand wheelmen of this country to need either an introduction or an endorsement from me. Mr. Cantor, has received the nomination for State senator, and it is the duty of every New York wheelman in his district to work and vote for his election, irrespective of what their political bias may be. It is such men as he that we need in our Senate. Mr. Theodore W. Myers is an example to the contrary. This is the gentleman who felt it his duty as a member of the Park Board to circulate petitions throughout the various exchanges, gin mills, and other resorts of the "road-hog," urging upon Gov. Hill to withhold his sanction from the "Liberty Bill" at that time before him for signature. Mr. Myers is now before the voters of New York city as an aspirant for the comptrollership of the city, and I call upon every wheelman here, to vote against his election, and not to be satisfied with casting his own vote adversely, but to influence in all other ways possible the votes of his friends against Mr. Myers, always remembering that if it had been in the power of this gentleman to keep you from having justice, that he would have done done so, and to the twenty-five hundred riders of the wheel in this city, I confidently appeal, for an equal number of votes in favor of Mr. Myers' opponent. Do this but once, and show our enemies and our friends that we neither forgive nor forget, and we will soon find that even wheelmen can get justice when they ask it from our legislators. Remember vote for Cantor, and vote against Theodore W. Myers; the former is your friend, and the latter, your avowed enemy.

A VEHICLE likely to meet with the hearty support from such cyclists as are wealthy enough to indulge in the luxury, is the new style of hansom cab lately introduced. Among many other peculiarities and improvements possessed by this conveyance is the application of the bicycle principle of rubber tires to it to secure ease and comfort when being jostled over the rough streets of the metropolis. While this is the first extensive use of this form of wheel here, it is not exactly its first appearance.

THE LEAGUE DEFINES AN AMATEUR AS FOLLOWS.

ARTICLE V. SECTION 4. — An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught cycling, nor any recognized athletic exercise for money, or other remuneration, nor knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

To prevent any misunderstanding in interpreting the above, the League draws attention to the following explanation: A cyclist ceases to be an amateur by: —

"(a) Engaging in cycling, or any other recognized athletic exercise, or personally teaching, training or coaching any person therein, either as a means of obtaining a livelihood, or for a stated bet, money prize, or gate money.

"(b) Competing with, or pace-making for, or having the pace made by a professional in public, or for a prize.

"(c) Selling, realizing upon, or otherwise turning into cash, prize won by him.

"(d) Accepting, directly or indirectly, any remuneration, compensation, or expenses whatever, from a cycle manufacturer, agent, or other person interested in the trade or sport for cycle riding.

"(e) This rule does not apply to the teaching of the elements of bicycling solely for the purpose of effecting the sale of a bicycle.

"The League recognizes as athletic exercises all the sports under the jurisdiction of the National Association of Amateur Athletes of America, viz., running, walking, jumping, pole leaping, putting the shot, throwing the hammer, throwing of weights, tug of war, and also rowing, boxing, sparring, lacrosse, polo, ruler, and ice skating.

(Each Applicant must give as references the names of two L. A. W. members or three reputable citizens.)

Some eight years ago, when William M. Wright introduced cycling in this city, he had made for him, a set of bicycle wheels by Meyer of Paris, and used them upon a dog cart, which by the by the Park Commissioners caused to carry a bell when going through the Park, owing to the noiseless manner in which it ran. Mr. Wright imported another set of these wheels, and had an ambulance equipped with them, in an endeavor to get the city to adopt them. The doctors all agreed that the improvement thus gained was of great benefit to the transportation of their charges, and though that set of wheels, without any repairs, and with the same set of rubbers, stood over six years pounding over the rough streets, our city government, with their usual brilliancy, could not see the advisability of their adoption. Perhaps the only carriage equipped with these wheels now in use in the city is the very peculiar vehicle used by the Russian Consul. It is a very narrow carriage, just wide enough for one person, with two seats placed tandem fashion, one in front of the other, the wheels are of an extremely light bicycle pattern, spokes of steel and tyres of rubber. The driver occupies the front seat, and as he is dressed in a full Russian costume, an important feature of which is an immense fur cap, the turnout, from the novelty of its driver's costume, and its own construction, causes considerable comment when speeding through the park on a nice warm spring day.

I SEE going the rounds of the cycling press the following lines: —

> "Now comes the season of the year
> When clear autumnal nights begin,
> When smiles the moon a friendly leer,
> Inviting all to take a spin."

Poor Conant Foster wrote those lines upon a pen and ink sketch, in the rooms of toe Mercury Club, one night nearly nine years ago, and to-day some cycling scribe, hard pushed for copy, pirates it and turns it adrift, without ever a word for the author, the like of whom in his way, many of us will not see again. Such is Fame!

IT is from the standpoint in which they are viewed that causes many of the wide differences of opinion in cycling. Take, for instance, the rider who finds himself overtaken on the road by an approaching storm, and proceeds to do some scorching to save himself from a wetting, as it seems to him, as he scans the near approach of the storm, that his wheel never ran as slow or as hard at this the very moment he wanted it to do its best, though his fellow clubman, who started a few moments behind him, and has been trying to catch up to him for the past mile or so, will declare that he never saw number one ride faster, while it was he himself that could not get up any speed. The truth of the whole affair, however, is that both ride as easily and as fast as at any other time, but their views on the subject are biased from the standpoint from which they were taken.

THE more I see of the existing system of handicapping, either by time or distance, the more I am convinced that it is not exactly a success, and that the interest of the spectator and that of the competitor would be better secured by some method in which all competitors start from scratch simultaneously. The only way to handicap and yet retain this feature is by a system of weight carrying, corresponding with that practised in running races with horses. In other words, instead of A allowing ten seconds or a hundred yards in the mile to B, let him give him so many pounds weight for the distance, and then let both contestants start from scratch at the same time. The carrying of the extra weight can be accomplished by attaching it to the saddle, and weighing the wheel before and after the race. Experiments at least might be made in this direction to see what results would be arrived at. One thing certain would be secured, and that is a more satisfactory basis of timing, as each competitor would have to ride the entire distance. As it is now a man from the 150 yard mark wins a mile handicap, and the time given by the timers is for 1,610 yards, and yet it usually gets into print as for a mile, which is as inaccurate as it is misleading.

IF your correspondent "Bon" was only as careful a reader, as he is a bookmaster, he would see that in my recent article on the peculiar ways wheelmen have of helping along the "Liberty Bill" debt, I did not mention either Brooklyn or Cohoes, and that the clubs I mentioned were only New York city ones. While I agree with "Bon" that his club and city has not been asked for any contributions, allow me to suggest that Brooklyn money is as good as any other for the payment on the debt, and that favors that are unsought are often the most appreciated.

MR. RASTUS S. RANSOM is the name of a candidate for the office of Surrogate, and I want every wheelman in the city of New York to vote and work for his election. At the time that the fate of the "Liberty Bill" hung in the balance, and the smallest thing was sufficient to cause us to lose, Mr. Ransom espoused the cause of the L. A. W., and his well-known connection with all honest legislative measures caused Gov. Hill, more than any other thing, to sign the bill. Mr. Ransom, by his action in this matter, caused every member of the League to become his debtor, and the time is now come when the debt should be paid. Pay it at the polls, by voting for Rastus S. Ransom for Surrogate.

MACHINE RENTING.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I am informed that in England machines are rented at the following rate: — bicycles, sixpence; tricycles, sixpence; and tandems a shilling, per hour. So far as I have ever heard the rates here are .50, .75, and $1.00, per hour, respectively; that is, about four times as much as charged in England. Making due allowance for the difference in the cost of machines here and in England, still the rates here are outrageously exhorbitant. Probably, this would make no difference to any one already an L. A. W. member, for the reason that we already own our wheels; but if a similar reasonable rate was customary here, would it not induce many to ride who never rode before, especially ladies, and these new riders would eventually own their own machines and thus by making cycling popular would give the cause a tremendous boom. 13,282.

LIBERTY BILL.

EDITOR L. A. W. BULLETIN: — I see in issue of BULLETIN, October 21, that "Owl" has the right idea about wheelmen who use Central Park, and have the benefit of the "Liberty Bill" and fail to respond to the gentle hints of our esteemed Chief Consul for help to liquidate the debt incurred by reason of the expenses necessary to the passage of the "Liberty Bill." My suggestion would be for each member of the division within fifteen miles of New York City to pay (voluntarily) one dollar, and other members of N. Y. State Division to pay fifty cents, and then the division will be no longer in debt to any one and will be ahead in case of any such march being attempted as our "Owl" predicts. I have not ridden a machine for nearly eighteen months, yet I hold dear all the delights of the sport and would regret to see wheelmen deprived of any of their rights after they are once obtained. Cannot some one second the motion and keep the ball rolling.

AN OLD ADMIRER.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Anent the remarks of the "Owl," concerning the "ingratitude and parsimony" of the wheelmen toward their benefactors, it might be possible to say a good deal on both sides. I had a conversation with a well-known wheelman last night, and the first topic he touched upon was the indignant tone of the "Owl's" letter; he thought the "Owl" would do much better by explaining who these benefactors are, and what the benefit consists of, and whether the prices sought to be charged for these benefactions is an adequate compensation, or not.

Eight hundred dollars appears to me to be a large sum of money, even for the passage of a "Liberty" bill, and it is but natural that the questions should arise in one's mind, "What was it used for? What are the items which make it up, and to whom were they paid?" I think if the circular calling for the the aid of brother wheelmen had contained an itemized account of the expenditures, so that each member could for himself judge whether he was voluntarily contributing to a just fund, or not, subscriptions would have flown in more rapidly. I do not desire to impute that the fund is in any way improperly constituted, because I do not know anything about it further than what I have gleaned from the occasional Treasurer's reports in the BULLETIN, as for instance the item on page 240, Jno. C. Gulick, expenses, fees, etc., $340.45. For what these fees are, and what these expenses were, the rank and file must remain in blissful ignorance. From the size of the item I infer it was for the "Liberty" bill. However, it's the rank and file who are expected to pay every time.

A CONTRIBUTOR.

[The money due Mr. Gulick is for legal services in the Renton cases, and has nothing to do with the Liberty Bill. Our correspondent can get an itemized statement of the account by calling on Chief Consul Bidwell, but we believe the great majority of wheelmen do not care for the items. To secure the passage of the bill it was necessary for an attorney to go to Albany and live there for many weeks and this means a heavy bill for his services and his expenses. Mr. Bidwell is not the man to take or approve unjust methods and Mr. Potter would not lend himself to any such. The New York wheelmen have faith in their Chief Consul and we do not believe the money fails to come in because men believe it was unjustly expended. ED.]

THE UNIFORM.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — I would like to say a word to 3,248, who says "had every member of the League sent a tailor's measure rather than their own to the firm who are furnishing the League suits, there would be very much less fault finding."

Now, I sent a tailor's measure, and if I had put on the first uniform I received from them and worn it on the street before dark. I would have expected to have been mobbed. The uniform was certainly never cut for me, for I have had one made here at home from the same measure sent them, that fits all O. K.

The League uniform I returned and received another that was very little better. I kept the coat and returned the pants the second time and should have returned the whole uniform, only it was paid for in advance and I began to think I could not get a decent fit from the present outfitters. I will say for their benefit however that the third pair of pants fitted very good, but the coat — well, I feel like kicking myself around the block every time I get into it.

W. G. RHODES, 12,076.

THE DUTY OF WHEELMEN.

EDITOR BULLETIN: — Can it be possible, that "The Owl's" estimate of the League members is so low, that he supposes they simply take into consideration, when voting for any candidate for public office, his attitude toward wheeling?

Are we to ignore everything that is bad in a man's career as assemblyman or senator, simply because he worked for the passage of the Liberty bill?

Are we to overlook the notoriously bad administration of our governor, simply because he signed this bill?

On the same principle, we would shun all people in society who did not take our views of things.

If this is what "The Owl" would have us do, well may the L. A. W. members cry, "deliver us from our friends." L. A. W. No. 9,938.
